WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows the trust department of one of Colorado National's (TICKER: COLC) subsidiary banks has an interest in real property designated by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) as a "Superfund Site" due to hazardous waste materials on the property, consisting of, among others, creosote and pentachlorophenol.

The EPA has stated that it may seek recovery of the cleanup costs from other assets held in the same trusts, and the beneficiaries of those trusts have threatened a surcharge action against Colorado National if the EPA is successful in recovering from those other assets.

No actions have yet been taken, the company reports, by the EPA either against the bank as trustee or against the other assets the bank holds in these trusts.

The bank reports it believes it has meritorious defenses against any claims that may be brought by the EPA or beneficiaries and that any such actions will be vigorously contested.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Monolite Industries, formerly Innovative Medical Technology, reported the following executive changes:

Steve Lopez, president and director of Monolite, resigned; Suzy Frost resigned as secretary-treasurer and director; and on Sept. 17, 1990, at a special board of directors meeting, Ronald W. Huegli was elected to serve out the term of office vacated by Lopez.

Huegli was elected as president and chairman of the board of the company on July 17, 1990.

Additionally, Brian Burgoyne was elected to the board of directors to fill the vacancy in the office of vice president.

Burgoyne also will serve out Frost's term as secretary-treasurer.

In other news, Monolite Industries changed its transfer agent from Jersey Transfer and Trust to First Interstate Bank of Washington, due to its proximity to the new corporate headquarters, on Sept. 10, 1990.

The Portland, Oregon, office of Deloitte & Touche was chosen on Sept. 10, 1990 to serve as the company's new accounting firm.

Additionally, Edward Trompke, in the Portland, Oregon office of Brownstein, Rash, Sweeney, Kerr, Grim and DeSylvia, will serve as legal counsel for Monolite.

Monolite's executive office is located at 315 Grand Blvd., Vancouver, Washington 98661 and its telephone number is (206) 693-7855.

PARIS (SEPT. 28) - The wife of Libyan leader Moamer Kadhafi left here Friday after a private visit "for medical reasons", informed sources said.

Safia el-Kadhafi arrived in the French capital early this week accompanied by two of her four children and a cousin of her husband, Mohamed Quaddaf el-Dam, the head of the Libyan secret service.

Mrs. Kadhafi left Paris on a regular Libyan Airlines flight.

THORSHAVN, FAROE ISLANDS (SEPT. 28) - The three-party government coalition of the Faroe Islands, a self-governing region of Denmark, broke up late Thursday over a severe economic crisis.

The Lagting or local parliament is to decide on Monday on the date for general elections.

The coalition split after the Samband Party, which has seven members in parliament, opposed new public investments to boost the depressed economy. The 1990 budget shows a deficit of about 133 million dollars, or 30 percent.

Foreign debts totalled 1.4 billion dollars last year.

The two other parties in the coalition, the Social Democrats and the Republicans, favour work schemes to cut the steep rise in unemployment.

The former member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), unlike Denmark, did not become a member of the European Economic Community when Copenhagen switched from the EFTA to the EEC in 1973.

Fisheries and crafts are the archipelago's main industries.

LONDON (SEPT. 28) - Business bankruptcies in England and Wales were up by 35 percent during the first nine months of the year by comparison with the same period last year, to 16,544 against 12,279, business information group Dun and Bradstreet said in a study released Friday.

That is the highest number for a nine-month period recorded by Dun and Bradstreet since it started compiling such statistics in 1980.

The study says that inflation and high interest rates were the two major causes of bankruptcy during the period. The hardest-hit regions are the southwest, up 69 percent, and the east.

The economic slowdown hsd been felt much more in those two areas than elsewhere in England and Wales because growth was higher there. Wales had an 11 percent rise in bankruptcies as between the two nine-month periods, and western England one of 18 percent.

LAGOS (SEPT. 28) - President Ibrahim Babangida promised Friday that a multi-billion-dollar steel project for Nigeria, conceived 14 years ago and expected to mark a technological breakthrough, will be ready by 1992.

The ambitious steel complex in central Nigerian town of Ajaokuta is being constructed with the help of French, German and Japanese partners.

Commissioning rail lines and a thermal power plant together with manufacturing and repair shops, the Nigerian leader said the government was determined to see the project finished by 1992.

''Ajaokuta project is a priority project of this administration,'' he said, adding ''we are committed to see the project through during the life-span of this administration.''

Ajaokuta and a number of other projects have suffered delays or have been cancelled because of an earlier decline in the price of oil, Nigeria's economic lifeline. Some of the projects are being reviewed after inflation boosted costs.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) - Yemen called Friday for an emergency sitting of the United Nations Security Council to debate the ''present situation in the occupied Palestinian territories''.

No further details were given by Yemen in making its application.

Observers believe Yemen's call is an attempt to swing some of the world's attention from the Gulf crisis caused by Iraq's occupation of Kuwait onto the Israeli-Arab conflict, the region's other main issue.

Yemen, along with Cuba, abstained from the U.N. Security Council's resolution in August for a sweeping trade boycott against Iraq.

TUNIS (SEPT. 28) - Leaders of the Palestinian uprising have ordered militants to "strike hard" against Israelis in the occupied territories until restrictions are lifted on a refugee camp where a soldier was killed last week.

The uprising's underground Unified Leadership, in a statement distributed in the territories and carried Friday by the Palestinian news agency WAFA, declared that militants would "chase Israeli soldiers everywhere."

It said that the leadership would "respond to the repressive Israeli measures" imposed at the Bureij refugee camp in the Gaza Strip, where an angry crowd burned an army reservist to death in his car on September 20.

The statement declared the next few days as "days of escalation" in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and called on all militant groups "to strike hard against Israeli soldiers and settlers during those days."

It also urged Palestinan workers who work in Israel proper to stay home until the "blockade" slapped on Bureij camp is lifted.

The Israeli army has maintained a curfew on Bureij since the murder, detained scores of Palestinian suspects and destroyed some 30 homes and businesses in the camp.

The reservist, Amnon Pomerantz, was killed after accidentally driving into the camp and knocking down two Palestinian youths in an attempt to escape.

The incident has sparked outrage and anger in Israel and sharply raised tension in the occupied territories, which have been gripped by the Palestinian uprising since December 1987.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 28) - Police were singling out people loyal to Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party for harrassment, a senior Inkatha official who, along with 36 others faces charges of attempted murder and illegal possession of firearms, claimed here Friday.

Themba Khoza, head of Inkatha's youth brigade in Transvaal, told a media conference here that police were siding with Nelson Mandela's African National Congress (ANC) in the wave of factional violence which has claimed close on 800 lives in black townships near here since August 13.

"Police are using the Iron Fist only on Inkatha," Mr. Khoza claimed in a reference to stringent measures introduced by the authorities to curb the fighting, which has pitted ANC supporters against those of Inkatha.

This had been the reason only Inkatha members -- himself included -- had been arrested on September 4 in Sebokeng black township south of Johannesburg, Mr. Khoza claimed.

The 137 arrests followed an alleged Inkatha attack on migrant workers' hostels in Sebokeng in which, according to police, 43 people were killed.

On Thursday, charges were dropped against 100 of those arrested while Mr. Khoza, who was allegedly found in possession of four AK-47 assault rifles, and 36 others were bailed to appear in court on October 31.

While declining to comment on the charges he faces, Mr. Khoza said he went to Sebokeng on September 4 to assist with attempts to stabilise the situation and reduce tension. "I was duty-bound as a leader to do it."

The fact that only Inkatha members had been arrested was proof of police harassment, he said.

Police spokesman Major Reg Crewe rejected the allegations out of hand, saying police acted against people breaking the law, not simply because they belonged to a particular group.

He also pointed to repeated allegations by the ANC that police were siding with Inkatha in the conflict.

Johannesburg (SEPT. 28) - South African police said Friday they had recovered rhinoceros horns and elephant tusks worth seven million rand (about 2.7 million dollars) in raids on private homes in Johannesburg.

A taiwanese national was arrested and charged with illegally possessing 28 rhinoceros horns in the first raid by the Endangered Species Protection Unit (Espu) of the police.

Another Taiwanese citizen and a South African of Chinese descent were arrested for attempting to export 81 horns and seven elephant tusks.

The Espu said the horns had come from Malawi and were to be sent to Taiwan for use in the manufacture of aphrodisiacs and pain killers.

Police spokesman Herman Stadler said South African penalties for cases involving poaching of endangered or protected animal species were inadequate and did not constitute a deterrent when viewed against the profits made from such activities.

The three men face fines of up to 1,500 rand (about 570 dollars).

ANKARA (SEPT 28) - Turkey ordered three passenger jets to land for inspection in compliance with the United Nations air embargo against Iraq, foreign ministry sources said Friday.

The sources said a Soviet and an Indian airliner, en route to Baghdad to fly home returning nationals, were allowed to resume their journeys after being checked at Adana in southern Turkey on Thursday.

A polish passenger plane was ordered to land in Ankara for a similar inspection, the sources said.

LUSAKA (SEPT 28) - The leader of Zambia's Movement for Multi-Party Democracy (MMD), Levy Mwanawasa, vowed Friday to defy a possible ban on campaigning following the ruling party's decision to hold multi-party elections next year.

"It is the intention of my movement to continue holding rallies not only to champion the formal re-introduction of pluralism but to ensure also that the methods are proper, democratic and in the interests of the people of Zambia," Mr. Mwanawasa, a lawyer, said.

The ruling United National Independence Party (UNIP) has launched its own campaign in a bid to regain popular support. President Kenneth Kaunda this week instructed the party faithful to promote a "new-look UNIP".

But senior members of the party have said it would be illegal for the MMD to continue to hold rallies until the constitution is changed to allow the formation of opposition parties.

While the government has promised to set up a commission to look into amending the consitution, opposition leaders say this could be used to delay the process.

Mr. Mwanawasa, quoting sections of the constitution concerning freedom of expression and association, said the law supported his movement's right to continue campaigning.

"We must continue to attack UNIP's policies," he said. This would maintain political awareness and ensure the ruling party did not enjoy the right to dictate the nature and pace of reforms, he added.

He also called for the resignantion of the police chief and the army commander from the policy-making central committee of the ruling party. This would ensure their impartiality, he said.

He described Zambia's state of emergency regulations as "an instrument of oppression" and called for the lifting of the powers which have been in force since 1964.

"Our fear is that out of spite (they) can be used to get rid of an awkward opposition," Mr. Mwanawasa said.

The rules effectively allow for indefinite detention without trial.

Mr. Mwanawasa welcomed the decision in principal to introduce a multi-party system, but said some recent remarks by Mr. Kaunda were "very worrying".

The president, criticising trade union leaders, has said he would not surrender the Zambian people to "that kind of chaotic leadership".

"It is not for any one individual to decide to which leadership the people of zambia should be surrendered," Mr. Mwanawasa responded.

NICOSIA (SEPT. 28) - Radical Palestinian leader Abul Abbas Friday threatened reprisals for any "terrorist act" by the United States against Iraqi aircraft hit by a U.N. embargo, the Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported.

Mr. Abbas, head of the Palestine Liberation Front (PLF), said "we will respond in kind but even more violently to any terrorist aggression by the United States or its allies against an Iraqi plane in flight."

Speaking after a meeting with Iraqi Deputy Premier Taha Yassin Ramadan, the Palestinian leader described the air embargo imposed against Iraq as "declared aggression," INA said in a dispatch monitored here.

The measure approved by the U.N. Security Council Tuesday orders states to bar the departure or overflight of any aircraft carrying cargo to or from Iraq or Kuwait, but rules out destruction of the planes.

Mr. Abbas, a member of the Palestine Liberation Organisation's executive committee, claimed responsibility for an abortive commando raid on Israeli beaches in May that led to Washington suspending its dialogue with the PLO.

In a recent interview published in the United States, he indicated that he would stage attacks in support of Iraq, where he is based.

In the Israeli-occupied territories, the Palestinian group Hamas issued a statement calling for an end to the embargo, the Western build-up in the Gulf and the alleged expulsion of Palestinian students by Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Hamas, a Moslem fundamentalist group, had previously condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and criticised the PLO for refusing to do the same.

But the fundamentalists, once bitter rivals of the PLO, earlier this month signed a cooperation agreement with the organisation's main group Fatah.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) - Visiting Bulgarian President Zhelyu Zhelev promised an independent investigation into the possible role of the Bulgarian secret service in the 1981 attempt on Pope John Paul II's life.

"I will take it under my auspices and it will be an independent investigation, because it is in our interest to clear up this case," Mr. Zhelev said in an interview published in Friday's Washington Post.

Mr. Zhelev, who was elected to office August 1, was on an unofficial visit here and met U.S. President George Bush on Friday.

After the May 13, 1981, assassination attempt at St. Peter's Square, Rome, both Moscow and Sofia denied any link to the Turkish gunman Mehmet Ali Agca, who was tried and jailed for wounding the pope.

Italian investigators could not substantiate conspiracy charges linking two Bulgarian diplomats and the deputy manager of the Bulgarian state airline's Rome office to the attempt.

Mr. Zhelev said he had his own "highly hypothetical" theory that Bulgarian agents "might have been directed from another country that wanted Bulgarians involved, such as the (Soviet intelligence agency) KGB."

He said he personally knew Sergei Antonov, the Bulgarian airline official charged with conspiracy in the attack on the pope, whom he considered "a decent man," but suspected he "did some services" for the Bulgarian secret service while he was posted in Italy.

The Bulgarian president said he would "seek help from other intelligence services" in the new probe into the shooting.

"There already have been contacts with the CIA (the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency)," he added.

LIMA (SEPT 29) - Sixty-four left-wing guerrillas and nine members of the security forces were killed in two separate clashes in remote jungle areas of eastern Peru, a military spokesman said Friday.

An army unit shot dead 34 of the rebels on Wednesday after they attacked a police station in the village of Nuevo Progreso, killing five and wounding 14 of the 30 occupants, the spokesman said.

The guerrillas belonged to the Maoist Shining Path Movement.

Two days earlier, 30 guerrillas and four soldiers were killed in a clash in the same region near La Merced de Locro. Troops later captured 19 rebels, the spokesman said.

DUBLIN (SEPT. 28) - The Irish Republican Army (IRA) said here on Friday that it had planted a bomb which police discovered a day earlier at a conference on terrorism in London.

In a communique, the IRA said its success in getting the bomb undetected into the conference hall showed it had the capacity "to strike at will" in its campaign to reunite Ireland.

Police experts defused the bomb early Thursday, just hours before Foreign Office Minister William Waldegrave was due to speak to the conference, which was on the subject of combatting terrorism.

Police said it could have caused death and serious injury.

Mr. Waldegrave was originally to have been the opening speaker at the conference, sponsored by the Research Institute for the Study of Conflict and Terrorism.

TEHERANBAGHDAD (SEPT. 28) - Demonstrators chanting ''Death to America'' and ''Death to Israel'' staged a massive rally in Teheran Friday to protest against the presence of United States-led foreign forces in the Gulf.

A resolution issued at the end of the rally condemned the Saudi leadership for inviting U.S. forces to the Gulf region and to Islamic holy lands.

The resolution called for a jihad, or holy war, against the foreign forces. It condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and demanded the unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces.

The ''victory and unity'' rally was also a ''celebration of Iran's recent victories'' over Iraq, namely ''the August 12 acceptance of Iran's terms for peace'', the Iranian news agency Irna said.

The ''massive'' rally was held on the last day of the ''sacred defence week'' marking the tenth anniversary of the start of the 1980-1988 Gulf war betweem Iran and Iraq.

Israel said Friday it had no knowledge of a reported offer by Iraqi President

Saddam Hussein to resettle 500,000 Palestinians from Israeli-occupied Arab territories in Kuwait, and also to desist from any provocations against Israel.

A foreign ministry spokesman in Jerusalem commenting on the report by Saudi television Thursday said Israel had not received any notification from Saddam Hussein and that the alleged offer ''sounds very strange considering his threats''.

Israeli Finance Minister Itzhak Moda'i Friday told Israeli radio that the United States has re-affirmed that it would extend military assistance to Israel in the event of an Iraqi attack. The minister was speaking on return from talks with the administration in Washington.

Last week Saddam Hussein threatened to attack Israel if the United Nations embargo economically ''strangled'' his country.

Reports reaching London and Paris Friday from Baghdad said foreigners continued to be able to buy food in the well-stocked markets. There was no official confirmation that Westerners would not be able to buy supplies from the beginning of next week.

But reports in the West said Baghdad would stop supplying food to nationals of Third World countries trapped in Iraq and Kuwait.

The United Nations disaster relief organisation Undro said in Geneva Friday that the embassies of Vietnam and Sri Lanka had been informed that as from Monday their nationals would receive no more food supplies. The rise in food prices had put food beyond the purchasing power of most of the poorer Asians, the reports added.

South Korea Friday announced the closure of its embassy in Kuwait. The ambassador and other embassy officials had arrived Thursday in Amman from Kuwait, the announcement in Seoul said.

Official sources in Ankara Friday said Turkey has refused permission for a Polish vessel to unload about 133 tons of chemicals used in the production of mustard gas and destined for Iran.

The Turkish authorities had been tipped off earlier by the American embassy in Ankara that the cargo might ultimately be destined for Iraq.

The ship's containers of neoprene and sodium cyanide had been refused landing persmission Thursday at the Turkish Mediterranean port of Mersin. Turkish government sources said the chemicals had been produced and shipped by West German firms.

The French defence ministry Friday said in Paris that the carrier Clemenceau and two accompanying vessels would be returning home after completing their task in the Gulf crisis area. The ships had landed 42 helicopters and 65 general-purpose vehicles in Saudi Arabia.

LJUBLJANA (SEPT. 28) - Slovenia, the northernmost republic in Yugoslavia, cut itself loose Friday from federal laws in a move that one senior politician called the first step to separation.

With only one vote against, the parliament here passed a change to the Slovenian republic's constitution that invalidates all federal laws not conforming to Slovenian law.

However a government proposal to specifically invalidate 27 federal laws failed to win the necessary two-thirds majority that had been widely expected. A fresh vote on the issue is to be taken later.

Deputies adopted another law that changes Slovenian territorial forces, a form of militia, from a federally run force to a republic unit. In a first for Yugoslavia, the parliament allowed conscripts objecting to military service to do civilian social service instead.

''This is the beginning of the concrete separation of Slovenia from Yugoslavia '' Anton Persak, the deputy speaker of the principal chamber of parliament, told the German Press Agency dpa.

''The Slovenian constititution has gained priority over the Yugoslav federal constitution,'' Justice Minister Lojze Janko told deputies. France Bucar, speaker of parliament, said Slovenia wished to turn Yugoslavia into a confederation of sovereign states.

LONDON (SEPT. 28) - Natural rubber prices made up early losses during the week on nervousness relating to the situation in the Gulf, on the London physical market, traders said Friday.

The price for Ribbed Smoked Sheet No. 1 (RSS 1) for September delivery closed at 535 pounds per tonne, unchanged from the previous Friday.

The late rise occurred in the wake of the Japanese market, where rumours Friday that war had broken out in the Gulf sent share prices tumbling and commodities, such as rubber soaring, traders said.

Persistent lack of demand had affected the trend earlier in the week.

Three-months metal was quoted at 6,490 dollars per ton in after-hours kerb trading, against 6,500 dollars on the ring and 6,220 Thursday.

Other LME traded metals turned lower, depressed by selling pressure from Far East markets.

MOSCOW (SEPT 28) - The president of Kazakhstan has asked for the eastern part of his Soviet republic to be declared a disaster area following a major industrial accident this month, the Soviet news agency TASS said here Friday.

President Nursultan Nazarbaiev sent a telegram to Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryjkov asking for a commission of inquiry including foreign experts to study the ecological consequences of the disaster.

The accident occurred in mid-September at the nuclear fuels plant of Ulbinski, at Ust-Kamenogorsk near the nuclear centre of Semipalatinsk.

The factory, situated in a densely-populated area, is one of the biggest iof its kind in the Soviet Union.

Highly toxic gases escaped into the atmosphere following an explosion in a part of the plant producing beryllium, a metal used in nuclear reactors. The production of beryllium involves a great deal of pollution.

The explosion caused a fire. Clouds of beryllium oxide, a highly toxic and carcinogenic gas, spread quickly through the town. A thick fog kept it from being dispersed.

TASS said that "numerous" residents of the town of Ust-Kamenogorsk were affected.

The unofficial news agency Interfax said Friday that 20,000 locals staged a demonstration to demand that all polluting plants in the region be closed down and that eastern Kazakhstan be declared an "ecological disaster zone".

It said the demonstrators wanted lead, zinc and arms factories closed down, along with better medical and social services.

TASS said residents of the town and the local authorities were both asking for urgent compensation for those whose health was affected by the accident.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) - The U.S. Embassy in Baghdad has received no official notification that the Iraqi government will cut off food rationing cards to foreigners beginning next week, the State Department said Friday.

A spokesman said Iraqi intentions were still unclear on the matter, but that if any cutoff does occur, ''it would be a matter of very serious concern to us.''

The spokesman, Richard Boucher, said food prices were rising in the Iraqi capital and that staples such as flour, sugar, rice, and soap were being rationed.

The U.N. Disaster Relief Organisation (Undro) said Friday in Geneva that the Vietnamese and Sri Lankan embassies had been told their citizens would get no more food after October 1.

LONDON (SEPT 28) - British and Chinese officials said here Friday that their talks on the future of Hong Kong, disrupted after the June 1989 massacre in Tiananmen Square, were returning to normal but acknowledged that differences on key issues remain.

"I think it's fair to say that we have returned to a more normal pattern of work," said Anthony Galsworthy, senior representative of the British team in the Sino-Britain Joint Liaison Group (JLG).

Mr. Galsworthy, speaking at the close of a three-day JLG negotiating session here, said some progress was made on issues including a new airport for Hong Kong, a British confidence-building scheme for the colony and a Hong Kong bill of rights, but added that the talks yielded "a little less than I originally hoped."

Under an agreement between London and Beijing, details of the topics discussed at JLG meetings are to be kept secret and both Mr. Galsworthy and China's senior representative, Ambassador Guo Fengmin, adhered to that rule.

But speaking at separate news conferences, both made it clear that despite differences on a number of topics surrounding the handover of Hong Kong to China in 1997, the atmosphere of the 16th JLG meeting was generally positive and both sides expressed eagerness to pursue talks at expert level.

Mr. Guo reaffirmed Beijing's opposition to the British Nationality (Hong Kong) Bill under which 50,000 key Hong Kong households would get British passports as an insurance policy aimed at encouraging key business and political leaders to remain in Hong Kong prior to 1997.

"The principal position of the Chinese government will remain unchanged," Mr. Guo said, adding that instead of keeping people in Hong Kong the British scheme "has given rise to confusion and has consequently made people want to leave Hong Kong."

But he described the differences between Beijing and London as "quite natural" and said that relations between the two countries, notably on questions surrounding Hong Kong, had improved since a visit to Beijing two months ago by Francis Maude, a former foreign office minister.

BAGHDAD (SEPT. 28) - President Saddam Hussein will address religious leaders Sunday on a Moslem holiday dominated by the "need for holy war" to free sacred sites in Saudi Arabia, the Iraqi News Agency (INA) announced Friday.

INA said President Hussein would speak during a religious ceremony marking the Maouled festival, which commemorates the prophet Mohammed's birthday.

The agency gave no details of the speech.

But it said the holiday would focus this year on the "need for Jihad (holy war) to free the two holy mosques from the occupiers, after the treason of the one who named himself their guardian," referring to Saudi King Fahd.

On August 10, a few days after the arrival of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, President Hussein called for holy war against Saudi leaders to free the holy Moslem sites of Mecca and Medina.

INA said the celebration of Maouled this year comes at a time when Iraq, "led by the religious knight Saddam Hussein is facing the most aggressive and pernicious imperialistic and Zionist crusade... against the heroic resistance of the Iraqi people."

ZURICH (SEPT. 28) - The Zurich stock market dropped by almost two per- cent on Friday in thin trading, under the influence of Wall Street's weakness and a downtrend on most European markets, operators said.

Zurich stocks were also depressed by high oil prices, uncertainties about the U.S. budget deficit, and the issue of the real cost of German unification.

The Swiss Performance Index broke down through the 900-point level, losing 18.1 points on the day to finish at 894.5 (off 1.98 percent). The Credit Swiss index ended the day at 479.1, against 490.0 at the Thursday close.

Most sectors except transport lost ground. In construction, the Holderbank participation certificate plunged by 16.05 percent, and Cementia's was off 8.33 percent.

Chemicals were also hit, Roche bearer stock giving up 3.22 percent, and Sandoz registered 2.08 percent.

In Machines, the Rieter participation certificate jumped by 8.57 percent, and Sig was up 5.6 percent.

Operators said they did not expect any reversal of the downtrend in the near future, though there might be technical rallies.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 28) - The Soviet Chukotskiy peninsula region, facing Alaska across the Bering Strait, has declared itself sovereign, the Soviet news agency Tass said Friday.

It is the first time that an autonomous region, one level below an autonomous republic, has declared sovereignty.

A meeting of the regional people's deputies decided to declare an autonomous Chukotskian republic and asked the Soviet parliament to recognise the republic as part of the Soviet federation.

The new republic extends over an area of 730,000 square kilometres, comprimsing the extreme north-east of Siberia and offshore islands.

Russians and Ukrainians make up more than 80 per cent of the population and only about ten per cent are members of the original inhabitants of the area.

CARCASSONNE, France (SEPT. 28) - Paris mayor and former French prime minister Jacques Chirac forecast Friday that international events "are suddenly putting Japan in a new situation", which "will reduce the competitiveness of its economy".

"Since the Gulf crisis started, we have been witnessing a new phenomenon," he told a political meeting here.

"On one hand, the United States is demanding that Japan pay the cost of stationing U.S. forces in Japan. And secondly, (Soviet President Mikhail) Gorbachev would seem prepared to exchange the Kuril Islands, claimed by Japan, for considerable financing - which the Japanese could not refuse because they have made the matter (of the islands) a leading national ambition," he said.

"Finally, Japan has realized that it can no longer resist international pressure, and that it will have to double its development aid," Mr. Chirac added.

"Japan suddenly finds itself facing a completely new situation, which will lead it in the next few months to pay, if it does not want to be utterly isolated, politically and diplomatically.

"That is a gesture it is not used to making spontaneously, which will affect its economy and probably reduce its competitiveness."

Mr. Chirac will visit Japan next month.

BONN (SEPT 28) - A treaty on economic, industrial and technological cooperation between West Germany and the Soviet Union was initialed here on Friday, the West German Economics Ministry said.

It said the "treaty on development of large-scale cooperation in the fields of economics, industry and technology" was initialed by West German Economics Minister Helmut Haussmann and Soviet government representative Stepan Sitarzhan.

The treaty, with a 20-year life, will be signed after German unification and will have to be ratified by the two countries' parliaments.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT 28) - President Frederik de Klerk has "serious problems" with his own people, African National Congress (ANC) leader Nelson Mandela charged Friday in Umtata, capital of nominally independent Transkei.

Talking to senior government officials on the second of his two-day visit to one of South Africa's two Xhosa homelands, Mr. Mandela said black people should beware of letting waning violence lull them into a false sense of security.

Clashes, mainly between migrant workers from Zulu leader Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party and pro-ANC township residents, cost nearly 800 lives in the month from August 13, but tailed off before Mr. De Klerk's three-day visit to the United States earlier this week.

Mr. Mandela said: "I can say without questioning the integrity of President De Klerk that he himself is serious about making changes in South Africa, but he has serious problems within his constituency," the South African news agency SAPA reported.

Without naming Inkatha he said the ANC had warned police in July of a plan to attack single sex hostels in Sebokeng township 100 kilometres (60 miles) south of here, but they "never even moved a little finger to stop those people commuting to Sebokeng where they successfully butchered several people."

An attack on Sebokeng hostels on July 22 and subsequent street fighting killed 27 people, and another hostel attack on September 4 killed 43.

STELLENBOSCH, South Africa (SEPT 28) - Business confidence is falling in South Africa, confirming that the recession is now deep-seated, the University of Stellenbosch's Bureau for Economic Research said Friday.

In a nationwide survey conducted by the bureau, nearly 80 percent of respondents said business conditions were unsatisfactory, while 69 percent said they were worse than a year ago.

Fifty-one per cent said they expected worse to come. Most respondents in the wholesale industry said third quarter sales by volume were down on the same period last year, the first time since 1985 that the majority of wholesalers had reported a net decline in real terms.

CAPE TOWN (SEPT. 28) - South African President Frederik de Klerk is to use Groote Schuur, the mansion built by British colonialist Cecil Rhodes on the slopes of Table Mountain, as his official residence from next year.

Groote Schuur is currently being used as a guest house for visiting dignatories. Mr. De Klerk's current residence is nearby Westbrooke.

The president's office said Friday that "in the light of South Africa's improved international relations" it made sense to switch the roles of the two mansions since Westbrooke had more space to accommodate visitors.

SANAA (SEPT 28) - The Saudi authorities have expelled 5,000 Yemenis since the beginning of the week as part of reprisals against Yemen for its stand in the Gulf crisis, the Yemeni press reported Friday.

The independent Al-Moustaqbal weekly said hundreds of Yemenis were driven every day in Saudi trucks to the Hard border post and left several hundred meters (yards) from the frontier to walk the rest of the way home.

Saudi Arabia last week expelled several Yemeni diplomats, accusing them of undermining national security, and abolished visa and other privileges enjoyed by the one million Yemenis living in the kingdom.

Riyadh justified the moves as reprisals for Yemen's refusal to condemn Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

BERLIN (SEPT. 28) - A mob of about 300 young soccer hooligans defied the police and went on an organised rampage of violence aimed at foreigners in East Berlin late Friday.

Wearing hoods or scarves over their faces and yelling that they should "get out", the youths chased dark-skinned people through Alexanderplatz while beating the ground with baseball bats and iron bars.

The youths, aged around 15 years for the most part, had come to watch a first division soccer championship match between Berlin and Lokomotiv Leipzig.

Some 300 helmeted police with riot shields stood by to contain them but did not charge at the youths. "We are here to keep them from starting to smash windows," one policeman said.

Earlier this week, on Monday, 250 youths, mostly of Turkish origin, went on a rampage in Alexandersplatz on Monday, smashing windows and burning a vehicle. Then, one policeman was slightly hurt and five people were arrested.

WINSTON-SALEM, NC (SEPT. 28) - Doctors were about to remove the organs of a 22-year-old man who they believed had been killed in a car accident, when his foot moved.

The family had agreed to donate the organs of Curt Coleman Clark, who doctors pronounced brain dead Wednesday after severe head injuries suffered in a car accident.

Police said Mr. Clark was hurt when he lost control of his car and it flipped over several times.

He was placed on a respirator and taken by ambulance to a hospital about 240 kilometers (150 miles) away where doctors were about to remove his organs for transplants when they noticed the man's foot move, said transplant surgeon Dr. Jesse Meredith.

Mr. Clark was then taken to an intensive-care unit where more signs of life were detected. He was listed in critical condition Friday.

WASHINGTON (SEPT 29) - Czechoslovakia is prepared to send a military field hospital and three anti-chemical units to the Gulf if requested to do so, a Czechoslovak official said Friday.

Foreign Minister Jiri Dienstbier said Prague was willing to send the staff and equipment for one field hospital and three anti-chemical-weapon units if it can find a means of transport.

Sources said it would take at least 20 flights of a Galaxy cargo plane to transport the equipment and units, which would consist of about 200 soldiers. The Galaxy is the largest cargo plane in the U.S. Air Force's inventory.

Dienstbier, who was to discuss the offer Friday with Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft, said he has received no requests so far.

Czechoslovakia and Saudi Arabia do not have diplomatic relations, which may account for the fact that Prague has not been directly contacted by Riyadh.

Speaking at the World Affairs Council of Washington, Dienstbier said Prague would not be able to deploy troops in the Gulf because they are not adequately trained and do not have compatible arms.

Czechoslovak Ambassador Rita Klimova said meanwhile that Soviet oil exports to Prague had dropped by 40 per cent since July, primarily because of production problems.

Soviet oil prices are currently cheaper than on the world market, she said, but will rise to world prices in January, causing the country exteme hardship in its transition to a free economy.

NEW YORK (SEPT 28) - Chinese foreign minister Qian Qichen Friday called on Iraqi to withdraw its troops from Kuwait and urged a comprehensive settlement of the Cambodian issue.

Qian told the United Nations General Assembly that the Iraqi invasion and annexation of Kuwait constituted ''a violation of the U.N. charter and a gross trampling upon the accepted norms governing international relations''.

He called on Iraq to respond to the mediation efforts of the Arab countries and U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar by pulling out its forces from Kuwait immediately.

China stands for a political settlement of the Gulf crisis within the framework of U.N. Security Council Resolutions, Qian said.

He appealed to the international community to act on the basis of the U.N. resolutions to ease the tension in the Gulf area, and urged the parties concerned to exercise restraint, avoid resorting to force, and resolve their disputes through peaceful negotiations.

Turning to the Cambodian issue, the foreign minister said the time was ripe for a comprehensive settlement to end 15 years of civil war.

It is ''of great urgency'' to urge the Cambodian parties to elect Prince Norodom Sihanouk as the president of the Supreme National Council so as to ensure its normal functioning, he said.

The council has failed to agree on who will lead it since it was formed by Cambodia's Vietnamese-backed government and four resistance factions in Jakarta earlier this month.

In his speech, the Chinese foreign minister also stressed the need to establish a new international political order on the basis of the five principles of peaceful coexistence.

Only the observance by all countries of the principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, mutual non-aggression, non-interference in each other's internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit, and peaceful coexistence, can ensure normal international relations, he added.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS, SEPT 28 - Arab leaders believe Iraqi President Saddam Hussein still does not appreciate the depth and breadth of world opposition to him, U.S. officials said Friday after meetings on the sidelines of U.N. debates here.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker spent much of Friday meeting with Arab foreign ministers, notably Algeria's Sid Ahmed Ghozali, and Tunisia's Habib Boulares, who met with Mr. Hussein Sunday in Baghdad.

Both ministers assured Mr. Baker they were not planning any mediation bids, saying that what they offered the Iraqi president "in effect was a dose of reality," U.S. officials said.

Arab ministers who had met with Mr. Hussein said he expected -- as his troops invaded Kuwait August 2 -- that any U.N. sanctions against Iraq would be as ineffective as those against South Africa and what was then Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe).

The Arab ministers reported a "misperception" in Baghdad on the seriousness of the resolution of both the Arab League and the wider internatinonal community that "this aggression has got to be reversed," said one U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The Algerian and Tunisian foreign ministers both said they believed the U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq were beginning to bite. "Reality seems to be sinking in ... but very, very slowly," said a U.S. official.

Algeria abstained from an Arab League vote condemning Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and supporting the intervention of foreign troops to defend Saudi Arabia. Tunisia boycotted that meeting of the league, made up of 20 nations plus the Palestine Liberation Organisation.

The U.S. officials said the foreign ministers of both countries nevertheless made it clear to Mr. Baker that they believed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait should not be tolerated.

WASHINGTON, Sept 28 (AFP) - The United States expressed "serious concern" Friday over Iraq's decision to deprive foreigners in Iraq and occupied Kuwait of some rationed food, and held Baghdad responsible for the well-being of U.S. citizens under its control.

Nearly two million foreigners living in Iraq and Kuwait after October 1 will no longer have access to nine rationed food items at either subsidized prices or on the open market, the Baghdad government announced Thursday.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said the U.S. Embassy had not been officially notified of Iraq's decision but said Baghdad was responsible for the security and well-being of foreigners living in Iraq and Kuwait.

"It's not exactly clear what Iraqi intentions are as regards to rationing on October 1," Mr. Boucher added. "Of course, if these reports were true, it would be a matter of very serious concern to us."

The foreign nationals will be unable to buy rice, flour, cooking oil, tea, starchy foods, sugar, soap, detergent and powdered milk for infants. Most of the items can only be purchased with a ration card.

Mr. Boucher said that seven of eight Americans held at Baghdad's Hotel Mansour-Melia had met with an official from the U.S. Embassy Wednesday and then been taken to undisclosed locations by Iraqi forces.

Iraq has been placing foreigners at strategic installations in Iraq in the hopes of dissuading attacks.

Mr. Boucher also expressed dismay that a U.S. request that 69 Americans in need of emergency health care be evacuated from Iraq had been "met with silence."

In Kuwait, Mr. Boucher said, "systematic house-to-house searches for Westerners continue in flagrant violation of all international standards of acceptable behavior."

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS, (SEPT 28) - Japanese Premier Toshiki Kaifu Friday denied suggestions that his country was doing too little, too late in joining international efforts to resolve the Gulf crisis.

In an interview with the CBS television network, Mr. Kaifu said Tokyo was doing its utmost to help shoulder the cost of the crisis sparked by the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"I would like to point out that ours is the largest among the industrialized countries," said Mr. Kaifu, who arrived here Friday to attend the United Nations' Summit on Children this weekend.

Tokyo has contributed two billion dollars to help defray the cost of the U.S.-led multinational force deployed in Saudi Arabia to deter an Iraqi attack.

Japan contributed another two billion dollars for countries such as Egypt,

Turkey and Jordan that are reeling from the effects of the U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq.

Asked to respond to the perception that Japan only offered its help under international pressure, Mr. Kaifu said, "I sincerely hope that kind of perception would be corrected."

"In Japan, all people are tyring to pull their wisdom together at at time when we are exploring how best we could build up a new international order," he added.

Mr. Kaifu also said he would be opposed to fundamentally changing the role of the Japanese military -- a view he said that is shared by a majority of the Japanese people.

"During the second World War, Japan caused a lot of damage and suffering to our Asian and Pacific neighbors," he said.

"The Japanese themselves took to heart the lessons of that war. We shall never ourselves start any war of aggression," he added.

Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama, meanwhile, met Friday with his counterparts from the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council.

Japanese spokesman Makoto Yamanaka said the ministers from Bahrain, Kuwait, Qatar, Oman, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates expressed appreciation for Japan's contribution to the international drive against Iraq.

VIENTIANE (SEPT. 28) - Laotian Deputy Foreign Minister Soulivong Phasitthideth said here that the United Nations' role in administering Cambodia should not violate the country's sovereignty or unity.

"We welcome the U.N.'s contribution, but we hope that it will have an appropriate role that respects the sovereignty and unity of Cambodia," Mr. Phasitthideth said in an interview.

The deputy minister, who was due to go to Cambodia on Friday, also said that Laos supported the Phnom Penh government's position on the composition of the Supreme National Council (SNC).

Under a U.N.-brokered agreement among the warring Cambodian parties, the SNC is composed of six representatives of the resistance and six from Phnom Penh and will represent the country's sovereignty before elections are held.

Phnom Penh opposes a resistance proposal that two members be added to the body and has said it will accept resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk as SNC president only if its own prime minister, Hun Sen, is made vice president.

Mr. Phasitthideth said the SNC presidency and vice presidency were "linked."

"A president must be designated, but also a vice president," he said.

The deputy minister also said Laos hoped a meeting of the Paris Conference on Cambodia would be convened as soon as possible.

"Laos is inclined to support an equitable solution that respects the neutrality and the independence of Cambodia," he said, adding that his country "will make all possible efforts for the success of the conference."

The Paris conference was first convened in August last year and ended without agreement on a solution to the 12-year-old Cambodian civil war.

In addition to Laos and Vietnam, Phnom Penh's main backers in the region, the conference will bring together the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, the members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), Japan, Australia, and the four Cambodian factions.

It is widely expected to meet in November to ratify the U.N.-sponsored agreement reached in Jakarta earlier this month.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 28) - A 1.34 billion rands (0.52 billion dollars) platinum mine is to be established in the tribal homeland of Lebowa, in north-eastern Transvaal province, mining group Johannesburg Consolidated Investments (JCI) announced.

The decision to establish the mine, which is designed to treat 200,000 tons of ore a month by the end of 1994, followed a successful trial mining and milling programme, JCI spokesman Barry Davison said late Thursday.

Asked whether the project could cause over-production -- South Africa already provides 80 per cent of world supply -- Mr. Davison said he was "extraordinarily confident" of the long-term prospects for platinum.

The mine is to be known as Potgietersrus Platinums, owned jointly by two companies in the JCI stable -- Rustenburg Platinum, the world's largest producer, and Lebowa Platinum.

BANGKOK (SEPT. 28) - Thailand is to purchase U.S.-built M-60 main battle tanks to strengthen its mechanized forces, according to an army-run television network report.

Thai army commander General Suchinda Kraprayoon said Thursday the first batch of 100 M-60's, fully equiped with communications equipment, is to be delivered next year, the report said.

"We are getting these tanks at a low price," Gen. Suchinda was quoted as saying.

The Thai army's main workhorse is the U.S.-built M-45A, a medium-sized tank which has been in service for over 20 years. Last year, a number of these tanks were upgraded with new engines and armament.

Thailand also bought several hundred T-69 tanks and armoured personnel carriers from China at "friendship prices" since 1988 to beef up its two Fast Mechanized Strike Force units, designed for rapid deployment.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) - The chief of the Soviet general staff warned that an outbreak of fighting in the Gulf would lead to an alliance between Iran and Iraq and could escalate into a world war, the Washington Post reported Friday.

General Mikhail Moiseyev, chief of the Soviet general staff, urged in an interview with the newspaper that the United States join the Soviet Union in seeking a solution to the crisis under the United Nations umbrella.

He asserted they had "quite enough political means" to find a peaceful resolution to the crisis.

"In case of some military actions, Iran will join the Iraqi side," the general said. "This would not be simply some kind of conflict; this would be a world war ... Such a war would not bring any glory either to the American people or to the people of Iraq."

The newspaper said he did not elaborate on what he meant by a world war nor did he say why he thought Iran would join forces with Iraq, with whom it fought a bloody eight-year war.

Noting that World War I erupted over "some minor thing," he said, "Today, we should do our utmost to avoid that."

The general also said he had provided technical information on Soviet weapons used by Iraq to the U.S. embassy and was assembling a package of information about the weapons, the Post said. He added wryly: "The CIA already has as much information as I do."

He said the consequences of a war in the Gulf were "very hard to imagine, especially considering the sophisticated weapons systems that are concentrated in that area on both sides."

HONG KONG (SEPT. 28) - China welcomes foreign capitalists' investments but not their thinking, Chinese Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin was quoted as saying by a pro-Beijing newspaper here Friday.

Mr. Jiang also denied that Beijing had been "forced" to introduce an open economic policy because of its dependence on foreign loans, investments and skills.

"This is a wrong opinion," Mr. Jiang said. "The founding point of China's economic development in the past, present and future has been and always will be self-reliance."

The party general secretary was speaking in an interview with a new official Chinese magazine yet to be on sale here, Bauhinia. The lengthy interview was published in full by Wen Wei Po daily.

International economic sanctions against China following last year's June 4 Beijing massacre of pro-democracy activists "have hurt not only China, and intelligent political leaders in some countries have come to realise that," Mr. Jiang said.

The United States extended its most-favoured-nation trading status for China earlier this year while Britain recently indicated that it would call for an end to international economic sanctions against Beijing, observers noted.

The Chinese party chief also said "some foreign friends" had told him that China's on-going "anti-bourgeois liberalisation" campaign aimed at curbing the spread of foreign capitalist ideas might scare off overseas moneymen.

While Beijing would not impose its political concept on foreigners, "we ask them to abide by our constitution and laws," Mr. Jiang said.

Bourgeois liberalisation "is a political concept ... and to us it means negating in substance the socialist system, the leadership of the Communist Party and advocating capitalism," he said, adding: "This is against our constitution."

Tokyo (SEPT. 28) - Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu embarked Friday on a tour of the United States and several Middle East countries which Japanese commentators said unanimously will present him with extradordinary problems.

Kaifu's first function will be to attend the World Summit of Children at the United Nations.

But his most difficult task while in the U.S. will be to placate American public opinion over what it sees as Japan's completely inadequate backing in the Gulf effort.

The world's second biggest industrial nation imports 70 per cent of its oil needs from the Gulf states.

Although Tokyo, after much hesitation, has now pledged 4 billion dollars in various forms of financial assistance, the Japanese attitude is still seen in the U.S. as weak and indecisive.

Citing Japan's ''peace constitution'', Kaifu had underlined just before his departure that a military deployment of Japanese soldiers in crisis regions such as the Middle East is out of the question.

Following his visit to the U.S., Kaifu plans to tour Egypt, Jordan, Turkey, Saudi Arabia and Oman. Scheduled visits to those countries had been cancelled by Japan in August.

The Japanese foreign ministry indicated that Tokyo at the time could not have made a significant contribution to help resolve the Gulf crisis.

HONG KONG (SEPT. 28) - The growing trend in Asian exports to the United States could slow down by four percent if oil prices remain at their current high level for more than a year, a senior U.S. official said Friday.

"The effect on the U.S. rate of imports would be to decrease imports in volume terms by something like four percent from current growth rates of about six percent," said Robert Fauver, deputy assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs.

Mr. Fauver, who held a press conference here via telephone from Washington, based his figure on the assumption that oil prices remain near 40 dollars a barrel during a long military standoff in the Gulf.

It would be "a slowdown from a strong rising trend," he said, adding, "There would still be positive export growth, but somewhat slower than it has been."

But he thought the 40 dollar per barrel figure was too high because it was fueled by speculation. In the event of a war, it would be difficult to predict what price oil might reach, he added.

The many export-oriented economies of Asia depend heavily on a buoyant U.S. market.

While he said there might be a "drag" of two percent on U.S. and world industrial growth if prices remained near 40 dollars, Mr. Fauver dismissed fears that the United States would experience a depression like that in the 1930's.

The two oil shocks in the 1970's, which caused higher oil price increases than the current crisis, produced nothing like the Great Depression, he added.

Mr. Fauver, informing reporters gathered at the U.S. Consulate here about the economic effects of the Gulf crisis on East Asia, said the Philippines was among the most vulnerable Asian economies, having already suffered from an earthquake, drought and floods this year.

While several Asian economies would be strained in the short run by the return of thousands of workers from the Gulf, they were likely to benefit from an increase in skilled labor, he said.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 27) - South African Finance Minister Barend du Plessis has warned that the crisis in the Middle East could mean stagflation for South Africa, state-run television said.

Interviewed in Washington, where he and Reserve Bank governor Chris Stals were attending the annual joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, Mr. Du Plessis said: "With the slowdown in the world economy there is a real danger of inflation rising.

"This combination is a very difficult one to handle ... Our growth potential isn't only inhibited by the fact that we suffer from international financial sanctions held in place specifically by the United States Congress. The whole outlook for countries such as ourselves is much more pessimistic."

As western economies shrank so did the demand for mass exports of the primary products, the lynchpin of the South African economy.

"The world and particularly South Africa did not need a Gulf crisis ... and its economic effects," he said.

He ruled out tax increases as that would inhibit growth, and said fresh borrowing would merely add to South Africa's long-term problems.

"We are forced to maintain a very low level of economic growth and we'll have to live with it," he said.

"As far as fiscal policy is concerned we'll have to maintain very strict controls over expenditure."

Pouring cold water on domestic demands for a cut in interest rates -- prime rate is 21 percent with inflation at 13.6 percent -- he said: "If we relax our interest rates we may find ourselves in a very short time...in a position where our interest rates are lower than those of our major trading partners."

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND (SEPT. 28) - New Zealand appeared likely Friday to reverse a ban on attempts by a Japanese company to buy one of the country's premier golf courses amid widespread criticism of the blockage.

Lands Minister Peter Tapsell unilaterally announced Thursday that Japan Golf Systems Ltd. would not be allowed to buy the 146 hectare (360 acre) Wairakei Golf Course and an adjacent hotel.

But Prime Minister Mike Moore, who did not know of his minister's decision until it was announced, said Friday he welcomed overseas investment in New Zealand, and that a fresh application would be considered.

Japan Golf System's Auckland lawyer Graham Harford said Friday they would relodge their application to the minister. He said it would contain "no major material alterations to the application which obtained Overseas Investment Commission and Commerce Commission approval."

They were not willing to accept Mr. Tapsell's proposal that they instead lease the land, or take out a management contract with its present U.S.-based owners Southern Pacific Hotels, he said.

"In terms of the money our client is wishing to expend on the property and the expertise it is wanting to bring down to New Zealand, joint venture arrangements as proposed by the minister are not viewed favourably by our client," Mr. Harford told Radio New Zealand.

Cabinet is due to consider the issue on Monday.

Mr. Moore said in a statement that Mr. Tapsell had been acting within his ministerial mandate in vetoing the application, but added, "New Zealand needs overseas investment because we will not be able to create jobs we need based on local capital.".

The New Zealand Herald reported Friday that Mr. Tapsell was under mounting pressure to reverse his ban.

It said the incident came at a sensitive time in New Zealand's commercial relations with Japan in the wake of last year's collapse of the DFC New Zealand Ltd. merchant bank which had large Japanese banks as creditors.

The Herald also said in a commentary that New Zealand was not in a position to spurn foreign capital.

"Antagonism to the Wairakei transaction is especially suspect," the newspaper said.

"The golf course was recently sold by the (government) to an American concern. Mr. Tapsell must now explain why it was good enough for the sward to pass into Chicago ownership but unacceptable for control to transfer to Tokyo."

Various lobby groups also strongly attacked the veto.

The chairman of the Japan-New Zealand Business Council, Andrew Meehan, said the veto sent signals to Japan that would have frightening implications for the New Zealand economy.

The chairman of the Trade Development Board, Peter Shirtcliffe, said anti-foreign investment feeling was evidence that New Zealanders were still relatively introverted.

A spokesman for real estate firm Jones Lang Wootton, John Cameron, said the veto was appalling.

New Zealand Tourist Industry Federation chief executive Tony Staniford said it could cause widespread injury to tourism and discourage other possible foreign investors.

Mr. Tapsell said when he announced his decision Thursday, "I have not been persuaded that the sale would serve the greater public good."

But he denied that he had been influenced by recent "unwarranted criticism of purchases of New Zealand land by the Japanese."

SEOUL (SEPT. 28) - A labor shortage in South Korean has become so serious it is threatening industrial production and basic services such as public transport and garbage collection.

Despite a rapid rise in industrial wages, labor shortages are affecting the automobile, textile, and footwear industries, Labor Ministry officials said.

Bulletin boards in industrial zones across the country are filled with posters announcing employment opportunities, but attracting few applicants.

The shortage in coal mining and construction is so serious that some firms are asking the government for unprecedented authorization to import manpower from Southeast Asian countries.

The federation of city bus companies asked the Labor Ministry recently to allow some 7,000 ethnic Koreans in China and the Soviet Union to work as bus drivers in Seoul and other major cities.

Uncollected garbage can be seen piling up in upmarket residential areas with sanitation departments lacking the staff to clear it.

Part of the problem seems to be that more young workers are choosing less strenuous jobs in the growing service sector, officials said. Workers have become used to wages that have nearly doubled in three years as the standard of living rises rapidly.

The nation's leading industrial group Daewoo has managed to recruit only 500 workers for its new small-car plant in Changwon, which will require 1,300 workers when it starts production early next year.

In the Inchon export industrial zone west of Seoul, more than 6,000 jobs are unfilled in the footwear, garment and textile factories.

And in the Taegu fiber industry zone, where some 2,000 textile factories employ about 100,000 workers, production is seriously affected by a shortage of 20,000 workers.

TOKYO (SEPT. 28) - Japan's inflation rate in August rose by 0.5 percent over July and by 2.9 percent in the year to August, the Management and Coordination Agency said Friday.

Consumer prices only rose by 0.1 percent in July over the previous month and by 2.3 percent for the year to July, the agency said.

The August consumer price rise was mainly due to higher prices for fresh foodstuffs caused by an unusually hot and dry summer in Japan, an official source said.

The source said prices for fresh foodstuffs in August 1989 had fallen by 0.1 percent over the previous month.

The agency said the doubling in crude oil prices on international markets in the wake of the Gulf crisis had not yet affected Japanese wholesale or retail prices.

The authorities were keeping a close eye on the big oil companies, which waited until mid-September to raise retail petrol prices, analysts here said.

Prices in the Tokyo area in the first two weeks of September rose by 2.8 per cent over the previous 12 months, the agency said.

Economists attributed the regional inflation increase to seasonal factors such as higher clothing prices and the start of the school year.

The economists said they expected the next monthly statistics to show the impact of rising oil prices on Japan, which is almost totally dependent on overseas suppliers for its energy needs.

However, Japanese industry has worked to ensure it is in a better position in the event of an oil shock, they added.

The Bank of Japan and the finance ministry said the main priority for economic and monetary policy was still inflation.

The authorities were also concerned about the labour shortage, and the resultant pressure on wages and on the production capacity of key processing industries at a time when global activity in those sectors is particularly strong.

The money supply continued to grow strongly, surging by 11.9 percent in the 12 months to August, and economists said this was another inflationary factor.

The Bank of Japan, which has been keeping interest rates high to try to curb those inflationary pressures, lifted the minimum lending rate to six percent on August 30.

TOKYO (SEPT. 28) - Mitsubishi Motors Corp. (MMC) and West Germany's Mercedes-Benz are studying possible cooperation in commercial vehicle production in Mexico, the major Japanese automaker said Friday.

"We have begun studying the possibility of cooperation on commercial vehicle programs in Mexico, but we are not at a stage to disclose any details," an MMC official said.

The Mitsubishi and Daimler-Benz groups reached agreement in March on a broad tie-up in fields including aeronautics, automobiles and electronics.

At further talks in Tokyo earlier this month, leaders of the two giant industrial groups agreed to cooperate in 11 projects, which did not include the Mexican car project.

Yomiuri Shimbun, a major Japanese daily, said Friday that the automakers had started talks on cooperation in commercial vehicle production in Mexico and Indonesia.

The report said MMC could supply parts or give technical assistance to joint venture plants of Mercedes-Benz, one in Mexico and two in Indonesia, manufacturing commercial vehicles and diesel engines.

This could become the first cooperation project of the two companies outside Japan and Europe, the report said.

The MMC official flatly denied any talks on cooperation in Indonesia.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 27) - Results from six boreholes sunk in the Loraine gold mine mineral rights area were sufficiently encouraging to warrant a further and more detailed drilling programme, mine owners Anglovaal said here.

In a statement, the company said a further 17 boreholes would be sunk during the next two years at a cost of 36.5 million rand (14.1 million dollars).

It said the results showed that at least portions of the area near Welkom in Orange Free State province contain a number of well-developed conglomerate reef horizons at mineable depth.

METZ, FRANCE (SEPT. 28) - A major theme park in northeast France is considering filing for bankruptcy or selling up, the company and union sources said here Friday.

"Filing for bankruptcy because of poor results is a possibility which was put to the last works committee meeting in September" and will be put before the board on October 5, said union sources at the Big Bang Schtroumpfs (Smurfs) theme park at Hagondange in the Moselle region.

SOREPARK, which manages the park, is expecting that its second season, due to end with the October 6-7 weekend, will have seen a total of only 400,000 visitors against the 700,000 needed to pass the break-even point.

Several possible buyers are in the offing, mainly theme park operators such as Walibi of Belgium, Fantasia Land of West Germany, plus one Dutch and one British operator, SOREPARK officials said.

"The 1990 season has not been what it should have, although paradoxically we have brought costs under control and been more professional," managing director Michel Leluyer said.

But it is "inconceivable that the park will close its doors, because then it will be worth nothing," he added.

The park is expected to show an operating loss for the season of 40 million francs (7.5 million dollars), to which must be added 70 million francs (13.2 millon dollars) in financial costs.

SOREPARK had already had to raise an extra 100 million francs (18.8 million dollars) capital last year to offset losses in its first year of operation, when only 800,000 people visited the park against a forecast one million.

Any further capital increase has been ruled out, and SOREPARK shareholders,

French companies Sacilor, Bouygues and Sodexho plus Arab investors and a banking syndicate, will decide on October 5 whether to file for bankruptcy or sell out.

"The park opened in April 1989 and initial investment totalled 720 million francs (135.8 dollars). It axed 362 jobs last year and now employs around 500 people.

SYDNEY (SEPT. 28) - Alan Bond's flagship Bond Corp. Holdings Ltd. on Friday announced a loss of 2.51 billion Australian dollars (2.1 billion U.S.) for the year to June 30, the largest annual corporate loss in national history.

The result nearly doubled the previous record loss of 1.3 billion dollar (1.1 billion U.S.) announced Tuesday by John Elliott's brewing giant Elders IXL.

The Bond result compared with a loss of 819 million dollars (676 million U.S.) for the year to June 30, 1989.

Directors blamed write-downs from subsidiaries and losses of asset sales. Both were necessary to cut the group's massive debt, which is still estimated at about five billion dollars (4.1 billion U.S.).

After abnormal gains and a tax credit, Bond Corp. recorded a loss of 2.25 billion dollars (1.9 billion U.S.).

Directors said the results, announced in a statement to the stock exchange, were unaudited as the group had changed its end of financial year to October 5 to include the sale of Australian brewing assets to subsidiary Bell Resources Ltd.

The results to the end of June were filed at the request of the Australian Stock Exchange, they said.

Earlier this week, Mr. Bond and two senior executives quit the empire, which the 52-year-old English-born entrepreneur created from a tiny sign-writing business 34 years ago.

At its height, the Bond empire operated breweries in Australia and overseas, media telcommunications, property and mining interests.

But the company is now little more than the shell of its former self following recent asset sales, including the shedding of the Channel Nine television network.

The loss was struck as revenue fell 16.1 per cent to 7.1 billion dollars (5.9 billion U.S.).

Bond directors said the 15 months ending October 5 would include an expected 1.03 billion dollar (850 million U.S.) profit from the sale of the brewery assets to Bell Resources.

Directors said it would be clear from the filed results that "the company could not hope to continue in its present form."

"The future of the company is dependent upon the successful completion of current negotiations between the company and the holders of unsecured bonds including convertible notes."

This deal would involve "a recapitalisation of the company and the extinguishment of certain of the existing debts in exchange for equity in the company."

The loss caps the recent spectacular fall of Mr. Bond, who dropped out of high school to become a millionaire at 21.

In 1988, with a personal fortune estimated at 400 million dollars (331 million U.S.), he was named by an Australian business magazine as the country's fifth richest man. A year later he was declared "not a fit or proper person" to hold a broadcasting licence.

Beirut (SEPT. 28) - The pro-Syrian government of President Elias Hrawi Friday carried out its threat to impose a siege on areas controlled by defiant army general Michel Aoun in order to force him to relinquish power in East Beirut.

The defense ministry in West Beirut announced that its soldiers at midnight Thursday took over four passageways into Aoun's areas from Lebanese Forces militiamen loyal to Samir Geagea.

The Lebanese regulars started as of noon Friday to prevent cars and trucks from entering the besieged 180-square-kilometre enclave stretching from Beirut to the northeastern mountains.

Ministry sources said the soldiers were given orders to confiscate all supplies and foodstuffs entering the enclave and encourage residents there to leave for safer areas in West Beirut or northern Lebanon.

The sources said the army under General Emile Lahoud was deployed in Saloumi, Saet el-Abed, Baskinta and Nahr el-Kalb gates facing General Aoun's 10,000-strong army.

Defence Minister Albert Mansour said the aim of the siege was to bring Aoun's mutiny to an end without bloodshed. But he said military options remain open if the rebellion continues.

Army sources said that at a later stage, even pedestrians would be prevented form travelling back and forth through the passageways.

The self-styled general, challenging the government measures, told reporters at the presidential palace in East Beirut where he has set up headquarters that he would never conduct a dialogue while under siege.

Army sources said diplomats, deputies and relief workers are exempted from the government measures.

Johannesburg (SEPT. 28) - South African civil rights leader Nelson Mandela will next month embark on his fifth major tour overseas since his release from life imprisonment eight months ago.

The African National Congress (Anc) said here Friday that Mandela will leave on October 8 for a meeting in Paris with French President Francois Mitterrand before going on to the Soviet Union, India, Malaysia, Brunei, Australia, Indonesia and Japan. His return to South Africa is planned for November 2.

The 72-year-old Anc vice-president's schedule will include several rest days. His engagements in the Soviet Union and Japan will be kept to a maximum of four per day of 60 to 90 minutes. Elswhere they will be limited to three, the Anc said.

Mandela will be accompanied by his wife, Winnie, who was this week charged with four cases of kidnapping and assault with intent to commit grievous bodily harm in connection with the torture of four black youths in late 1988. The case has been referred to the High Court in Johannesburg for hearing in February.

OTTAWA (SEPT. 28) - The Soviet Union, Poland and Czechoslovakia became members of Interpol on the opening day of the international police organization's annual conference.

Interpol, which has 150 members, Thursday also enrolled the republic of the Marshall Islands, a tiny chain of atolls in the Pacific that is under the military and economic umbrella of the United States.

"With the exception of Albania, we now cover all of Europe," Raymond Kendall, the British secretary general of Interpol, said at a news conference.

Asked about the Soviet Union, Mr. Kendall said that even if the changes take time, the Soviet police organization belonging to Interpol, the militia, will gradually adopt a Western model, abandoning its role as a political police.

"We are not interested in the political police. We are an organization of criminal police," he said.

The Interpol conference opened Thursday and will continue until October 3.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 28) - India's key leftist parties for the first time Friday backed a controversial job quota policy, as violence and suicide protests against the scheme continued in the country's strife-hit north.

At least seven more students tried to kill themselves to demand the scrapping of the policy, which reserves almost 50 per cent of jobs in the government and public sector for millions of lower caste people, press reports said.

One of the suicide attempts was reported Friday from Fatehpur, Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh's home constituency in the northern state of Uttar Pradesh, where a 19-year-old boy took poison but survived.

In Chandigarh, an 18-year-old girl hung herself, bringing to 10 the number of school and college students who have killed themselves since the job concessions were announced on August 7. Nearly 60 more have survived suicide attempts.

A young man who had set fire to himself Thursday in neighbouring Himachal Pradesh state died Friday.

India's two main Communist parties, backed by two miniscule leftist groups, announced in a statement here that they backed the government decision to fix job quotas which student groups say kills merit.

A joint statement by the four parties said they were "disassociating themselves from any move to hold it (quotas) in abeyance" but asked the premier to enter into a dialogue to end the student protests.

The statement by the four, including the dominant Communist Party of India (Marxist), marked the first time any party supporting the nine-month-old minority government had come out in favor of the quotas.

The major opposition party, the Congress (I) headed by former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, has called for the prime minister's resignation, but remained silent on the quotas, apparently for fear of losing lower caste votes.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) reported successful student-led general strikes in most parts of Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Himachal Pradesh states, where widespread violence continued unabated.

In Rajasthan, a member of Mr. V.P. Singh's Janata Dal (People's Party) resigned from the state assembly, expressing his opposition to the policy which has triggered fears of a caste war in India.

Thousands of people went on a violent spree in Sonepat, in Haryana, late Thursday, burning down a telephone exchange and 18 train cars and waging street battles with security forces after police shot dead a demonstrator.

The army was called out Friday in the town. Army troops were also patrolling parts of Kashmir and Himachal Pradesh states.

In Ghaziabad, near here, the anti-quota campaign protests spread to rural areas after an influential farm leader announced his support for the students, and said he would take part in a protest rally here Tuesday.

Mobs torched a police station and a police post, injuring six policemen, and six cars of a passenger train after asking people to alight, PTI said.

In Amravati town, western India, where schools and colleged remained shut, dozens of students took to the streets selling fruit, shining shoes and begging at a local railway station in symbolic protests.

Mr. V.P. Singh has repeatedly urged the students to talk to the government over the job quotas, but has said he will not withdraw the policy. The students have said there can be no dialogue until New Delhi does so.

In the Indian capital, all 5,000 state-owned and private buses, a main target of the students who have burned and wrecked hundreds of them, remained off the roads for the second straight day.

But the city of nine million was reported to be largely peaceful, after three days of violence which left four people dead in police firing.

LISBON (SEPT. 28) - Angolan government and rebel delegates failed to agree on a ceasefire at their latest session of direct peace talks in Portugal this week, but will meet again in the last week of October, Portugal's junior foreign minister Durao Barroso said here Friday.

The Portuguese government would prepare a paper for that meeting setting out the belligerents' positions.

A ceasefire agreement should be signed once the political question had been settled of the Luanda government's recognition of the rebel National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA), Mr. Barroso said. There were still differences on that score, he added, but they were not substantial.

The fourth round of negotiations held in great secrecy at the air force headquarters base at Sintra near the capital had been ''one more step on the long and difficult path to peace'' in Angola after 15 years of war, the minister said.

The talks had enabled both sides to avoid getting caught in a dead end by making progress on the principle of a ceasefire and the practical aspects of supervision and guarantees.

For the first time since direct talks started in April, American and Soviet experts were present to advise on the technical issues of a ceasefire.

LONDON (SEPT. 28) - Platinum prices continued to fall in London on Friday, hitting their lowest levels in four years on fears of a world recession.

The metal was quoted at 431.25 dollars an ounce at the morning fixing, its lowest since July 1986, against 442 dollars at Thursday's close.

Platinum has lost almost 15 percent of its value since mid-August amid recession fears exacerbated by the Gulf crisis.

Gold held steady however at 406 dollars an ounce against 405.25 at Thursday's close.

"It is unclear whether fundamentals justify such a sharp fall" in platinum rates, said Andrew Smith of UBS-Phillips and Drew, but warned that recession fears were the dominant market influence and that prices would probably fall still further.

Platinum is used in making catalytic converters for car exhausts, and fears of a slowdown in the auto market are particularly affecting prices.

In addition Japan, normally a major platinum buyer, cut imports to 4.9 tons in August from 6.3 in July.

The metal could become a better bet than gold for the first time since 1985, Mr. Smith said.

A world recession had kept platinum below or at the same level as gold between 1980 and 1985. It recovered at the end of 1985 but was then hit by the world stock crash in 1987.

TOKYO (SEPT. 28) - French chemical giant Rhone-Poulenc plans to double its business in Asia, currently worth 5.3 billion francs (one billion dollars) or six per cent of group turnover a year, within the next decade, director general Jean-Marc Bruel says.

Mr. Bruel said the company, which counts 15 joint ventures throughout the region, excluding the Indian sub-continent, would pay special attention to Japan, accounting for three per cent of its total sales and the world's second largest chemicals market.

A major presence here was necessary to become an established supplier of Japanese companies, following them as they moved production overseas, he said.

Rhone-Poulenc set up its first direct subsidiary here this year, producing rubberised white carbon, after ending its joint venture with Dai Nippon Ink Co. formed in 1983.

Mr. Bruel Wednesday laid the foundation stone of a research centre in Akeno, next to Tokyo's Tsukuba science park, which will employ about 50 people by 1992.

By 1993, the company plans to have about 100 employees at the center, boosting the company's local profile and attracting skilled workers, Mr. Bruel said.

Rhone-Poulenc's other main center of Asian operations is South Korea, with annual turnover there of 750 million francs (142 million dollars).

One of its two 50:50 joint ventures there, Korfran, currently making white carbon, plans to build a plant there with annual production of 50,000 tons of adipic acid, a raw material for nylon and synthetic rubbers.

BEIJING (SEPT. 28) - China will Monday open Haimen port on the East China Sea to foreign ships, New China News Agency (NCNA) said Friday.

It quoted communications ministry officials as saying the port, the 50th Chinese port to be opened up to foreign ships, had 27 docks, including one that could handle ships of up to 10,000 dead weight tons.

It was also considering building a new dock for the foreign shipping, ministry officials told NCNA.

Haimen, also known as Jiaojiang City, now handles 4.3 million tons of cargo on Chinese ships annually and lies southwest of ports in Japan and South Korea.

MUTARE, ZIMBABWE (SEPT. 28) - Rebels of the Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO) abducted 16 Zimbabwean villagers and wounded three others with bayonets in "a series of well-organised raids spanning a period of four days", Zimbabwe's ZIANA news agency reported Friday.

Gangs numbering 20 to 30 reportedly crossed into Zimbabwe in the Chipinge area 350 kilometres (220 miles) southeast of Harare, between Saturday and Tuesday, making "daring attacks" on farm workers. Two of the kidnap victims managed to escape from their captors and the three bayonet victims have been discharged after treatment at Chipinge hospital.

The rebels have complained during current on-off peace talks with representatives of Mozambican President Joaquim Chissano's government that Zimbabwean troops are currently locked in a major offensive against their positions inside the former Portuguese colony. They have demanded the total withdrawal of the Zimbabweans, who are believed to number up to 13,000.

Harare's semi-official daily, the Herald, reported Friday that a "record" 34 rebels were killed in a single battle with the Zimbabwe National Army at Masabasa near Chokwe, on the long-inoperative railway line from Zimbabwe to Maputo. Chokwe lies over 300 kilometres from Zimbabwe, deep inside Mozambique's southern Gaza province.

Colonel Mathew Makanza, commander of the ZNA Sixth Brigade, told the Herald that 120 rebels had "recently" attacked a platoon of his men and were defeated in a 90-minute firefight, conducted without Zimbabwean air support.

A Herald reporter said he encountered a 13-year-old Mozambican boy who had given himself up after being forced to fight with the rebels. Another, made to "learn the trade" although too young to carry an AK47 rifle, appeared to be only nine.

CAIRO (SEPT. 28) - The price of fuel in Egypt increased by 10 percent on Thursday while newspapers were to cost some 25 percent more starting October 1 correspondents said.

A liter of regular 80-octane fuel which sold for 50 piasters (U.S. 18 cents) now costs 55 piasters (20 cents) and a liter of 90-octane special rose from 55 piasters to 60 piasters (21 cents), they said.

The last oil price hike of 37.5-42.8 percent was in May.

Oil Minister Abdel Hadi Kandil said the increase "will help to offset the deficit resulting from the Gulf crisis during the fiscal year," the daily Al Ahram reported.

Mr. Kandil said the increase will bring in some 150 million pounds (54.5 million dollars) in revenues.

In another development, Egypt's three leading newspapers -- Al Ahram, Al Akhbar and the oppostion Al Wafd -- will raise their price by 25 percent on Monday from 20 piasters (seven cents) to 25 piasters (nine cents), due to what Al Ahram said was an increase in the price of newsprint and printing.

KATHMANDU (SEPT. 28) - A Nepal-based human rights group on Friday accused Bhutanese soldiers of killing 319 people and injuring 476 in clashes with dissident Bhutanese groups between September 20 and 22.

Bhutan Aid Group-Nepal (BAG-N) issued a press statement here in which it also named eight people whose bodies, it said, had been found in southern Bhutan along the border with India on September 21. It did not say who killed them.

The Bhutanese Embassy in New Delhi confirmed clashes between dissident groups and Bhutanese troops but said only a few casualties were inflicted on both sides.

BAG-N said at least 40 people were killed at Fongcholing, 20 in Samchi, 15 in Chengmari, 46 in Sibsu, 196 in Samrang and one each at the Golefu and Longkhar localities of Bhutan.

BAG-N spokesman Chetendra Jung Himali said here that several others had also been killed in southern and southeastern Bhutan.

Mr. Himali said he strongly deplored the killing of unarmed Bhutanese people who were agitating for political and human rights.

Bhutan's ruler, King Jigme Singye Wangchuk, should not forget that people were "the power of any state" and the ruler's duty was to protect the people, not kill them, he said.

Mr. Himali said the international human rights group Amnesty International should investigate the Bhutanese government's suppression of the protestors, adding: "Human rights will succeed in the long run."

The pro-democratic Nepal Students Union issued a separate statement expressing sympathy and support for the Bhutanese people.

PARIS (SEPT. 28) - Major industrialised countries are likely to decide to hang on to their strategic oil stocks despite soaring oil prices at a meeting which opened here Friday, an International Energy Agency (IEA) official said.

But the representatives of 21 countries attending the meeting will have to put the finishing touches to procedures to be followed if it is felt the stocks are needed as winter begins to bite.

"They all want to get ready to act fast if necessary," an IEA spokesman said.

A senior IEA official said earlier this week that the current level of supply of crude oil was "adequate if not comfortable," although problems were beginning to be seen for supplies of refined products.

Washington's decision to release five million barrels of its 590 million barrels in strategic oil stocks has been seen largely as a cosmetic exercise, and it is unlikely that the meeting of the Paris-based IEA will decide to follow suit.

The organisation would only turn to government stocks if there was actually a shortage of crude - which is not currently the case - and not as a way to damp down market speculation, a senior IEA official said.

In any case, releasing strategic stocks now would only have a very limited effect as the market is reacting more to fears of a war in the Gulf than the actual balance between supply and demand.

Thanks to a swift increase in production by Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Venezuela after an international embargo was imposed on Iraqi and Kuwaiti products when Baghdad invaded Kuwait last month, output has been maintained.

OTTAWA (SEPT. 28) - Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney faced stiff opposition Friday for obtaining approval from Britain's Queen Elizabeth II to use an obscure constitutional provision to expand the appointed Senate in an attempt to ensure passage of a controversial sales tax.

The prime minister late Thursday seated eight new members of his Conservative Party after receiving permission from the queen, still Canada's head of state, to employ for the first time Article 26 of the constitution which allows the Senate to be expanded by four or eight seats.

With the new Conservative members, Mr. Mulroney will have 54 seats, a two-seat lead over the opposition Liberal Party which formerly dominated the 112-member appointed Senate.

For the past several months the Liberals have blocked passage of the seven per cent tax on products and services, called a value-added tax (TVA). The Conservative-dominated House of Commons has already passed the tax proposal.

But the Conservatives' 54 seats still fall three votes short of the majority needed to pass the TVA, apparently placing the fate of the tax in the hands of six independent members.

The TVA has been as unpopular in Canada as the poll tax in Britain, although Canadians have not launched violent protests against the measure.

Aimed at replacing a federal sales tax on manufactured goods that weakened the products' competitive pricing on international markets, the TVA would be applied across-the-board on all services. Only essential food products and prescription medicines would be exempt.

SYDNEY (SEPT. 28) - Abel Aganbegyan, the Soviet economist usually described as the original architect of the perestroika reform policy, said Friday that he did not know if his country is about to be "sold out" to foreign businesses.

The admission, made without hint of embarrassment or anxiety, came during a question session following a speech he gave to an international conference here on the future of the labour movement.

Asked by one questioner if guarantees could be given that his country was not about to be "sold out to foreigners", like Hungary, Mr. Aganbegyan said it was not known.

"We don't know what tomorrow brings," he shrugged.

He did, however, present a clearer picture of the Soviet Union's economic crisis, which he said included not only consumer shortages and a failing monetary system but rising inflation which he described as "a very dangerous situation."

Mr. Aganbegyan, who was the star speaker at the conference, made use of his few days in Sydney to undertake a hectic round of media interviews in which he surprised many with his candour.

Equally candid was a speech prepared for the conference in which he said one of the major government errors leading to the "grave problems" had been an unreasonable price rise on wines and spirits.

The rises had pushed people to home-distilling, causing not only a rise in alcoholism, but reduced state incomes from taxes and led to a considerable allocation of hard currency for extra sugar.

Since the second half of 1987, the speech said, the already misshapen and distorted economy had started revealing grave problems which resulted in 1988-89 in an acute crisis in the consumer market, and in the monetary and financial systems.

In 1989-90, it had been further aggravated by currency problems, all combining to create a general economic crisis accompanied by a decrease of production and reduced living standards.

Reduced prices for Soviet exports such as oil and raw materials had been compounded by the need to allocate "huge means to the consequences of the Chernobyl disaster and the Armenian earthquake."

BERLIN (SEPT. 28) - The West German airline Lufthansa will land in West Berlin for the first time when it brings dignatories to the city next Tuesday on the eve of Germany's unification day, Lufthansa President Heinz Ruhnau said Friday.

Lufthansa jets will fly members of the Bundestag, or West German parliament, from Bonn to Berlin's Tegel airport for the October 2 to 4 festivities.

Its own scheduled service between Berlin and the rest of Germany begins on October 28, using routes and landing slots bought from Pan-American Airlines for 150 million dolllars.

Under post-World War II agreements, access to West Berlin by air was given only to French, British and U.S. airlines. The accords are scheduled to expire at the stroke of midnight on Tuesday.

Ankara (SEPT. 28) - Turkey has refused permission to a Polish ship to unload about 133 tons of chemicals used in production of deadly mustard gas and destined for Iran, official sources said here Friday.

Containers of Neoprene and Sodium Cyanide were brought Thursday to the Turkish Mediterranean port of Mersin by the Polish roll-onroll-off ship Wloclaweck sailing from Antwerp, Belgium.

Sources at the Turkish Ministry of Finance and Customs said it was established that the chemicals had been produced and shipped by West German firms they did not identify.

Ankara had been tipped earlier by the American embassy here over a report by U.S. Customs officials that the suspicious cargo might have been ultimately destined for Iraq.

As reason for the interception of the chemicals, Turkish customs officials cited the lack of documents showing their final destination and failure to conform to international norms guarding the transport of dangerous cargo.

The ship, allowed only to unload goods exported to Turkey, was expected to sail back later Friday.

Gijon, Spain (SEPT. 28) EFE - A package bomb exploded Friday at the offices of local traffic authorities in the northern industrial city of Gijon, causing damages but no injuries, police said.

They said two women and a man entered the traffic authority offices in Gijon, in the region of Asturias, around 9:30 a.m. and told workers they that they had a bomb.

The building was evacuated and no-one was hurt when the device exploded, but damages to the building were considerable.

Police said the armed attackers, who escaped after the blast, might be members of the far left terror group GRAPO - the October First Anti-Facist Resistance Group.

Grapo has killed some 50 people since it surfaced in 1975.

Meanwhile, 8 km from the northern city of San Sebastian, in the troubled Basque region, two unidentified attackers early Friday threw fire-bombs at a Renault car showroom, causing damages but no casualties.

Close to the Basque town of Renteria, just east of San Sebastian, police also said a bomb exploded early Friday near an electrical pylon cutting off supplies to the surrounding area.

Nobody has claimed responsibility for any of Friday's attacks. However, the incidents in the Basque region bore the hallmarks of the armed Basque separatist group ETA.

ETA has killed more than 600 people since it began its fight for the region's right to independence 22 years ago.

Moscow (SEPT. 28) EFE - Members of the Gagauzi minority in the Soviet republic of Moldavia were to take to the streets Friday for the second day to protest persecution and the arrest of two legislators, leaders of the ethnic minority said.

The protest is to take place in the city of Komrat where on Thursday 7,000 people marched.

Gagauzi local council deputy Ivan Borgudzhi, who authored a sovereignty declaration for the self-proclaimed "Gagauzi Republic," said he had been arrested Thursday without formal charges and beaten, taken to the Moldavian capital of Kishinev, and interrogated.

Borgudzhi was released several hours later, but a second deputy, Leonid Dobrov remained in a prison hospital in Kishinev on a two-week hunger strike.

Seven physicians in Komrat, the capital of the self-proclaimed republic, joined the the hunger strike a week ago to protest suppression of the ethnic minority's desire for self rule.

On August 19, the Gagauzi declared an autonomous republic in southern Moldvavia, but the Moldavian Supreme Soviet ruled the measure unlawful.

The Gagauzi, who account for only 3.5 percent of Moldavia's more than 4.2 million population, are of Turkic origin and speak their own language.

Moldavia, the Soviet republic which borders Romania, has experienced increasing ethnic strife, with a population made up of Moldavians, Ukrainians, Russians and Bulgarians.

PRETORIA (SEPT 28) EFE - The South African government was considering Friday a proposal by the anti-apartheid African National Congress (ANC) to hold a third summit within the next week to end current tribal-related violence.

A Constitutional Development and Planning Ministry spokesman said Pretoria was carefully studying the petition.

ANC spokesman Gill Marcus said it was imperative the summit be scheduled before October 6 when the group's vice-president, Nelson Mandela, is to go on a tour of India, Australia and the Soviet Union.

Many ANC supporters have called for the group to reverse its decision to renounce armed struggle, agreed upon in the last round of talks in early August, because of the government's failure to contain violence raging in black townships over the last two months.

"The ANC has serious doubts about the measures adopted by the government in response to the wave of violence," Marcus said.

On September 11 Pretoria introduced an "iron fist" policy to end the fighting between folowers of the Zulu-based Inkatha movement and ANC supporters from the Xhosa tribe.

Mandela has charged the security measures were an attempt to revive a crackdown on political dissent and that a "hidden hand" was behind the clashes which have claimed almost 800 lives.

Speculation has risen that white extremists, supported by police, have provoked the violence in an attempt to sabotage ANC-government negotiations to end apartheid.

In a related development, some 3,000 political exiles are to begin returning to South African Monday under amnesty laws authorized by the government after the August summit.

But the head of the ANC's repatriation program, Jackie Selebi, said his program was undergoing serious financial problems, since promises from the government and various private companies to contribute funds had not yet materialized.

The ANC alone has some 20,000 supporters leaving in exile.

ZAGREB (SEPT 28) EFE - The Croatian government has accused Yugoslav federal authorities of breaking United Nations sanctions against Iraq by repairing Iraqi warplanes, a Croatian newspaper reported Friday.

The daily Vjesnik reported that Josip Manolic said that Iraqi warplanes had flown over the republic's capital from an airbase at Velika Gorica, 15 km southeast of Zagreb, where they were being repaired.

A Yugoslav Armed Forces spokesman denied Wednesday rumours that Yugoslavia was repairing Soviet-built Mig fighters for Iraq and said that Belgrade fully supported United Nations resolutions.

TOKYO (SEPT. 28) KYODO - JAPAN'S HOUSING STARTS FELL FOR THE FIRST TIME IN FIVE MONTHS IN AUGUST BY A YEAR-ON-YEAR 0.1 PERCENT TO 143,070 UNITS, THE CONSTRUCTION MINISTRY SAID FRIDAY.

HOUSING STARTS WILL SHOW A DECLINING TREND IN THE COMING MONTHS BECAUSE HOUSING LOAN RATES ARE TO BE RAISED FROM OCTOBER 1 FOLLOWING A HIKE IN THE OFFICIAL DISCOUNT RATE IN LATE OF AUGUST, AN OFFICIAL AT THE MINISTRY SAID.

CONSTRUCTION OF SINGLE-FAMILY HOMES DROPPED FOR THE SECOND CONSECUTIVE MONTH, BY 8.7 PERCENT TO 40,423 HOUSES.

STARTS ON APARTMENTS, WHICH ARE AFFECTED BY THE ECONOMIC OUTLOOK, ALSO FELL BY 7.1 PERCENT TO 66,914 UNITS. IT WAS THE FIRST FALL IN 10 MONTHS, THE OFFICIAL SAID.

CONDOMINIUM STARTS, ON THE OTHER HAND, CONTINUED TO RISE FOR 11 STRAIGHT MONTHS TO 32,579 UNITS, UP BY A STRONG 37.1 PERCENT. STARTS OF CONDOMINIUMS WERE BRISK BECAUSE THEY ARE CONSTRUCTED ACCORDING TO LONG-TERM PLANS, FROM OBTAINING LAND TO CONSTRUCTION AND SELLING, THE OFFICIAL SAID.

TOKYO (SEPT. 28) KYODO - FUJITSU LTD. HAS DEVELOPED A SYSTEM FOR AUTOMATIC TRANSLATION INTO ENGLISH OF JAPANESE SENTENCES ENTERED INTO A CENTRAL COMPUTER IN A PERSONAL COMPUTER (PC) COMMUNICATION NETWORK, THE COMPANY REVEALED FRIDAY.

OFFICIALS SAID THE NEW SYSTEM WILL SOON BE INTRODUCED INTO THE FUJITSU-AFFILIATED PC COMMUNICATIONS NETWORK, NIFTYSERVE, SO THAT NETWORK MEMBERS, EVEN THOSE NOT GOOD AT ENGLISH, MAY EASILY SEND ENGLISH-LANGUAGE ELECTRONIC MAIL TO OVERSEAS PARTNERS UTILIZING THE NEW SYSTEM.

THE OFFICIALS SAID A FUJITSU RESEARCH TEAM IS NOW DEVELOPING A SIMILAR ENGLISH-INTO-JAPANESE AUTOMATIC TRANSLATION SYSTEM.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF SUCH SYSTEMS WILL SPUR THE INTERNATIONALIZATION OF PC COMMUNICATIONS, THEY SAID.

OFFICIALS SAID THE NEW DEVELOPMENT IS A FULL-SCALE JAPANESE-LANGUAGE TRANSLATION SYSTEM WITH MACHINE TRANSLATION SOFTWARE WOVEN INTO THE NIFTYSERVE CENTRAL COMPUTER.

FUJITSU IS ALSO CONSIDERING THE POSSIBLE INAUGURATION OF JAPANESE-INTO-ENGLISH TRANSLATION SERVICES, UTILIZING THE NEW SYSTEM.

NIFTYSERVE IS JAPAN'S LARGEST PC COMMUNICATION NETWORK WITH A MEMBERSHIP OF 134,000 AS OF THE END OF AUGUST. THE UNITED STATES' LARGEST PC COMMUNICATION NETWORK, COMPUSERVE, HAS A MEMBERSHIP OF ABOUT 80,000. THE TWO NETWORKS ARE LINKED WITH EACH OTHER.

MIYAZAKI (SEPT. 28) KYODO - TEN PERSONS ABOARD A CHARTERED HELICOPTER WERE KILLED WHEN IT CRASHED INTO A MOUNTAIN IN MIYAZAKI PREFECTURE THURSDAY IN THE WORST CASE OF ITS KIND, POLICE REPORTED ON FRIDAY.

RESCUERS FOUND THE BODIES OF EIGHT PASSENGERS AND TWO COCKPIT CREW IN THE WRECKAGE OF A HELICOPTER FOUND IN THE HYUGA MOUNTAINS EARLY FRIDAY, THE AUTHORITIES SAID.

THE HELICOPTER WAS CHARTERED BY ASAHI CHEMICAL INDUSTRY CO. AND BELONGED TO HANKYU AIRLINES. IT WENT MISSING ON ITS WAY TO THE CITY OF NOBEOKA, ABOUT 25 KILOMETERS SOUTHWEST OF HYUGA, AFTER TAKING OFF FROM MIYAZAKI AIRPORT ON THURSDAY NIGHT.

THE AIRCRAFT LOST CONTACT WITH THE COMPANY'S HELIPORT IN NOBEOKA AFTER CHIEF PILOT TOSHIHIKO SHIMIZU REPORTED HE WAS IN LOW CLOUDS AND ASKED CONDITIONS NEAR NOBEOKA AT ABOUT 9 P.M. THURSDAY, THE POLICE AUTHORITIES SAID. A LOCAL WITNESS REPORTED SIGHTING A HELICOPTER FLYING INTO A WRONG COURSE AFTER GYRATING A FEW TIMES NEAR THE SITE, THEY SAID.

IN THE LAND, SEA AND AIR SEARCH LAUNCHED BY SOME 500 POLICEMEN, THE FIRE BRIGADE, THE SELF-DEFENSE FORCE AND MARITIME SAFETY AGENCY OFFICIALS, THE MISSING HELICOPTER WAS FOUND BROKEN IN HALF WITH WRECKAGE SCATTERED AROUND, THE RESCUERS SAID.

THE BODIES OF THE TEN VICTIMS OF THE ACCIDENT WERE ALL RECOVERED AND BROUGHT TO THE ASAHI COMPANY OFFICE, THEY SAID.

THE CAUSE OF THE CRASH HAS YET TO BE DETERMINED AS AN INVESTIGATION WAS STILL UNDER WAY BY A JOINT TEAM OF EXPERTS SENT BY THE TRANSPORT MINISTRY AND THE MIYAZAKI PREFECTURAL POLICE HEADQUARTERS.

BUT THE TRANSPORT MINISTRY OFFICIALS GAVE THREE FACTORS AS CAUSING THE TRAGEDY BAD WEATHER DUE TO THE AUTUMNAL RAIN FRONT, NIGHT FLIGHT THAT MADE IT DIFFICULT TO DISCERN GEOGRAPHY, AND THE NEW HELICOPTER.

THE BKLL7B-1 WAS PUT INTO FOUR DAILY SHUTTLE SERVICES BETWEEN ASAHI CHEMICAL'S NOBEOKA PLANT AND MIYAZAKI AIRPORT IN APRIL LAST YEAR.

THE MINISTRY INSTRUCTED A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION OF AIRLINE OPERATORS AND CALLED FOR STEPPED-UP SAFETY MEASURES FOR HELICOPTERS.

TOKYO (SEPT. 28) KYODO - ERS-1, THE FIRST EARTH RESOURCES SATELLITE, AND ASSEMBLED BY A GROUP OF SEVEN JAPANESE COMPANIES INCLUDING MITSUBISHI ELECTRIC CORP., WAS FRIDAY INTRODUCED TO THE PRESS FOR THE FIRST TIME AT MITSUBISHI'S KAMAKURA WORKS IN KANAGAWA PREFECTURE.

ASSEMBLING WORK ON THE SATELLITE HAS NEARLY BEEN COMPLETED BY THE GROUP, ON COMMISSION FROM THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY AND THE NATIONAL SPACE DEVELOPMENT AGENCY (NASDA).

THE ATTITUDE CONTROL EQUIPMENT AND SOPHISCATED ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT, SO FAR KEPT SECRET, WERE UNVEILED. HOWEVER, AN ANTENNA OF THE FOLDING SCREEN TYPE AND A SOLAR CELL WERE NOT MADE PUBLIC.

ERS-1'S TOP FEATURE IS THAT IT CAN OBSERVE THE STATE OF THE EARTH'S SURFACE IN DETAIL EVEN IN INCLEMENT WEATHER OR AT NIGHT, AND THAT IT CAN RECOGNIZE OBJECTS UP TO 18 METERS IN LENGTH AND WIDTH, OFFICIALS SAID.

THE SATELLITE CAN BE USED IN THE EXPLORATION OF NATURAL RESOURCES LIKE OIL AND MINERALS, IN THE COLLECTION OF DATA NECESSARY FOR PRESERVATION OF THE ENVIRONMENT, IN THE PREVENTION OF NATURAL CALAMITIES, AND IN THE HUNT FOR FISHERY RESOURCES.

THE SATELLITE IS A BOX TYPE, 3.1 METERS IN HEIGHT, 1.8 METERS IN WIDTH, 0.9 METER IN LENGTH, AND WEIGHING 1.4 TONS.

NASDA WILL SEND ERS-1 TO TSUKUBA SPACE CENTER IN TSUKUBA, IBARAKI PREFECTURE, NORTHEAST OF TOKYO, WHERE THE DURABILITY AND FUNCTIONS OF SENSORS WILL BE CHECKED BEFORE ITS LAUNCHING SCHEDULED FOR EARLY 1992.

INVESTMENTS IN THE PROJECT ARE ESTIMATED TO TOTAL 75 BILLION YEN.

BRUSSELS (SEPT. 28) KYODO - THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY (EC) AND JAPAN HAVE REACHED A BASIC ACCORD TO HOLD DOWN JAPAN'S MARKET SHARE OF AUTO EXPORTS TO THE REGION TO 18 PERCENT FOLLOWING THE INTEGRATION OF ITS MARKET IN 1992, SOURCES SAID FRIDAY.

THE TWO SIDES ALSO AGREED TO GIVE EC AUTOMAKERS A FIVE-YEAR TRANSITION PERIOD AFTER THE MERGING OF THE MARKETS BEFORE COMPLETELY LIBERALIZING THE AUTO MARKET TO JAPANESE MANUFACTURERS, THEY SAID.

DURING THIS FIVE-YEAR PERIOD JAPAN MUST CONTINUE TO MONITOR ITS AUTO EXPORTS

TO THE REGION.

THE SOURCES EXPECT SOME TIME TO ELAPSE BEFORE A FINAL AGREEMENT IS REACHED, SINCE MANY COUNTRIES WITHIN THE EC ARE STILL DIVIDED ON THE ISSUE.

FRANCE AND ITALY VEHEMENTLY OPPOSE SUCH A MOVE, SAYING THE CEILING IS MUCH TOO HIGH.

JAPAN'S OPPOSITION TO AN EC DEMAND ASSERTING THAT IT SHOULD REGULATE NOT ONLY DOMESTICALLY PRODUCED CARS DURING THE FIVE-YEAR PERIOD, BUT ALSO THOSE PRODUCED BY ITS AUTOMAKERS WITHIN THE EC, POSES ANOTHER STUMBLING BLOCK TO A FINAL SETTLEMENT, THE SOURCES SAID.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (SEPT. 28) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT reports that the index of leading economic indicators fell 1.2% in August. Economists had been predicting a drop of 1%.

Investor MARVIN DAVIS has offered to join the UNITED AIRLINES employee group trying to buy United parent UAL, but the employee group says it wants to go it alone. ... MICHAEL MILKEN's sentencing is postponed indefinitely. BANKRUPTCY COURT to withdraw $50 million from an escrow fund to pay for its operations. ... The British fashion house LAURA ASHLEY says it will close six factories in Whales and Ireland and lay off up to 1,500 workers.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

TREASURY UNDERSECRETARY MULFORD holds a news conference on the outcome of the IMF/WORLD BANK annual meeting this morning at 10:30 a.m. EDT. ... The Senate Finance Subcommittee will hold a hearing on the implementation of the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement. ... PRESIDENT BUSH meets with the Emir of Kuwait, SHEIK JABER AL-AHMED AL-SABAH.

FROM THE BEARS:

"The market is in the throw-away stage," says ROBERT WIBBLESMAN of KAYNE ANDERSON & CO. The last of the leaders - the medical stocks - are going down, and that is consistent with a giving up of hope." He says when medical stocks fall, "there are no soldiers left." In a normal situation, he says this type of action could produce a bottom, but upcoming third-quarter earnings reports, which are expected to be weak, and the troubles of bank stocks will prevent such formation, according to Wibblesman. He says, "the selling could last a few more days." ("Investor's Daily", 9/28)

"We always say the trend is your friend," says JOHN BROOKS, a technical analyst at DAVIS MENDEL & REGENSTEIN, an Atlanta brokerage firm. "Well the trend is down, and [investors] should go with the flow - at least for part of their portfolio." Mr. Brooks suggests looking for short-sale candidates among companies with weak earnings, heavy insider selling and share prices below their 200-day moving averages. "In this kind of market, the weak get weaker. You will have plenty of candidates. Very few fish will swim upstream." (WSJ, 9/28) "I think this [bear market] is going to be a long, drawn-out affair," says MICKEY LEVY, chief economist at CRT GOVERNMENT SECURITIES. "And from a Main Street standpoint, a bear market hurts because of the loss in wealth that it causes." (NYT, 9/28)

"Maybe we could get a 100- to 150-point rally over the short run, but then the Dow's going down again, maybe to 2100," says JAMES HARPEL of HARPEL PARTNERS. "We're still in a bear market. We're in an unwinding of an overly leveraged financial system." ("USA Today", 9/28)

STOCK MARKET:

DONALD KRUEGER of SANYO SECURITIES says "you can't catch a falling knife," and so he has been avoiding the Tokyo market. But he also points out that while American investors have shunned the Nikkei stocks in recent years, "the market is now coming down to the kinds of valuations Americans can understand," and therefore buying opportunities may exist. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/28)

"I think we're headed for a recession and in a recession, earnings decline," says RICHARD BERNER of SALOMON BROTHERS. He says the market is weighing that factor along with "concerns about credit quality," and, hence, is moving downward. (FNN "Marketwrap", 9/27)

"The market is clearly feeding on itself, at this point," says FRED ANSCHEL of DEAN WITTER. "It is difficult to see anything positive in today's action other than it could have been worse." He says the steep decline may level out "because so much damage has already been done." ("Nightly Business Report", 9/27)

Some short sellers "are making a great deal of money" in the current market, says HUGO QUACKENBUSH, senior vice president at CHARLES SCHWAB & CO. The discount brokerage firm reports that its number of shares of stock borrowed, an indicator of short selling, is up 15% since July. "Sophisticated investors are shorting more stocks," says Quackenbush. NEIL DOLINSKY, a portfolio manager at C.C. DUNNAVAN & CO., says, "Selling short makes fantastic money in down markets." STAN WEINSTEIN, editor of the "Professional Tape Reader," says it doesn't make sense "to do aggressive shorting" after a 500-point decline in the market. "There are bound to be some oversold rallies in this bear market

" he says, advising would-be short sellers to wait until the market moves higher. (WSJ, 9/28)

"The market continues to fail to make any kind of consistent headway on any rally attempts [and] that is a real keen indication that it can't hold any meaningful support levels," says EUGENE PERONI JR., of JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/27)

"The market is touchy right now and it all comes back to the Middle East," says JAMES CRIST of PARKER/HUNTER. ("USA Today", 9/28)

JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA of GRUNTAL & CO. says a fall in the Dow of nearly 600 points since the invasion of Kuwait is not enough. "The reason I don't buy that is [because] you're looking at the wrong top," he says. "It is our conjecture that the economy started to slip in the third quarter of last year and that the market at around 2600 should have been the top on the last advance" rather than nearly 3000. He says a logical bottom now would be about 2200 assuming the oil problem "disappears very quickly and very decisively in favor of the West and that consumers, seeing this, go on about their normal business" and Congress works out a budget agreement. In that scenario, he says, the Fed would bring interest rates down and the "economy will then unfold and probably in the summer of next year we'll start to see a rebound." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/27)

"What dominated the market was the decimation of the bank stocks," says HILDEGARDE ZAGORSKI of PRUDENTIAL- BACHE. "They got clobbered." ("USA Today" 9/28)

STOCK TIPS:

AMGEN INC. and CHIRON CORP. slipped yesterday, primarily on profit taking, according to BRANDON FRADD of MONTGOMERY SECURITIES. "They have held up really well until now," says Fradd. "I really wouldn't expect a bloodbath." ("Investor's Daily", 9/28)

With a 30% market share, "AIRBUS is actually a serious competitor in the market whereas, in the mid-70s it was actually regarded as a little bit of a joke," says CLIVE FORESTIER-WALKER of CHARTERHOUSE TILNEY. But American aerospace companies complain that Airbus is able to lower prices as a result of government subsidies. U.S. officials are considering filing a complaint with GATT. ("Nightly Business Report", 9/27)

"It seems that the question is not if war is going to break out, but when," says NAUMAN BARAKAT of MERRILL LYNCH. He points out that while there is currently a glut of oil, and no supply problems, the oil market "is operating on psychology," anticipating a disruption of supply. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/28)

"Regional banks were down sharply today," says JIM ROSENBURG, a bank analyst at LEHMAN BROTHERS. "One region that was exceptionally weak was the Southeast." ("Nightly Business Report", 9/27)

"There's a real serious question of confidence in the banking system," says JACK CONLON, head of trading at ROTHSCHILD INC. "Banks have become totally disfavored by institutional investors and are under heavy liquidation." He says that dividend cuts by CHASE MANHATTAN last week and by BANK OF BOSTON yesterday have intensified investors' cynicism. Now the big question plaguing bank investors is how bad can it get, says JUDAH KRAUSHAAR, a bank analyst at MERRILL LYNCH & CO. "The tremendous pressure on the bank stocks reflects a crisis of confidence and an inability of anyone to quantify the banks' exposure to non-performing assets." (WSJ, 9/28)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (SEPT. 28) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"There is nothing going on [in European currency trading this morning], probably because it is end-month and end- quarter trading," says KOICHI YAMANE manager at FUJI BANK in London. "Each currency has its own problems and people are not confident of which currency they should buy." He adds that traders are particularly uncertain about the dollar's prospects against the yen. (Reuters, 9/28)

"The [currency] market has no clear direction, and it probably won't until the budget situation is resolved and something happens in the Middle East," says EARL JOHNSON of HARRIS TRUST & CO. He says much of the action is the result of the market's "being constantly buffeted by rumors." ("Investor's Daily", 9/28)

"The [currency] market has been very jumpy" as a result of the plethora of rumors about the Middle East, says BILL ORSINI of BANK OF MONTREAL. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/28)

"The bids for bank debt issues have dried up to the point where the market has become illiquid," says THOMAS QUIGLEY of DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE. "As a result, many quotes are more nominal than a reflection of normal tow-way trading." (NYT, 9/28)

"New cash that investors and money managers have is going into Treasurys," says WILLIAM BRACHFELD, executive vice president at DAIWA SECURITIES AMERICA INC. "There's wholesale dumping by institutions of common stocks and debt of banks and financial institutions because they don't want them on their books at quarter's end, with the massive declines we've seen in prices lately. And the beneficiary of this is the Treasury market." (WSJ, 9/28)

"This probably is not the right time" to buy bank bonds, says NEIL CROWDER, investment analyst at IDS FINANCIAL SERVICES INC. in Minneapolis. "The bonds do look cheap, but there's a good chance they will get even cheaper soon. My sense is there are so many people who want to get out of them right now that buying would be almost like stepping in front of a freight train." (WSJ, 9/28)

THE ECONOMY:

"The real essence of this [oil] market is not an immediate supply shortage but the fear of war," says JAYNE BALL of CENTURY RESOURCES. "There's a real fear that if you sell now you might not be able to replace that oil later." ("Investor's Daily", 9/28)

PRESIDENT BUSH's release of some of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve "is viewed as a token gesture," says GEORGE FRIESEN of DEUTSCHE BANK. "Five million barrels will not make a considerable difference in the overall supply/demand picture." (FNN "Marketwrap", 9/27)

"I don't think we are [in a recession]," says JASON BENDERLY of BENDERLY ECONOMIC ASSOCIATES. "As the numbers have come in, including the consumer spending numbers [Wednesday], they showed that the economy was stronger going into the third-quarter than many believe. Consumers spending just based on [Wednesday's] numbers in July and August will rise at a 3% to 4% annual rate in the third quarter in real terms. That's not a recession decline in consumer spending. That's quite healthy growth."pp (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/27)

"This is a market that needs to be hit with a two-by- four," says EDWARD KRAPELS of ENERGY SECURITY ANALYSIS, commenting on oil prices. But he says tapping into the nation's strategic oil reserve could be a mistake if handled wrong. "If you drew down a little and it didn't work, you've neutered the thing," he says. (NYT, 9/28)

PRESIDENT BUSH's move to pull oil out of the strategic reserve "was too little too late," says ETHAN KAPSTEIN, head of HARVARD's ECONOMICS AND NATIONAL SECURITY PROGRAM. Five million barrels can change hands in 10 minutes of trading on the NEW YORK MERCHANTILE EXCHANGE, says TOM KLOZA of the OIL PRICE INFORMATION SERVICE. ("USA Today", 9/28)

IN WASHINGTON:

The condition of the fund that insures bank deposits appears to worsen with regulators revising their estimates of losses for the year by 50%, to more than $3 billion. "I don't think it's a question of crisis and panic," says

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORP. chief WILLIAM SEIDMAN. "It's a sign of increased stress." (NYT, 9/28)

The SENATE has approved a compromise measure intended to strengthen the enforcement powers of the SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION. The bill, now headed for the HOUSE, allows the SEC to impose civil penalties for a wide range for securities law violations. Now it can impose fines only for violations of insider trading. (NYT, 9/28)

Federal examiners say organized crime figures have looted some failing banks and savings and loans in New England. "We're seeing big, sophisticated fraud " says FAITH HOCHBERG, who heads enforcement efforts in the East for the OFFICE OF THRIFT SUPERVISION. "There are several institutions where examiners have reported activities that warrant futher investigation." ("USA Today", 9/28)

BUFFALO, N.Y. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Cellular Products, Inc. (NASDAQ: CELP) a company engaged in the development and marketing of biotechnology products, has received a grant award from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) under the Small Business Innovative Research Program (SBIR) to continue studies of a series of biological molecules that have been shown to neutralize the AIDS virus in test tube studies. Approximately $496,000 over a two-year period has been awarded as a Phase II SBIR grant.

The initial findings were funded by the company and resulted in patent applications being filed by the company on a worldwide basis. The company was also able to conduct additional studies with the assistance of a $50,000 Phase I SBIR grant. The company's vice president for research and development, Dr. Lawrence D. Papsidero, who has been responsible for guiding the research efforts, stated, "The NIH award permits us to continue our research efforts that could potentially lead to novel approaches to AIDS vaccines and related therapeutics. In addition, we will be able to increase the size of our research group and to conduct projects which expand the scientific and product development opportunities of the company."

Dr. Richard A. Montagna, president of the firm, further stated, "We are proud of our scientific staff for their tremendous efforts in these important studies and we are pleased that the NIH has shown continued confidence in supporting our scientific approaches. We have publicly stated in the past that we recognize that considerable financial resources are required to completely develop a therapeutic agent and thus our overall goal remains to bring this technology to a more mature level to permit potential licensing arrangements. In addition, as our company continues to reshape its goals and objectives, we expect that a new look to Cellular Products will emerge."

GREENFIELD, Mass. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The Bank of Western Massachusetts and West Mass Bankshares Inc. (NASDAQ: WMBS) have executed a non-binding letter of intent whereby The Bank of Western Massachusetts proposes to acquire West Mass Bankshares Inc., including its sole bank subsidiary, United Savings Bank.

United Savings Bank is a Massachusetts stock savings bank with six full service offices located in Franklin and Hampshire Counties and total assets of $191,000,000 as of June 30, 1990.

The Bank of Western Massachusetts is a Massachusetts chartered trust company with offices in Springfield and Holyoke, Mass. As of June 30, 1990, The Bank of Western Massachusetts had total assets of $143,000,000.

The proposed acquisition would be accomplished through a holding company to be formed by The Bank of Western Massachusetts which would acquire all of the issued and outstanding shares of West Mass Bankshares Inc. at a price equal to 100 percent of West Mass Bankshares Inc. adjusted book value.

Pursuant to the letter of intent, the acquisition agreement will set forth the agreed upon adjusted book value, which shall be no greater than $11.42/share or less than $10.34/share with the purchase price being paid in a combination of cash and stock of the new holding company to be formed. The transaction is subject to the execution of a definitive agreement and to shareholder approval of both banks and regulatory approval of both the formation of the holding company and the transaction itself.

In making the joint announcement, Frank P. Fitzgerald, chairman of the board and Timothy P. Crimmins, Jr., president of the Bank of Western Massachusetts and Francis L. Lemay, president and chief executive officer of West Mass Bankshares Inc. cited "the complimentary nature of the products and services provided by the banks and the geographic bank network which would be created" as the most compelling reasons for the combination of the two banks.

They further pointed out that although the form of the proposed transaction is an acquisition, it is being viewed as a consolidation of two locally managed successful banks. The banks will continue to operate independently with no major changes in management or personnel.

WAYNE, N.J. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Lederle-Praxis Biologicals, a business unit of American Cyanamid Company (NYSE: ACY), today announced that it has completed the filing process for a Product License Application (PLA) with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for a new vaccine to prevent pertussis (whooping cough), diphtheria and tetanus.

The filing seeks approval for the use of the vaccine as a booster series immunization in children ages 17 months to 7 years.

The new vaccine is composed of the current diphtheria and tetanus toxoids manufactured by Lederle and an acellular pertussis component licensed from its developer, Takeda Chemical Industries, Ltd. of Japan. The licensing agreement provides Lederle-Praxis Biologicals with exclusive rights worldwide except in Japan and Eastern Europe.

Approximately 14 million doses of the Takeda acellular pertussis vaccine have been administered to Japanese children since it was approved for sale in that country in 1981. Japan is currently the only country in the world to use acellular pertussis vaccines routinely to immunize its infants and young children.

"The ability of the Takeda acellular pertussis vaccine to protect against pertussis disease has been determined by studying Japanese children 2 years of age," said Dr. Ron Saldarini, president and chief executive officer of Lederle-Praxis Biologicals.

"Antibody response seen in U.S. children correlates well with the response seen in Japanese children. In addition, the immunogenicity, or ability to raise antibodies, in U.S. children is comparable to that of the whole-cell pertussis vaccine that has controlled the disease in the U.S. for many years," Dr. Saldarini explained.

"While our current filing applies only to booster immunization, we are actively pursuing a clinical research program for use of the vaccine in younger infants," Dr. Saldarini concluded.

Lederle-Praxis Biologicals, a business unit of American Cyanamid, is a leader in developing, manufacturing, marketing and distributing vaccines to prevent serious childhood and adult infectious diseases. Current Lederle-Praxis Biologicals vaccine products include those to prevent polio, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, Haemophilus influenzae type b disease, pneumococcal pneumonia and viral influenzae.

GAITHERSBURG, MD. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - In response to a press release issued by Creative BioMolecules Inc., Genex Corp. (NASDAQ: GNEX) said it has been advised by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) that no interference has been declared with respect to the patent protecting Genex's single-chain antigen-binding (SCA(TM)) protein technology.

The advice followed an incorrect statement released yesterday by Creative BioMolecules that the PTO had declared a patent interference. Creative previously announced it had requested such a declaration.

On Aug. 7, Genex was issued U.S. Patent, No. 4,946,778, titled "Single-Chain Polypeptide Binding Molecules," which protects the genes, vectors, hosts and manufacturing methods necessary for producing SCA proteins. These bioengineered molecules have the potential of replacing antibodies in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer and other life- threatening diseases.

Scientists at the National Cancer Institute and Genex reported on July 18 the first successful in vivo targeting of tumors using a Genex SCA protein that had been transplanted into mice. Genex has been issued three other patents on SCA protein design methods. Additional patents covering Genex's SCA proteins, their uses and related technology are pending in the United States and foreign countries.

Genex Corp. utilizes its proprietary expertise in protein engineering to design and produce specialized pharmaceuticals, surgical bioadhesives and other health care products.

COSTA MESA, CA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - A patent infringement suit between Parker Automotive Corp. (NASDAQ: PKRA) and Triangle Special Products Group has been dismissed without prejudice in the United States District Court for the Central District of California.

The suit alleged that Parker Automotive Corp.'s P200 model CarbonClean machine (commonly referred to as the "red" automotive unit) infringed on the patents held by Triangle Special Products Group on their fuel system flushing system. With the dismissal, each party will pay his own costs.

Michael E. Parker, chief executive officer of Parker Automotive Corp. said, "We are glad to have an amicable end to this litigation, and expect to be working cooperatively with Triangle in the future."

Triangle Special Products Group is a division of the Triangle Corp. of Stamford, Conn.

Parker Automotive Corp., headquartered in Costa Mesa, manufactures a family of CarbonClean products for virtually every type of internal combustion engine. These products flush harmful pollutants from the engine fuel system combustion engine, which results in restored performance and engine economy, and drastically reduced exhaust emissions.

Parker Automotive Corp. has manufacturing facilities in Fountain Valley, Calif. and maintains sales offices worldwide. Currently, the CarbonClean products are distributed in approximately 60 nations.

COSTA MESA, CALIF. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Parker Automotive Corp. (NASDAQ: PKRA) today announced the appointment of Diyar Corp., of Riyadh, Saudi Arabia as the exclusive distributor of CarbonClean products in the kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

The agreement calls for annual minimum purchases of CarbonClean products by Diyar Corp. of over $1 million. The initial term of the contract is one year with a five-year renewable option.

Diyar Corp. distributes engine-related machinery and tools throughout Saudi Arabia and other gulf countries. They also provide contracting and maintenance services to governmental agencies and private companies who operate water irrigation equipment, oil field equipment and related equipment.

Diyar Corp. had signed an exclusive distribution contract upon their visit to the United States in July, but the intervention of the Iraqi invasions of Kuwait had pushed back delivery of the initial stocking order from August 1990 to the present.

"Now that the events in the Mid-East have more or less stabilized to the point that it is business as usual for Diyar, we expect to proceed with our plan to make CarbonClean a highly successful product in Saudi Arabia," said Adnan Amin vice president of Diyar Corp. "We expect CarbonClean to be of great benefit as a maintenance tool in our country. For example, irrigation equipment and oil field equipment cannot be removed from the site for service. All maintenance must be performed on site. Therefore, when service is required, it is performed in the desert, and when an engine is open, it is subject to contamination by sand, dust and other contaminants. We see CarbonClean as a method of servicing engines without tearing them down in the most remote locations, thereby enhancing the long- term life of that equipment," continued Amin.

CarbonClean is a patented system that cleans gum, varnish, carbon and other contaminants from engine fuel systems. This system functions without removing engine components and the cleaning results in restored horsepower and fuel economy, and significantly reduced exhaust emissions.

CarbonClean products are currently distributed in nearly 60 nations. Domestically, CarbonClean is approved, and in some cases marketed by various automobile manufacturers, petroleum companies, service franchises and more.

Parker Automotive Corp. is headquartered in Costa Mesa. Manufacturing facilities are in Fountain Valley, Calif., and sales offices are maintained worldwide.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Volvo North America Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Sweden's AB Volvo (NASDAQ: VOLVY), announced organizational and management changes effective Jan. 1, 1991.

Volvo's ongoing organizational development, marked most recently by the establishment of a headquarters function in New York last year, will result in a further delegation of business responsibilities. The reporting lines for Volvo's North American operating units are being restructured to align the marketing companies more closely with the product companies in Sweden. These actions are in line with the worldwide organizational changes being made within the Volvo Group as a consequence of its previously announced alliance with Renault.

Volvo North America Corporation will represent the Volvo Group in North America and oversee its many business activities, including Volvo Finance North America, Inc. It will also continue to hold and administer Volvo's other North American investments, including, for example, its 26 percent stake in Hertz Corporation (through parent company Park Ridge Corporation) and 20 percent stake in Minstar (through parent company IJ Holdings).

Also, Bjorn Ahlstrom, 56, announced his resignation, effective Dec. 31, 1990, as president and chief executive officer of Volvo North America. Ahlstrom has held that post since 1972. Ahlstrom will continue to represent Volvo through continuing assignments as a board member of IJ Holdings and Park Ridge Corporation. He will also serve on the board of Volvo GM Heavy Truck Corporation and on the boards of Volvo companies outside North America.

Albert R. Dowden, 48, will succeed him as president and chief executive officer of Volvo North America Corporation and will be appointed a senior vice president of AB Volvo. Dowden joined Volvo North America in 1974 as general counsel and presently serves as executive vice president and deputy to the chief executive officer. Dowden will start to assume his new responsibilities as of Oct. 1, 1990, working with Ahlstrom to effect a smooth transition.

Pehr G. Gyllenhammar, chairman and chief executive officer of AB Volvo, said: "Bjorn Ahlstrom has done an outstanding job as head of Volvo North America Corporation. During his tenure, sales grew twentyfold to $3.9 billion in 1989. We will miss him, but are pleased that he will continue his association with Volvo in important posts. We wish him success in his future endeavors."

Gyllenhammar added that Volvo is fortunate to have someone of Dowden's caliber to take over. "Under Rick Dowden, Volvo North America Corporation will be in very capable hands," said Gyllenhammar. "In addition to his operational responsibilities, Mr. Dowden has served as chairman of Volvo North America's parts business and Volvo Penta Production division, as well as serving as a director of Volvo North America Corporation, its Volvo Cars of North America and Volvo Finance North America, Inc."

As a result of the restructuring, Joseph L. Nicolato, president of Volvo Cars of North America, will report to the president of Volvo Car Corporation in Sweden. Thage Berggren, president of Volvo GM Heavy Truck Corporation, will report to the president of Volvo Truck Corporation in Sweden. Alan Revington president of Volvo Penta of America, will report to the president of AB Volvo Penta in Sweden.

The major strategic alliance announced by Volvo and Renault last February involves the purchase of minority stakes in each other and coordination of product development, purchasing and investment.

Volvo is the largest importer of European-built cars in the United States. Last year, Volvo sold 101,847 cars in the United States and 7,033 in Canada, and through its Volvo GM Heavy Truck Corporation subsidiary also captured 12 percent of the U.S. heavy duty truck market.

The parent company, AB Volvo, is a $15 billion international organization. Headquartered in Gothenburg, Sweden, Volvo is a broadly based industrial group whose core business areas are cars, trucks, buses, marine and industrial engines, and aerospace. Volvo also has substantial interests in the construction equipment, food and pharmaceutical industries.

INDIANAPOLIS (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Anacomp, Inc. (NYSE: AAC, Midwest) announced today that the company has received waivers from its banks and its subordinated debt holders extending the company's obligation to complete its refinancing to late October.

The company also confirmed that "discussions are continuing constructively" with its subordinated debt holders with respect to their participation in the refinancing. The completion of the transaction will require the participation of substantially all its subordinated debt holders, from whom the company is actively pursuing commitments, on terms which have been tentatively agreed to by the large majority of such holders.

Under the terms of the waivers the company has obtained, which remain unchanged, the company is required (i) under its bank credit agreement to refinance its increasing rate notes by Oct. 23, 1990, (ii) under its 12.25 percent note and increasing rate note indentures to offer to purchase $7.1 million and $50 million, respectively, by Oct. 30, 1990 and (iii) under its increasing rate note indenture and bank credit agreement to make certain payments if the increasing rate notes are outstanding on Oct. 28, 1990.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - First Liberty Financial Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: FLFC) today announced the completion of the transaction with SouthTrust Corp. of Birmingham, Ala., in which SouthTrust purchased a First Liberty subsidiary, SouthTrust Bank, F.S.B. (formerly Liberty Savings Bank of South Georgia).

SouthTrust Bank has 17 branch offices in north Georgia with approximately $200 million in deposits. It will be headquartered in Atlanta, and Thomas H. Coley will be its president and chief executive officer.

Commenting on the transaction, First Liberty Chairman and Chief Executive Officer R. Gordon Rowell said: "We are very pleased to have completed the transaction with SouthTrust, a process which took almost nine months. SouthTrust is a sound, well-managed organization and we know they will be successful in the Atlanta market."

Continuing, Rowell described the benefits of the transaction to First Liberty and Liberty Savings Bank. "Before the transaction, Liberty did not meet the capital requirements of the Office of Thrift Supervision, but we now substantially exceed the present requirements as well as the fully phased-in 1995 requirements. Liberty now has a balance sheet with approximately $750 million of assets, $717 million of liabilities, and $33 million of equity capital. The bank will focus its activities on delivering quality banking services through its 17 full-service offices in the strong middle Georgia, coastal Georgia and south Georgia markets.

The company also reported that Liberty Savings had recently finalized a supervisory agreement with the OTS that resolved some regulatory issues arising from the agency's June 1989 examination of the institution. "We are pleased to have resolved those issues with the OTS," Rowell said, pointing out that the agreement would have no financial effect on the company.

The company also announced the recent sale to The Massachusetts Co. of Liberty Savings Bank's credit card portfolio of approximately $6 million. The gain realized on that sale was used to strengthen Liberty's general loan loss reserves which were $3.6 million at Aug. 31, or approximately 1.05 percent of risk assets (defined as all loans except permanent residential mortgage loans).

First Liberty Financial Corp. is a unitary savings and loan holding company which owns Liberty Savings Bank, F.S.B. Its common stock is quoted through the National Market System of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASDAQ) under the symbol FLFC. Its convertible subordinated debentures are quoted through NASDAQ under the symbol FLFCG.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - LaserMaster Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: LMTS) announced today that the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has allowed the company's claims for its TurboRes(TM) resolution enhancement technology for improving the quality of printing by desktop laser printers. TurboRes technology is used by the company in its line of plain-paper "desktop" typesetters and printer controllers. TurboRes enhances the discernible resolution of laser printers and minimizes the "stair-step" edges, known as "jaggies," that occur in text and line art produced by most desktop laser printers used for desktop publishing and commercial printing resolutions. The company's products print documents that compare in appearance to documents produced at resolutions of up to 1,200 by 1,200 dots per inch.

Larry Lukis, chief technical officer of LaserMaster, stated: "We believe that resolution and quality will become the most important factors in distinguishing our laser printer product line, and allowance of our patent claims provides us important protection for the advances LaserMaster has made in these areas." The allowance of patent claims means that the technology has been accepted as patentable and unique, and that a patent will be issued upon the inventor's request.

LaserMaster Technologies, Inc., designs, manufactures and markets laser printer and display systems and subsystems for high quality electronic printing and desktop publishing applications. LMT's products include high performance printer controllers, plain-paper desktop typesetters and integrated electronic publishing systems which feature the company's proprietary TurboRes resolution enhancement technology.

WILMINGTON, DEL. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Executive vice presidents James F.

Kearns and Nicholas Pappas, along with Robert M. Aiken, group vice president - petrochemicals, and W. Robert Clay, vice president - imaging systems, will retire by the end of this year, DuPont (NYSE: DD) announced today.

Kearns and Pappas' responsibilities include the company's fibers business and corporate plans function respectively. Both Kearns and Pappas are also members of the company's Executive Committee, which will be dissolved in one of several organizational changes being made coincident with the retirements.

An Office of the Chairman will be established, consisting of Edgar S. Woolard, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer; Elwood P. (Doc) Blanchard, Jr., vice chairman; C. S. (Dino) Nicandros, executive vice president and president and chief executive officer of Conoco, Inc.; Jerald A. Blumberg, senior vice president - Du Pont human resources and Du Pont corporate plans; and John J. Quindlen, senior vice president- DuPont finance.

"Jim Kearns, Nick Pappas, Bob Aiken and Bob Clay together have contributed almost 150 years of superb service to DuPont," Woolard said in commenting on the four retirements. "DuPont has benefitted enormously from their leadership and expertise. Their departures will be a significant loss."

Woolard said the several organizational changes "will empower people, improve the speed and quality of decision making and create a flexible network that fosters and requires increased interaction and the free flow of information across businesses, regions and functions. I believe that through these actions we will more quickly realize our vision of becoming a great global company through people," Woolard added.

As a result of the retirements, John A. Krol, group vice president - agricultural products, will become senior vice president - DuPont fibers. J. E. (Ted) Newall, chairman and chief executive officer of DuPont Canada, Inc. will assume the additional responsibility of senior vice president - DuPont agricultural products. He will maintain offices in Wilmington and Toronto, while residing in Toronto.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Siemens Energy & Automation Inc. announced today the election of Thomas J. Malott as president and chief executive officer of Siemens Energy & Automation effective Oct. 1.

He succeeds Harry S. Burker Jr., who is retiring from the position he has held since 1985.

Malott, who has been senior vice president and chief operating officer since November 1988, had previously held the post of group executive and vice president of the electrical products group. He joined Siemens Energy & Automation in August 1986 from the Ransburg Corp., where he had served as president and chief operating officer. From 1969 to 1981 he held various key management positions with Parker Hannifin Corp. These included general manager of the mobile hydraulic division and vice president of operations for the fluid power group.

A graduate of Purdue University with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, and of Western Michigan University with a master's degree in business administration, Malott holds numerous patents in the field of hydraulics and control systems.

Burker joined the company in 1983 when Siemens acquired the I-T-E business from Gould Inc. In 1985 he was appointed president and chief executive officer of the company.

Siemens Energy & Automation manufactures electrical and electronic equipment for commercial and residential construction, general industry, and electric utilities. A member of the Siemens Group, the company markets its products worldwide.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T (NYSE: T) today introduced the first operational international video conferencing service between the United States and the Soviet Union in a conference between Sam R. Willcoxon, president-AT&T International Group and Vladimir Ivanovich Glinka, Minister of Communications of the U.S.S.R.

The conference participants were in New York and Moscow. International Business Videoconferencing service utilizes AT&T's International ACCUNET(R) Reserved Digital Service, a high-speed, high-capacity digital transmission service available on a reservation basis. The signal travels by a variety of sophisticated terrestrial and satellite services to offer full-motion video and audio between two or more compatibly equipped facilities. These can either be a company's private room or one of more than 100 publicly available rooms in major cities in 18 countries.

"For us at AT&T, nothing says more about the growing importance of the world economy than the rapidly growing market for videoconferencing services," said Willcoxon.

AT&T said it expects business customers' demand for conference time to be significant. "Corporate and industrial globalization is increasing at a breathtaking rate," said Elaine J. Kaup, deputy director for AT&T International Dedicated Services.

"We're delighted to offer this communications option to the many businesses looking to participate in the multifaceted market growth the Soviet Union will experience in the coming years. Videoconferencing offers them the opportunity to make timely, informed decisions in a more productive, cost-effective way," she said.

Among the popular applications for international videoconferencing service are coordinating global manufacturing activities, managing worldwide investment portfolios, product design, financial reporting, architectural and engineering reviews and such events as training and strategy sessions, product introductions, auctions and press conferences.

The videoconferencing room in Moscow, operated by the Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications of the U.S.S.R., is a state-of-the-art facility that offers conference table seating for six participants, dedicated cameras, monitors, a VCR, facsimile, white board, slides and graphics capability. Cost for a one-hour New York-Moscow conference is expected to be approximately $3,200, including transmission and public room charges. In the United States, businesses interested in reserving the facility for conferences should call AT&T at 800-323-6672.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Medicis Pharmaceutical Corp. (NASDAQ: MDRXA MDRXU), a newly public company specializing in dermatological products and critical care medicine, announced today that it has completed the hiring of its sales and marketing force, "assembling a team of representatives with proven track records who are highly experienced in selling dermatological products," according to Jonah Shacknai, chairman and CEO of Medicis.

"Medicis has recruited the top-ranked and best-performing sales individuals from the leading pharmaceutical and dermatological companies in the country. We've offered them a highly incentivized compensation package which includes a strong competitive base salary and commission program, in addition to a stock option plan. We believe we now have in place one of the highest quality dermatology sales organizations in the country," Shacknai added.

Medicis Pharmaceutical Corp. went public on March 28, 1990, with the intention of using a substantial portion of the proceeds of the offering to build a sales and marketing organization.

Leonard Mazur, executive vice president, sales and marketing of Medicis, stated, "We are very much on target. The Medicis sales team is now affecting significant distribution among drug wholesalers and retail pharmacists. All of the major drug wholesalers have agreed to distribute the Medicis product line."

Medicis' principal focus is the $2 billion dermatology market where it has developed high-quality, innovative products. The company will soon launch a unique acne care line which includes Theramycin(TM) Z, a topical antibiotic that combines erythromycin and zinc, and BenzaShave(TM), a prescription shaving product used in the treatment of pseudofolliculitus barbae (razor bumps). Medicis also plans to launch Paplex(TM) and Paplex Ultra, a family of products to treat common and plantor warts, and Onyplex(TM), a nail hardener and bite deterrent. Next month Medicis will unveil its Theraplex(TM) family of therapeutic moisturizers and shampoos.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Piedmont Mining Company, Inc.

(NASDAQ: PIED) today announced the results of a preliminary feasibility study and economic evaluation of the mineral inventory at its Haile Gold Mine near Kershaw, S.C., by American Mine Services, Inc. of Aurora, Colo. The study shows that under one scenario, 6,404,000 tons of the proven and probable mineral inventory in four mineralized zones at the Haile Mine property could be mineable from several open pits with an average strip ratio of 3.5 to 1. This tonnage would have an average grade of 0.063 ounces per ton with a cutoff grade of 0.02 ounces per ton. A mill is envisioned with a total capital cost for the project of about $15 million.

The preliminary economic analysis shows that at a milling rate of 3,000 tons of ore per day, gold production could average about 60,000 ounces per year with a mine life of more than six years. At a gold price of $400 per ounce, the total pretax cash flow for the project could be about $45 million after deducting the $15 million capital cost. Additional drilling, metallurgical testing and engineering studies are recommended and these numbers may change with further study and analysis. Piedmont is examining financing alternatives to evaluate and develop the potential of the mineral inventory at its Haile property. These financing alternatives may include a private placement of new equity capital or a joint venture or business combination with another mining company.

The proven and probable mineral inventory at the Haile Mine is now 14,485,000 tons with an average grade of 0.048 ounces of gold per ton containing a total of 700,000 ounces of gold with a cutoff grade of 0.01 ounces per ton in seven mineralized zones. The total mineral inventory, which includes conservatively estimated proven, probable and possible categories, at the Haile Mine is now 24,585,000 tons with an average grade of 0.043 ounces of gold per ton containing a total of 1,064,500 ounces of gold. This mineral inventory compilation was made by independent consulting geologist David C. Jonson of Golden, Colo., in conjunction with engineers at American Mine Services, Inc.

Piedmont is engaged in exploration, mining and productiuon of gold in the southeastern United States. Piedmont pioneered the resumption of gold mining in the Southeast in early 1985 at its Haile Gold Mine employing for the first time the heap leaching process in the humid southeastern climate. Through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Mineral Mining Company, Inc., Piedmont is also engaged in mining and processing white, fine-grained Mineralite(R) mica at its facility near the Haile Mine. Piedmont is also engaged in a titanium bearing heavy mineral sands joint venture in the Carolinas.

VINELAND, N.J. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - IGI Inc. (AMEX: IG) announced today that its majority-owned subsidiary, Micro Vesicular Systems Inc. (MVS) has been awarded U.S. Patent Number 4,959,341 for "A Biodegradable Superabsorber."

Separately, IGI announced that as anticipated, it has begun direct sales of household consumer products last week with the beginning of a TV ad campaign for its Zap-A-Spot stain and odor remover.

NEW PATENTS: This brings to nine the number of U.S. patents issued during the past 14 months. This important patent covers the backbone of MVS' Ultrasponge(TM) biodegradable superabsorbers. This technology can also be used as a pharmaceutical and cosmetic delivery vehicle, and is being so developed and tested.

Edward B. Hager, M.D., chairman, said, "This patent highlights the broad industrial and commercial utility of MVS' Ultrasponge technologies."

TROOP DONATION: IGI announced it is sending a donation of 10,000 bottles of its newly developed "waterless shampoo" to U.S. troops in the Middle East. This unique product "Apply-Dry"(TM) was developed by MVS for an industry partner for nursing home use. The shampoo sudses and cleans without water and can be toweled off to leave a clean, dry head of hair. This project is being assisted by a donation of containers by the Wheaton Plastics Co., of Millville, N.J., and labels by the Patton Label Co., of Moorestown, N.J.

IGI Inc. is a diversified profitable biotechnology company. Its majority-owned subsidiary Micro Vesicular Systems Inc. has created novel patented technologies for lipid vesicle ("Novasome" TM) microencapsulation and biodegradable superabsorbers ("Ultrasponge" TM). These are being developed for a wide variety of commercial applications.

IGI's Vineland Laboratories, EVSCO Pharmaceuticals and Tomlyn Products divisions produce and sell poultry vaccines, small animal pharmaceuticals and pet care products worldwide.

Novasome (TM) and Ultrasponge (TM) are trademarks of a subsidiary of IGI Inc.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Midway Airlines (NYSE: MDW) today announced that it has commenced a phased reduction of approximately 10 percent of its workforce, according to David R. Hinson, chairman and chief executive officer. Additionally, this action will be accompanied by scheduled realignments in selected markets beginning Oct. 15.

"These actions are necessitated by escalating fuel costs brought on by the Persian Gulf crisis," said Hinson. "Midway, as well as other airlines, is actively addressing the need to adjust system flying in order to reduce operating costs and produce a better balance between capacity and passenger demand. Unfortunately, such actions will also impact our workforce."

According to Hinson, the planned schedule changes will affect markets where underutilized flights will be phased out over the next 30 days. All service to Savannah, Ga., will be suspended effective Nov. 1. Additionally, the company will withdraw from service eight of its least fuel efficient aircraft. This capacity is being replaced by new, more fuel efficient MD-80 Series aircraft. Three of these aircraft have been delivered in September, and an additional four MD-80s will be delivered before year end.

Midway Airlines offers coast-to-coast service from its hubs at Chicago's close-in Midway Airport and Philadelphia International Airport. Midway Airlines and its wholly owned subsidiary, the Midway Commuter, serve 59 destinations in the United States, Canada, U.S. Virgin Islands and the Bahamas.

BELLEVUE, WASH. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - U S WEST NewVector Group Inc. (NASDAQ: USWNA) today announced that AT&T's Cellular Systems Business Unit will market network operations management software developed by NewVector. Under the agreement, AT&T will resell NewVector's Basic Operations System (BOS) software to cellular carriers purchasing AT&T switching equipment and related products.

BOS enables cellular carriers to monitor network operations from a central location. NewVector uses BOS to manage more than 250 cell sites and 18 switches in a network that spans 40 percent of the continental United States.

"Due to the growth of the cellular market, carriers no longer manage isolated systems," said Reynie Ortiz, U S WEST NewVector president. "Today they manage entire networks serving large geographic areas. Our experience proves the need for software to support these dispersed operations. BOS fulfills that need."

Based on UNIX(R) System V Release 3.0 operating system, BOS software runs on personal, mini and mainframe computers. It also operates on computers connected over local and wide area networks. BOS enables these computers to monitor any device that provides status messages. This includes elements as diverse as disk drives in a data center to doors on cell site buildings. The BOS open-system architecture allows customers to develop tailored and integrated applications based on BOS. For example, NewVector uses BOS to monitor call-failure rates of customer equipment, cell sites, transmission facilities, and switching equipment.

"BOS software continuously collects information from multiple devices in a network," said Kathy DeTrano, AT&T Cellular Operations. "BOS enables a technician, working at a computer terminal, to access this information and perform interactive diagnostic and problem-solving tasks. BOS also can perform these functions automatically. This ability becomes increasingly important as cellular networks expand and become more complex."

BOS software archives data in a format compatible with most computer programs. This allows engineers and managers to analyze the data to identify and respond to trends suggesting potential future problems. Engineers and managers also can use archived information to improve system design.

"AT&T constantly looks for products and services to enhance the quality of cellular networks," said Tom Powers, AT&T Cellular Systems' president. "That is why we're particularly excited about our agreement with U S WEST NewVector to provide BOS software to other cellular carriers. The system's power to gather information allows engineers to correct potential problems before they affect the customer. The increased use of BOS will create greater efficiency and higher system quality throughout the industry."

U S WEST NewVector Group Inc., headquartered in Bellevue, Wash., has operations in 16 midwestern, western and southwestern states.

PITTSBURGH (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The Department of Environmental Resources

(DER) has ordered LTV Steel Co. to stop the discharge of coke plant wastewater into the Monongahela River from its Pittsburgh Works facility in the city's Hazelwood section, it was announced today.

"The illegal discharge of coke plant wastewater has been an ongoing problem that must be eliminated," DER Regional Director Charles N. Duritsa said. "A number of water systems along the river could be affected by these discharges."

Raw water at the Pennsylvania-American Water Co. intake, the water system closest to LTV, frequently contains elevated levels of napthalene and organic compounds, although these contaminants are removed during the treatment process.

Pennsylvania-American's laboratory runs a continuous organic analysis of the raw water entering its facility. Elevated levels of organics are treated with powdered activated carbon and carbon filters, which remove the contaminants.

Under the order, LTV must immediately investigate the sources of the napthalene and organic wastes and eliminate their discharge to the river by Nov. 30.

By the end of November, LTV also must provide a proposal and implementation plan to continuously monitor discharges from the Pittsburgh Works for the presence of coke plant wastewaters and other authorized discharges.

Duritsa said the discharges from the Pittsburgh Works violate a November 1986 DER consent order and agreement that prohibited LTV from discharging any coke plant contaminants to the Monongahela River.

HARTFORD, CT (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Magellan Petroleum Corporation (NASDAQ: MPET) today reported a consolidated net loss of $233,000, or 1 cent a share, on gross revenues of $11.5 million in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

In the prior-year period, there was a loss of $174,000 (1 cent a share) on revenues of $9.6 million, the company said.

Magellan, which reports on a consolidated basis with its 51 percent- owned subsidiary, Magellan Petroleum Australia Limited, said this year's loss is attributable largely to costs associated with the Australian unit's exploration ventures in Canada and the United States.

A Magellan spokesman said the Australian unit is preparing to drill an appraisal well at Dingo, about 40 miles south of Alice Springs, which will attempt to confirm the economic recoverability of this field, where reserves are estimated at 350 billion to 500 billion cubic feet. Such confirmation, he said, would materially increase the unit's share of the proved, recoverable gas reserves in the Amadeus Basin, now equivalent to more than 80 million barrels of oil.

Comparative, consolidated results for fiscal 1990 and the two prior years are shown in the following income statement:

PHILADELPHIA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T (NYSE: T) said today it will offer special low rates on calls to Hong Kong and Taiwan for a celebration of the Mid-Autumn Festival on Oct. 2.

The Mid-Autumn Festival is a time for family gatherings, feasts and celebrations.

Taiwan is the ninth most frequently called country from the United States, according to The World's Telephones, a statistical annual published by AT&T.

Throughout the 24-hour period, the economy rate will apply to all direct-dialed calls to the two countries. A 10-minute direct-dialed call to Taiwan will cost $10.38. A 10-minute direct-dialed call to Hong Kong will cost $9.46. Both prices reflect a 37 percent savings over standard rates.

Customers of the AT&T REACH OUT(SM) World program will pay the plan's normally low rate of $8.30 to Taiwan and $8 to Hong Kong for the same call.

The AT&T REACH OUT World plan offers savings on calls to 45 countries in return for a $3 monthly fee. Discounts, which average 20 percent, are available at least 15 hours every day (13 to Ghana) and 24 hours a day on the weekend. REACH OUT World customers also receive a 5 percent discount on their interstate calls.

Included in the Mid-Autumn Festival promotion are callers throughout California and in the following area codes: New York (201, 212, 516, 718, 914); Washington, D.C. (202, 301, 703); Philadelphia (215, 609); Chicago (312, 708); Boston (617, 508); Honolulu (808); Atlanta (404); Seattle-Oregon (206, 503); Dallas/Houston (214, 713); Miami (305), and the entire state of California.

In the past year, AT&T has offered similar discounts on calls to France for Bastille Day, to the United Kingdom on Remembrance Day, to Canada on Canadian Thanksgiving, to the Philippines on Philippines Independence Day, to Mexico on Mexican Independence Day, to Japan on Respect for Elders Day, to Australia on Australia Day, to Ireland on St. Patrick's Day, and to all direct-dialed countries on Valentine's Day and for a two-day celebration of the reopening of Ellis Island in September.

TWINSBURG, OH (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Anac Holding Corporation, parent of Revco D.S., Inc., today reported results for the first quarter of its 1991 fiscal year.

Sales were $407.8 million, a 4.8 percent increase over last year's pro forma first quarter sales of $389.3 million. These results and the pro forma numbers for fiscal 1990 exclude amounts for the 712 stores being divested by Revco in its previously announced downsizing program. Including the 712 stores being divested, sales in the first quarter last year were $597.8 million. Net loss for the quarter was $26 million, compared to a reported loss of $16 million (after a $6.6 million tax benefit) for the same quarter last year.

Earnings before income taxes, reorganization items, interest and depreciation for the current quarter of fiscal 1991 were $834,000 for 1,136 stores, compared to $9.2 million for 1,879 stores in the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

The company reported that it has successfully concluded its store- divestiture program ahead of plan. The divestiture program has allowed Revco to repay all of its short-term borrowings and maintain an invested balance in excess of $60 million. Revco will focus growth, build market share and enhance competitive position by concentrating on a store base of 1,100-plus drugstores in 10 contiguous eastern states where its stores provide the greatest return on assets.

Gregory K. Raven, Revco chief financial officer, said, "While our operating performance in the first quarter was weak, we can point to a number of internal and external causes. First, our seasonal results were weaker than anticipated, reflecting a poor summer seen by many in the industry. Second, we experienced costs associated with the company's recent decision to accelerate our chainwide installation of pharmacy and point-of-sale computer systems. Finally, disruptions caused by the rapid completion of our divestiture program led to temporary out-of-stock situations as distribution centers were closed and inventories moved and reduced for the smaller chain."

Boake A. Sells, chairman and chief executive officer, noted that Revco has completed installation of 872 point-of-sale (POS) scanning cash-register systems, and 733 Prescription Access Link (PAL) pharmacy-computer systems. Implementation for the entire chain is to be completed during calendar 1990.

Sells said, "Our innovative computer systems are key aspects of the company's long-term strategy, and the decision was made to accelerate their implementation to be ready for the Christmas sales season. Our ability to deploy these systems as we are doing is but one of the strengths we are seeing in our slimmed-down chain.

"With the completion of our divestiture program," Sells added, "we can rededicate our efforts to the smaller, ongoing Revco. Although our operating performance suffered from accelerated systems deployment and disruptions from store divestitures, our inventory levels are now on plan and we will not be distracted from achieving our goals for the year."

Revco is a privately held company based in Twinsburg, Ohio. The company will file its 10Q document with the SEC on or about Oct. 9, 1990. Copies will be available shortly thereafter from: Xerox Copy Center, 2383 S. Main St., Akron, OH 44319 (216-773-1577).

SALT LAKE CITY (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - First Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ: FFUT) announced today the closing of the previously announced acquisition of the retail deposits of the five CrossLand Savings Offices in Utah.

Gerald R. Christensen, president, announced the purchase included $58 million in deposits, the acquisition of the Sugarhouse and Fashion Place Offices, and the assumption of the lease of the Cottonwood Office. Deposits in the CrossLand ZCMI Office transferred to the First Federal Eagle Gate Office and the deposits of the Dan's Foothill Office were transferred to the First Federal Foothill Office at 1442 Foothill Drive.

Christensen said the Bank paid $2.3 million for the acquisition which included $1.1 million for the deposits and $1.2 million for the real estate and fixed assets. The transaction was a cash transaction.

This acquisition now gives First Federal eight offices and total deposits of approximately $258 million.

Christensen said the purchase follows the Bank's strategic plan to increase retail deposits by acquisition.

CrossLand Savings is a $12.8 billion savings bank based in New York. The sale enables it to concentrate its resources more efficiently in those retail banking markets where it has a larger market share.

HUTCHINSON ISLAND, FLA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Florida Power & Light Company on Sunday plans to begin a scheduled refueling of its St. Lucie Unit 2 nuclear reactor that will take it out of service for approximately nine weeks.

During the refueling, 76 of the reactor's 217 fuel assemblies will be removed and replaced with new fuel. Workers also will conduct maintenance and inspections on major operating components and systems.

Since it began operation, the 839-megawatt unit has displaced more than 73 million barrels of oil. This has saved FPL's customers approximately $1.5 billion, because nuclear fuel costs about one-quarter the cost of burning oil. St. Lucie's two nuclear units combined displaced more than 155 million barrels of oil for a fuel savings of $2.6 billion.

Unit 2 has one of the nation's best capacity factors -- a statistic that measures operating efficiency. Since the last refueling 18 months ago, Unit 2 has achieved a capacity factor of 91.8 percent. The lifetime capacity factor for Unit 2 is 85.1 percent compared to the U.S. nuclear industry average of 63 percent.

FPL operates four nuclear reactors that produced 25 percent of the company's electricity in 1989. FPL is one of the nation's largest investor-owned utilities and is the principal subsidiary of FPL Group, Inc. (NYSE: FPL).

NEEDHAM, MASS. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - LoJack Corporation (NASDAQ: LOJN; Boston Stock Exchange: LOJ.B) announced today that sharp increases in revenue for the second quarter and six months were in line with the company's expectations for its growth in the current fiscal year, and projected that operating losses, reflecting the expected results of the company's expansion efforts, would decline in the remainder of the year. Revenues increased by 124 percent to $3,632,946 for the second quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990 from $1,621,970 a year ago. This also represents an increase in revenues of over 36 percent over the first quarter of the current fiscal year. The loss from operations resulting from the cost of expansion was $1,606,650 for the second quarter of 1990 compared to a loss from operations of $662,618 a year earlier. The net loss for the second quarter was $1,798,581, or $.15 a share, compared to a net loss of $575,930, or $.05 a share for the first quarter ended Aug. 31 1989.

For the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990, revenues increased by 103 percent to $6,309,063 from $3,108,639 a year earlier. The loss from operations for the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990, was $3,167,909 compared to $1,333,798 a year earlier. The net loss for the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990 was $3,440,748, or $.29 a share, compared to a net loss of $1,287,426, or $.12 a share for the six months ended Aug. 31, 1989.

In making the announcement, C. Michael Daley, president, said that of the 124 percent revenue increase in the second quarter, approximately 25 percent was attributable to the company's Massachusetts operation, which continues a strong rate of growth. Also contributing to the revenue increase is the commencement of sales of LoJack Units to consumers in New Jersey, Michigan and Los Angeles County, Calif. Revenues of the company's Florida operation increased 93 percent over last year. LoJack acquired control of its Florida distributor in April 1990.

Daley said, "Put in this perspective, the loss from operations for the second quarter was in line with our expectations and represents the peak of the loss anticipated in connection with our expansion. We are projecting that our loss from operations will decrease steadily during the third and fourth quarters of this fiscal year.

"The operating loss reflects expansion costs in new markets and remained consistent between the first and second quarters of fiscal 1991. The increased net loss is the result of interest expense incurred in connection with the issuance of the company's 10 percent convertible debentures in May 1990, the net proceeds of which are being used in connection with our expansion program."

MIAMI (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The Nuclear Regulatory Commisssion today released its Systematic Assessment of Licensee Performance (SALP) report on Florida Power & Light Company's Turkey Point nuclear power plant, stating that "significant improvements in plant performance and safety have taken place over the past two SALP periods."

The SALP report is a "plant report card" based on NRC observation from Aug. 1, 1989 through July 31, 1990. In the latest Turkey Point report, the plant received good performance ratings in six categories. Four of seven categories reflected improved performance. In the seventh category of Safety Assessment and Quality Verification, the plant received a superior performance rating.

Commenting on the report, Jerry Goldberg, president of FPL's nuclear division, said, "The pursuit of excellence in all phases of plant performance continues at Turkey Point. I am pleased we are making progress but I am not satisfied that we have reached our limit. Continued improvement is both possible and achievable with the outstanding team of employees we have working at Turkey Point."

The performance ratings for the current and previous SALP report in each category are as follows:

SEATTLE, (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Sea-Land Service Inc. has announced the addition of Dutch Harbor to its linehaul route that serves Alaska. Service will begin with weekly calls starting with the Friday, Oct. 5, arrival in Dutch Harbor of the 710-foot S/L ANCHORAGE. It will be the first commercial carrier linehaul route to serve Dutch Harbor from the continental United States.

Dutch Harbor joins Anchorage and Kodiak as the Alaska ports of call for Sea-Land's Alaska Division linehaul service. The new service will replace a chartered tug-and-barge that has served the Aleutian Chain, including weekly stops in Dutch Harbor and Akutan, since 1986. Sea-Land has called on Dutch Harbor since 1972 and commenced weekly service in February of this year.

Sea-Land also is a participant in the recently approved $6 million Unalaska/Dutch Harbor Dock expansion project, joining with the city and Petro Marine in the new development. In addition to extending the dock to almost 800 feet, the project will include the installation of dolphin piers, yard lights, crane rails and a container crane. Completion is slated in mid-1991.

"We are extending our commitment to Alaska by implementing this service and participating in the development of a major port improvement in Dutch Harbor," said John L. Sutherland, vice president and general manager of Sea-Land's Alaska Division.

"The initial phase of this new service will offer our customers in Alaska and the Lower 48 reduced transit times and increased capacity," Sutherland added. "Upon completion of the dock expansion project in 1991, schedule reliability will complement the service as we begin the terms of our use agreement at the new port facility."

Sea-Land has served the Alaska trade since 1964, when it intitiated service to Anchorage. With the implementation of three new 700-foot D-7 vessels in 1987, Sea-Land is the largest commercial water carrier to and from Alaska.

Sea-Land Service Inc., a unit of CSX Corp. (NYSE: CSX), Richmond, Va., is a world leader in international intermodal freight transporation and related trade services. Sea-Land operates more than 60 container ships and 128,000 containers in U.S. and foreign trade and serves 80 ports in 70 countries and territories around the world.

WILMINGTON, DEL. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Du Pont (NYSE: DD) today said some 600 employees and their families will participate in the second statewide beach cleanup the company is co-sponsoring with the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control (DNREC) on Saturday, Sept. 29.

Delaware's fourth annual "Get the Drift and Bag it" beach cleanup is part of DNREC's program to enlist public support to help solve the marine litter problem.

More than 4,000 people are expected to participate in the event. For the first time, all participants will separate the plastics collected for recycling into picnic tables or park benches, to be donated to DNREC for placement throughout the state.

During the cleanup last September, about 2,000 volunteers collected more than 10,000 pounds of trash along beaches from Battery Park to Fenwick Island State Park.

Last year, the 400 participating Du Pont employees and their families separated plastics from the other litter, which the company had recycled into park benches presented to the state on Earth Day for Delaware parklands. The cleanup marked the first time plastics were separated for recycling.

"We applaud Du Pont's efforts in recycling and appreciate the support the company and its employees have given to our annual beach cleanup program," said Edwin H. Clark II, DNREC secretary.

"This is an example of the type of cooperation involving industry, the government and most importantly, the people of Delaware working together for our resources," Clark said.

"This program underscores Du Pont's commitment to work with government, the public and industry to help solve the solid waste problem, and enables our employees to participate in achieving the company's goal of corporate environmental stewardship," said Archie W. Dunham, group vice president-polymer products.

DENVER, (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Western Gas Resources Inc. (NYSE: WGR) disclosed that in connection with its previously announced acquisition of the Midkiff Gathering and Processing Facility from El Paso Natural Gas Co. (EPNG), abandonment was received from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) on Sept. 17, 1990 subject to a 30 day period in which requests for rehearing may be made.

The acqusition, consisting of the Midkiff Gas Plant, related Spraberry Gathering System and Odessa Underground Storage Facility, is being acquired from EPNG under an agreement executed in May, 1989 by Western Gas Processors Ltd. (NYSE: WGR) which is 52 percent owned by Western Gas Resouces. The system is connected to over 2,000 wells in the Permian Basin and consists of an 1,100 mile gathering system, a 100 million cubic foot per day (MMCF/D) capacity processing facility and an NGL storage facility. Under an interim operating agreement, Western began operating the facility in July, 1989 pending receipt of FERC approval. In late May, 1990, Western placed into operation a newly constructed, high-efficiency, automated 80 MMCF/D cryogenic plant which replaced the existing lean oil plant. The plant is currently processing just under 60 MMCF/D and producing approximately 378,000 gallons per day of natural gas liquids. The Midkiff acquisition and related improvements represent a capital investment of approximately $50 million.

Receipt of this authorization by EPNG from the FERC to abandon the certified facilities by sale, clears the second and of the two major contingencies that existed, thus allowing Western and EPNG to complete the purchase and sale transactation. It is expected that the transaction will close prior to Dec. 31, 1990.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - International Multifoods Corp. (NYSE: IMC) has made changes in the organization of its growing U.S. foodservice operations to further develop these businesses and their brands.

Jay I. Johnson, formerly group vice president of specialty distribution, has been appointed head of all foodservice operations with responsibility for foodservice manufacturing as well as specialty distribution. Included in Multifoods' foodservice manufacturing group are Frozen Specialty Foods, SeaFest/JAC Creative Foods, Bakery Products, Reuben/Prepared Foods and Seafood Operations.

Samuel C. Arnold, formerly group vice president of foodservice manufacturing, has assumed the newly created post of vice president of corporate marketing and foodservice business development. In his new role, Arnold is responsible for developing strategic alliances with key foodservice customers, as well as for Multifoods' corporate identity and communications to the foodservice industry.

"These changes place the overall management of our domestic foodservice business under common management," said Tony Luiso, chairman, president and chief executive officer. "This will allow us to put a more coordinated focus on the customer and to maximize the synergies that exist among our foodservice businesses. In addition, it will help us in building our brand strategies and stronger customer relationships."

Since 1986, Multifoods has grown to being one of the largest suppliers of food products and services to the U.S. foodservice industry, and its annual U.S. foodservice sales now exceed $1 billion. "We have grown rather quietly through a combination of strategic selection of established foodservice brands and internal development," said Luiso. "We are a corporation committed to the foodservice industry and its growth."

Johnson joined Multifoods in 1988 as group vice president of foodservice manufacturing, and in 1989 was named head of specialty distribution. Prior to joining Multifoods, he was president of Borden Company's dairy division and held various senior management positions at Beatrice Companies. From 1978 to 1982, he was president of Dannon Yogurt.

Arnold joined Multifoods in 1986 when the company acquired Fred's Frozen Foods of which he was president, and was named group vice president of foodservice manufacturing in 1989. Arnold also served as a corporate vice president with Central Soya and held management positions in Pillsbury's and Green Giant's foodservice divisions.

International Multifoods, with fiscal 1990 net sales of $2.1 billion, is a diversified food company with major operations in the United States, Canada and Venezuela.

SHAWNEE, OKLA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Barton Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: BART) announced at the Society of Petroleum Engineers (SPE) conference in New Orleans, of Barton's technological advances in product development for the oil and gas industry.

C. W. Earl Johnson, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, stated that at a time when the United States is 50 percent dependent on imported oil, energy companies could relieve a large portion of this dependency by utilizing Barton's automated Reservoir Management Systems in the United States.

According to Johnson, Barton's Pump Off Plus advancement has a unique optimization feature not offered by competitive units which allows existing oil wells the enhancement feature of increasing oil production from 10 percent to 30 percent. These increases are achieved through a combination of a significant reduction in well downtime coupled with a pure improvement in production due to the more efficient operation of the well. In addition, companies also enjoy significantly reduced expenses in the areas of maintenance and utility costs. These savings are achieved by extending the life of the equipment through a reduction in the run time of the unit by 50-60 percent while still providing the increased production previously mentioned.

The advancements generated by Barton systems will allow our country to automate the some 300,000 plus wells in the United States, generating production increases here at home, thus alleviating our dependence on the Middle East.

Major oil and gas companies are now field testing, evaluating and placing orders for Barton's family of automation products including Gas Flow Measurement, On-Line BTU Analyzer and Pump-Off Plus. Barton's Integrated Technology Systems Division looks forward to a very active and prosperous year in 1991.

PORTER, IND. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Canonie Environmental Services Corp. (NASDAQ: CANO) reported today that revenues were $17,145,000 for the quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, compared to $7,450,000 in the prior year's period. For the quarter, the company had net income of $622,000, equal to $0.11 per share, compared to a net loss of $235,000, or $0.04 per share, in the prior year's quarter.

The improvement in quarterly revenues and net earnings as compared to the prior year's period and the first quarter of this year is a result of increased remediation activity at several projects started during the past few months. It is anticipated that the level of activity will remain high through the third quarter, ending Nov. 30, 1990.

Net income for the quarter continues to be negatively impacted by losses at the company's analytical laboratory, the bonus expense due to change in ownership (relating to a 1988 sale of stock by former parent), and losses of unconsolidated affiliates. These factors had a negative effect of approximately $0.08 per share, after tax, during the quarter.

Thomas A. Donovan, Canonie's president, stated, "We are encouraged that progress has been made to return this company to profitability. These new projects, although extremely competitive, have provided us a firm foundation for future growth. The situation at our laboratory has improved. However, work remains to be done to bring it up to our required profitability. Our unconsolidated subsidiary, SoilTech, Inc., has started a major project in New York state, which should make it profitable for the balance of our fiscal year."

Canonie Environmental Services Corp. provides comprehensive services throughout the United States for remediation of sites contaminated by hazardous materials. The firm provides its clients with a complete range of services, including assessing the regulatory, technical, and construction aspects of the problem, developing a strategic plan to solve the problem, and performing the necessary remediation and operation activities. Canonie Environmental Services Corp. is one of the few companies capable of providing such a broad range of services. The company has performed work at more than 100 project sites nationwide, including the management and control of remediation activities at various Superfund sites.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Contel Cellular President and CEO Paul

Kozlowski today announced that Earle A. MacKenzie, Contel Cellular senior vice president/Finance and Administration and company treasurer, has resigned effective Oct. 5.

MacKenzie will leave Contel to accept a position as president and CEO of a new venture.

Kozlowski noted that MacKenzie has been employed by Contel for the past 13 years in various executive financial, planning and marketing positions. He joined Contel Cellular Inc. at its inception in 1984 as vice president/Finance and Administration and chief financial officer.

According to Kozlowski: "Contel Cellular has been fortunate to have a person of Earle MacKenzie's caliber. Earle has contributed to Contel Cellular's growth and development as an industry leader. We wish him well in his future endeavors."

Contel Cellular Inc. (NASDAQ: CCXLA) is headquartered in Atlanta. Nationwide Contel Cellular operates as the general partner in 36 metropolitan cellular systems, and as a limited partner in 31 others. In addition, the company also expects to operate 57 rural cellular systems. In terms of market population ("POPs"), Contel Cellular is the sixth-largest cellular telephone company in the United States.

TUSTIN, CALIF. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Shelly Associates Inc. (NASDAQ: SHLY) today announced that for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, sales decreased slightly from the comparable year ended 1989. Shelly, a diversified manufacturer and supplier of electronic products is also a major participant in a gold mining joint venture in the Philippines.

According to Daniel C. Montano, chairman, "Fiscal 1990 completes our refocusing effort, moving the company away from dependence on military business and focusing our future growth opportunities in the commercial market place. As part of our refocusing effort, the company moved its facilities last year which increased costs approximately $85,000 over prior years. The company also increased its marketing effort by a cost of approximately $40,000 and made the strategic decision to increase its inventory reserve by approximately $139,000, for a total inventory reserve of $173,967 as of June 30, 1990. This increased inventory reserve should insulate the company against any future losses associated with any remaining inventory from military products. Costs in fiscal 1990 associated with the refocusing totaled approximately $264,000." Montano further stated that the company was expecting more good news from the Philippine mining venture shortly.

Shelly sales decreased to $4,391,180 for the year ended 1990 as compared to $4,426,694 for the year ended 1989. A net loss of ($141,584) or ($.06) per share for fiscal 1990 compared to a loss of ($13,692) or ($.01) per share for the respective period in 1989.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - A W. R. Grace & Co. (NYSE: GRA) subsidiary is developing a new type of catalytic converter that reduces hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions by up to 75 percent and will help automobiles meet strict new air emission standards.

The new electrically heated Camet(R) catalytic converter is designed to reduce emissions in the "cold start" phase of driving, which occurs in the first several minutes of operation. In its 31-minute federal emission test procedure, more than 80 percent of the harmful hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide are produced in the first eight minutes of engine operation.

The California Air Resources Board (CARB) has recently conducted successful preliminary tests of the new converter on several late model test cars and plans to continue the evaluation. A hearing was held yesterday in Los Angeles by CARB on the adoption of new rules for low- emissions vehicles where Grace outlined test results of its catalytic converter. The California Low-Emission Vehicle And Clean Fuel Program identifies potential use of electrically heated converters in vehicles fueled by gasoline, reformulated gasoline and alcohol fuels.

The electrically heated catalytic converter, a supplement to existing catalytic controls, preheats itself 10 to 20 seconds prior to starting the car. By contrast, current catalytic converters require several minutes to heat up in order to create an effective chemical reaction that converts unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide into harmless gases.

This new converter is composed of a stainless steel casing that surrounds a honeycombed metal catalytic foil and does not require major modifications to engine, emission or fuel systems.

"The development of this catalytic converter could be a breakthrough that leads to important improvements in the quality of the nation's air," said F.

Peter Boer, a Grace executive vice president and the firm's chief technical officer. "The Grace system appears to achieve better results than other alternatives," he added.

This converter has allowed test vehicles to achieve hydrocarbon emissions as low as 0.04 grams per mile using unleaded pump gasoline. By comparison, present day emission standards call for 0.41 grams per mile, but both Congress and California are proposing tighter standards. For the proposed California standards, most cars will require design changes such as the electrically heated catalytic converter.

Grace is conducting further testing, both on engine dynamometers and under road conditions, to determine the endurance of the converter.

The converter was developed by Grace's Camet unit, based in Hiram, Ohio. Grace's Davison Chemical Division, headquartered in Baltimore, is the world's largest producer of specialty catalysts and was a pioneer in the development of auto exhaust catalysts.

Grace is an international specialty chemical company with interests in energy, manufacturing and service businesses with sales last year exceeding $6 billion.

CLEVELAND (SEPT. 29) PR NEWSWIRE - National City Bank (NYSE: NCC) has opened a full service brokerage office offering a wide range of investment choices at highly competitive prices through NC Investment, Inc.

"NC Investments is designed to better serve our customers by meeting all of their investment needs," said David A. Daberko, bank president. "These customers already have a high level of confidence in our traditional banking services and we are building on that foundation.

"We will provide investment advice on stocks, bonds and mutual funds, and distribute our own NCC funds," he explained. "The level of service can be tailored to the needs of the customer -- as much or as little as they require."

NC Investments has three divisions: institutional sales and trading, retail brokerage, and operations and compliance.

Needs of medium size businesses, correspondent banks, credit unions, insurance companies, pension funds and public entities will be provided by the institutional sales and trading division.

Services for individual customers and small businesses will be provided by the retail brokerage division, managed by Laura L. Rosenbaum, senior vice president.

"This division began with a substantial core of customers from existing discount brokerage operations," said Rosenbaum. "They are individuals and small business owners who for the most part want to manage their own investments.

"In addition, we expect to attract many customers who want to reduce their tax liabilities, or invest a lump sum distribution such as pension, plan for children's college or their own retirement," she said.

NC Investments has recruited an experienced staff from top brokerage firms, Rosenbaum noted. "They have a thorough knowledge of the products we offer."

NC Investment options include stocks, Treasuries and government agencies, municipal bonds, unit investment trusts, precious metals, tax exempts, zero coupons, mortgage-backed securities, corporates, equity and index options, mutual funds, and self-directed IRAs and Keoghs.

NC Investments, Inc., formerly FKYN Brokerage, Inc., was acquired by National City Bank from First National Bank of Louisville, another wholly owned banking affiliate of National City Corporation.

CLEVELAND (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The Tranzonic Companies (AMEX: TNX) today reported net income of $1,139,400, or 32 cents per share, for the second quarter ended Aug. 31. In the like period last year, net income amounted to $1,190,100, or 33 cents per share. Current year second quarter sales were $27,166,000, up 10 percent from $24,771,500 a year earlier.

Robert S. Reitman, chairman and chief executive officer, said that while gains in operating earnings kept pace with the increase in sales, costs associated with expansion programs adversely affected net income. He said results also were affected by a very competitive market and a marked slowdown in activity in industrial sectors the company serves. Second quarter operating earnings amounted to $1,876,800, up 10 percent from the $1,701,600 of a year earlier.

For the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990, the Cleveland-based manufacturer/distributor of paper, cloth and vinyl products reported net income of $2,079,400, or 58 cents per share. Year-earlier net income of $2,848,900, or 78 cents per share, included $701,500, or 19 cents per share, in a cumulative adjustment from implementation of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 96 (Accounting for Income Taxes). Six months operating earnings this year amounted to $3,384,400, up from $2,943,000 a year earlier.

Six-month sales this year were $53,910,400, an increase of 15 percent over the $47,055,100 last year.

Current year results include the operations of the company's Industrial Packaging Division which was established in June 1989 with an acquisition. The division manufactures paper tubes and cores for the industry.

Tranzonic has three other operating divisions. The Personal Care Division manufactures and distributes feminine napkins, children's disposable diapers, adult incontinent briefs, obstetrical pads and related products. The Industrial Packaging Division processes, packages and markets industrial wiping and related products and the Housewares Division produces and markets laundry accessories, personal travel organizers, cedar storage and closet organization products.

BOSTON (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Boston Burger King (R) customers can now order Coca-Cola with their Whopper (R) sandwiches. Burger King Corporation made the announcement in May 1990 that the Coca Cola Company would become the official soft drink supplier to Burger King (R) restaurants in the USA. The switch is on and now Burger King (R) customers in Boston will be able to order Coca-Cola products including Coca-Cola classic, diet Coke, Sprite and Minute Maid Orange soda in their local Burger King (R) restaurants. All USA Burger King (R) restaurants will be fully converted to Coca-Cola by the end of October.

"We selected Coca-Cola because of its ability to provide a powerful mix of global brand strength, state-of-the-art technological capabilities and distinctive service," said Barry J. Gibbons, chief executive officer, Burger King Corporation.

To help celebrate that Coca-Cola is now available in Boston Burger King (R) restaurants, Coca-Cola and Burger King have joined Marriott Hotels and Resorts and Northwest Airlines in sponsoring a Boston radio promotion, part of a 40-market radio promotion, "The Real Thing at Burger King Beach Fling." Prizes included tickets via Northwest Airlines to enjoy a Two For Breakfast Weekend at Marriot Hotels and Resorts, dual-cassette AM/FM portable stereos and canvas beach totes filled with sunglasses, frisbees, towels, can coolers, Whopper (R) cards and certificates for free Coca-Cola classic.

Burger King Corporation was acquired by Grand Metropolitan in January, 1989. One of the United Kingdom's largest international companies, Grand Metropolitan is a world leader in the food, drinks, and retailing businesses.

NEWTOWN SQUARE, PA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - ARCO Chemical Co. (NYSE: RCM) executives today met with financial analysts in New York to discuss several key issues, including the restart schedule for the Channelview, Texas, plant.

President and Chief Executive Officer Harold A. Sorgenti announced that the first unit had been successfully restarted in mid-September. The unit produces methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE), a gasoline- blending ingredient that reduces automotive emissions. The entire Channelview complex had been shutdown following an explosion and fire on July 5. According to the current schedule for restarting the remaining units, butanediol should be on stream by the end of the month, polyols in October, and the propylene oxide/styrene plant in December.

Sorgenti said that insurance should mitigate a substantial portion of the financial impact of the accident. The company has business interruption coverage with a $12.5 million deductible, which was met in the third quarter, and it is considering accruing a portion of the business interruption claim in the third quarter. The company has property damage insurance with a $20 million deductible; however, the depreciated value of the assets destroyed at the plant is significantly less than that number. "The personal injury litigation will be complicated and take some time to be resolved. It is difficult to estimate the financial impact any ultimate resolution will have," Sorgenti said. "Our dividend and our capital programs will not be affected," he said.

Referring to an April 1989 meeting with analysts, Sorgenti reported progress against the company's announced goal to reduce its exposure to cyclicality in the styrene merchant market through a mix of selling arrangements. "I'm happy to say that we have since completed several longer-term volume deals. These provide a floor for styrene margins for significant volumes of product," Sorgenti said.

He also mentioned that the company had completed one equity styrene arrangement and has a letter of intent for a second. With the existing equity arrangement, the partner will invest in the new propylene oxide/styrene plant now under construction at Channelview. ARCO Chemical will operate the plant. The partner provides raw materials and pays its share of the plant operating costs. Sorgenti said: "All told, with these arrangements we have new commitments representing essentially the entire styrene capacity of the new plant, or more than one billion pounds annually."

Sorgenti discussed MTBE, which he called the company's "star performer of late." In the United States, the focus has been on MTBE's ability to make gasoline a cleaner-burning, more efficient fuel. In Europe, MTBE demand reflects the increased acceptance of unleaded gasolines. In 1990, the company added low-cost capacity totalling 5,000 to 6,000 barrels of MTBE per day at plants in France and the Netherlands.

ARCO Chemical Co. is a leading multinational manufacturer and marketer of intermediate chemicals and specialty products used in a broad range of consumer goods.

NORCROSS, GA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Stockholder Systems Inc. (NASDAQ: SSI), a NYNEX company, announced today the acquisition of five software systems for wire transfer and ACH processing from Applied Communications Inc. (ACI), Omaha Neb.

The new products will be managed by SSI's EFT Products Division which already offers a line of software that is complementary to these acquired products. Terms of the acquisition were not released.

The products being acquired are: WireNet(TM), MoneyNet Micro(TM), TRG/TRC(TM) and CIX-PC(TM) which are PC-based systems, and CIX(TM) which operates on an IBM Mainframe. WireNet and MoneyNet Micro are funds transfer systems that automate wire room activities within financial institutions. TRG/TRC, CIX and CIX-PC automate the disbursement and collection of funds through the Automated Clearing House (ACH) network.

"This acquisition fits our strategy of providing a complete solution to the payment processing needs of financial institutions," said John Stephens, president of SSI's Payment Products Group. "SSI currently offers software and services for check processing and ACH processing. We will now offer wire transfer software and are welcoming a strong group of customers which gives SSI an excellent start in this arena," said Stephens.

"Another important aspect of this acquisition is the ability to offer PC-based ACH processing software to go along with our IBM mainframe and midrange ACH systems. SSI was already a leader in providing ACH software and this acquisition further enhances our leadership position," said Stephens.

"SSI has an excellent reputation in the software industry," said Bill Fisher, chief operating officer at ACI. "We are confident SSI will provide a continued level of high quality support to the wire transfer and ACH product users."

The sale of these products is consistent with ACI's strategy in corporate financial services, which focuses on providing Tandem-based software.

AKRON, OHIO (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Roadway Express, Inc. announced today that continuing increases in fuel prices make it necessary for the motor carrier to increase its fuel surcharge from one-and-seven tenths (1.7) percent to two-and-two-tenths (2.2) percent. Subject to Interstate Commerce Commission review, the new rate will become effective Oct. 5, 1990.

Michael W. Wickham, president of Roadway Express, stated, "This surcharge is related solely to the recovery of our rising costs for fuel. We are emphasizing driver economy measures, and working with our customers to reduce fuel consumption. But, petroleum costs continue to escalate and continue to reduce our operating margins."

Wickham emphasized that Roadway is sensitive to the impact such increases have on customers. "This is why we will announce any fuel surcharge increase on a Friday, but not implement it until the Friday following its announcement," he said. Wickham further explained that Roadway will continue to monitor fuel prices and adjust the surcharge appropriately.

HAMILTON, BERMUDA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Challenger International, Ltd. (NASDAQ: CSTIF) reported a net profit of $441,000, or 9 cents a share, in the third quarter ended July 31, 1990 thereby reducing the year to date loss to $413,000, or 8 cents a share.

The company's operating unit, Savage Arms Inc., earned a profit of $144,000 over the quarter on sales of $4,442,000. Despite lower sales than originally forecast, Savage has been able to maintain prices and margins, which can be attributed to renewed marketing efforts and to the products' quality/price point. Savage's management is expecting a continuation of somewhat lower turnover in the last quarter of the year compared with the third quarter, and appropriate cost reductions have been initiated.

Income from discontinued operations includes a gain of $750,000 in recognition of a current payment due Challenger on the disposition of a fuel oil contract in Sept. 1987. A claim for a substantial sum for losses incurred through contamination at the now discontinued oil blending facility in Louisiana has been filed and is now under consideration by Lloyds underwriters.

Challenger's special restricted voting shares are traded on NASDAQ and the Toronto Stock Exchange (CTT). The Class A restricted voting shares are traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange (CTTA).

CHICAGO (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Whitman Corp. (NYSE: WH) today approved a plan of restructuring and reorganization designed to reduce costs, improve operating efficiency, and increase shareholder value.

The plan will include the following actions: -- Spin off Pet to the shareholders of Whitman Corp. Miles L. Marsh, currently president and chief operating officer of Whitman, will become chairman and CEO of Pet when it becomes a stand-alone company. The spin-off is subject to market conditions and receipt of a ruling by the Internal Revenue Service that such an action would be tax-free to the company and its shareholders.

-- Reduce after-tax costs by approximately $54 million on an annualized basis through plant consolidations, reductions of overhead expenses, and employment reduction. Approximately 1,000 jobs will be eliminated through attrition, retirements, and terminations. Consideration will be given to moving a substantially reduced Whitman headquarters staff to another, less expensive, Chicago-area location.

-- To facilitate the spin-off and the cost reduction program, take a special after-tax charge against third quarter earnings of $150 million. This one-time charge will produce a substantial net loss in Whitman's third quarter, and a net loss for the year.

The company also said that Whitman's per-share income from continuing operations for 1990, taking into account the effects of the restructuring charge, is expected to fall approximately 25 percent below last year. This shortfall results primarily from a weakness in earnings at Pet beginning at the first of the year, and at Hussman. Pet's operating income for 1990 is expected to be approximately 10 percent below last year. However, Pet's prospects for 1991 are for an improvement over those results.

Following the spin-off of Pet, Whitman will consist of three strong operating companies, each number one in its market.

BOSTON (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Attorney Wayne A. Budd announced the filing today of a complaint against a Holyoke, Mass. company for repeated violations of the federal Clean Water Act.

A complaint was filed in U.S. District Court in Springfield against Mastex Industries, Inc., a textile manufacturer in Holyoke. The complaint alleges that Mastex repeatedly violated federal law from at least 1981 to June 30, 1990 by discharging inadequately treated wastewater into the City of Holyoke wastewater treatment system. The complaint seeks penalties of up to $25,000 per day for each violation on or after Feb. 5, 1987 and $10,000 per day before that, and injunctive relief that would require Mastex to comply with the requirements of federal law.

Regulations promulgated under the Clean Water Act by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency prohibit industries such as Mastex who use a publicly owned pretreatment system such as the City of Holyoke's from discharging into that system wastewater with a pH level of lower than 5.0. Federal regulations also require industries to comply with pH limits established in a municipality's pretreatment program. The City of Holyoke has established local limits prohibiting discharges of wastewater with a pH lower than 5.5 or higher than 9.5. The complaint alleges that Mastex has repeatedly violated both the national standard for pH and the City of Holyoke standard for pH.

The case is being handled by Deputy Associate U.S. Attorney Suzanne E. Durrell of Budd's Civil Enforcement and Defense Bureau, and Diane Chabot of the Regional Counsel's Office of the Environmental Protection Agency.

SAN MATEO, CALIF. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Electronic Arts (NASDAQ: ERTS) today announced plans to team up with SONY for what it believes will be the largest promotion ever created for computer entertainment. It will feature leading products from both companies and will run from Oct. 1, 1990 to March 1 1991. The promotion, called "Save on SONY," will give customers the chance to purchase SONY personal electronics at very attractive prices.

The offer is as follows:

--Purchase 1 featured EA titles, receive a SONY Walkman for $15
--Purchase 2 featured EA titles, receive a SONY Watchman from $85
--Purchase 3 featured EA titles, receive a SONY Discman for $120

Electronic Arts hopes to double or triple unit sales of the featured titles in connection with the "Save on SONY" promotion. The promotion features ten IBM and eight Amiga Electronic Arts titles.

In total, over 3,000 software storefronts will participate in the five-month promotion. "Save on SONY" has been well-received by leading national retailers. Major chains such as Egghead Discount Software, Walden Software, Electronics Boutique, and Software Etc. have already committed to feature the promotion.

"We expect this to be one of the biggest promotions of the year," said Kirk Keys, director of personal products for Egghead Discount Software. "Electronic Arts is offering an impressive lineup of products for this promotion, plus the opportunity to own top-notch SONY items for low prices. It's a great match and we are enthused about it."

Electronics Boutique Vice President and General Merchandise Manager Jeff Griffiths is also encouraged about this promotion and believes it will increase sales. "We are very happy to support this promotion and feel it will definitely help our business in the fourth quarter," Griffiths said.

To redeem SONY gifts, customers can obtain discount coupons either in specially marked packages or at the point of purchase. Electronic Arts will handle all fulfillment of SONY products.

The ten featured Electronic Arts IBM titles are: Populous, LHX Attack Chopper, PGA(R) Tour Golf, Centurion: Defender of Rome, John Madden Football, Starflight 2, 688 Attack Sub, Lakers vs. Celtics & The NBA Playoffs, Stormovik: SU-25 Soviet Attack Fighter, and The Bard's Tale III: Thief of Fate.

The eight featured Electronic Arts Amiga titles are: DeluxePaint III, DeluxeVideo III, Populous, 688 Attack Sub, Budokan, Powermonger, The Immortal, and Chuck Yeager's Advanced Flight Trainer 2.0.

The offer is good in the United States and Canada. Electronic Arts' mission is to be a leader in providing entertainment software for the mass market.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Chemical Company (NYSE: AN), Exxon (NYSE: XON) Chemical Company, and China American Petrochemical Company (CAPCO) today announced that they have signed a letter of intent to study the feasibility of an aromatics complex in Singapore, which would include a 350,000-ton-per-year paraxylene plant.

The proposed plant would be located next to the ESSO Oil refinery, the source of feedstock for the complex. Estimated total project investment is more than $300 million.

Paraxylene is used primarily in the production of purified terephthalic acid (PTA), the preferred raw material for making polyester fiber, film, and container resin.

Amoco is the world's leading producer of PTA, with wholly owned production facilities in the United States and Europe.

Amoco also participates in PTA joint ventures in Latin America and the Far East, including CAPCO, which is a Taiwanese venture with China Petroleum Company and China Holding Company. Amoco's investment program in the Far East includes planned PTA capacity increases in the People's Republic of China and Indonesia, and other locations.

Paraxylene from the proposed aromatics project will be used, in part, to support these Far East Ventures, with CAPCO and Amoco taking most of the product. Exxon Chemical also will take volumes to support its large merchant sales position in the region.

"With a large and growing presence in the Asia-Pacific (PTA) market, the proposed joint venture represents an excellent opportunity to position Amoco to capitalize on emerging investment opportunities in this important market," said Kevin Lynch, president of Amoco Chemicals Far East Limited.

"As Asia-Pacific's largest single producer of PTA, the security of our feedstock supply would be improved through this investment," said Jerome S.N. Hu, president of CAPCO.

Joseph Walker, vice president of major ventures for Exxon Chemical in Asia-Pacific, added, "this strategic alliance would support Exxon Chemical's plans to expand our manufacturing presence in Asia Pacific while enhancing our position as a leading global paraxylene supplier.

"All three companies believe that Singapore, with its favorable business environment and anticipated economic incentives, provides an ideal location for this project.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Powell Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: POWL) reported that at a regularly scheduled meeting of its board of directors held today, the board rejected all offers received to purchase its wholly-owned subsidiary, Powell-Process Systems Inc. (PSI). According to Thomas W. Powell chairman and CEO of Powell Industries Inc., "Although we received several bona fide purchase offers, none of those offers reflected the positive turn-around which we have been able to achieve in PSI operations during the past year. From a significant pre-tax loss in fiscal 1989, PSI is now operating slightly above break even and we are confident further significant improvements can be made. For this reason, we are withdrawing it from the market and will shortly announce a reorganization of the management of PSI, which should further enhance its prospects for future success."

In the third quarter of fiscal 1989, a formal plan for the sale of PSI was adopted and this business segment has subsequently been accounted for as "Discontinued Operations." The decision not to sell the subsidiary will require a restatement of prior earnings to eliminate the "discontinued" designation. However, according to J.F. Ahart, vice president and CFO, "the effect of the restatement on current fiscal year results will not be material, in fact, quite insignificant."

Powell-Process Systems Inc. designs, manufactures and sells microprocessor-based distributed control equipment under the trade name MICON. MICON Systems are used for control of boilers, compressors, columns and other industrial processes.

TAMPA, FL (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Belmac Corporation (AMEX: BLM) today reported its financial results for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

"In the last year, Belmac Corporation has set the stage for a decade of profitable global marketing of Alphanon (R), its new hemorrhoidal treatment drug," said Dr. Jean-Francois Rossignol, chairman and CEO.

Belmac posted a net loss of $2,492,405 for fiscal 1990, or 51 cents per share, compared to a net loss of $2,478,794, or 52 cents a share, in fiscal 1989. Dr. Rossignol pointed out that at least $263,000 of the FY 1990 loss was directly related to non-recurring payments of accrued retirement and severance benefits to former Belmac executives, and employees.

Dr. Rossignol emphasized that the company's success in raising additional funds privately, a recent capital restructuring, and reductions in operating expenses allowed Belmac to end the year with working capital of $1,197,591 -- almost double the $659,386 June 30, 1989 working capital. The company's current ratio was 3.8 to 1, and shareholder's equity was $1,773,472, an increase of $1,397,355 when compared to shareholder's equity of $376,117 at June 30, 1989.

Belmac recently signed a distribution agreement for its Alphanon (R) over-the-counter hemorrhoidal treatment drug with the Al Kamali Trading Corporation of Dubai, United Arab Emirates. The agreement covers the Middle East, East Africa and Indian Subcontinent. Belmac's first commercial shipments of Alphanon (R) to Dubai will be made from France.

ELGIN, ILL. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Safety-Kleen Corp. (NYSE: SK) today announced that it has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission regarding a proposed public offering of 3,000,000 shares of common stock. 2,400,000 shares are being offered for sale in the U.S. by the U.S. Underwriters and 600,000 shares are being offered for sale outside the U.S. by the International Underwriters in a concurrent offering. William Blair & Company and Salomon Brothers Inc. will co-manage the underwriting group.

The company intends to use a portion of the net proceeds from the offering to repay in full the company's borrowings under its bank lines of credit. The remaining proceeds will be used for acquisitions and for general corporate purposes.

The company also announced that earlier today it entered into a definitive agreement to acquire Orm Bergold Chemie, Germany's largest solvent recycler, for approximately $34 million. The company expects the closing of this acquisition to occur in January 1991. The acquisition agreement is an important step toward implementing a decision by Safety- Kleen to expand its business in Europe. Consistent with this decision, on Aug. 29, 1990, Safety-Kleen acquired, for approximately $4 million, the company which had operated its basic parts cleaner service business in Germany under license from Safety-Kleen.

Safety-Kleen Corp. is the world's largest provider of parts cleaner services and related solvent recycling. The company also collects a variety of hazardous and quasi-hazardous liquid wastes from automotive repair outlets, industrial plants, dry cleaners and other waste generators. The fluids are recycled or re-refined for reuse or blended into fuels for use in industrial furnaces or cement kilns.

NEW BRIGHTON, MINN. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Dotronix, Inc. (NASDAQ: DOTX) today announced results for fiscal 1990, ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues for the year were $20,504,939, compared to $31,796,808 the year before. Net earnings were a loss of $(2,835,356) or $(.89) a share, compared with $(573,606), or $(.18) a share a year earlier.

Fourth quarter revenues were $4,878,284 versus $7,010,745 for the same quarter a year earlier. Net earnings were a loss of $(1,129,965), or $(.36) a share, versus $(338,482), or $(.10) a share, for the same quarter a year ago.

President William S. Sadler said decreased revenues continue to reflect reduction in demand and increased competition for financial market and desktop publishing products. However, he stated Dotronix, Inc. backlog is $10,000,000 and in the last three months has shown a slight increasing trend as the new products are being introduced.

During the past year the company has concentrated its product development on other markets. Dotronix large screen color displays for video walls and transportation industry were introduced in January 1990 and Dotronix instrumentation and large screen high-resolution displays will be available for shipment during the second quarter of 1991.

Dotronix believes that the markets for CRT displays and closed- circuit video monitors that it designs and manufactures is extensive and diverse. Applications include desk-top publishing, airline flight information, medical imaging/diagnostics, test and measurement instruments, CAD/CAM/CAE and graphics, industrial process control, bank/brokerage terminals, and video display walls.

Dotronix, Inc. has facilities in Minnesota, Colorado, Wisconsin and Taiwan. The company's common stock is traded over-the-counter under the NASDAQ symbol DOTX and is listed on the NASDAQ National Market System.

POMPANO BEACH, FLA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Agri-Dade, Ltd. -- a majority-owned subsidiary of Argipost, Inc. -- today announced it has received an extension of its construction loan to October 31, 1990. The lenders have agreed to accept a note in lieu of cash payment of the interest accruing during the months of September and October, 1990. The terms of this extension are identical to those of the previous extensions.

The Company is continuing its efforts to raise additional funds to finance the completion of its Dade County composting facility, modify the post-composting portion of the processing equipment, and establish markets for its end-product Agrisoil. The Company has received an extension until December 31, 1990, of the inducement to issue industrial revenue bonds from the Dade County Industrial Development Authority. The Company is also negotiating to obtain a letter of credit to secure the bond issue. There can be no assurance these efforts can be completed by October 31 or that the construction lenders will agree to further extend the construction loan.

ORLANDO, FLA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - J. William Brandner has resigned his positions at Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, Inc. (NYSE: HBJ) to pursue other ventures. He was a director, vice chairman and chief operating officer of the company and chairman of HBJ's insurance companies.

Robert E. Evanson, who is an executive vice president and chief financial officer of HBJ, will assume additional duties as chairman of the insurance companies. Evanson, 53, also is a director of the company. The president of the insurance companies, Gerrit J. Bol, will report to Evanson.

Gary J. Arnold, who is senior vice president and corporate secretary, will also assume additional duties, including oversight of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Legal and Professional Publications, Inc., a subsidiary that conducts bar review and accounting accreditation courses. Arnold will also be responsible for the management of HBJ's various office facilities.

Brandner's duties as chief operating officer will be assumed by Peter Jovanovich, president and chief executive officer of HBJ.

"Bill Brandner has served HBJ ably for many years," said Jovanovich. "We are grateful for his service. We will miss his talents, but we wish him the best."

Eliminating the position of chief operating officer is expected to help the company's cost-cutting efforts without hampering business operations. "I am confident that with Bob Evanson and Gary Bol's leadership the insurance companies will continue to be strong performers for HBJ," said Jovanovich.

Harcourt Brace Jovanovich publishes general books, school and college textbooks, and psychological tests, as well as medical and scientific books and journals.

TAMPA, FLA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - First Florida Banks, Inc. (NASDAQ: FFBK) announced today that its third quarter earnings will reflect a $22 million provision to the loan loss reserve, compared to a $7 million provision in the second quarter of 1990.

The company's anticipated earnings for the third quarter of 1990 will be approximately $3 million or $.21 per share as compared to $13.2 million, or $.83 per share, in the third quarter of 1989.

First Florida Chairman A. Bronson Thayer said, "We continue to see favorable trends in operating revenues in the third quarter. First Florida will show increases in net interest income and non-interest income over the third quarter of 1989." Net interest income will be 5 percent higher than for the same period last year and non-interest income will increase by approximately 32 percent, he added.

First Florida's capital ratios also remain strong. At the end of the third quarter it is estimated that the equity to asset ratio will be 7.55 percent. The estimated primary and total capital ratios at Sept. 30, 1990 will be 8.52 percent and 8.53 percent, respectively.

The increased provision to the loan loss reserve will be made as a result of a rise in non-performing assets as well as an increase in net loan losses during the quarter. It is anticipated that non-performing assets will reach approximately $74 million at the end of the third quarter, or approximately 1.9 percent of net loans plus other real estate, compared with $65 million at June 30, 1990. Of total non-performing assets at Sept. 30, 1990, it is estimated that non-performing loans will total approximately $58 million. Of this amount, it is estimated that approximately 58 percent will be real estate loans, 34 percent will be commercial loans, and 8 percent will be consumer loans.

Net charge-offs are anticipated to be approximately $22 million in the third quarter of 1990 compared with $4 million for the second quarter of 1990. Of this total, consumer loan charge-offs will be approximately $8 million, charge-offs of commercial loans will be approximately $13 million, and real estate loan charge-offs will be approximately $1 million. Based on these anticipated charge-offs, the annualized ratio of charge-offs to average net loans for consumer loans in the third quarter and for the year to date will be 3.17 percent and 1.86 percent, respectively. For commercial loans these ratios for the quarter and for the year to date will be 5.59 percent and 2.39 percent, respectively. For real estate loans, these ratios for both the quarter and for the year to date will be .21 percent.

Thayer further stated that the increased provision for the quarter replenishes the loan loss reserve for charged off loans, primarily installment and commercial loans. "Charge-offs of installment loans this quarter will be higher than in prior periods due in part to the consolidation of our loan systems this quarter," he said. Thayer added that continued softening of the Florida economy precipitated the increase in commercial loan charge-offs as well as the increase in non-performing assets.

First Florida Banks, Inc., a Tampa-based company with $5.5 billion in assets, operates 154 banking offices along Florida's West Coast from Pensacola to Naples/Marco Island and across the central Florida corridor to the Atlantic Coast.

TAMPA, FLA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - First Florida Banks, Inc. (NASDAQ: FFBK) announced today that its third quarter earnings will reflect a $22 million provision to the loan loss reserve, compared to a $7 million provision in the second quarter of 1990.

The company's anticipated earnings for the third quarter of 1990 will be approximately $3 million or $.21 per share as compared to $13.2 million, or $.83 per share, in the third quarter of 1989.

First Florida Chairman A. Bronson Thayer said, "We continue to see favorable trends in operating revenues in the third quarter. "Charge-offs of installment loans this quarter will be higher than in prior periods due in part to the consolidation of our loan systems this quarter," he said. Thayer added that continued softening of the Florida economy precipitated the increase in commercial loan charge-offs as well as the increase in non-performing assets.

"We are taking steps to protect our financial standing because of the concerns we have relative to both the state and national economy. Responding to these volatile conditions, our loan quality review committee has strengthened our credit review process by rigorously monitoring our loan portfolio on a continuous basis. We will continue our commitment to provide for the credit needs of the communities we serve without sacrificing the quality of our loan portfolio," Thayer said.

It is anticipated that First Florida's total loans outstanding as of Sept. 30, 1990 will be approximately $3.9 billion. Of this total, commercial loans will make up approximately 24 percent of the total, consumer loans will be 26 percent, residential real estate loans will be 17 percent, construction loans will be 13 percent and commercial real estate loans will be 20 percent of the total.

The reserve for possible loan losses is expected to be approximately $57 million at Sept. 30, 1990 and will provide a coverage ratio of reserve for possible loan losses to non-performing loans of 98 percent and a ratio of 77 percent of non-performing assets. After giving effect to the additional provision and anticipated net loan losses, it is anticipated that the ratio of the reserve for possible loan losses to toal loans plus other real estate will be approximately 1.45 percent at Sept. 30, 1990.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - BMR Financial Group Inc. (NASDAQ: BMRG) today announced that it would add to its reserves for possible loan losses and uncollectible receivables in the third quarter.

These additions to reserves and other third quarter charges will result in an anticipated loss in excess of $1.3 million, or 46 cents per share, for the quarter. Losses for the first nine months of 1990 are expected to be approximately $400,000, or 14 cents per share.

The company set aside a reserve of $1.1 million in the third quarter in the consulting division for potentially uncollectible revenues that were previously recognized. These revenues are largely related to one major contract now being disputed. The company's member banks will record approximately $700,000 in provision for loan losses in the third quarter, as a result of the company's assessment of the uncertain economic environment in the company's markets. Loan loss provision in the third quarter of 1989 totaled $142,000, while provision for the 12 months of 1989 totaled $1,009,000.

Approximately $350,000 in expenses related to the termination of the company's agreement to acquire First Chattanooga Financial Corp. was recorded in the third quarter. Third quarter results will reflect approximately $100,000 in severance costs related to staff reductions at both the consulting company and the parent company.

The common stock of BMR Financial Group is traded in the Over-the-Counter market and is quoted on the NASDAQ National Market List under the symbol "BMRG."

nation's leading home building and real estate companies, today reported revenues and earnings for the third quarter of its fiscal year and for the nine months ended Aug. 31, 1990.

Leonard Miller, chairman of the board and president, announced earnings of $3,254,000 ($.32 per share) on revenues of $87,648,000 for the third quarter, compared with earnings of $7,010,000 ($.70 per share) on revenues of $110,608,000 for the third quarter of fiscal 1989.

For the nine-month period, Lennar's revenues were $255,611,000, compared with $300,781,000 for the first nine months of fiscal 1989. Nine-month earnings were $10,263,000 ($1.02 per share), compared with earnings of $19,225,000 ($1.92 per share) for the first nine months of fiscal 1989.

The company delivered 776 homes during the third quarter of 1990, compared with 1,070 deliveries during the same period of 1989. Deliveries for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 totaled 2,213 homes, compared with 2,898 homes delivered in the first nine months last year. At Aug. 31, 1990, Lennar had approximately $126 million in backlog of home sales for future delivery, as compared to $190 million at Aug 31, 1989. These dollar amounts represent a 1,268 backlog of home sales as of Aug. 31, 1990, as compared to a backlog of 2,136 a year earlier.

Miller stated that Lennar's third quarter 1990 results reflect the continued softening of the housing market across the country. He added that despite the weaker economic environment, Lennar's financial strength places it in an excellent position to capitalize on future opportunities.

MCLEAN, VA. (SEPT. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) announced today that Japan Air Lines has purchased the VITAL VII MULTIVIEW (asterisk) visual system for its Beech C90 KingAir aircraft simulator.

VITAL VII is the most advanced in the line of computer generated visual systems designed and built by McDonnell Douglas Electronics Systems Co.

VITAL VII is a full color, full daylight, dusk and night system. Integrated on an aircraft training simulator, it offers pilots the optimal visual training environment. VITAL VII meets Federal Aviation Administration Phase III, UK Civil Aviation Authority Level 4, and Australian Civil Aviation Authority Level 5 approval standards.

VITAL VII simulates all aspects of flying, including airport runway and taxiway lighting hangars, ground support equipment and ground traffic hazards. The system also provides complete training under a full range of weather and visibility conditions. Custom scene generation is enhanced with VITAL VII's photo texture feature. Standard to the VITAL VII, this feature digitizes a photograph and includes it in the system's database, replicating a location and its distinguishing characteristics.

VITAL VII and its display systems can be configured to meet specific customer training needs. Japan Air Lines has selected a VITAL system that will have three video channels, which produce pictures for display on a MULTIVIEW, 150 degree field-of-view, optical display system with high resolution, calligraphic lightpoints, and texture. The result is a wide-angle, cross-cockpit display of computer generated images that creates a scene very close to the real environment. Japan Air Lines will use the simulator for ab initio pilot training. Ab initio refers to new pilots who have no previous flying experience. The system will be installed at the Japan Air Lines Napa Valley Training Center in California.

McDonnell Douglas will integrate the VITAL VII system with a simulator to be built by Flight Safety International, in Tulsa, Okla. The system is scheduled for delivery fourth quarter 1991.

GREENVILLE, S.C. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Beverage Properties, Inc. announced today that it has acquired Nehi-Royal Crown Bottling Company, Inc. of Greenville, S.C.

Cecil L. Duffie, Jr., Chairman of Beverage Properties, Inc.'s board of directors, said the acquisition is part of a long-term strategy for building a network of independent bottlers.

"This acquisition establishes our presence in upstate South Carolina and North Georgia and provides leverage for future acquisitions," Duffie said. "We believe that the outlook for independent bottlers is bright when economies of scale can be accomplished through networking and consolidation."

Nehi-Royal Crown Bottling Company, Inc. bottles and distributes Royal Crown, Diet Rite, Nehi, Schweppes, Hires, Sundrop and Cheerwine soft drinks in a 15-county area of upstate South Carolina and eastern Georgia. The company's bottling operation in Greenville is one of the 5 largest volume Royal Crown bottling plants in the United States. The company was formed in 1950 by Laurens C. Nicholson, T.L. Wilson and the late Chester E. Hatch. Nicholson has served as the company's president since its founding and is a director of the South Carolina Soft Drink Bottlers Association and the National Royal Crown Bottlers Association. Mr. Nicholson is well known as an innovator in the soft drink business. He was instrumental in the development and introduction of Diet Rite Cola, the original diet cola, which had its national debut in Greenville, South Carolina.

Duffie said Beverage Properties, Inc. was established for the purpose of acquiring and managing beverage bottling and distribution.

The company was formed by Frank S. Collins and P. Thomas Compton of Greenville along with Cecil L. Duffie, Jr., and Signe C. Cann of Duffie & Company and Noro-Moseley Partners of Atlanta, Georgia. Henry D. Jacobs, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of One Price Clothing Stores, will also be a shareholder and a member of the board of directors.

Duffie & Company, a Greenville-based corporate finance firm, negotiated the purchase and arranged the equity and debt capital. First Union National Bank of South Carolina is the company's lender.

Noro-Moseley Partners (NMP) is an Atlanta-based private investment firm with committed capital of more than $100 million. NMP is the largest venture capital organization based in the Southeast and since its formation in 1983 has invested more than $45 million in private companies, representing the most active private company investment progam in the Southeast. Charles D. Moseley, Jr. managing partner of Noro-Moseley, will serve on Beverage Properties, Inc.'s board of directors.

Frank S. Collins will serve as president of Nehi-Royal Crown Bottling Company, Inc., following its acquisition by Beverage Properties, Inc. Collins has been employed by the company for 17 years and currently is its general manager. P. Thomas Compton will serve as vice president of operation of Nehi-Royal Crown Bottling Company, Inc. Compton spent 15 years in the soft drink bottling business, most recently as vice president of CCBC of Western Carolinas, Inc. Both Collins and Compton will also serve as officers and directors of Beverage Properties, Inc. and Signe C. Cann will serve as treasurer and chief financial officer. Duffie will serve as chief executive officer and chairman of the board of directors of Beverage Properties, Inc.

ELKIN, N.C. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - At its Annual Vendor Outing last week in Elkin, N.C., Brendle's (NASDAQ-NMS: BRDL) handed out several awards for its top vendors of this past year.

Various criteria, including volume, percent increases in volume, low percentages of defectives, and return on investment were used to come up with the final winners.

The 1990 Resource of the Year winners in the following categories were: Olympus Corporation for Photo; Thomson Consumer Electronics (G.E.) for Electronics; Royal Appliance Manufacturing Company for Appliances; American Tourister for Luggage/Gifts; Huffy Corporation for Toys and Juvenile; Plantation Patterns for Seasonal; Corning for Housewares; and Citizen Watch Company for Watches.

Also, the 1990 Outstanding Resource of the Year awards were given in the Top General Merchandise category to Diversified Products, and in the Jewelry category to D. Chabbott, Inc.

Another new award given at this year's outing was that of 1990 Rookie of the Year which went to the Electrolux Corporation. This award is given to the top performing new vendor for Brendle's over the past years.

The representatives of these companies were awarded special edition prints from noted artist, Bruce Cunningham, of the American chestnut tree and also prints from the local artist, John Furches, which depict the peaceful, rural setting, one which is typical of what was once the home of the American chestnut tree.

The American chestnut tree will become symbolic of Brendle's in the coming year as we embark upon a program to help rescue this invaluable tree from extinction. Once abundant, the American chestnut has almost disappeared from forests, the victim of a destructive fungus. No other native tree matched its usefulness or place in American culture. Through current research this handsome tree, whose wood was so useful for heavy construction, paneling, furniture, musical instruments, pulpwood, fuel, and even food, has an excellent chance of returning.

Brendle's Inc., a discount department store headquartered in Elkin, N.C., will have 59 stores operating this fall throughout North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, and Georgia.

Brendle's is traded on the over the counter market under the symbol of BRDL.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Flight attendants employed by WestAir (United Express), represented by the Association of Flight Attendants (AFA), reached a tentative agreement on a first-time contract with the company today. The agreement was reached after almost 21 months of negotiations, the AFA said.

Negotiations between the WestAir flight attendants and management began on Jan. 9, 1989. The flight attendants voted to be represented by AFA on May 23 1988.

The tentative agreement includes substantial pay and work rule improvements over the life of the three-year contract. Details of the agreement are being withheld pending ratification by the membership. The flight attendants will vote on the agreement by confidential mail ballots which will be counted in early November.

"This agreement on a first-time contract is a career milestone for the WestAir flight attendants," said Susan Bianchi-Sand, AFA national president. "These are front-line workers, responsible for passenger safety, and the work rule and pay improvements in this contract are well-deserved and long overdue."

WestAir employs 185 flight attendants and has its headquarters in Fresno, Calif., with additional flight attendant bases located in Bakersfield and Sacramento, Calif.

The Association of Flight Attendants, AFL-CIO, represents 30,000 flight attendants on 18 airlines and is the largest flight attendant union in the world.

SUMMIT, N.J. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of the Summit Bancorporation (NASDAQ: SUBN) today approved a special provision for loan losses of $60 million for the third quarter of 1990. After this action, Summit's allowance for loan losses will be nearly $74 million or 2.8 percent of total loans, 70 percent of nonperforming loans and 64 percent of nonperforming assets. Third quarter net charge-offs are anticipated to be approximately $30 million and nonperforming assets are expected to be approximately $114 million, or 4.3 percent of total loans, at Sept. 30, 1990.

Consistent with Summit's attempt to identify problem loans at an early stage, approximately 60 percent of the loans added to the nonperforming category during the third quarter or approximately 40 percent of total nonperforming assets are either still current or less than 90 days past due. These so called "performing" nonperforming loans have been so categorized because of their potential to become more than 90 days delinquent. Previous nonperforming loan totals have not included similar percentages of performing loans. The large majority of Summit's charge-offs and nonperforming loans are related to real estate lending in New Jersey.

At June 30, Summit reported nonperforming assets of $62 million, and the allowance for loan losses stood at $42 million or 1.59 percent of total loans, 80 percent of nonperforming loans and 68 percent of nonperforming assets.

When reporting its second quarter results, Summit mentioned the likelihood of continued increases in nonperforming loans during the third quarter as a result of the continued weakness in New Jersey's economy and the decline in the state's real estate market. However, the magnitude of the increases in nonperforming loans and charge-offs was greater than anticipated. Similarly, although Summit has taken this action based on the present situation and current expectations, there can be no assurance that there will not be further deterioration in the future.

As a consequence of the special provision, it is anticipated that Summit will experience a loss of approximately $33 million for the third quarter and a loss of approximately $14 million for the first nine months. Summit's actual results for the third quarter and the first nine months will be available in mid-October. Summit had earned $19.1 million for the first six months of 1990. It is anticipated that Summit will return to profitability in the fourth quarter, but will experience a loss for the entire year.

The board of directors also declared Summit's regular cash dividend of $0.20 per share on its common stock payable Dec. 15 to shareholders of record Dec. 1 1990. This makes the 68th consecutive quarterly common stock dividend paid to Summit's shareholders since Summit started operations as a bank holding company in 1974. The board also declared a cash dividend of $0.4156 per share on its adjustable rate preferred stock, also payable Dec. 15 to shareholders of record Dec. 1.

The Summit Bancorporation, which is headquartered in Summit, N.J., is a $3.7 billion financial services organization operating 80 banking offices throughout 11 New Jersey counties.

WICHITA, KS (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE) today asked the United States District Court in Kansas City, Missouri, to issue a summary judgment against Kansas City Power and Light Company (NYSE: KLT) finding that the KCPL unsolicited tender offer for KG&E stock violates the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

KG&E claims that the KCPL tender offer is unlawful under the Holding Company Act which makes it illegal for any company to acquire five percent or more of the voting securities of one public utility without prior approval by the Securities and Exchange Commission if that company already owns five percent or more of the voting securities of another public utility. KCPL owns 47 percent of Wolf Creek Nuclear Operating Corporation, a public utility.

Since KCPL has not sought SEC approval or conditioned its offer on obtaining SEC approval, KG&E contends its tender offer is unlawful.

KG&E also asked the federal court to request the SEC to file a friend of the court brief on whether the KCPL tender offer violates the Holding Company Act.

PHILADELPHIA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Leading energy project developer O'Brien Energy Systems (AMEX: OBS) today reported results for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

Sales increased to a record $37,511,180 in fiscal 1990, up from $27,803,043 in fiscal 1989, and the company's asset base rose to $216 million from $174 million last year. As projected, O'Brien reported a loss for the year of $1,420,111, or 11 cents per share, compared with last year's loss of $2,983,139, or 29 cents per share.

Sales for the fourth quarter rose to $8,332,000, from $7,470,000 for the comparable year-ago period. Fourth-quarter net loss was $934,000, or 7 cents per share, compared with net income of $46,000, or less than 1 cents per share for the like quarter last year.

"Although our overall business made significant gains in fiscal 1990, we did not have any benefit from operations of the wholly owned, $54 million Newark Boxboard project as a result of construction delays," said Joel Cooperman, chief financial officer.

"Now that the Newark project has begun its acceptance testing phase, and the $102 million Parlin project gets nearer to completion, we expect growing profitability after the first quarter in this fiscal year," Cooperman said.

PHILADELPHIA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Union leaders representing approximately 25,000 Acme Markets Inc. employees met in Philadelphia yesterday to formulate plans to protect the contracts and job security of their membership.

The meeting was called by Gary Duckett, international vice president of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union (UFCW), and Wendell W. Young III, president of the UFCW, Local 1776, in response to the notice by the American Stores Co. (NYSE: ASC) that they have authorized the sale of Acme Markets Inc. which operated 275 supermarkets in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, New York and Virginia.

At the all-day meeting, Local UFCW, Teamster and Bakery Workers Unions elected a committee to pursue the goals of the group. Young was elected chairman. Co-chairman is Tom Russow, president of UFCW Baltimore Local 27. Other committee members are Leo Cinaglia, president of Camden, N.J.,

UFCW Local 56, Vincent DeVito, president of North Jersey UFCW Local 1245, Joe Rauscher, president of the Bakery Workers Local 6, and John Morris, Teamster Union Joint Council president.

The group listened to an economic analysis of the Acme Stores prepared by Malon Wilkus, the president of American Capital Strategies of Bethesda, Md., and Robert Daum of Prudential-Bache Securities. Steven Hester, a partner in the Washington, D.C., law firm of Arnold and Porter, discussed the legal and economic benefits of an employee buy-out of Acme through an Employee Stock Option Program (ESOP).

The group decided to call for a meeting with Samuel Skaggs, chairman of the board of the Salt Lake City-based American Stores Co., and Jonathan L. Scott, president and chief executive officer of American Stores. In addition, the group asked the American Capital Strategies firm to advise the locals representing the Acme Stores on strategies to maximize the influence of the unions on the outcome of the potential sale of the Acme Division, including the potential for an employee buy-out of Acme.

The American Stores has retained Wall Street-based Lehman Brothers to act as the exclusive agent in soliciting bids for Acme.

In response to a request by Young to Gov. Robert Casey, representatives of the Pennsylvania Economic Development Financing Authority of the Department of Commerce participated in the meeting.

Local leaders from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York will request the same assistance from their state governors.

KING OF PRUSSIA, PA. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern TeleLogic Corp. (ETC) has received $7.5 million in new investment capital from Alta Telecom Inc., a U.S.-based subsidiary of Telus Corp. of Canada.

Gary E. Lasher, president of Eastern TeleLogic, said the new capital would be used for further expansion of the company's regional fiber optic telecommunications system, and for ongoing operations.

Eastern TeleLogic, headquartered in King of Prussia, has designed and installed a 108-mile fiber optic telecommunications network which extends from the Route 202 Technology Corridor through the northern suburbs of Fort Washington, Willow Grove and Blue Bell, Pa., to Center City Philadelphia, with spurs connecting Malvern, Pa., in the west and Camden, N.J., in the east.

More than 200 major office buildings in the region have been connected to the ETC Network, providing their tenants with reduced cost, high quality interconnection to national long distance carriers such as AT&T, MCI and Sprint for voice, data and video transmission capabilities.

The Eastern TeleLogic network also offers interconnection diversity as protection for companies whose operations are heavily dependent on telecommunications services, and for whom service interruptions could be disastrous.

Telus Corp. also owns AGT which operates the telephone company in the Province of Alberta, Canada. The U.S.-based subsidiary, Alta Telecom Inc., is an operations and construction firm specializing in engineering, design and implementation of telecommunications systems throughout the United States.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The Boeing Co. (NYSE: BA) and its subcontractor team has been awarded a one-year, $15 million contract by the U.S. Army Reserve Component to develop and demonstrate a portion of the Reserve Component Automation System (RCAS), the company said today. Through performance of this initial one-year contract, the Boeing team will be competing for a final contract aimed at enhancing the readiness and mobilization capabilities of the Army National Guard and Army Reserve. The full contract is expected to be awarded at the conclusion of the one-year competitive demonstration period.

Members of the Boeing team are: Atlantic Research Corp. Professional Services Group, Rockville, Md.; CONTEL Federal Systems, Chantilly, Va.; Digicon Corp., Bethesda, Md.; General Research Corporation, Vienna, Va.; Innovative Logistics Technologies, McLean, Va.; The Presidio Corp., Suitland, Md.; Science Applications International Corp., or SAIC, McLean, Va.; and Titan Applications, Vienna, Va.

The complete RCAS program calls for the winning contractor to provide overall program management over the 12-year life cycle of the program, including integrated logistics support and operations, systems engineering, and procurement of commercial off-the-shelf software and hardware. In addition to supporting the operational user at the unit level, RCAS will provide automated decision support tools for the Reserve Component chain of command. The system will use state-of-the-art office automation, telecommunications, distributed databases and distributed processing capabilities to provide timely and accurate information for administration, as well as planning, preparation and execution of the Reserve Component forces mobilization mission.

RCAS will allow the Army to mobilize the Reserve Component through electronic notification and control. In peacetime, the system will improve routine operational and administrative tasks, such as payroll, training, inventory and operational unit readiness reporting.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Airlines (AMEX: CTA) today announced its customer contingency plans should automatic spending cuts be imposed by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction law.

"While we hope that the issue is resolved before Monday, or that flight controllers are declared exempt from the cuts, we are prepared to take care of our customers," said Continental's vice president of airport and reservations services, Thomas Kalil.

Continental said it will provide hotels, meals and ground transportation for customers stranded at a point other than their origin or destination.

Continental will allow voluntary changes to a customer's reservation, including restricted tickets, once a service disruption affecting the scheduled itinerary occurs.

Refunds will be offered in cases where a service disruption affects the scheduled itinerary.

Continental will also waive restrictions and penalties for customers wanting to re-book on a later date, if their original itinerary is disrupted.

"This decision affirms Continental's renewed commitment to providing our customers with the best service, even in extenuating circumstances like this," said Kalil.

In the last 18 months nearly 25,000 Continental employees have completed an intensive 2-day seminar at its Quality Service Institute.

Continental operates nearly 1,400 daily departures worldwide and serves 143 airports, 90 of them in the United States.

MENLO PARK, CA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Bruce L. Davis, chairman and CEO of Mediagenic (NASDAQ: MGNC) today announced that the company has reached an agreement with Philips Consumer Electronics Company (PCEC), providing for an 18-month postponement in payment of the patent infringement damages awarded earlier this year.

PCEC, a division of North American Philips Corp., and successors to the Magnavox Company, reached an agreement with Mediagenic earlier this year to provide for long term payment on patent infringement damages of $6.6 million awarded in March. The agreement called for monthly payments of $150,000 from July 1990 to Dec. 1993, with a balloon payment on Dec. 31, 1993.

The agreement to defer commencement of monthly payments until Jan. 1, 1992 provides that Mediagenic will make monthly payments during the deferral period only if it has a cumulative positive cash flow from operations reduced by repayment of bank debt.. Under such circumstances, the company will make payments equal to one-third of this cash flow up to $150,000 per month. In consideration for the deferral, Philips will be issued warrants to purchase 500,000 shares of Mediagenic common stock and has the right to convert up to 30 percent of the debt into Mediagenic common stock, both at $2 per share. In the event that Mediagenic sells its subsidiary, ZSoft Corp., Philips would be entitled to a payment against principal of 10 percent of the net sale proceeds or $250,000, whichever is larger.

"Mediagenic has suffered a great deal during the past six months under the weight of the financial burden imposed by the patent damages judgement. The deferral of monthly payments on the damages until 1992 will give us an opportunity to rehabilitate the business," said Davis.

Headquartered in Menlo Park, Mediagenic is an international publisher of entertainment and graphics software for personal computers and Nintendo video game systems. The company publishes its cartridge, floppy-disk and CD-ROM titles under the Activision, Infocom and ZSoft brands and serves as an exclusive distributor for Absolute Entertainment and Interplay Productions.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Pan Pacific Petroleum Inc. has announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Enim Oil Company Ltd. ("Enim"), has obtained a loan facility of up to $5,000,000 U.S. from Premier Energy Equipment Supplies and Services Co. Ltd. ("Premier") of Hong Kong. The loan is repayable by no later than Aug. 15, 1991 and bears interest at the rate of 1.75 percent per annum above SIBOR. An arrangement fee of $37,500 U.S. has been paid to Premier in connection with the loan. The proceeds from the loan are to be used to finance the development of the Harimau field in Indonesia.

Pan Pacific has guaranteed repayment of the loan. As part of its guarantee Pan Pacific has agreed that, if and only if Enim should default under the loan Premier may elect to convert all or a portion of the amount owing to Premier into common shares of Pan Pacific at the rate of one share for every $8.25 Cdn. of liability, up to a maximum of 700,000 common shares. The exercise of this conversion privilege by Premier is subject to the approval of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The Harimau No. 6 is now drilling below 7,000 feet and is expected to reach total depth by Monday, Oct. 1. Structurally, this well is about 140 feet high to the nearby Harimau No. 4, which was tested in July at the rate of 3,931 barrels of oil per day from the Batu Raja formation.

The company is prepared to proceed with the pipeline connections for both oil and gas as soon as Pertamina approves the plan of development. It will take about six weeks to obtain delivery and to put in operation the pipelines, tanks and associated equipment; possible delay items could be suitable storage tanks, which cannot be ordered for delivery until approval is obtained.

The $5,000,000 U.S. financing mentioned above will help bridge the Company's funding needs until commencement of production.

RICHMOND, VA (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Crestar Financial Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: CRFC) announced today the expansion of its Richmond area banking network through the acquisition of two local thrift institutions previously under Federal Government management.

Specifically, Crestar was selected by the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to assume the deposits and purchase selected assets of the Season Federal Savings Bank and the Security Federal Savings Association.

The combined 13 branches of the two former institutions were closed by the RTC today and will re-open on Monday, October 1, under Crestar management. Services to customers will continue without interruption at existing locations.

"This move underscores Crestar's capacity to take advantage of the opportunities presented by a changing financial services environment," noted Richard G. Tilghman, Crestar Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. "It also reflects our strategic priority of focusing on local markets and, in particular, enhances our position in the Richmond area."

The acquisition brings to Crestar a total of $302 million in deposits plus the opportunity to select from the two former thrifts those loans and other assets -- including branches -- which are compatible with the bank's business goals and financial standards.

The re-opening of the former thrift institution branches October 1 marks the beginning of a transition period of approximately 120 days. During that period Crestar said it expects to finalize plans for integrating selected facilities and operations of the former institutions into its own business. Pending completion of the transition period, virtually all 115 employees of the two former institutions have been provided temporary employment with Crestar.

Seasons, with deposits of $124 million at July 31, 1990, had four branches in the Richmond area and had been operated by the RTC since October 1989. Security, with eight branches in Richmond and one in Ashland, had $178 million in deposits and had been operated by the RTC since March 1990. Crestar currently has 38 branches in its Capital Region which includes Richmond and surrounding areas.

With $12.2 billion in assets, Crestar Financial Corporation is the holding company for three banks operating in Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia which have a total of 257 branches. Other subsidiaries provide insurance, brokerage, mortgage banking, leasing and investment advisory services.

LOS ANGELES, (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Lozano Enterprises announced today that a partnership transaction with The Times Mirror Company has been finalized. Times Mirror has purchased a 50 percent interest in Lozano Enterprises, owners of the nation's largest Spanish-language daily newspaper, La Opinion, and El Eco del Valle, a weekly tabloid distributed in the San Fernando Valley. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

La Opinion has an audited circulation of 101,873. The Lozano family has published the newspaper for 64 years. El Eco del Valle has been in publication since 1987 and serves approximately 71,000 readers.

Times Mirror (NYSE, PSE: TMC), a Los Angeles-based media and information company, publishes the Los Angeles Times, Newsday, and New York Newsday, the Baltimore Sun newspapers, the Hartford Courant, the Morning Call, The (Stamford) Advocate and Greenwich Time. The company also has interests in broadcast and cable television and book, magazine and other publishing.

"We're very pleased to be making the formal announcement of completion," stated La Opinion's publisher, Jose I. Lozano. "As I said before, this partnership will enable us to expand and improve our service to the Los Angeles Hispanic community."

FAIRMONT, W.V. (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Electronic Control Systems Inc. ("ECS") announced today that its board of directors has approved acceptance of a merger proposal made by Control Techniques ("CT") of the United Kingdom. The proposal would be at a per share price of $2.43 subject to a downward adjustment for expenses not to exceed five cents per share. The merger proposal requires, among other conditions, approval by the shareholder of ECS. A special meeting of ECS shareholders is expected to be held before the end of this year.

Certain shareholders (and related interests) who are directors and officers of ECS have entered into Option Agreements with CT giving CT the right to purchase their shares (which represent approximately 49 percent of outstanding shares of ECS on a fully diluted basis) for $2.43 per share. The options expire on March 31, 1991 (unless the merger agreement is terminated earlier). The option agreements require those shareholders to vote in favor of the merger. Michael Basile of ECS said that CT required these shareholders to enter into the option agreements as a precondition of CT's willingness to consider an overall merger proposal for ECS.

CT has said that "the acquisition of ECS would be our first move into the USA market for Control Techniques' process control division. The geographical and product fit is excellent and provides exciting future prospects. It would be our intention to continue to operate the company from its Fairmont location, and to expand the business."

CT has also agreed that in the event that it exercises its option or acquires ECS in a merger, it will enter into a one-year consulting agreement with Basile and Leo F. Modi, secretary/treasury of ECS, two founders of ECS. The consulting agreements provide for such individuals to give advice in connection with the management of ECS.

Basile said that he felt a merger with CT was in the interests of all of the shareholders and that having CT involved in the business of ECS would be in the best interest of the company and its employees because of the size and business operations of CT.

CT is a manufacturer of motion control, process control and automation products, having subsidiary companies in the United States, Europe and the Far East.

JACKSONVILLE, FL. (SEPT. 29) PR NEWSWIRE - Barnett Banks, Inc. (NYSE: BBI) has purchased the Florida division of Empire Savings Bank of America from the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The division consists of more than $800 million in deposits in 20 offices located in seven counties.

Empire's Florida division has six offices in Volusia County, six in Pinellas, four in Alachua, and one each in Columbia, Hillsborough, Lake and Seminole counties.

Empire had the largest savings and loan deposit base in Gainesville. Its acquisition will widen Barnett's market lead in that important market. In Lake County, Barnett moves from number two to number one in its share of deposits. The acquisition also substantially strengthens Barnett's lead in Volusia County.

"We look forward to welcoming Empire's customers to the Barnett family," said Charles E. Rice, Barnett chairman and chief executive officer. "We think they will enjoy our high level of service and the convenience of having more offices to do business."

The Empire branches will reopen as Barnett Bank offices on Monday. All Empire customers at these locations become Barnett customers. They will continue to use their Empire checks and savings passbooks.

Empire had about $6.4 billion in deposits distributed in divisions in Buffalo -- where it is based -- eastern New York, Michigan, Texas and Florida. Other acquirors obtained the divisions outside of Florida.

Under its agreement with the RTC, Barnett acquired the $800 million in deposits and puchased about $3 million in share loans for a premium of $3.1 million. Share loans are fully backed by the borrower's deposits in the bank. Except for some facilities, Barnett will receive substantially all cash assets in this transaction. Barnett was not given the option of acquiring other loans.

Empire's Florida division employs about 150 people. Barnett is reviewing all of Empire's 20 offices to see which may be redundant to existing Barnett locations. Empire employees are being encouraged to apply for jobs in the Barnett system, and Barnett anticipates most will be provided full-time employment.

This is the seventh acquisition of a failed financial institution by Barnett this year, continuing a tradition that goes back to the Great Depression when Barnett rescued banks in DeLand, St. Augustine and Cocoa. The failed institutions acquired this year had a total of almost $3 billion in deposits.

"We think this is a cost-effective way for Barnett to expand its business while helping the government solve the savings and loan crisis," Rice said. "Barnett's strong capital base has allowed it the flexibility to bid for these franchises."

Barnett has more than $1.6 billion in stockholders' equity. Approvals for Barnett's three state-chartered and four nationally chartered banks to take over the Empire deposits were obtained from the Florida Department of Banking and Finance, the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Office of Thrift Supervision as well as the Resolution Trust Corporation.

With $31 billion in assets and 592 offices, in Florida and Georgia, Barnett is Florida's leading banking company and the 20th largest in the country. Its common stock (BBI) is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

DETROIT, (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - Comerica Bank-Detroit, in a transaction assisted by the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC), has acquired approximately $1 billion in deposits and some assets of the Michigan Division of Empire Federal Savings Bank of America. Comerica will pay a premium of $31 million to the RTC in the transaction.

Empire has 18 branches in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. The offices were closed by bank regulators on Friday, Sept. 28, and will reopen Monday, Oct. 1, as branch offices of Comerica Bank- Detroit.

"This move continues Comerica's emphasis on expanding in Michigan, our primary banking market," said Comerica Incorporated Chairman President and Chief Executive Officer Eugene A. Miller. "It offers a low-cost means of significantly expanding our deposit base in metro Detroit."

Miller added that, "We look forward to offering Empire customers Comerica's high-quality financial services to meet all of their banking needs."

Comerica Incorporated (OTC: CMCA) is a $12.2 billion bank holding company headquartered in Detroit. The corporation operates full- service banks in Michigan, Texas and Florida and plans to establish full-service banking in California in early 1991.

KISHINEV (SEPT 28) TASS - THE INTRANQUIL ATMOSPHERE HAS BEEN PREVAILING ON THE SOVIET-ROMANIAN SECTION OF THE STATE BORDER EVER SINCE THE DAY IN MAY WHEN ABOUT 200,000 SOVIET AND ROMANIAN PEOPLE MET FOR THE "FLOWER BRIDGE OVER THE RIVER PRUT" FESTIVAL.

THE FESTIVAL WAS PROMPTED BY A DESIRE OF THE TWO PEOPLES TO STRENGTHEN GOOD-NEIGHBOURLY RELATIONS, DEVELOP CULTURAL AND ECONOMIC CONTACTS AND LIVE IN PEACE AND ACCORD.

BUT NOT ALL PARTICIPANTS BROUGHT WITH THEM FLOWERS AND SOUVENIRS. SOME TRIED TO STRIKE SMUGGLING DEALS.

AS OF TODAY, THERE HAVE BEEN MORE THAN 300 VIOLATIONS OF THE BORDER REGIME BY BOTH SOVIET AND ROMANIAN PEOPLE. IN GROUPS AND INDIVIDUALLY, SMUGGLERS CROSS THE WATERWAY, SMUGGLING ELECTRICAL GOODS, HOUSEHOLD APPLIANCES, GAS CONTAINERS AND FOOD TO ROMANIA, AND BATCHES OF GARMENTS, OBVIOUSLY INTENDED FOR PROFITEERING, INTO THE SOVIET UNION.

ALL THIS HAPPENS AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF THE SHARP DECLINE IN THE PARTICIPATION OF LOCAL POPULATION IN THE PROTECTION OF THE STATE BORDER. THE PRINCIPLE WHICH WAS ONCE RECKONED IMMUTABLE, NAMELY, THAT THE SOVIET BORDER IS PROTECTED BY ALL SOVIET PEOPLES HAS CEASED TO BE TRUE.

COMMENTING ON THE DEVELOPMENTS ON THE SOVIET-ROMANIAN SECTION OF THE STATE BORDER, LIEUTENANT GENERAL V. GUBENKO, COMMANDER OF THE TROOPS OF THE WESTERN BORDER DISTRICT, TOLD TASS AS FOLLOWS:

"WHAT NOW TAKES PLACE HERE IS AN ILLUSTRATION OF THE LOW EFFECTIVENESS OF THE LAW 'ON THE STATE BORDER OF THE USSR'. IT JUST DOES NOT WORK IN THE CURRENT SITUATION. LEGAL ACTS, IN THE OBSERVANCE OF WHICH PRIMARILY THE RESIDENTS OF BORDER AREAS WOULD BE INTERESTED, ARE NECESSARY.

"TOGETHER WITH A GROUP OF OFFICERS FROM THE DISTRICT, WE MET MOST OF REPRGSENTATIVES OF LOCAL COUNCILS IN BORDER AREAS, DIRECTORS OF FARMS AND RESIDENTS. WE JOINTLY DETERMINED MATTERS WHICH MUST BE WORKED OUT: TO BEGIN WITH, A BORDER CROSSING PROCEDURE FOR PEOPLE FROM BORDER AREAS SHOULD BE STREAMLINED.

"WITH THIS END IN VIEW, WE SHOULD HAVE AN ADDITIONAL NUMBER OF CHECKPOINTS, CAPABLE OF QUICKLY AND AT ANY TIME CHECKING THE IDENTITY PAPERS OF BOTH SOVIET AND ROMANIAN PEOPLE CROSSING THE BORDER FOR REUNIONS WITH RELATIVES AND OR BY INVITATION.

"MOLDAVIAN PRESIDENT MIRCHA SNEGUR REGARDED WITH UNDERSTANDING OUR PROBLEMS WHEN I TOLD HIM ABOUT THE SITUATION AT THE SOVIET-ROMANIAN SECTION OF THE STATE BORDER.

"HE POINTED OUT IN PARTICULAR THAT THE PROCESS OF DEMOCRATISING THE BORDER REGIME SHOULD BE DEVELOPED FURTHER. FIRST OF ALL, THE STATE OF AFFAIRS AT THE BORDER SHOULD BE PUT IN ORDER, HE SAID. ADDITIONAL LEGAL ACTS, THE DRAFTING OF WHICH HAS ALREADY BEEN STARTED, ARE ESSENTIAL FOR THAT," GUBENKO SAID.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Negotiators taking part in the bipartisan budget reduction talks are still meeting at this hour in Washington. Sources say Democrats have proposed a new tax plan that would hit the richest taxpayers the hardest. It reportedly would bring in enough money during five years to offset the cost of a Republican plan to cut capital gains taxes. Sources also said changes in Social Security are being considered. One G-O-P plan would freeze annual cost-of-living adjustments for three months or more. A second, Democratic plan would raise taxes on wealthier recipients.

After years of bargaining and setbacks, a U-S-Soviet agreement limiting conventional military forces in Europe may soon be reality. Officials say the two nations are on the edge of a breakthrough following Thursday's talks between Secretary of State Baker and his Soviet counterpart in New York. The treaty would limit men, aircraft, helicopters and armored vehicles based in Europe. The cuts would be at least 50 percent in each category.

A Philippine general and 15 other soldiers were convicted and sentenced to life in prison Friday in the 1983 assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino. The verdict comes on the one-year anniversary of the death of former President Marcos in exile in Honolulu. It was Aquino's murder that sparked widespread protests... leading to the 1986 overthrow of Marcos and bringing Aquino's wife, Corazon, to power. .

Radio reports and officials in the southern Phillipine port city of Davao say one person was killed Friday when gunfire erupted inside the house of a Cabinet secretary. The official was UNhurt. Further details are NOT available. It's also NOT known if the shooting was an assassination attempt.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - A House Judiciary subcommittee heard testimony Thursday on legislation that would make it a federal crime to abduct children to foreign countries. There currently are four separate House and Senate bills calling for stiffer prison terms and fines for the kidnappers... usually foreign-born ex-spouses of Americans who nab their own kids. A Justice Department official calls the move a ''well-intentioned, but largely empty gesture.''

Some Polish municipal authorities are trying to do away with a symbol of the Communist past. They want to move the graves of Soviet soldiers killed in Poland while fighting Nazi Germany to less prominent spots. The idea, however, is opposed by Solidarity founder and presidential candidate Lech Walesa. BANGKOK, Thailand (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Vietnamese-backed government of Cambodia has made its third set of cabinet changes in two months and suspended two provincial Communist Party official for investigation, official Phnom Penh radio reported.

The radio, in a broadcast Thursday night, said Trade Minister Tang Saroem had been retired and replaced by Lt. Gen. Nhim Vanda, who retains his post as deputy defense minister. Nhim Vanda is a tough one-armed military man who has been in charge of building the defense line along the Thai-Cambodian border. He has also served as deputy planning minister.

The report said nine other senior party and government officials were transfered in a shakeup intended ''to enhance the efficiency of the party-state leadership.''

The Communist Party secretary and deputy secretary of Mondolkiri province, identified as Li Son and Chan Yoeun, were ''suspended from duty for investigation,'' it said.

The report did not mention the cause of the investigation, but the party has already suspended a number of other officials in a crackdown on official corruption. Security officials have also arrested at least six senior government officials for planning to set up their own political party.

The shakeup was the third cabinet-level change in two months. Only last week, Prime Minister Hun Sen gave up the foreign ministry portfolio to Hor Nam Hong, a minister attached to his office. And in August, the arrest of the transport minister sparked a set of cabinet changes.

The government in Phnom Penh was set up in January 1979 by invading Vietnamese troops, who ousted a bloody Khmer Rouge regime. Phnom Penh is still fighting a guerrilla war against a three-part resistance coalition.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - The Emir of Kuwait appealed to the United Nations Thursday to help liberate his country, which was invaded and occupied August 2nd by Iraq. Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-Sabahreceived a standing ovation from the more than two-thousand delegates at the annual session of the General Assembly. But Iraq's delegation walked out.

Former Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega met with an aide to the current president and the U-S ambassador in Managua Thursday to discuss the situation in the Central American country. Ortega says Nicaragua needs a new economic program after its nine-year civil war between the Sandinista government and the U-S-backed Contras. He warns of social unrest if the country's situation does NOT improve.

Canadian Prime Minister Mulroney moved Thursday to expand the Senate and appointed eight new Conservative senators to the Liberal-dominated chamber. Mulroney's moves- UNprecedented in Canadian political history- were aimed at passing a seven-percent Goods and Services Tax. Liberal senators had (SEPT. 28) UPI - Even though they're sputtering down the stretch, the Cincinnati Reds are two games away from making baseball history.

The Reds, with a magic number of two, are attempting to become the first National League team ever to hold first place from wire-to-wire. They can accomplish the feat Friday night if they defeat San Diego and second-place Los Angeles loses to San Francisco.

''It's right around the corner,'' said Glenn Braggs, who slammed a two-run homer to pace Cincinnati's 4-2 win over Atlanta Thursday night. ''We know it can happen Friday. We hope it will happen Friday.''

''We smell it now,'' said Tom Browning, 15-9, who permitted seven hits over seven innings to get Thursday night's win. ''We're feeling very comfortable.''

The only cautious soul in the Reds' clubhouse was manager Lou Piniella.

''It's down to two, but we still have work to do,'' said Piniella. ''It's not over yet.''

Piniella's caution may be justified. Over the course of the season, the once red-hot Reds have cooled considerably. After opening the campaign with nine straight victories and a 26-9 mark through the first 35 games, the Reds fell back to earth. Cincinnati has held healthy margins, but its NL-West rivals began to win more often then they did.

These days, Cincinnati plans to close out the season roughly around the .500 mark. The Reds are just 12-12 since Sept. 3.

The only other team to lead from beginning to end in a 162-game season was Detroit in 1984. The only clubs to be in first place every day of a 154-game season were the 1923 New York Giants and 1927 New York Yankees.

Piniella was a little uneasy after getting a scare in the sixth inning when star outfielder Eric Davis crashed hard into the wall after making a catch. Davis remained in the game another half-inning, but began protecting his left shoulder and left the game in the seventh.

''I think it's just a little bruise,'' Davis said after the game. ''At least, I hope it's nothing more than just a bruise. It began stiffening up tonight and we'll see how it is tomorrow.''

Reds spokesman Jim Ferguson said Davis will be examined when he arrives at the ballpark Friday, but said he doubted X-rays would be required.

''It hurts, but I didn't hear anything pop so I don't think anything was broken or separated,'' said Davis. ''Hopefully, everything will be all right tomorrow, and hopefully, the magic number will be over with tomorrow.''

-- AROUND THE NL --

In other National League games: Pittsburgh trimmed Chicago 3-2, New York slapped Montreal 6-0 and Philadelphia edged St. Louis 4-3.

Pirates 3, Cubs 2

At Pittsburgh, rookie Randy Tomlin scattered five hits over seven innings and Bobby Bonilla and Sid Bream both doubled in the sixth inning for the winning run, keeping the Pirates three games ahead of New York. Pittsburgh cut its magic number to four. Tomlin improved to 4-4 and Vincente Palacios earned his third save. Mike Bielecki, 7-11, took the loss.

Mets 6, Expos 0

At Montreal, Daryl Boston hit a three-run homer to spark New York, sending the Expos to their seventh loss in a row. Ron Darling, 7-9, allowed four hits over five innings. Kevin Gross, 8-12, suffered the loss.

Phillies 4, Cardinals 3

At Philadelphia, John Kruk doubled home two runs to lead the Phillies past the Cardinals. Kruk's double fueled a three-run second inning off starter Jose DeLeon, 7-19, who lost his seventh straight start. Tommy Greene, 3-2, gave up six hits and two runs in seven innings.

MANILA, Philippines (SEPT. 28) UPI - A general and 15 soldiers were convicted Friday of killing Benigno Aquino, more than seven years after the opposition leader was gunned down as he came home to confront President Ferdinand Marcos.

An anti-corruption court convicted a general and 15 other soldiers in the 1983 assassination and sentenced them to life in prison on the first anniversary of Marcos's death during exile in Honolulu.

The three-judge court also acquitted 17 soldiers and three civilians, including former Tourism Secretary Jose Aspiras, in the murder of Aquino. The murder sparked widespread protests that helped topple 20- year dictator Marcos in a civilian-backed military revolt and swept Aquino's wife Corazon to power.

''I am pleased that finally the court has decided who are the guilty people and who are innocent,'' President Corazon Aquino said in an interview with Japanese reporters.

But Benigno Aquino's sister, congresswoman Teresa Ureta, expressed disappointment.

''I would have wanted a statement clearer on who ordered the killing, '' said Ureta who sat in the courtroom audience with her brother, Sen. Agapito Aquino. ''Most of those convicted were soldiers. They could not have acted without somebody ordering them.''

No judgment was rendered on former armed forces chief Gen. Fabian Ver, former Information Minister Gregorio Cendana, and a captain. All three men are at large but were tried in absentia. Court chairman Regino Hermosisima indicated they could face a separate trial at a later date.

Another soldier in the list of 40 accused died during the trial.

The highest ranking officer convicted was Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio, the former chief of the aviation security command now stricken with cancer and confined to a wheelchair.

''It's unfair, it's unfair,'' Custodio said as he was being wheeled out of the courtroom after the verdict. ''I know God knows I am innocent.''

Initially, the court imposed the death sentence on Custodio and 15 other soldiers, but then deferred to a constitutional ban on the death penalty and meted out the life prison sentence.

Among the others found guilty included constable Rogelio Moreno, who the court said fired the shot from a .357 Magnum that killed Aquino Aug. 21, 1983, at the Manila airport upon his return from three years of self-exile in the United States. Also among the convicted were Aquino's four other escorts.

Rodolfo Jimenez, counsel for the accused, said he would appeal the convictions to the Supreme Court.

In its 177-page decision, the court rejected defense arguments Aquino was shot by Rolando Galman, an alleged communist hit man killed moments later in a volley of military gunfire. It adopted the prosecution stand Galman was a scapegoat, and all 16 convicted Friday were found guilty of murdering both Aquino and Galman.

A citizen fact-finding panel said in 1984 there was no evidence against the Marcoses. That panel found Aquino was killed by a soldier, but in 1985 a court overturned the finding and acquitted Ver, 24 other soldiers, and businessman Hermilo Gosuico.

After Corazon Aquino took power, a special Supreme Court panel reviewed the 1985 lower court decision and found Marcos had ordered a mass acquittal of the 26. The Supreme Court ordered a new trial that began March 23, 1987, and ended last June 4. The list of accused was expanded from 26 to 40.

Marcos was never charged in the case, but many Filipinos believed he and his wife Imelda were involved. Benigno Aquino had hurried home at that time to warn Marcos to allow democracy or face a civil war.

''I think at this point justice has been done,'' presidential deputy press secretary Horacio Paredes said after Friday's conviction. ''I think it will be long before we will know the mastermind, but to me I think the mastermind has died one year ago.''

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 28) UPI - The United States and the Soviet Union appear to be on the brink of a breakthrough on an agreement to limit conventional military forces in Europe.

Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze laid out the final pattern for agreement in a two-hour session Thursday, leaving some minor details to be worked out by technical teams.

But a NATO diplomat said, ''I can't imagine that any details over minor issues would stand in the way of approving such a major agreement.''

The treaty would limit men, aircraft, helicopters and armored vehicles based in Europe. The cuts would be at least 50 percent in each category.

Both men, after their meeting described ''good progress'' and said they were taking the results to their allies for approval.

Since the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact has virtually ceased to exist as a military alliance with the democratization of Eastern Europe, the results will be approved if NATO buys the bargain Baker and his team struck in New York.

The men were expected to meet at least one more time in New York to discuss strategic arms reductions, in addition to a Shevardnadze session with President Bush Monday in New York.

Baker and Shevardnadze, in their second meeting in two days, focused only on the remaining issues in the conventional forces in Europe agreement, known as CFE.

There were three remaining issues:

-The percentage of forces Washington and Moscow would be permitted to make up in remaining East-West forces. The United States wanted that percentage to be around 30, while the Soviets pushed for between 35 and 40 percent. One U.S. official said there will be different percentages for different categories of weapons.

-How many units each side can station outside its own national territory. Officials reported essential agreement.

-Numbers of aircraft. The exact counting rules will have to be worked out by teams of technical experts, but Western officials said they believe the minor remaining differences will be bridged.

The round of Baker-Shevardnadze meetings this week was the 20th, an average of one per month in the Bush administration, not counting dozens of telephone calls between the two foreign ministers.

U.S. officials say both Baker and Shevardnadze are determined to send a signal to Iraq that Saddam Hussein's personal ambitions in invading Kuwait on Aug. 2 will not be allowed to destroy the dawning post-Cold War era.

The conventional force talks have been going in their present form since January 1989. The major breakthrough came with the breakup of the Warsaw Pact, but that left the question of how to put that new military situation into a treaty that would weather the next uncertain changes in Europe, and how to regulate military forces.

Included in those questions are such arcane issues as:

-What is a combat aircraft? Does it include two-seater trainers which can be turned into a warplane by adding some electronics and wing-pylons which could carry missiles? And if so, how many of those planes would equal one plane specifically designed to kill enemy aircraft or tanks?

-How can each side be sure that a demobilized military man remains a civilian. Do you count border and custom guards or reserve units, and if so, how does each side verify those counts?

-How do you destroy a tank, a vehicle specifically designed to resist destruction? Environmentalist groups quickly opposed the dumping of tanks into the ocean, but other methods are expensive, slow and possibly dangerous, such as the trend, which has already begun, of selling off surplus tanks to the Third World.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Boston will have to follow up on Thursday night's winning performance to satisfy Manager Joe Morgan.

The Red Sox moved into a first-place tie with Toronto in the American League East with a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers, and Morgan wants a repeat effort when the two leaders face each other the next three nights.

''It's not important at all if we don't win tomorrow night,'' Morgan said of the victory Thursday night. ''All I know is we're dead even and let's go get 'em.''

The three-game showdown in Boston will determine control of the division race.

''Psychologically, it's a big difference to go in tied,'' said Boston outfielder Mike Greenwell. ''(The Blue Jays) know they have to take two out of three at our place.''

''The one who goes out and plays relaxed will come out ahead,'' added Greenwell. ''It's going to be an exciting three days.''

Greenwell delivered a two-run double in a three-run fourth inning, helping the Red Sox take a 3-0 lead. Tigers starter Steve Searcy, 2-7, gave up a lead-off single to Carlos Quintana. Dwight Evans doubled Quintana to third, and both runners held when Ellis Burks beat out a grounder to third baseman Darnell Coles for a single.

Greenwell then drilled Searcy's second pitch down the right field line to score Quintana and Evans. Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly brought home Burks.

''The first pitch to me was a slider and I thought he'd throw me a fastball because he wouldn't want to fall behind 2-0,'' Greenwell said. ''I was looking for a fastball, something hard I could turn on and hit to right.''

Boston starter Tom Bolton, 10-7, halted a personal three-game losing streak by limiting Detroit to four hits over seven innings.

''This was certainly my most rewarding victory, coming at this time of the season,'' said Bolton. ''And I needed it for my confidence after a rough road trip.''

The Tigers fell short with an unearned run in the sixth and Cecil Fielder's 49th home run of the season in the eighth. Fielder's next homer will make him the first major leaguer since 1977 and first American League player since 1961 to hit 50 homers in a season.

''There's a lot of pressure now,'' Fielder admitted. ''It's making Cecil's brain hurt a little. The closer I get the more people there are surrounding it. Hopefully, I can get it quickly.''

-- AROUND THE AL --

In other American League action, Baltimore beat Cleveland 5-3, Chicago downed Milwaukee 6-4, Texas dropped Oakland 8-6, and California edged Kansas City 7-6.

Orioles 5, Indians 3

At Cleveland, Gregg Olson earned a club-record 35th save and Dave Johnson stopped a Baltimore losing streak for the ninth time this year to lead

Baltimore. Johnson improved to 13-8, and Olson pitched the ninth to break the Orioles save record of 34 set by Don Aase in 1986. John Farrell, making his second start since coming off the disabled list Sept. 21, fell to 4-5.

White Sox 6, Brewers 4

At Chicago, Frank Thomas belted a solo home run, and Bobby Thigpen hurled his 55th save, helping Chicago. Thomas's sixth homer of the season made a winner of Wayne Edwards, 5-3, who pitched 5 2-3 innings, and tagged Tom Edens, 4-4, with the loss. Thigpen pitched the ninth and enabled the White Sox to break the team mark of 64 saves held by the 1988 Oakland bullpen.

Rangers 8, Athletics 6

At Arlington, Texas, back-to-back homers by Jack Daugherty and Pete Incaviglia helped Scott Chiamparino, 1-2, earn his first major league victory. Jeff Russell recorded the last out for his ninth save. Loser Scott Sanderson, 17-11 gave up seven runs in three innings.

Angels 7, Royals 6

At Anaheim, Calif., Devon White's bases-loaded single in the ninth lifted California. Trailing 5-6, Lee Stevens doubled and scored on a single by Lance Parrish. Jack Howell followed with a single, with Parrish moving to third. Dick Scofield was intentionally walked, bringing up White who singled to drive in the go-ahead run and make a winner of reliever Brian Harvey, 4-4. Jeff Montgomery, 6-5, suffered the loss.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 28) UPI - The emir of Kuwait told the United Nations the fate of his Iraqi-occupied country ''is in your hands'' and pleaded for liberation from Baghdad's ''campaign of terror.''

''Today, I plead before you the cause of a people whose land, until so recently, was a beacon for peaceful co-existence and genuine brotherhood among the family of nations,'' Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmad Al- Sabah told the U.N. General Assembly Thursday.

''Now the fate of a people, of a nation, is in your hands,'' the ousted emir said. ''We are confident that the only measure that will win your endorsement is support for our legitimate right to liberate our land.''

Al-Sabah, whose family ruled over the small desert kingdom rich in oil for more than 200 years, received standing ovation by the more than 2,000 delegates from 160 countries attending the annual session.

The six-member Iraqi delegation, headed by that country's deputy permanent representative to the United Nations, Sabah Talat Kadrat, walked out of the assembly hall before Al-Sabah began his address.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ordered his troops into Kuwait Aug. 2, less than a day after talks between the two countries to resolve dispute over oil production and their common border collapsed. Saddam consequently declared Kuwait an Iraqi province.

The emir said, ''rape, destruction, terror and torture are now the rule of the day in the once peaceful and tranquil land of Kuwait.''

''Indeed, at this very moment, an intense campaign of terror, torture and humiliation continues unabated in that dear land,'' the emir said.

The 15-nation U.N. Security Council condemned the military occupation and imposed stringent sanctions to force Iraq to pull out. It allowed Western navies sent to protect other Persian Gulf countries to use force to impose the sanctions, and Tuesday, the council ordered an air traffic embargo on Iraq.

The emir said Thursday ''hundreds of thousands'' of Kuwaiti citizens as well as nationals of various countries have been made homeless and have lost their savings.

Dressed in a long white and gold robe, the emir said the Iraqi occupation has caused repercussions on the world's security as well as economy.

Al-Sabah said to remedy economic losses suffered by developing countries, he has decided to write off interest payments on loans to those countries. Kuwait's contributions to development aid to the Third World had amounted to 8.3 percent of its GNP, the emir said.

Among migrant workers in Kuwait before the invasion were some 100,000 Bangladeshis, whose salaries represented an important source of foreign currency for the Bangladesh government.

A Bangladeshi diplomat said 50,000 of his countrymen were repatriated and the rest will be returned home by the end of the month.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Carter Presidential Center will be absorbed by Emory University in 1994 to assure its continuity even after the center's namesake dies.

Former President Jimmy Carter told a group of Atlanta business leaders Thursday the first step toward the merger is a $60 million fund- raising campaign, half of which will be used to establish an endowment at Emory.

The rest of the money will be used to help pay for Carter Center programs and new construction.

Carter said the link with Emory ''is absolutely crucial'' to the Carter Center whose programs focus on such issues as health, human rights, democracy, conflict resolution and U.S. relations with the Soviet Union, Latin America and the Middle East.

Carter, who will be 66 Monday, had always planned to turn the center over to Emory after his death.

''Many people come to me and say, 'Well this is great, Jimmy, while you're there, but it won't survive you.' And that's one of the major motivations for us to deal so intimately with Emory,'' said Carter. ''There is no other university that will be dealing with this spectrum of humanitarian and, I hope earth-shaking kinds of things.''

(SEPT. 28) UPI - The full Senate considers the Supreme Court nomination of Judge David Souter next Tuesday... after the Senate Judiciary Committee approved it yesterday. The committee voted 13-1 in favor of Souter, with Democrats calling him ''about the best'' they can expect from President Bush. Confirmation in the Senate is virtually certain.

The East and West German Social Democratic Parties have merged into a single party... less than one week before the two Germanys are to unite. When that happens next Wednesday, the united Social Democratic Party will be the largest opposition group to the conservative-led government of Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Iran and Britain resumed diplomatic relations yesterday, saying their embassies in London and Tehran will re-open within one month. Ties between the two countries broke off more than one year ago because of Iran's death sentence against British writer Salman Rushdie, the author of ''The Satanic Verses.'' Iran considers the book blasphemous.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Washington extended its military influence in the Middle East amid the Persian Gulf crisis, selling $7 billion in arms to Saudi Arabia and reportedly promising Israel to retaliate if the Jewish state was attacked by Iraq.

The U.S. moves came as Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, hoping to convince the world that Japan is doing its share to end the gulf crisis, left Friday for a 12-day trip to the United States and Middle East. Kaifu Thursday proposed sending non-military personnel to the region, but the plan faces parliamentary opposition.

The specter of terrorism meanwhile was raised after two men threw grenades at a Djibouti cafe frequented by French military personnel, killing the 9-year-old son of a French military officer and wounding at least 16 other people Friday.

The East African nation of Djibouti has served as a staging area for French troops en route to join a U.S.-led multinational force deployed in the Persian Gulf in response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. No one claimed responsibility for the grenade attack, but French police sources said they suspected pro-Iraqi guerrillas.

The attack came a day after France said without explanation it was withdrawing its aircraft carrier Clemenceau from the gulf region. The Clemenceau, the flagship of the French armada of 14 ships in the gulf, is to return to France.

The emir of Kuwait planned to meet Friday with President Bush, who was hosting a luncheon in his honor. Thursday, Sheikh Japer Al-Ahmad Al- Sabah, pleaded with the U.N. General Assembly to help liberate his nation from Iraq's ''campaign of terror.'' He told U.N. delegates the fate of his country was ''in your hands'' amid Baghdad's reign of ''rape, destruction, terror and torture.''

And world oil markets braced Friday after prices surged to record levels Thursday, despite a White House plan to sell from the huge U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve. The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery closed at $39.54 and North Sea Brent crude hit $41 a barrel.

The United States assured Israel that if Iraq attacked the Jewish state, the United States ''will stand by its commitment to Israel's security'' and retaliate against Iraq, even if it requires military force, The Washington Post reported Friday.

Quoting diplomatic sources, the newspaper said the assurance was given by Secretary of State James Baker to Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy at a meeting at the United Nations late Wednesday.

The sources said Baker acted to calm Israeli concern about threats made by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to strike at Israel and Saudi oil installations if Iraq suffers unduly from the U.N. economic embargo.

The Pentagon arms sales to Saudi Arabia include top-line U.S. tanks, attack helicopters, anti-tank weapons, Patriot anti-aircraft missiles and rocket launchers. It is the first stage of a two-phased arms sale to Saudi Arabia totaling about $21 billion, including sophisticated F-15 fighters. Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams predicted the second sale would occur early next year.

The Pentagon said an American warship in the Red Sea fired warning shots and boarded an Iraqi oil tanker that had refused to stop Thursday, but allowed it to proceed when no cargo was found. No injuries were reported.

It was the fourth time a U.S. warship has fired warning shots near tankers and cargo ships in Middle East waters since the United States began its interdiction program Aug. 17 to enforce U.N. sanctions against Iraqi goods.

In Baghdad, Iraqi authorities said beginning next week foreigners will be unable to obtain food rationing cards.

Saddam has often stated foreigners in Iraq and occupied Kuwait will suffer from the U.N. trade embargo along with Iraqis. He said if the situation becomes desperate, food and medicine will be reserved for Iraqi citizens only.

Western nations, meanwhile, reacted angrily to an Iraqi warning to diplomats in Baghdad that the act of hiding foreigners was punishable by death.

In Washington, the State Department said the Iraqi government denied to the U.S. charge d'affaires in Baghdad, Joseph Wilson, there was any intent in an earlier warning note ''to level capital charges against diplomats.''

Wilson went to the Iraqi Foreign Ministry to protest the warning, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Boucher also said another U.S. citizen had been rounded up in Kuwait, bringing the number of detained Americans in Iraq and Kuwait to 101.

Eight American detainees, including one of 69 listed as having medical problems, were seen in the Mansour Melia hotel in Baghdad, he said. Iraqi officials apparently are using the hotel as a holding area for detainees.

Boucher said Iraqi authorities have not disclosed information about the detainees to U.S. officials or permitted U.S. visits to the hotel.

Diplomatic sources said Jordan, meanwhile, was reconsidering its suspension of all flights between Amman and Baghdad to comply with a U.N.-imposed air embargo. The suspension was ordered Wednesday following reports an Iraqi jetliner had loaded up with illegal cargo for its return trip after delivering a group of Western hostages to Amman.

The sources said Jordan's King Hussein was considering banning all flights except passenger flights.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Clouds and fog blanketed the East Coast and Appalachians Friday as cool temperatures and rain were reported in several regions, including Southern California which was doused by showers that closed a major road.

Flash floods and rockslides forced the closure of a major east-west thoroughfare in Southern California for more than an hour Thursday night, but there were no immediate reports of damage, authorities said.

The California Highway Patrol and Caltrans posted closures of the 70- mile stretch of Highway 166 from U.S Route 101 to Westside Highway in Maricopa in Kern County starting at 8 p.m.

The closure came after the National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning for the area.

Fog covered parts of Kentucky, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania Friday dropping visiblity to near zero in low-lying areas, especially near streams and rivers.

Limited visibilty was reported in Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley and near Binghamton, N.Y., where motorists were warned to be careful during the morning rush hour.

Very moist air covering the East Coast caused the foggy conditions, which also led to travel advisories in Massachusetts.

Patchy drizzle dampened Portland, Maine, and in the Midwest, partly cloudy skies and possible showers were reported. Rain and clouds also were reported in Nebraska.

More ideal weather from the high pressure system dominated the South. But there were some hot spots, with a temperatures of 93 degrees recorded Thursday in Dothan, Ala. and Meridian, Miss.

DAVAO, Philippines (SEPT. 28) UPI - A gunman fired a shot at a member of President Corazon Aquino's Cabinet as he prepared to eat breakfast Friday, missing him but killing a woman and wounding another, police and witnesses said.

Police said Local Governments Secretary Luis Santos was unhurt in the shooting in his house in Davao, 600 miles south of Manila, but his friend, Marcosa Reyes, 64, was hit in the head and died. A maid, Arlene Caballero, 17, was wounded.

Police Col. Efren Arayata said investigators were still trying to determine if there was an assassination attempt on Santos, who was on a visit to his hometown, where he had served as mayor and congressman before his appointment to the Cabinet by Aquino.

Asked if someone was trying to kill him, Santos told a radio reporter, ''I leave it to the authorities to determine.'' He declined further comment.

Shirley Himor, a babysitter in the household, said Santos had washed his hands in the kitchen in preparation for breakfast when his grandson emerged and greeted him. Santos had just bowed down to kiss his grandson when a shot rang out, Himor said.

Himor said she saw an unidentified man wearing a black jacket emerge in the house, fire a shot and flee.

''The shot was fired in the direction of the secretary,'' she said.

Arayata said in a radio interview, ''As of now we cannot say if the bullet was for him.'' But Arayata added the gun was fired ''in the direction of where he was.''

He said the single bullet grazed Caballero on the shoulder and hit Reyes, who was visiting the secretary.

Himor said Santos dashed to a room after the shooting. His four bodyguards also rushed inside the house.

Arayata said the guns of Santos's four security guards have been turned in for inspection and the men will be subjected to tests to determine if they fired their firearms.

Santos later moved to the Apo View Hotel with a .45 caliber pistol tucked in his waist.

On Aug. 2, 1987, Aquino's Local Governments Secretary Jaime Ferrer was assassinated. The murder is still unsolved.

Diplomatic sources said Secretary of State James Baker acted to calm Israeli concern about threats made by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to strike at Israel and Saudi oil installations if Iraq suffers unduly from the U.N. economic embargo.

WASHINGTON - The Pentagon announced an urgent $7 billion arms sale to Saudi Arabia that includes top-line U.S. tanks, attack helicopters, anti-tank weapons, Patriot anti-aircraft missiles and rocket launchers. It is the first stage of a two-phased arms sale to Saudi Arabia that will total about $21 billion and include sophisticated F-15 fighters. A Pentagon spokesman said the second sale probably will occur ''early next year.''

WASHINGTON - Western nations reacted angrily to an Iraqi warning to diplomats in Baghdad that the act of hiding foreigners was punishable by death. The State Department said the Iraqi government denied to the U.S. charge d'affaires in Baghdad, Joseph Wilson, there was any intent in an earlier warning note ''to level capital charges against diplomats.'' CAIRO, Egypt - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said Egyptian forces in the gulf region now total more than 14,000 and dismissed unconfirmed reports that Iraq may deploy Scud missiles in Sudan, which has supported Saddam in the Persian Gulf crisis.

TUNIS, Tunisia - At a meeting of the Arab League's governing council Thursday, Iraqi Ambassador Alouane Jabouri complained about Kuwait's presence at the session on grounds it is no longer an independent state. Kuwaiti Ambassador Nasser al Jihane replied: ''Here is new proof that Iraq wants to divide the Arabs. It is Iraq that is destroying Arab security.''

TEHRAN, Iran - Iran announced that it has resumed diplomatic relations with Britain and the two countries will reopen their embassies within one month.

LONDON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Stock prices were lower in moderate trading at midday Friday on the London International stock exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 9.1 points Thursday, was down 22.6 points to 1,981.1. The narrower top 30 industrial average was down 13.8 points to 1,534.3.

Volume amounted to around 225 million shares compared with 254 million shares traded during the same period Thursday.

Analysts said stocks followed the led of futures contracts closely as the December FT-SE 100 Index contract fell to 2,022.0, down from 2,038.0 Thursday.

Among some of the international issues, Imperial Chemical Industries fell 32 cents to $14.61 and Barclays Bank PLC lost 2 cents to $5.58.

British Petroleum lost 12 cents to $6.15 as the price of North Sea Brent crude gained 25 cents a barrel on the London spot market.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange were sharply lower in moderate trading at midday.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which lost 27.91 points Thursday, was off 32.54 points to 1,321.54.

Traders said the selloff in Tokyo, where the Nikkei Average tumbled 788.41 points to 20,983.50 - its lowest level in 3 1/2 years - encouraged investors to sell stocks.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Commerce Department, offering another sign of the slowdown in the U.S. economy, reported Friday its index of leading economic indicators slipped 1.2 percent in August, the greatest decline this year.

The department said its index was unchanged in July and increased 0.1 percent in June.

The August decline, the greatest monthly drop since November 1987, is a further sign of the weakness sweeping through the U.S. economy. During the past 12 months, the index has declined 0.4 percent, compared to a gain of 0.5 percent during the previous 12-month period.

Seven of the 11 economic indicators used to compile the index declined last month, following the turmoil in the Middle East. Since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait oil prices have more than doubled, sending shock waves through the global economy.

The greatest negative contribution to the index were posted by comsumer expectations, which slipped to 62.9 from 77.3 the month before. Other negative factors included stock prices, contracts and orders for plant and equipment and changes in unfilled manufacturing orders.

Other negative factors included average weekly unemployment insurance claims, building permits and money supply.

Vendor performance improved in August as did manufacturers' orders for consumer goods and materials, the average workweek and changes in prices for sensitive materials.

The composite index of coincident indicators, a monthly approximation of aggregate economic activity, dropped 0.5 percent in August after declining 0.2 percent in July and increasing 0.4 percent in June.

The department's composite index of lagging indicators also declined, moving down 0.3 percent in August after increasing 0.4 percent the month before.

The leading index is designed by the government to predict monthly movements in economic activity.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (SEPT. 28) UPI - A U.S. naval ship fired shots across the bow of an Iraqi oil tanker which tried for two hours to evade interception in the Red Sea, but the vessel was allowed to proceed when no evidence was found that it was violating the U.N.-ordered blockade, officials said Friday.

An official statement said the high seas chase Thursday started when the Iraqi-flagged tanker named Tadmur refused ''multiple requests'' from U.S. naval and coast guard vessels to allow an inspection team to board and check cargo and papers.

It said an unspecified number of vessels pursued the 3,600-ton freighter for about two hours, before the frigate USS Elmer Montgomery fired across the ship's bow, prompting the captain to comply with the boarding demands.

About 30 minutes later, Spanish naval personnel arrived and checked the ship, which they found to be in ballast with no cargo, it said.

The Tadmur was then allowed to proceed into the northern Red Sea because it had not been in violation of U.N. Security Council Resolution 661, which calls for a ban on all exports and imports from Iraq to punish Baghdad for the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Australian and U.S. naval personnel in a similar joint operation on Sept. 14 boarded another Iraqi ship. The multi-national force has intercepted more than 1,000 vessels, allowing the majority to proceed, since the blockade was announced.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Commerce Department, offering another sign of the slowdown in the U.S. economy, reported Friday its index of leading economic indicators slipped 1.2 percent in August, the largest decline this year.

The August decline, triggered largely by concern of recession and higher oil prices from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, was the greatest monthly drop since November 1987, which was prompted by the stock market crash the month before.

The department said its index was unchanged in July and increased 0.1 percent in June. Economists said the report offers the possibility that the current economic weakness is likely to linger through next year, but does not signal recession.

''The old rule of thumb is you have to have three monthly declines in the leading economic indicators to have a recession. This is one,'' said Robert Dederick, chief economist at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

''This is a further confirmation that the economy is August really showed signs of developing softness,'' he said.

During the past 12 months, the index has declined 0.4 percent, compared to a gain of 0.5 percent during the previous 12-month period.

Seven of the 11 economic indicators used to compile the index declined last month, following the turmoil in the Middle East. Since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait oil prices have more than doubled, sending shock waves through the global economy.

The greatest negative contribution to the index was posted by comsumer expectations, which slipped to 62.9 from 77.3 the month before. The deterioration in consumer expectations indicates that fears of a recession have seeped into the national psyche.

''The uncertainty caused by this crisis leads consumers and businesses to hold back and that aggravates the situtation. We're looking at a pretty bleak winter,'' said Cynthia Latta, an economist at DRI/McGraw Hill, in Lexington, Mass.

''I don't think this number by itself is going to scare people anymore than they are already,'' she said.

Other negative factors included stock prices, contracts and orders for plant and equipment and changes in unfilled manufacturing orders.

Other negative factors included average weekly unemployment insurance claims, building permits and money supply.

Vendor performance improved in August as did manufacturers' orders for consumer goods and materials, the average workweek and changes in prices for sensitive materials.

The composite index of coincident indicators, a monthly approximation of aggregate economic activity, dropped 0.5 percent in August after declining 0.2 percent in July and increasing 0.4 percent in June.

The department's composite index of lagging indicators also declined, moving down 0.3 percent in August after increasing 0.4 percent the month before.

The leading index is designed by the government to predict monthly movements in economic activity.

MENDENHALL, MISS. (SEPT. 28) UPI - Deadly escaping gas killed two employees and injured four others Friday at a large electrical manufacturing plant, authorities said.

''We have two people confirmed dead and four others injured,'' said Sherry Moore, a spokeswoman for the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency. She said the four overcome by gas was admitted to Simpson County Hospital in stable condition.

Dusty Perkins, MEMA spokesman, said authorities believe the men were overcome by natural gas, liquid nitrogen and liquid hydrogen at the Magnatek-Universal Manufacturing.

Perkins said the plant was evacuated after the 5:40 a.m. mishap and hazardous emergency crews, dressed in self-contained suits, had begun venting the work area.

Although U.S. 49 was not closed to traffic, classes were called off at Simpson County Academy. The plant was shut down and its three crews were advised to stay home until further notice.

''The situation is under control,'' said Perkins. ''There was no toxic cloud or anything like that. But there have been reports of several gas leaks in the work area.''

The plant, located about 25 miles south of Jackson, manufactures ballast for fluorescent lights.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 28) UPI - Police officials say two uniformed officers are suspected of breaking into a fast-food restaurant and stealing $7,000 while on duty.

Police Superintendent LeRoy Martin said Thursday the department's internal affairs division is trying to enhance film from a restaurant security camera to confirm the identity of the officers and clarify details of the July 26 incident at Max's Italian Beef and Sausage.

Martin said he cannot discuss details of the investigation because of police union contracts but added investigators are trying to decide if the officers had planned the robbery or responded to a call at the restaurant and took advantage of the situation.

Martin said the restaurant owner, Larry Estes, took the film to the FBI rather than to the police. The FBI turned the tape over to the police internal affairs division.

''I can understand the owners' apprehension,'' Martin said. ''I can understand that he would be leery of going to the police. It dismays me to see police officers violate their oath of office this way.''

The officers suspected of the robbery are still working for the department.

Estes told police he believed the officers had dinner at his restaurant before the 2 a.m. robbery took place.

WBBM-TV aired footage of the tape from the security camera. It showed one officer entered the restaurant using a metal object and took money from a cash register. A second officer entered later and helped pry open a safe from which more money was taken.

Martin said if the allegations against the officers are sustained he will seek Cook County grand jury indictments.

''Police officers today earn a good salary and have an opportunity to add to their salary by working overtime,'' he said. ''That is what makes me very bitter - to think they would jeopardize their jobs and disgrace their families and friends and colleagues by setting such a horrible example.''

(SEPT. 28) UPI - White House and congressional negotiators resume budget talks today, with sources reporting a critical tax issue has NOT yet been resolved. House Republican leader Robert Michel says the panel is ''so close and yet so far.'' Bargainers hope to reach agreement on a deficit reduction package to prevent up to 105-BILLION dollars in automatic budget cuts from taking effect on Monday.

French diplomats say suspected pro-Iraqi guerrillas lobbed three grenades at two cafes near a French military base in Djibouti, killing a nine-year-old French boy. At least 16 other people were hurt in the attack in the East African nation. In Paris, French officials called it a ''particularly odious, cowardly attack.''

The United States and the Soviet Union appear nearly ready to agree on limiting men, aircraft, helicopters and armored vehicles in Europe. Secretary of State Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze plan to take results of the talks to their allies for approval. Baker and Shevardnadze met yesterday in New York City.

BEIJING (SEPT. 28) UPI - China's first law enabling citizens to sue government bodies goes into effect Oct. 1 and an official newspaper Friday called the measure a ''milestone'' in the country's outdated legal system.

Under the new administrative procedure law, citizens or organizations ''may take legal action when they feel wronged by a specific administrative order,'' the official English-language China Daily said.

The report described the law as a ''milestone'' in China's legal system and quoted legal officials as saying it would force government organs to ''act within legal limits.''

Senior legal officials vowed that all cases would be given a fair hearing and would not lead to recriminations.

''Peoples' courts shall not refuse to accept and hear administrative cases on account of their difficulty, fear of offending administrative organs or interference by outsiders,'' said Ma Yuan, vice-president of the Supreme Peoples' Court.

Western legal experts in Beijing expressed doubt as to whether China's typically wary and court-shy citizens would try to invoke the law in their defense.

''It remains to be seen how it will be put into practice,'' one expert said. ''But (the government) is certainly making serious efforts to make it functional.''

The state-run press has run frequent articles praising the administrative procedure law and exhorting units to study it to avoid abuses.

Mainland Chinese are reluctant to settle disputes in court and are even less accustomed to the concept of challenging the authoritarian government through established legal channels.

The new law is one of a series of Chinese measures to modernize the country's legal system in the wake of the chaotic 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, during which radical political alliances overshadowed the concept of legal rights.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Bulgarian President Zhelyu Zhelev told President Bush Friday that the political changes in Bulgaria are irreversible and his country ''is no longer a communist and totalitarian state.''

Zhelev, a philosopher who was elected last Aug. 1, made the remarks during a picture-taking session in the Oval Office.

''Our country has embarked firmly on the road to democracy,'' Zhelev said. ''And for our nation, this is a symbolic visit because the greatest democracy in the world is extending a helping hand to the youngest democracy in Europe.''

Bush responded: ''The American people are really excited about the changes. We're very anxious to see the democratic change solidified and continuing in a lot of countries, but we have a great respect for what you are trying to do. ''The changes in Eastern Europe have really captured the imagination of the American people,'' Bush said. ''Every ''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Top officials of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank are pleased that a high-level Soviet delegation attended this year's meeting but say Soviet membership in the international lending organizations remains a long way off.

The Kremlin's announcement earlier this year that it was interested in joining these bastions of capitalism raised eyebrows through much of the financial world.

IMF Managing Director Michel Camdessus said Thursday he was ''delighted'' by the presence of the five-person delegation, which was headed by Victor Geraschenko, chairman of the State Bank of the Soviet Union and Minister of Finance Valentin Pavlov.

''Last year who would have imagined we'd have a unified Germany and Soviet invitees,'' Camdessus said. ''History is moving very rapidly.''

Members of the IMF and World Bank are eligible for loans and expert advice from the institutions. Both commodities - money and advice - are desperately needed by the Soviet Union, which is trying to rebuild its collapsing economy.

Two Eastern European nations, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria, were admitted as members at this year's meeting.

The World Bank and IMF were asked to prepare an analysis of the Soviet economy at the last economic summit in Houston.

David Mulford, the Treasury Department's under secretary for international affairs, said the Bush administration ''has made clear our willingness to provide technical assistance'' to the Soviet Union.

Mulford said the administration is awaiting the results of the IMF- World Bank report, which is expected to be completed by the end of December.

''This report will mainly be on how we are working and the cooperation of the Soviets. It's not really passing judgment,'' Camdessus said earlier this week.

World Bank President Barber Conable said the study will provide a framework for the IMF and World Bank to determine whether the Soviet Union meets membership qualifications.

''It's my view that it won't come quickly,'' he said of Soviet membership.

Conable said the Soviet government has been ''politely'' interested in membership in the past, but has never broached the subject with the same ''sense of immenence'' as it has recently.

Earlier this week, Geraschenko told reporters he believed his delegation's participation in this year's meeting was constructive because it offered the change to rub elbows with international bankers and finance officials.

Many of those bankers, no doubt, are skeptical about the prospects of success for Soviet economic reform.

Conable said his institution is ''prepared to consider ways we can give technical support'' to the Soviet Union.

''We think there is a potential to be of use to Soviet society to help it dig its way out of the hole it is in,'' Conable said.

FAYETTEVILLE, NC (SEPT. 28) UPI - Eight tobacco dealers pleaded guilty to defrauding the federal government to obtain loans for Iraq and Egypt to purchase more than $1 million of tobacco.

The tobacco companies - six of them in North Carolina - could be ordered to repay the federal government more than $1 million.

The companies were charged with arranging for Iraq and Egypt to get loans backed by the federal Commodity Credit Corp. by falsely claiming those nations were buying pure U.S. tobacco from them.

But the companies really sold those countries a blend of American leaf and cheaper foreign tobacco.

The companies in the hearing also admitted Thursday that they did not deduct rebates they gave to foreign buyers from the amount of loans provided by the CCC, which should have backed only the amount the foreign nations paid for the tobacco.

U.S. District Judge Earl Britt fined the tobaco companies a total of $300,000 and ordered them to pay $1.1 million to the CCC if the loans are not repaid.

The charges stem from sales to Iraq and Egypt between 1986 and 1988.

Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., who chairs the House Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts, criticized the dealings of the eight leaf firms that serve as a conduit between the growers and the purchasers.

The extra payments to the foreign nations ''put resources in the hands of Iraqis that make them now better able to fight American soldiers,'' Rose said.

Rose also said he was angry about the ''skimpy'' fines against the tobacco companies.

''This is not justice. This is a slick deal,'' he told Friday's Winston-Salem Journal.

The companies and their fines and restitution orders were:

-James I. Miller Tobacco Co., Wilson, N.C., six counts, $150,000 in fines, $326 in restitution.

-W.A. Adams Co. Inc., Oxford, N.C., four counts, $40,000 in fines, $134,400 in restitution.

-Intabex USA Inc., Rocky Mount, N.C., four counts, $40,000 in fines, $344,424 in restitution.

-Carrington & Michaux Tobacco Co. Inc., Richmond, Va., one count, $10,000 fine $115,221 in restitution.

-A.C. Monk Inc., Farmville, N.C., two counts, $20,000 in fines, $128, 100 in restitution.

-Pitt Tobacco Co., Rocky Mount, N.C., two counts, $15,000 in fines.

-Casalee America Corp., Winston-Salem, N.C., one count, $10,000 fine, $67,000 in restitution.

WEST BERLIN (SEPT. 28) UPI - The newly-unified opposition Social Democratic Party Friday elected Oskar Lafontaine to challenge Chancellor Helmut Kohl in Dec. 2 all-German elections.

Only two of the nearly 500 delegates present voted against Lafontaine. Lafontaine had insisted on a secret vote instead of the traditional show of hand, so as to test the true level of support he commands within the party.

The SPD, the leading opposition in both East and West Germany will remain the largest opposition party after Oct. 3 German unification to the conservative-led government of Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Because elections will not be held until Dec. 2, Kohl, now West German chancellor, will automatically become the head of united German government.

''The SPD has won every (regional) election in West Germany this year, Lafontaine told delegates before he was confirmed as the SPD candidate. ''Others win opinion polls, we win elections,'' he said to loud cheering.

Lafontaine had been criticized earlier by East German members of the opposition party for what they regarded as his attempts to block Kohl's plans for swift German unification.

The majority of Germans interviewed by research institutes recently, said if national elections were held today, rather than Dec. 2 they would vote for the CDU and would want Kohl to remain chancellor.

The SPD hopes to eventually derive political benefits by placing social issues at the heart of its campaign program, at a time when East Germans are likely to feel the full blast of unification.

East Germany, which has been plunged virtually overnight in a free market system after 40 years of hardline Communism, has been hit by a crippling economic crisis, marked by a dramatic increase in unemployment levels.

The East German SPD was re-established last October, 43 years after Social Democrats - in what was then the Soviet-occupied zone of Germany - were forced to merge with the Communist party to form the Socialist Unity Party, which ruled East Germany with an iron fist until it was ousted last fall.

Thursday, less than one week before German unification, the East and West German Social Democratic parties merged into a single organization pledging to help the new Germany ''find its place in a peaceful Europe.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) UPI - Lawrence O'Brien, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee during the Watergate scandal that drove Richard Nixon out of office, died Thursday night, a spokeswoman said Friday.

A spokeswoman for Joseph Napolitan, a longtime friend of O'Brien's, said O'Brien died at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday night at New York Hospital at the age of 73, of complications resulting from cancer.

O'Brien also was commissioner of the National Basketball Association from 1975 until his retirement in 1985.

O'Brien, a consummate political strategist, was the mastermind in the presidential campaigns of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphrey. As party chairman he was caught in a vise that was pressed by liberals on one side and conservatives on the other.

His office in the Watergate building complex was the scene of the bungled break-in that eventually resulted in Nixon's resignation and the imprisonment of leading figures in the Republican administration.

There were many theories behind the break-in, which failed when a guard detected the presence of the burglars and caused them to be arrested and identified as hirelings of the Nixon administration. O'Brien said he believed the Nixon administration, campaigning for re- election against the Democrats' George McGovern, was trying to obtain information that would ruin the party and the chairman.

''It is as simple as that,'' O'Brien said.

O'Brien was born July 7, 1917, in Springfield, Mass., to Irish immigrants. His father was a Democratic Party leader in Springfield, exposing him to politics at an early age.

He attended night classes at Northeastern University in Boston to get his law degree. After serving in the Army in World War II, O'Brien worked for Rep. Foster Furcolo, D-Mass., and in 1952 he directed John Kennedy's successful campaign for the U.S. Senate. Kennedy put O'Brien in charge of his 1960 campaign in which Nixon was defeated in his first bid for the presidency.

Following Kennedy's assassination in 1963, O'Brien worked as a special assistant to Johnson and directed the LBJ campaign against Sen. Barry Goldwater in 1964. Johnson rewarded O'Brien by appointing him postmaster general in 1965.

As postmaster general, O'Brien was instrumental in preparing the report that took his department out of Cabinet status and made it a semi-public corporation.

When Robert F. Kennedy made his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination after Johnson had taken himself out of the race, O'Brien joined the slain president's brother's staff. After Robert Kennedy was assassinated in Los Angeles, O'Brien became Humphrey's campaign manager in his unsuccessful race against Nixon in 1968.

O'Brien became DNC chairman in 1970. The party, divided after the loss of the presidency to Nixon and deeply criticized as a result of anti-war riots during the nominating convention in Chicago, was in a shambles. The Vietnam War had become a major issue and the party was split between hawks and doves.

After McGovern's defeat in 1972, O'Brien stepped down as committee chairman. He worked on his autobiography, ''No Final Victories,'' published in 1974.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 28) UPI - Widespread selling and profit-taking pressured grain and soybean futures on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Midmorning prices were mixed but mostly lower in quiet trading.

The market had opened higher in a continuation of Thursday's rally, but soon turned lower as buying interest faded.

Favorable harvest conditions continued to pressure corn and soybeans. Although harvest activity picked up this week, country movement has been light as farmers hold out for higher prices.

The prospect of near-term export business also was supportive, but exporters reported little interest at midmorning.

Delivery notices for October soybean meal were heavier than expected which limited the gains in meal and soybean futures.

Wheat had early support from the quarterly grain stocks report which was considered bullish, but then retreated on profit-taking and liquidation ahead of the weekend.

Interior and Gulf basis levels were steady.

The midmorning prices:

SALT LAKE CITY (SEPT. 28) UPI - Mormon Church President Ezra Taft Benson, the 91-year-old spiritual leader to the world's 7.5 million Mormons, Friday ate for the first time since undergoing two brain surgeries within five days.

''He took his first solids in a week for breakfast this morning, so his appetite looks good. He is still in fair condition,'' church spokesman Don LeFevre.

Benson underwent surgery Sept. 19 to remove two blood clots, one on either side of his head, that had been causing severe headaches and difficulty in swallowing. He underwent surgery again Sept. 23 to drain fluid from his brain.

''He is sitting up periodically during the day and conversing,'' LeFevre said.

Benson, the 13th president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter- day Saints was named to the church's top leadership position Nov. 10, 1985, following the death of Spencer W. Kimball, who also suffered from subdural hematomas - build-ups of fluid inside the skull.

TORONTO (SEPT. 28) UPI - CT Financial Services Inc. said Friday it signed an agreement to pay $150 million for a majority stake in Rochester, N.Y.- based First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Rochester.

First Federal is a mutual savings and loan association with $5.6 billion in assets and employs 1,350 people at 65 retail banking offices in New York state.

John Richardson, executive vice-chairman of CT Financial, said as part of the proposed deal First Federal will be demutualized - depositors will no longer own the company - to a stock company.

CT Financial will retain 85 percent of the company and will allow depositors an opportunity to purchase up to 15 percent, he said.

The mutual conversion involves CT Financial paying $150 million into the treasury of First Federal, Richardson said.

Richardson said the proposed deal is not expected to close for up to six months due to its complexity and regulatory approvals required.

First Federal is a ''healthy thrift'', dating from 1981-1982 when a number of smaller, troubled thrifts were amalgamated, he said.

Richardson said First Federal's management team will remain in place.

CT Financial is a holding company whose main subsidiary, Canada Trust, provides a range of financial services to retail, trust and real estate sales customers at more than 500 branches in Canada.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (SEPT. 28) UPI - Police have cracked one of the world's biggest illegal rhino-horn and elephant-tusk operations, shutting off an Africa-to-Asia smuggling pipeline, officers announced Friday.

Police valued the tusks and horns at $2.73 million. Police arrested two Taiwanese citizens caught with 29 rhino horns and in a related swoop caught another Taiwanese and a South African who had seven tusks and allegedly tried to send 81 horns to Taiwan, said Capt. Pieter Lategan of the Endangered Species Protection Unit.

Lategan said the horns and tusks probably were sent from Malawi via Swaziland to South Africa to be processed in Taiwan for sale as aphrodisiacs and pain-killer powder, adding the smuggling operation was one of the biggest uncovered anywhere.

''We cut off this route to the Far East,'' Lategan said.

Rhino Foundation official and conservationist Clive Walker praised police for their ''brilliant'' work in uncovering the racket.

Police Maj. Gen. Herman Stadler said stiffer penalties than the customary fines and suspended jail terms were required to constitute ''a real deterrent.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) UPI - Larry O'Brien, the NBA commissioner who introduced the innovative salary cap that solidified the league's financial foundation, died Thursday night. He was 73.

A New York Hospital spokeswoman said Friday he died at about 6 p.m. EDT Thursday night. A spokeswoman for Joseph Napolitan, a longtime friend of O'Brien's, said the death resulted from complications from cancer.

O'Brien, who was elected commissioner in 1975 and served nine years, came to the NBA after compiling one of the longer resumes in government service.

He was the chairman of the Democratic National Committee during the Watergate scandal that drove Richard Nixon out of office. He was appointed Postmaster General and special assistant to the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. He ran the presidential campaigns of Kennedy, Johnson, Robert Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

During his tenure as commissioner the NBA absorbed four teams from the American Basketball Association, settled protracted labor problems with the players' union, struck lucrative television contracts and introduced anti-drug programs.

O'Brien succeeded Walter Kennedy as commissioner, and the league was on unsteady ground early in O'Brien's term. Attendance was down and a handful of teams were on the brink of collapse. The league was close to losing its standing as a major professional league.

DETROIT (SEPT. 28) UPI - The United Auto Workers union said Friday it expects to announce Monday that its members have overwhelmingly approved the new three-year labor pact reached with General Motors Corp. early last week.

While neither GM nor the UAW have disclosed partial voting results, many locals already have strongly endorsed the new pact, reached Sept. 17 after the original Sept. 14 deadline was extended.

''We hope to have an announcement by early Monday,'' UAW spokesman Reg McGhee said, adding that voting has been going very well.

Barring any sudden change in voting patterns, it could be the largest approval margin ever. In 1984, the last time the UAW chose to negotiate its contract first at GM, the pact barely won ratification with a 53 percent approval.

As of Friday, about half of the 155 UAW locals representing GM workers already cast their votes in favor of the pact, which the UAW will use as a ''pattern'' for 1990-93 labor contracts at Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.

The union is expected to take the GM pact to Ford first, which analysts say may want to trade some job security provisions for lower pension costs. But fitting the pact to Chrysler may be difficult, since top executives of the No. 3 carmaker have openly called it unaffordable.

The pact includes a $4-billion income security package backed by GM that makes it extremely costly for the giant carmaker to shrink its workforce of about 280,000 active workers - although industry experts believe GM will have a significantly smaller workforce by the time the pact expires in 1993.

The pact has won strong approval at locals that have traditionally opposed top UAW leaders, instead choosing to align themselves with a dissident movement called New Directions. Those include UAW Local 160 in Warren, Mich.; Local 276 in Arlington, Texas; and Local 1999 in Oklahoma City.

The agreement even received an 87.9 percent approval rate by members of UAW Local 653 in Pontiac, Mich., which was hit hard by several GM plant closings during the 1987-90 agreement.

That local still faces a one-year phaseout and eventual shutdown of an engine plant that will begin in May 1991, affecting 2,200 of its 9, 000 active workers.

''We like the national package, but we're not settled locally,'' UAW Local 653 President Dick Long said. ''The engine plant issue is still very much alive, and we have been negotiating for the past seven weeks with some progress.''

Long said that unlike several other locals, his members were given all of last weekend and four days to vote after being provided the contract highlights and chances to attend information sessions.

''This pact has also taken care of a lot of retirees and a lot of folks who just flat ran out of benefits, like those at our Fiero plant,'' Long said, adding his local membership also includes 6,000 retirees and 6,500 laid-off workers.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Push is rapidly getting close to shove as Congressional negotiators try to hammer out a fiscal 1991 budget. They doN'T have much time. The fiscal year begins Monday and automatic budget cuts will begin unless an agreement is reached. Attempts at reaching an accord recessed early this morning without movement on the critical tax issue. More meetings are scheduled for later today.

The Commerce Department is out with more signs of a slowing economy. The August list of leading economic indicators dropped one-point-two percent, the worst decline of the year and the largest since November of 1987. Seven of the 11 items making up the list were down in August. Analysts will now wait to see what September brings as the true impact of the Persian Gulf crisis becomes more evident.

Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu left Tokyo today heading for the United States, where he hopes to convince Americans that Japan is doing its share to end the Persian Gulf crisis. Kaifu meets with President Bush tomorrow and speaks to the U-N Children's Summit in New York on Sunday. His 12-day trip will also take him to the Middle East, where he'll discuss Japan's promise of two- BILLION-dollar in aid to front-line states in the crisis.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Sentences of life in prison have been handed down in the Philippines against a general and 15 soldiers convicted in the 1983 assassination of opposition political leader Benigno Aquino. The husband of Philippine President Corazon Aquino KEE'-noh was killed as he stepped off an airplane in Manila while returning from exile. His death sparked the civilian revolt that led to the ouster of Ferdinand Marcos and the election of his widow as president.

Cambodia's Vietnamese-backed government today made its third set of cabinet changes in two months. Official Phnom Penh radio reports that two provincial Communist Party officials were suspended for ''investigation.'' The broadcast didn't mention the cause of the investigation. The report also says the trade minister was retired and nine other senior party and government officials were transfered in a shakeup intended- quote- ''to enhance the efficiency of the party-state leadership.''

South Africa Black leader Nelson Mandela is planning his first visit to the Soviet Union. The African National Congress says Mandela will leave next month on a trip that will also take him to India and Australia. TORONTO (SEPT. 28) UPI - More than 15,400 striking Canadian steelworkers continued to man picket lines Friday, almost two months after walking out, as talks aimed at reaching settlements with Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. and Stelco Inc. remained stalled.

The members of the United Steelworkers of America went on strike Aug. 1. Provincial mediators have met with the various parties several times and are in regular contract with them, a Ministry of Labor spokesman said.

He said mediators are expected to meet separately with representatives of the union and Algoma in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, next week to see if there are grounds to resume talks. The two sides broke off talks Aug. 24.

About 5,400 steelworkers are employed at Algoma, a subsidiary of Canada's largest steel maker, the Hamilton, Ontario-based Dofasco Inc.

On Thursday, talks between the steelworkers' Local 1005 and Stelco's Hilton Works broke off after six weeks. The local represents some 6,000 of the 10,000 Stelco workers off the job in Ontario, Quebec and Alberta.

Provincial mediator Trevor Stevenson said that a great deal of progress had been made but that ''several major monetary and language issues still have to be resolved.''

The union is seeking ''significant'' wage hikes, pension improvements and job-security guarantees against contracting out.

Talks on new contracts between the union and Algoma and Stelco began in May.

ALBANY, NY (SEPT. 28) UPI - A couple found out on moving day that the key didn't fit the lock of their new home because the house never belonged to the people who sold it.

Police said Geraldine and Carmen Sharpe were preparing to move into what they thought was their new home when they found it was occupied by its true owners.

Police said Elaine and Carlton Phoenix sold the Sharpes a fraudulent rental contract for $1,250 that included an option to buy the house.

It did not take long for the Sharpes, who did not consult with an attorney before trying to buy the house, to find out the Phoenixes never owned it.

They contacted police, who promptly arrested the Phoenixes and charged them with grand larceny in connection with the flimflam.

There is no word yet on whether the Sharpes will be able to recover their payment.

LONDON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Stock prices weakened in light trading on the London International Stock Exchange Friday amid growing fears of renewed Persian Gulf tensions and soaring oil prices, while the Frankfurt Stock Exchange continued to move lower.

In London, the blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 9.1 points Thursday, fell 18.9 points to 1,990.2. The narrower top 30 industrial average fell 12.4 points to 1,535.7.

Volume amounted to around 403 million shares, down from the 428 million that changed hands Thursday.

Stocks opened sharply lower, with investors taking their cue from the falling Tokyo market and from midday expirations of futures and options contracts.

But the sell-off was cemented when prices for Brent crude oil for November delivery began to push toward the $40-a-barrel barrier, analysts said.

Imperial Chemical Industries, one of Britain's bellweather stocks, tumbled 36 cents to $14.58.

Credit Suisse issued a report downgrading its profit forecast for the company. Analysts said the chemical group's woes came about as a result of lower industry demand and higher prices for raw materials.

The ICI news pushed the market lower, with blue-chip issues lower across the board.

Among some of the blue chips, Glaxo fell 36 cents to $13.10, Cadbury lost 16 cents to $5.52 and United Biscuits fell 23 cents to $5.54.

Beleaguered leisure group Brent Walker fell 41 cents to $1.87 on continued controversy surrounding a money wrangle with Grand Metropolitan over bookmaker William Hill. Grand Met and Brent Walker jointly own the company.

Stocks fell sharply on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange in active trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which lost 27.91 points Thursday, fell another 19.19 points to 1,334.89. Friday's trading translated into a 1.4 percent decrease.

Traders said the latest sell-off on the Tokyo Stock Exchange - where the Nikkei Average tumbled 788.41 points to 20,983.50, its lowest level in 3 1/2 years - encouraged investors in Frankfurt to sell stocks.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) UPI - Sales of stock, bond and income mutual funds totaled $13.4 billion in August, the Investment Company Institute reported Friday.

The figure compared with total sales in July of $12.5 billion and sales of $11.7 billion in August 1989.

Assets of all mutual funds were $1.04 trillion in August, down from $1.055 trillion in July.

Assets of long-term funds decreased to $554.7 billion in August from $586.5 billion in July. Assets of short-term funds increased to $485 billion in August from $468 billion in July.

Sales of stock mutual funds totaled $5.1 billion in August, down from $5.9 billion in July.

Sales of bond and income mutual funds totaled $8.3 billion, compared with $6.6 billion in July.

Total redemptions were $9.2 billion in August, compared with $8.3 billion in July. Equity fund redemptions were $4.6 billion, compared with $4.3 billion in July. Bond and income fund redemptions were $4.6 billion compared with $4.0

billion in July.

Exchanges into stock funds were $3.9 billion, while exchanges out of stock funds were $7 billion. Exchanges into bond funds were $2 billion, and exchanges out of bond funds were $4.3 billion. Exchanges are investments redeemed from one fund and moved to another fund in the same fund group or complex.

''Mutual fund shareholders reacted with calm to the sharp declines in stock and bond prices in the month of August,'' said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute. ''About $2.6 billion in assets (on a net basis) left equity funds, while bond funds actually enjoyed net inflow of about $1.4 billion.

''Despite generally adverse market conditions, it appears many mutual fund investors are continuing to take a long-term view. However, the drop in values of bond, and especially equity portfolios, caused a substantial shrinkage of long-term fund assets,'' he said. ''Conversely, short-term funds benefited not only from transfers of monies from stock and bond funds, but also from continuing high net sales. As a result, assets of short-term funds reached their highest level ever.''

The Washington-based institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds monthly and weekly.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) UPI - The largest gathering ever of world leaders this weekend promises tactical headaches, gridlock nightmares and a whopping overtime bill for the Big Apple's police department.

Hundreds of city cops were expected work around the clock with federal and foreign law enforcement officials to guard the more than 60 heads of state - kings, presidents and prime ministers - in town for the United Nation's World Summit for Children.

''It's a headache, no two ways about it,'' said Deputy Chief William O'Sullivan, commanding officer of the police department's intelligence division.

Among those expected to attend the summit were President Bush, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, President Thurgut Ozal of Turkey, and the ousted emir of Kuwait, Sheik Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah.

O'Sullivan said authorities were especially concerned about some 20 high-risk heads of state, declining to name exactly who, saying only that a ''significant number'' were Arab leaders.

O'Sullivan said the crisis in the Middle East definitely led to beefed up security.

''We have prioritized people for their threat potential. There's an awful lot of factors involved,'' the chief said, adding, ''I can't discuss specifics.''

Some 50 officials from the department's traffic, intelligence and patrol units met Wednesday with authorities from the State Department, FBI, and Secret Service to coordinate efforts to guard the world leaders, said Assistant Chief Michael Walsh, commanding officer of the Manhattan south patrol borough.

The police force in midtown and lower Manhattan, where most of the activities will take place, will be doubled over the weekend and nearly tripled on Monday in accordance with the goings-on at the U.N., Walsh said.

The State Department was expected only to partially reiumburse the city for the overtime cost of adding 800 extra officers on Saturday, 950 added cops on Sunday and 1,600 extra officers on Monday, Walsh said.

Among the special units on alert throughout the weekend was the department's bomb squad unit, O'Sullivan said.

Walsh said he did not know how much the money the massive security detail and traffic control operation would cost the department, but a spokesman for Mayor David Dinkins said the bill was sure to run in the millions of dollars.

Some of the officers will ''freeze'' the streets wherever Bush and his 40-car motorcade plans to go - an action authorities said will mean delays for both pedestrians and drivers throughout the weekend.

Inspector John Murphy, commanding officer of the department's traffic division said drivers should expect delays in lower and midtown Manhattan as well as on the streets surrounding the U.N., the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, where Bush was expected to be staying, and the Jacob Javits Convention Center.

Pedestrians may run into their own hassles maneurving around the 19 demonstrations police said they have been notified were being planned for the weekend.

Officials in the East African nation of Djibouti say suspected pro-Iraqi terrorists threw three grenades into two crowded cafe terraces near a French military base today. The nine-year-old son of a French military officer was killed and 16 others were wounded. Djibouti is a former French colony.

Budget talks recessed very early this morning without bi-partisan negotiators agreeing on a final deficit-cutting package. House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois says- ''We're so close and yet so far.'' He says negotiators will use today's talks to- as he put it- ''wrap this thing up.''

Recessionary fears and higher oil prices combined to drive seven of the nation's 11 major economic indicators lower in August The result was the worst decline of the year. The Commerce Department index was down one-point-two percent, the biggest drop since just after the 1987 stock crash.

Lawrence O'Brien, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee during the Watergate scandal, is dead at the age of 73. A spokeswoman for Joseph Napolitan, a longtime friend of O'Brien's, says O'Brien died at early last night at New York Hospital of complications resulting from cancer.

LONDON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Five major oil companies were cleared Friday of charges of price fixing by the Office of Fair Trading, which said they have not taken advantage of the Persian Gulf crisis to reap excessive profits.

Shell, Esso, Texaco, British Petroleum and Mobil have not conspired to set prices at gasoline pumps since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 and the producers' profits are normal for current conditions in a competitive market, according to a report on a month-long investigation conducted by the office.

''Excess profits do not appear to be generated at retail, wholesale or, to any great extent, refining stages of the industry,'' said the report issued by Sir Gordon Borrie, the agency's director general.

''Neither the absolute levels of U.K. petrol price nor the way they react to international price changes has been unreasonable over the period we studied.''

Esso announced its sixth price increase since Aug. 2 on Thursday, when it raised the price of premium gas to $4.50 per imperial gallon, which is one-fifth larger than a standard gallon. Shell was scheduled to follow suit Monday.

Before the Mideast crisis, the per-gallon cost was about $3.46.

Borrie made inquiries into the petrol-pricing policies of the five major companies operating in the United Kingdom after they raised prices as a result of tensions in the Persian Gulf. The price of a barrel of Brent crude oil has doubled in the past two months.

In the report, which covered price changes through Sept. 7, Borrie noted''windfall profits'' have been made by oil companies at the production stage, buthe this was normal for a competitive market and was not the result of any failure of competition within the industry.

He said it was a matter for general public policy, not competition policy, whether steps should be taken to moderate price rises or redistribute windfall profits through price controls, voluntary restraints or taxation.

The Office of Fair Trading's report came after the industry was cleared by the Monopolies and Mergers Commission earlier this year.

''My purpose has not been to duplicated the MMC investigation but to see how far the findings continued to hold good in the exceptional conditions created since the crisis broke out,'' he said.

No significant changes have occurred in the structure of the industry since the commission's findings, which showed that of more than 70 wholesalers with 11 refineries in the United Kingdom none had a market share of more than 25 percent, according to Borrie.

PARIS (SEPT. 28) UPI - Suspected pro-Iraqi guerrillas hurled three grenades into two crowded cafe terraces near a French military base in Africa, killing a young French boy and injuring at least 17 other persons, officials said Friday.

Two men walked to the Cafe de Paris in the Red Sea port of Djibouti Thursday night and threw two of the grenades into the terrace packed with French military personnel and their families, said Anne Suard, first secretary at the French Embassy. The two sped off in a waiting taxi driven by an accomplice.

France maintains a permanent 4,000-man military garrison in Djibouti on the Gulf of Aden. The facility has served as a staging area for French military personnel on their way to the Gulf.

Witnesses said one of the grenades killed the 9-year-old son of an army non-commissioned officer and wounded at least 17 other persons, four of them seriously. The other grenade tossed into the Cafe de Paris did not explode.

A third grenade that also failed to go off was found shortly after the explosion on the terrace of the L'Historil cafe several hundred feet from the Cafe de Paris, witnesses said.

Suard said that 15 of the 17 persons injured were French citizens.

President Francois Mitterrand expressed ''horror'' at the attack but said he was sure French forces would face up to the terror threat ''with determination and dignity.''

''Learning of the cowardly attack of which several members of the French forces and their families have been victims, I want to express all the horror such an act arouses in me,'' he said in a message to the commander of French forces in Djibouti.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the attack and the Foreign Ministry Spokesman declined to speculate who was responsible.

But official sources said they suspected pro-Iraqi guerrillas were responsible for the attack.

''Obviously we know what is hidden behind this attack,'' said one source.

A pro-Iraqi guerrilla leader, Palestine Liberation Front chief Mohammed Abul Abbas, this week threatened in an interview with Le Figaro newspaper to mount terrorist actions against the United States and Western European countries.

A military source said the grenades thrown Thursday night were Soviet-made, but no further details on them was available. All military personnel were ordered to return to their barracks. But Suard said no special security precautions had been taken by Djibouti authorities.

''Friday is a day off here, all is normal. People have gone to the country as usual,'' she said.

One of the French soldiers, who was injured in the leg by a grenade fragment, sought to pursue the assailants. But they fired several shots at him to cover their escape, a bystander told Antenne-2 television.

French radio commentators said the latest attack was an evident attempt to intimidate the French, who have sent an armada of 14 ships to the Gulf.

President Francois Mitterrand ordered 4,000 troops to Saudi Arabia following an assault by Iraqi troops on the French ambassador's residence in Kuwait City Sept. 14 in which three French citizens were seized.

Djibouti obtained independence from France in 1977.

The attack came just hours after the Defense Ministry announced that the aircraft carrier ''Clemenceau'' will return to its home port of Toulon from the Gulf region.

The Clemenceau was pulled out after landing its cargo of helicopters at the Saudi port of Yanbu to back up the French ground force, defense ministry officials explained.

Gen. Claude Gautier, commander of the French forces in Djibouti, said last month French forces would have to be alert against terrorist threats.

''Every time France has intervened militarily in the world or shown its strength, terrorists have thrown bombs.''

CAIRO, EGYPT (SEPT. 28) UPI - Farida al-Naccash, an opposition political leader, arrived at Cairo airport in plenty of time to catch a plane to Amman, Jordan, for a pan-Arab conference to protest U.S. policy in the Persian Gulf.

The state security police were determined, however, that she miss the flight, she says.

''They checked my passport even before I got into the terminal, and then they would not let me in,'' she said in an interview a week after she and another opposition leader were prevented from going to Amman for the controversial anti-American conference. ''They told me to get in the car and go home.

''When I asked why, they said to me, You know why.''

Al-Naccash, a member of the National Progressive Unionist party, is one of the few vocal critics in Egypt of President Hosni Mubarak's pro- Western stance in the gulf and the incident, diplomats say, shows dissent in Egypt at this critical time is frowned upon.

But they also say al-Naccash is a minority, and most Egyptians support Mubarak's decision to send 14,000 Egyptian troops to the gulf region to serve in a U.S.-led multinational force to counter Iraqi aggression.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has attempted to villify Mubarak as a traitor to the Arab cause, but his tirades have largely fallen on deaf ears in Egypt.

''Even on a bad day the opposition to Mubarak is never more than 10 percent of the population,'' said one Western diplomat in Cairo. ''It's always hard to say what public opinion is in Egypt, but on this one he has the people behind him. There's really no opposition to speak of on this issue.''

Leaders of most of Egypt's opposition parties have come out in support of Mubarak's gulf policy and there have been none of the pro-Iraqi demonstrations in Egypt that have been common in other North African Arab states.

''I would say over 90 percent of the Egyptians support President Mubarak in this crisis situation,'' said Ibrahim Farag of the Neo Wafd Party, the largest opposition in Egypt to the ruling National Democratic Party.

''We have come out to declare several times we are backing the president on his foreign policy and Arab policy,'' Farag said in an interview in his spartan office at party headquarters. "On this issue, we are a united people."

Mubarak's support within Egypt is watched carefully by the State Department in Washington, ever conscious of America's spotty track record of backing leaders in crisis-prone regions only to have them fall at the hands of their own people.

''The shah of Iran is one glaring example, (Philippines President Ferdinand) Marcos is another,'' said another Western diplomat, who asked not to be identified.

Former Egyptian President Anwar Sadat gained the admiration of the United States and Western world when he signed a peace treaty with Israel in 1979, but he was assassinated only two years later by Moslem fundamentalists while he watched a military parade.

"Sadat was generally popular but he struck a deep chord in the fundamentalists, not only in Egypt but throughout the Arab world, when he made peace with the Israelis,'' said the Western diplomat. ''This is not the same situation at all. Mubarak does not have much to worry about from his own people.''

Sadat's vice president, Mubarak was appointed president following the assassination and was elected to a new six-year term in 1987 by a better than 90 percent margin.

Diplomats and opposition leaders say Mubarak has faced discontent with his domestic policies, particularly his attempts to revive Egypt's stagnating economy.

''We differ with him on internal questions,'' said the Wafd party's Farag. ''We protest the system that favors the one party and call for true democratic elections. But on the gulf situation, we are united.''

Al-Naccash readily admits there is little oppositon to Mubarak's gulf policy, but thinks it may grow as the crisis drags on.

''The Egyptian economy is seriously influenced by the gulf and I think the middle class (that supports Mubarak) will start to think differently when they are forced to change their lifestyles,'' she said. ''With time, things change.''

But for now Mubarak, who has been receiving a steady stream of international leaders in his summer residence in Alexandria, enjoys wide support within his country and in the world arena.

The Bush administration, grateful to have a regional leader who strongly supports the U.S. position in the gulf, has moved to ease some of the impact of the crisis on the Egyptian economy by attempting to have Congress forgive the country's $7.1 billion arms debt.

''Mubarak is not infallible, but obviously he is enjoying himself,'' said the Western diplomat, who has been in Cairo for several years. ''The economy may daunt him, but this kind of crisis he is very good at and it shows.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The United States made its first grant for development assistance to the Soviet Union Friday with the commitment of $9.8 million in humanitarian aid for survivors of the December 1988 Armenian earthquake, which killed at least 25,000 people.

The Agency for International Development will funnel the money through three different groups of private voluntary relief organizations to provide medical treatment and pay for vocational and medical training in Armenia.

The devastating earthquake, the worst to hit the region in 80 years, leveled more than 50 cities and villages and damaged about 100 more, leaving tens of thousands of people homeless.

Armenian President Levon Ter-Petrosyan expressed concern at a State Department signing ceremony that Moscow's earthquake aid to his republic ''will fail and be aborted'' because of ''the economic crisis in the Soviet Union.''

Although AID gave $7 million in disaster aid to Armenia immediately after the earthquake, the new agreement marks the first time that a U.S. agency will provide development assistance to the Soviet Union. Armenia is one of 15 Soviet republics.

DETROIT (SEPT. 28) UPI - Volvo North America Corp. announced Friday several organizational and management changes and designated a successor to Bjorn Ahlstrom as president and chief executive officer.

Ahlstrom, 56, will resign Dec. 31, 1991. He will be succeeded by Albert R. Dowden, who joined Volvo North America in 1974 as general counsel.

Dowden, 48, is now executive vice president. He will begin assuming his new responsibilities Oct. 1 to ensure a smooth transition, the company said.

In New York, a spokesman for Volvo North America, a wholly owned unit of AB Volvo in Sweden, said Ahlstrom decided to resign because the restructuring essentially leaves him with no power, since the Volvo North American units that had been reporting to him will now report to their respective product companies in Sweden.

''The reorganization leaves him with a role he is not comfortable with,'' the company official said, who noted that Ahlstrom will continue to represent Volvo on the boards of several unit companies and operating affiliates, including the one holding a 26 percent stake in car-rental firm Hertz Corp. through parent company Park Ridge Corp.

The spokesman said the changes were being made because of Volvo's alliance with French carmaker Renault, an agreement announced in February to lower the cost of future product development of cars, trucks and buses by joining their technical and industrial skills.

Under that arrangement, which is to scheduled to begin early next year, Volvo intends to acquire 20 percent in a parent company established by Renault, while Renault will acquire 10 percent of parent company Volvo and 25 percent of Volvo's car operations.

On Thursday, the Swedish government approved the alliance. The French government and the European Community have yet to approve it. No U.S. approval is required.

Under the restructuring, Joseph L. Nicolato, president of Volvo Cars North America, will report directly to the president of Volvo Car Corp. in Sweden. Thage Berggren, president of Volvo GM Heavy Truck Corp., will report to the president of Volvo Truck Corp. in Sweden.

Volvo North America, which company officials say is profitable, moved its headquarters to New York last July, although its car operations are still headquartered in Rockleigh, N.J.

Volvo's U.S. car sales through the first eight months of 1990 stood at 64,646 units, down from 72,275 cars sold during the comparable 1989 period.

AB Volvo, headquartered in Gothenburg, Sweden, is a $15 billion industrial group that also has business interests in the aerospace, marine, industrial construction, food and pharmaceutical fields.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - In a half-empty meeting room, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held its only hearing Friday on the treaty covering one of the most important events of the 20th century, the post-war reunification of Germany.

Only five of the panel's 19 members appeared to question State Department legal expert Robert Zoellick on the pact and perhaps the most controversial topic was whether President Bush even had to ask for the Senate's approval.

But Zoellick and committee members used the occasion to note the treaty's importance, both as a legal document and as a milestone, even though there will be one Germany Oct. 3 no matter what the Senate does.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the committee, tentatively scheduled a committee vote on the agreement Tuesday in hopes of getting the treaty to the Senate floor in time for German reunification.

''History in our century has been dominated by two overarching events - successive world wars in the first half, and throughout the second half a great geopolitical rift which threatened to destroy life on our planet. The treaty before us today marks an end to both of these major events,'' Pell said.

Added Zoellick: ''The settlement marks the achievement of a long- standing goal of American foreign policy: the attainment of a united, democratic, sovereign Germany. ... This is the triumph of over 40 years of labor.''

The treaty, submitted to the Senate this week, was signed Sept. 12 by the four occupying powers from World War II - the United States, the Soviet Union, Great Britain and France - as well as West and East Germany.

Key provisions end four-power rights over Germany and Berlin and confine the united Germany to the borders of the two current German states.

Soviet forces would have to withdraw from what it now East Germany by 1994 while U.S., British and French troops would remain in Berlin through 1994 at the request of the German government.

The united Germany would remain in NATO, but following the withdrawal of Soviet troops, the treaty would bar NATO from stationing nuclear weapons or non-German NATO forces in what had been East German territory.

The Germans also renounced aggressive war and any intention to manufacture, possess, or control nuclear, biological or chemical weapons, and pledged to reduce their combined armed forces from the current 600,000 to 370,000.

PARIS (SEPT. 28) UPI - Suspected pro-Iraqi guerrillas hurled three grenades into two crowded outdoor cafes near a French military base in Africa, killing a young French boy and injuring 17 other people, officials said Friday.

Two men walked to the Cafe de Paris in the Red Sea port of Djibouti Thursday evening and threw two of the grenades into the terrace packed with French military personnel and their families, said Anne Suard, first secretary at the French Embassy. A third grenade also failed to go off. It was found a short time later after the explosion, lying on the terrace of the L'Historil Cafe, several hundred feet from the Cafe de Paris, witnesses said.

Suard said 15 French citizens and one Djiboutian were wounded. A 17th person, of German nationality, also was wounded in the blast, said Gen. Claude Gautier commander of French forces at the sand-swept former French colony.

Gautier also said unspecified measures would be taken to beef up security for the 4,000 French soldiers based at Djibouti and their 2,000 dependents living with them.

Djibouti police found the taxi used in the attack Friday abandoned some 20 miles southwest of the East African capital, Interior Minister Khaireh Allaleh Hared said.

Officers also found the original driver of the taxi who said he had been tied up and left some 12 miles southwest of Djibouti. The driver said four gunmen commandeered the taxi from him in front of a bar some three hours before the attack.

''Exceptional means have been put in place to find the wrongdoers,'' the minister said. For the moment ''no hypothesis is favored'' and ''no track will be neglected,'' said Hared.

President Francois Mitterrand expressed ''horror'' at the attack but said he was sure French forces would face up to the terror threat ''with determination and dignity.''

The politically sensitive issue of changing Social Security has reportedly been raised as Congressional negotiators try to come up with a 1991 budget that will work. WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Activist groups asked a federal judge Friday to block the launch of the space shuttle Discovery, claiming the nuclear- powered Ulysses solar probe aboard the spaceplane poses a public hazard.

The Foundation for Economic Trends, the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice and the Christic Institute asked U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch to issue a preliminary injunction barring the long-awaited launch, now set for Oct. 6.

The groups argued the launch would endanger the public because the Ulysses probe contains 24 pounds of highly dangerous radioactive plutonium fuel that could be released if an accident occurred.

''After the Challenger explosion and the parade of NASA mishaps over the last several months, the public has every right to question NASA's assertions of safety,'' said Jeremy Rifkin of The Foundation on Economic Trends.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration should delay the flight to equip Ulysses with an advanced solar power system to replace the plutonium reactor, Rifkin said.

NASA has until Tuesday to respond in court. A space agency spokesman referred questions to attorney Sara Najjar, who was not immediately available.

If the Ulysses is not launched by Oct. 23, it will be delayed for more than a year to wait for the planets and the sun to be in the right places again.

Because rockets are not powerful enough to boost the 850-pound probe out of the solar system, Ulysses must be fired to distant Jupiter to use the giant planet's gravity to fling it out the solar system and back toward the south pole of the sun.

Ulysses was built by the European Space Agency to fly over the poles of the sun in an unprecedented mission to conduct the first three dimensional study of Earth's star.

Because it must operate at distances of up to 500 million miles from the sun, Ulysses is equipped with a 124-pound radioisotope thermoelectric generator, or RTG, loaded with 24 pounds of highly radioactive plutonium 238 dioxide to provide about 300 watts of electrical power.

For years, NASA said RTGs were the only power choice for deep space missions and solar power systems would be too big to be launched.

NASA now admits an advanced solar power system could be used for Ulysses but its addition would delay Ulysses' launch for years and push the cost far beyond the current $750 million.

In October 1989, NASA successfully launched the RTG-powered Galileo probe to explore Jupiter. Anti-nuclear groups tried to prevent that launch but a federal judge in Washington dismissed the action.

Rifkin said the groups may be successful this time because of a series of hydrogen fuel leaks that have grounded the space shuttle fleet since April, highlighting problems at NASA.

The hydrogen leaks have frustrated NASA officials, who have been trying to counter criticism of the space agency that began when the Hubble Space Telescope's embarrassing flaw was found.

The United States has launched 22 previous spacecraft equipped with RTGs, including the four Pioneer and Voyager deep space probes, the two Viking Mars landers, five Apollo lunar landing modules and the Galileo probe.

In three cases, launch failures or in-flight mishaps resulted in RTGs inadvertantly re-entering Earth's atmosphere. Radiation was released in only one such incident, after which RTGs were redesigned to survive re- entry intact. Since then, the U.S. record has been perfect.

Nonetheless, anti-nuclear activists claim government agencies withheld safety data about Galileo's RTGs and the space agency underestimated the odds of an accidental plutonium release.

NASA claims an exhaustive $50 million test program conducted in the wake of the 1986 Challenger disaster proved the compact generators would survive any credible shuttle disaster.

VATICAN CITY (SEPT. 28) UPI - Pope John Paul II warned Friday that the risk of war hangs over humanity and said ''our very future is at stake.''

The pope showed his anxiety over the situation created by the Persian Gulf crisis during a mass in St. Peter's Basilica commemorating his immediate predecessors, Popes Paul VI and John Paul I.

He led prayers for world peace ''at this moment in which the risk of war seems to hang over humanity and murderous violence is spreading.

''We are all profoundly aware that the peaceful coexistence of men is at stake and our very future is at stake,'' he said.

John Paul told the congregation that at the same time they were praying for his dead predecessors, ''we invoke for the world the gift of true peace, to this end asking their intercession with the Lord, the prince of peace.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Army announced the deactivation Friday of the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Wash., eliminating about 7,900 military jobs and 347 civilian and military support positions in a budget-cutting move.

President Bush's fiscal 1991 budget proposal called for deactivating two Army divisions: the 9th Infantry at Fort Lewis and the 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas., for a savings of $1.2 billion.

The 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood was deactivated earlier this year.

In deactivating the 9th (Motorized) Infantry Division, the Army said it is setting up a separate motorized brigade at Fort Lewis and continuing work to move the 7th (Light) Infantry Division from Fort Ord, Calif., to Fort Lewis.

The Army said the deactivation of the 9th Infantry Division would eliminate approximately 7,900 military jobs from Fort Lewis by the end of fiscal 1992.

In addition, it said, the action will result in the reduction of approximately 226 civilian and 121 military-support jobs from a total civilian workforce at Fort Lewis of 3,842.

WAGAH, PAKISTAN (SEPT. 28) UPI - Kulbir Singh Babrah is still hopping mad that the Indian bureaucrats in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad who refused to help him evacuate his Filipina wife and their three children to India.

''They refused to airlift my wife and my sister-in-law because they are not Indian citizens,'' said Babrah, 30, who until the invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2 had been a group sales manager for a private company based in the tiny emirate.

Babrah, an Indian citizen who is born and raised in Kuwait, eventually left the region with his family in their 1989 Toyoto Cressida, half-a-dozen suitcases strapped to the top luggage rack.

On Friday afternoon, Babrah and his family crossed the Indo-Pakistan border at Wagah, about 20 miles southeast of Lahore, along with about 115 other refugees fleeing the Gulf region.

Before crossing into India Babrah described his attempts to evacuate his family by air.

He said, he and his family reached Baghdad from Kuwait on Sept. 6 and contacted Indian diplomats and Air India officials to make arrangements for evacuation to India.

But Babrah said, he discovered passage to India was not free, that Indian citizens were required to pay for tickets in cash or sign a bond agreement so that their bank account in India could be debited the amount of the ticket.

''All other governments have airlifted their citizens free of charge, '' Babrah said.

Babrah's life savings are stuck in a Kuwaiti bank, so he did not have sufficient funds to cover the price of the tickets. Also, he did not have a bank account in India, which was required before he could fill out a bond form.

But the fact that Indian officials refused to airlift his Filipina wife, Evelyn, 30, and her sister, Emmalinda, 26, ruled out that option anyway.

''I wish I could have taken that guy's name in Baghdad,'' said Babrah, still fuming over the incident. ''He said I could take my kids but not my wife. It should not have been this way. I am at the point where I could give up my Indian citizenship.''

Babrah joined a group of about 115 other refugees and in a convoy of 47 cars drove from Baghdad through Turkey, Iran and Pakistan.

Most of the refugees were from Bangaldesh, which until the invasion of Kuwait had 75,000 citizens working in Kuwait and 30,000 in Iraq.

So far about 48,000 of them have returned to Bangaldesh.

''The rest are being airlifted,'' Nasina Haider Mahbub, a first secretary of the Bangladesh High Commission, said at the border Friday.

She said the 1,250-mile journey to the Indo-Pakistan border took about one month and that at least another five days would be required for the convoy to reach Bangladesh.

Maj. Danyal Naveed Ahmad, commander of the Lahore camp for Persian Gulf refugees, said Pakistan's national logistics cell, a branch of the army, provided food, boarding, lodging, medical assistance, security and car repairs for the refugees while they were in Pakistan.

He said Friday's group was the third batch of refugees to cross from Pakistan into India since the crisis erupted.

''By the time they reached Pakistan they are physically and psychologically shattered,'' Ahmad said at the border. ''Because they have left their life-long earnings and belongings back in Kuwait and they have no way of getting them back.''

Refugees at Wagah border said they were relieved when they arrived in Pakistan last week.

''We are very happy,'' said Dr. Kumar Swamy, an Indian from the southern city of Bangalore. ''We feel like we are in our own country.''

Swamy said he fled Kuwait with his wife and 6-year-old son after living in the kingdom for the past five years.

''We had to leave our belongings,'' he said. ''And we have a lot of money, all our savings, stuck in Kuwait.''

Swamy said his group encountered other refugees who also were suffering.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Illinois Supreme Court Friday ruled 3-year-old twins cannot be forced to undergo tests to determine whether they are suitable bone marrow donors for their dying 12-year-old half-brother.

The high court upheld a lower court ruling that said forcing James and Allison Curran of Elk Grove Village to undergo compatibility testing would be an unacceptable invasion of their privacy.

The decision came in the case of Jean-Pierre Bosze of Hoffman Estates, who is dying from a rare form of leukemia. The youngster's father, Tamas, sued, trying to force Nancy Curran, the mother of twins he fathered, to allow her children to undergo compatibility testing.

Curran's attorney, Beverly Pekala, and Bosze's lawyer, Edward Jordan, said the high court upheld a Cook County judge's ruling and that a written opinion would be filed later.

An obviously disappointed Jordan said time is running out for Jean- Pierre.

''It's apparent that Nancy's legal case was stronger than ours but it's also clear to me that her moral case has no basis at all,'' Jordan said. ''The difference between moral and legal reasons are very great. While she may have mounted a good legal position I do not think she's established a good moral position in any way, shape or form.''

Both attorneys had said there was no precedent in the nation in this type of case and Pekala had argued the forced donation of body parts would be a dangerous first.

Curran said during lengthy hearings on the case she sympathized with the plight of the boy, who turns 13 on Sunday, but did not want to risk any danger to her twins.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 28) UPI - Reinaldo Figueredo, Venezuela's foreign minister, said Friday that ''concerted action'' between oil-producing and large-scale consumers is needed to put a lid on rising oil prices and avoid an energy crisis.

In an interview with United Press International, the minister praised President Bush's decision to tap the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve but stressed all industrialized nations should start using their oil stockpiles.

''We most certainly agree with President Bush on this matter. But now it is important to see if all the other large consumer nations also start using their reserves, if the International Energy Agency goes along,'' said Figueredo, an economist.

In Paris, the IEA asked Friday that its 21 member countries ready their reserves for possible use.

''If we want to avoid an energy crisis, then we must make a concerted effort to avoid it,'' added Figueredo, speaking for his country, Latin America's largest oil exporter. Venezuela has raised daily production by 25 percent from 2 million barrels, reacting to the shortage caused by the Persian Gulf crisis.

The minister added that ''if the large developed nations would dip into their oil inventories, they could contribute towards stabilizing oil prices.''

In the process, this would serve to lighten the economic load that oil-needy underdeveloped nations have to shoulder, he said.

Figueredo said that Venezuela was among those countries that sought to increase output once the Middle East crisis broke. ''But we did so institutionally, within the framework of the Organization of Petroleum exporting Countries,'' he added.

''The producer countries within OPEC sought an institutional framework in order to increase our own depleted inventories. We knew that once the 4 1/2 million barrels of oil from Kuwait and Iraq stopped flowing, there would be a sharp increase in demand because no matter what we might do to complement the gap it would not be enough.

''If our inventories rose, it would have served to maintain the consumer nation inventories. ... This would have a noticeable effect on stabilizing oil prices,'' Figueredo explained.

The minister played a pivotal role at a late August OPEC meeting in Vienna, where members gave OPEC nations that could increase their production the green light to do so.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (SEPT. 28) UPI - A government plan for private ownership of businesses would give foreigners the opportunity to buy into small firms, but the bill's lukewarm support means it may face major changes in Parliament.

Government ministers who briefed the news media on the proposal Friday said the bill is intended to put as many small businesses as possible into private hands - and no questions would be asked about where the source of the money.

The government will sponsor privatization auctions to sell small businesses. The auctions will be open to Czechoslovak citizens as well as Czechoslovaks who left the country after the 1948 communist takeover and foreigners who have lived in Czechoslovakia for at least one year, said Deputy Finance Minister Dusan Triska.

Triska also said foreigners could work with Czechoslovak partners to buy into the businesses at auction. But for at least two years, foreigners would not be able to hold title to the businesses.

''What are you waiting for? Buy, buy,'' Deputy Finance Minister Miroslav Zamiecnik quipped to a Western journalist during the briefing.

Privatization of shops and small businesses is the first step in a massive multi-year effort to return the economy to private hands and install a functioning free market.

The new proposal came after two days of token one-hour strikes by employees of small shops, restaurants and hotel who fear that wealthy speculators, prostitutes, cab drivers and former communist bureaucrats could use ill-gotten gains to buy out potentially lucrative businesses and fire the current staff.

The Czechoslovak crown is expected to be partially convertible by Jan. 1, 1991. Under current joint venture laws, 30 percent of hard- currency profits must be turned over to the state. Tax and ownership laws remain ill-defined at present.

A major stumbling block to privatization may be the government's plan to restore to the rightful owners property seized by the communist government. Ministers would not comment on this possibility.

Ministers also said a summit meeting on the bill Thursday with President Vaclav Havel and other federal and national officials revealed a deep split, which could slow the bill's passage into law.

Debate is to open on the bill Monday, but Havel has given it only lukewarm support. He said he favored an earlier proposal which would have given employees the right of first refusal.

''Let us hope the variant chosen by the government is not the wrong one,'' Havel told several Czech newspapers.

Commerce Minister Valsta Stepova criticized what she called ''the men'' who drafted the bill.

''If the government had been composed of women who have to go shopping, the outcome would have been different,'' she said. Stepova maintains that unless the current shopworkers are given a chance to run the businesses, the country's shopping network will be disrupted.

Under the proposal, workers would have 30 days to pay the first half of the purchase price for their place of employment and five years to pay the second half.

Local commissions will assess the worth of each business, and conduct the auctions. If businesses cannot be sold at their estimated price, the price can be dropped as much as 50 percent to ensure a sale.

To prevent unemployment and the closing of shops in prime locations for conversion to more lucrative trades, all food shops must remain as they are for the next two years.

The minister for privatization, Tomas Jezek, said the government did not know how many small businesses would be bought by their employees.

''What we can say for sure is that the average price will be very low, and that ordinary people will be able to buy them,'' he said.

Czechoslovaks have saved the equivalent of about $10 billion and the government expects about 10 percent of this to be spent on privatization.

But reaction on the street was pessimistic. Jiri Drda, a butcher on Na Prikope a fashionable pedestrian street where several luxury goods stores already exist, said he is worried.

''If this shop is up for auction, we have no chance,'' he said. ''Those who want to launder their money can beat us easily. And who can guarantee us that a higher bidder wouldn't like to run a beauty parlor here instead?''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Congress, seeking to further dampen fears of an energy crisis, moved swiftly Friday to allow the Energy Department to triple the size of a test oil sale from America's strategic petroleum reserve.

The House passed an emergency bill by voice vote to increase, to 15 million barrels from 5 million barrels, the amount of oil the department can remove from the reserve and sell on the open market under a ''test draw-down'' ordered Wednesday by President Bush.

Sens. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., and Carl Levin, D-Mich., planned to introduce a similar bill in the Senate later in the day.

Lawmakers, moving with unusual speed, acted a day after Energy Secretary James Watkins asked Congress for authority to triple the size of the oil reserve test.

Watkins said the purpose of such a drill is to check the government's ability to efficiently tap its 590 million-barrel emergency stockpile of petroleum, rather than to bring down the price of oil.

But he acknowledged that a test also ''shows resolve'' by the government to maintain an adequate supply of oil, and he said it would have a significant ''psychological impact'' on jittery energy markets.

Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., was more blunt Friday, saying the bill was intended as ''a signal to the traders on Wall Street that it is time to quit taking profits at the expense of the American people.''

Despite healthy commercial inventories of oil, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery soared to a record $39.45 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange Thursday, about $19 a barrel more than the day before Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., called on Bush to exercise his existing authority to go beyond a test and order a full-scale release of oil from the reserve.

''Why aren't we flooding the oil market with 1 million barrels of oil a day?'' he said, adding that consumers in the Northeast could expect to pay an average of $500 more for home heating oil this winter than they did last winter.

Tauzin said 5 million barrels represents roughly one-third of one day's consumption of oil by the United States.

Bush, who signed legislation Sept. 15 giving him wider latitude to order a full-scale draw-down, has been reluctant to make such a move absent a demonstrable shortage in commercial petroleum supplies.

Recent oil price spikes, accompanied by rising retail prices in gasoline and home heating oil, have been attributed to market speculation rather than actual shortages since the Persian Gulf crisis began.

Administration officials have expressed fear that a major draw-down from the reserve could have the unintended effect of adding to market speculation.

Watkins said Thursday he expected oil prices ''to remain volatile,'' but predicted that supplies would be ''adequate to meet demand during the winter months,'' barring ''armed conflict, major accidents or unusual weather patterns.''

The flurry of activity on Capitol Hill came as the International Energy Agency was scheduled to meet in Paris to discuss an agenda that Watkins has said would include the possibility of a coordinated draw- down of strategic reserves by several industrialized nations.

The U.S. reserve was created in 1975 following the Arab oil embargo to ensure the United States a supply of oil during an energy crisis caused by events overseas, natural disasters or acts of sabotage. It has never been tapped for that purpose.

The law reauthorizing the reserve expands the president's discretion to draw on it under a less severe circumstance ''that constitutes, or is likely to become, a domestic energy supply shortage of significant scope or duration.''

BANGKOK, THAILAND (SEPT. 28) UPI - While the army readies for a mud-ball-and-slingshot war with Buddhist monks, political prisoners continue a hunger strike and Burma's government girds for mass civil disobedience, diplomatic sources said Friday.

''The government is clearly very nervous and is warning the public not to get involved in anti-government demonstrations supposedly planned for Oct. 1,'' said a Rangoon-based diplomat contacted by telephone from Bangkok.

Burma's military has stepped up public intimidation tactics and brought more troops into Rangoon in anticipation of possible protests Oct. 1, the diplomat said. Armored vehicles patrol the capital, with bullhorns blaring warnings against joining demonstrations rumored to be set for Monday, Oct. 1.

''The political parties have appealed to the military to allow the elected legislature to convene by the end of September, so that may be the reason for the fears about that date,'' said the diplomat, who requested anonymity.

The campaign of imtimidation is aimed at maintaining the military's 30-year domination of Burma. Despite the opposition party's overwhelming election victory in May, the military so far has refused to turn over power to the elected legislature.

The diplomat added that a group of students jailed for political offenses were continuing a hunger strike they began Sept. 18 in Insein Jail, the government's main prison just north of Rangoon.

''About half of the students have now collapsed and have been taken to hospital,'' he said. ''Another group of students joined the strike on Tuesday.''

The condition of the hunger strikers was not known, he said.

Although the intimidation so far has prevented any major demonstrations in Rangoon, there have been almost daily protests in Mandalay, Burma's second-largest city.

Buddhist monks, angered by reports security troops killed two monks and two student protesters last month, have begun using slingshots to pelt soldiers as they pass their monasteries.

The soldiers are under orders not to fire on the monks to avoid a repetition of the shooting incident last month in Mandalay - in which the government insists no one was killed - ''so the military has ordered 50,000 hardened mud pellets to fire back at the monks,'' the diplomat said.

Another diplomat, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said the demonstrations showed growing Buddhist opposition to Burma's military.

Some monks mocked soldiers by praying before them, while senior abbots in Mandalay and the nearby religious center of Sagaing have declared a boycott on performing religious ceremonies for military families.

The ceremony boycott, virtually excommunicating all military families, is the first overt political action by Burma's Buddhist leadership since the movement against British colonial rule in the 1930s and 1940s, he said. It is believed to have shaken Burma's military in a country where more than 80 percent of the people are Buddhists.

Economic problems are also increasingly plaguing the military, which crushed massive pro-democracy demonstrations in 1988.

The government has been unable to slow inflation, estimated at about 50 percent, one diplomat said, noting prices for some vegetables have increased as much as 150 percent in the past three months.

Burma, despite rich mineral and petroleum deposits, vast teak forests and fertile land, is among the poorest countries in the world, with a per capita income of less than $160 per year.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (SEPT. 28) UPI - Keeping tabs on threatening weather, engineers readied a $30 million Delta 2 rocket for blastoff Friday to boost into orbit the ninth in a globe-spanning network of military navigation satellites.

The 126-foot, blue-and-white Delta 2 rocket was scheduled for liftoff at 5:44 p.m. EDT from launch complex 17 at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, despite predictions of an 80 percent chance of stormy weather that would prevent an on-time launch.

Mounted inside a protective nose cone atop the slender rocket was a Global Positioning System ''Navstar'' satellite, the ninth in a planned network of such spacecraft that ultimately will allow military forces on the ground, at sea and in the air to determine their location and altitude to within 53 feet anywhere in the world.

The flight plan called for the GPS launched Friday to be ejected into a preliminary elliptical orbit about 25 minutes after blastoff. On-board rockets were scheduled to fire later to boost the satellite into a circular 12-hour orbit 12,500 miles up.

Prior to Friday's flight, the Delta record stood at 20 successes in a row dating back to May 3, 1986, and a perfect 12 straight for the upgraded Delta 2 including five commercial launches. The rockets are built by McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif.

The Air Force plans to launch 21 upgraded ''block 2'' GPS satellites to join seven older and less sophisticated ''block 1'' spacecraft already in space. The satellites are built by Rockwell International's Satellite Systems Division in Seal Beach, Calif., under a $1.2 billion contract.

Eighteen block 2 satellites are required to complete the global navigation network. Three of the 21 bound for orbit will serve as spares with another seven available on the ground for launch as needed.

Additional satellites are planned and through the end of the century, the GPS program is expected to cost some $8.5 billion.

Equipped with sensitive atomic clocks, four such satellites will be ''visible'' at any given time from anywhere on Earth. Military forces on the ground, at sea or in the are will be able to use radio signals from the satellites to pinpoint their locations to within about 53 feet.

GPS satellites originally were to be launched from NASA's space shuttle.

But after the 1986 Challenger disaster, which grounded the shuttle program for 32 months, the Pentagon embarked on an unprecedented rocket construction program to guarantee independent access to space.

McDonnell Douglas was awarded a $316.5 million contract Jan. 21, 1987, to build seven Delta 2 rockets for the GPS program. The contract included options however, for 13 additional vehicles for a total contract value of $669 million.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - With a presidential budget deadline passed but a more critical one fast approaching, top congressional and White House negotiators continued talks Friday to seal a five-year $500 billion deficit reduction plan.

By failing to vote on such a package by Friday, lawmakers ignored President

Bush's demand in a Sept. 11 nationally televised speech to a joint session of Congress that the House and Senate must ''allow a straight up-or-down vote on a complete $500 billion deficit reduction package not later than Sept. 28.''

With that presidential deadline gone, the real budget deadline of Oct. 1 loomed just a weekend away.

If no budget agreement is reached by Monday, it would trigger the imposition of up to $105.7 billion in automatic across-the-board spending cuts required under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

That law set the deficit reduction target for fiscal year 1991, which begins Oct. 1, at $64 billion. The administration has projected next year's deficit to be about $169 billion - $105 billion over the target. The automatic cuts are designed to force government spending down to that target level.

Bush has vowed to veto any congressional attempt to delay the Gramm- Rudman cuts, called sequestration, unless a budget agreement is reached first.

Both the House and Senate plan to meet in rare Sunday sessions and the spectre of bitter partisan confrontations loom.

If no budget agreement is reached by Sunday, Democrats may try to force Bush's hand. They may try to pass a temporary money bill to continue spending for a week or two at this year's level and, in the process, delay the Gramm-Rudman cuts, forcing him to veto it and take the political heat for shutting down the government on Monday.

Or, without a bipartisan agreement, they may try to pass their own Democratic budget plan to cut the deficit and force him to sign or veto that.

If an agreement is reached, Congress on Sunday could pass a budget plan adopting the tax increases and spending cuts it contains before Monday's deadline. At the least, lawmakers could approve a bill delaying the cuts for a few days until the budget agreement could be implemented legislatively.

Both parties have said the Gramm-Rudman cuts would devastate federal programs and services, such as air traffic control and meat inspection, require unpaid furloughs of thousands of government workers and inconvenience or aggravate millions of Americans.

The five top congressional leaders of both parties and three key White House negotiators have met for all but one day since Sept. 18 trying to hammer out a budget accord. A larger bargaining group, which began meeting May 15, failed to strike a deal and broke up on Sept. 17 after 10 days of secluded talks at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

The leadership group met until shortly before 1:30 a.m. Friday. They came closer to agreeing, sources said, but remained deadlocked over the major sticking point that has prevented an accord to date - taxes.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said that during each day of leadership talks the issues have become ''more focused'' but ''there are some remaining issues that are very difficult.''

Chief among them, apparently, are how domestic program spending limits reached now are enforced in later years and Bush's call either to cut the capital gains tax on profits from the sale of assets or at least allow those gains to be indexed to soften the bite inflation takes over time from the value of an asset.

Democrats have said from the start of the talks they would accept a capital gains cut but only if Republicans would raise tax rates on the rich to help offset their contention that the primary beneficiaries of a capital gains cut are the rich.

Republicans have so far refused to accept higher tax rates on the richest Americans as the price for a capital gains cut. GOP negotiators, instead, have proposed limiting the deductions richer taxpayers can take.

But sources said that despite public insistence from the White House and Republican negotiators that any income tax rate increase is unacceptable, the administration has offered in the talks to increase the tax rate paid by the richest Americans from 28 percent to as high as 29.5 percent.

But that is not as high as the 31 percent or 32 percent Democrats initially wanted as the price for a capital gains cut or for indexing.

The White House proposal, sources said, would also lower the 33 percent tax rate paid by couples with taxable incomes of $78,400 to $185,730 to about 29 percent so that there would be only two income tax rates - 15 percent and about 29 percent

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The House Friday blocked a Senate move to include the pay of members of Congress and top administration officials in any government-wide spending cuts that will be required if a deficit-cutting agreement is not reached before next week.

The Senate added the amendment Thursday to a routine House-passed measure extending several housing and community development programs for 30 days. But the House did not take up the amended bill and instead passed a new measure, introduced just Friday, that dealt with the program extension.

''The House wanted a simple extension for the housing programs,'' said a staff member of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee, which handles housing legislation.

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., who proposed the pay-cut amendment in the Senate, charged there was ''a concerted effort by the House leadership'' to avoid the cut.

Pressler's amendment would reduce the pay of members of Congress and top administration officials by approximately 32 percent, equal to the across-the-board cuts in federal government programs that will be required if Congress and the administration do not agree on a new budget.

The issue could come up again, however, when the latest version of the House bill goes back to the Senate, possibly Sunday.

SEATTLE (SEPT. 28) UPI - The state of Washington Friday became the owner of ''Twin Peaks.''

The state didn't purchase the television series, but the Washington Department of Natural Resources became the new co-owner of the pristine, forested setting.

DNR officials said their agency, in conjunction with the Washington Wildlife and Recreation Coalition and the Interagency Committee on Outdoor Recreation, purchased 740 acres in the Mount Si Natural Resources Conservation Area east of Seattle near Snoqualmie - better known to TV viewers as the setting for ''Twin Peaks.''

The land was purchased from Georgia-Pacific Corp., said Brian Boyle, state public lands commissioner.

The $820,000 purchase involves two parcels of timberland in the saddle between the ''Twin Peaks.''

''For recreational users, area residents, Interstate 90 travelers and the cast crew and fans of 'Twin Peaks,' we're delighted to announce this 740-acre addition to the Mount Si Natural Resources Area, with the hope the 'Twin Peaks' skyline will be preserved forever,'' Boyle said.

About half of a 700-acre tract included in the purchase is in steep terrain forested with 100-year-old timber that was scheduled to be logged. The other half was logged and replanted about 20 years ago.

The other 40-acre parcel is forested with 70-year-old trees.

Boyle called the acreage ''excellent wildlife habitat.''

''It's home to mountain goats, cougars, black bears, bobcats, coyotes, elk, deer, small mammals and birds,'' he said.

The purchase expands the conservation area to 3,340 acres, Boyle said. A proposed land exchange with another timber products company, Weyerhaeuser Co., could add another 4,050 acres to the conservation area in the near future, he said.

''This is one of the last semi-primitive areas left in fast-growing King County,'' Boyle said. ''Mount Si is a treasure, a legacy we must preserve for future generations.''

The purchase price, plus $26,800 in closing costs and taxes, is being paid out of a $53 million appropriation by the 1990 Washington Legislature, which included $6.9 million to acquire natural areas, Boyle said.

Mount Si is among the oldest peaks in the Cascade Range. Its craggy rock face dominates views east of Seattle.

Elevations in the conservation area range from about 500 feet along the middle and north forks of the Snoqualmie River to more than 4,000 feet at the summit.

PROVIDENCE, RI (SEPT. 28) UPI - A judge ruled Friday that the rap group 2 Live Crew may perform in the oceanside community of Westerly despite safety concerns and critics' claims the group contributes to ''America's slide into the sewer.''

Ordinances the Town Council had considered as a way to bar the band from playing at the Windjammer club on Oct. 6 or to restrict the nightspot are unconstitutional, U.S. District Judge Raymond Pettine ruled.

Councilors had expressed concerns over the ''morality'' of the band, which uses sexually explicit and profane lyrics, and questioned whether the club would be able to adequately control fans.

The club, represented by the American Civil Liberties Union, filed suit to stop the town from interfering with the Oct. 6 performance or from holding a hearing to discuss the possible revocation of its entertainment license.

In ruling for the club, Pettine said the town has a ''valid interest'' in regulating entertainment places but found its licensing ordinances ''do not even approach the necessary level of specificity (that is) constitutionally mandated.''

''Any concerns that this court assumes the (council) might have for the protection of the public interest or for the upsetting of their licensing system do not outweigh the harm to the (club's) First Amendment rights,'' Pettine said.

Pettine noted that, at the Sept. 4 hearing, councilors discussed the ''supposed immorality'' of 2 Live Crew's songs and their contribution to ''America's slide into the sewer.''

2 Live Crew has encountered similar resistance in other parts of the country. A federal judge in Florida ruled in June that the lyrics on their third album, ''As Nasty As They Wanna Be,'' were obscene.

Following the decision, members of the Miami-based group were arrested in Hollywood, Fla. They have yet to go to trial and are appealing their case in a civil court.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Nicaraguan government said Friday it reached agreement with the Sandinista Front to try to stem the rising tension in the country and discounted rumors that a coup attempt was being planned.

Presidential Minister Antonio Lacayo, the top adviser to President Violeta Chamorro, said the agreement was reached Thursday evening at a meeting attended by him, former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega, U.S. Ambassador Harry Shlaudeman and the United Nations chief in Nicaragua, Francesco Vincenti.

Lacayo said he had no doubt the Sandinista army will abide by the constitution.

He denied reports by Managua-based Catholic Radio that the Sandinistas were planning to overthrow the Chamorro government while she is in the United States on a U.N. visit.

''Humberto Ortega (commander of the army) has said in public and in private that the army will abide by the constitution,'' Lacayo said. ''There is no possibility of a coup.''

Despite Lacayo's statements, Sandinista union chief Lucio Jimenez said the National Workers Front, or FTN, would go ahead with plans for a massive walkout and street march on Monday.

The FNT has so far refused to participate in the national dialogue that Chamorro began last week in an effort to bring together all social sectors of the country. The aim of the dialogue was to find ways to ease the effects that her economic recovery plan will have on the people, especially the poor and the thousands of people the government plans to fire from state-run industries.

The Sandinista Front had argued the government has not created the conditions necessary for a national dialogue.

Lacayo said he would ''take their suggestions'' into account and try to create the climate needed to bring them to the bargaining table.

''There is no commitment on either side,'' Lacayo said, ''(but) simply the willingness to create the conditions necessary for the Sandinista workers to go back to the negotiations.''

Lacayo also brushed aside comments by Vice President Virgilio Godoy that he was acting president while Chamorro was out of the country.

Asked who was the president Friday, Lacayo replied, ''Violeta Chamorro is the president.''

The relationship between Chamorro and Godoy has been one of bitter separation since they assumed office April 25. Chamorro needed his support to win the election, but their differing views on how to treat the Sandinistas have left Godoy without a role in the government and without an office in the Presidential House.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Gen. Michael Dugan, former Air Force chief of staff fired for discussing bombing plans against Iraq, is working now as special assistant to Air Force Secretary Donald Rice, a spokesman said Friday.

In firing Dugan as Air Force chief of staff Sept. 17, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told reporters the four-star general would be retired from the Air Force.

But an Air Force spokesman who asked not to be identified said Dugan, 53, has been given a high-level job in the Pentagon as a special assistant to the secretary of the Air Force.

''His duties include performing an assessment of rated officer requirements and the Air Force officer evaluation system,'' the spokesman said, adding he did not know how long Dugan would hold the new post.

''General Dugan's retirement date has not yet been established,'' the spokesman said, adding that it was still Cheney's intention to recommend to President Bush that Dugan be retired in the grade of general.

The retirement of three-star and four-star generals and admirals requires a presidential nomination and confirmation by the Senate.

The Air Force spokesman said the job given Dugan appeared to be an attempt to give him ''a reasonable amount of time to get his affairs in order ... instead of putting him out on the street when he wasn't even planning to retire.''

Dugan, a 32-year veteran who had been promoted by Cheney to Air Force chief of staff in July, was fired by Cheney for remarks he made to reporters during a return flight to Washington from Saudi Arabia.

The Washington Post and the Los Angeles Times reported that Dugan said the Joint Chiefs of Staff had concluded that in case of war, air strikes - including a massive bombing campaign against Baghdad that specifically targets Iraqi President Saddam Hussein - are the only effective option to force Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

Cheney said the remarks showed ''poor judgment at a sensitive time'' and could possibly be seen as a violation of a presidential executive order against planning the assassination of foreign government officials.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (SEPT. 28) UPI - Several hours of heavy fighting between government troops and forces loyal to rebel leader Prince Johnson shattered a six-day cease-fire in the Liberian capital Friday.

Artillery and machine-gun fire shook the city before dawn as government troops fired at random from the presidential mansion where up to 1,000 soldiers still loyal to the late President Samuel Doe are trapped between the lines of rival rebel factions.

The collapse of the cease-fire comes despite the presence of almost 6,000 troops of a peace-keeping force dispatched by the five-nation Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS). The force arrived in the city on Aug. 24.

Fighting began Thursday afternoon when Johnson's rebels discovered a large government arms cache in a city center warehouse close to the Defense Ministry.

Government troops tried to retrieve the weapons but were pushed back by Johnson's forces.

An eyewitness present at Johnson's military base when five truckloads of the captured rocket launchers, mortars and ammunition were brought in described the rebel leader's mood as ''exuberant.'' The witness quoted Johnson as saying ''Now I am ready for Taylor. Now I am going to get him.''

Prince Johnson split with Charles Taylor's rebel movement - the National Patriotic Front of Liberia - in February. His men control the free port and the city center of Monrovia. Two weeks ago they captured and killed Doe.

Taylor, who claims to control 90 percent of Liberia, threatened Thursday night to annihilate both Johnson's followers and the West African peace-keeping force.

Speaking from a captured radio station in the eastern suburbs of Monrovia, he said, ''If this war has to be fought for the next 10 years, we must be prepared because, as the president of Liberia, I am prepared to devote the next 10 years of my life to hunting these bandits until they leave.''

He accused the ECOWAS peace-keeping force of being made up of ''thieves, rogues and hooligans,'' and said ''we will keep on killing them until they realize they must go.''

Taylor claimed to have killed up to 1,000 ECOWAS soldiers and to have taken others prisoner.

ECOWAS officials admit privately they have lost ''less than 50'' of their personnel.

In the radio broadcast, Taylor said he had taken steps toward establishing an army which he claimed would number 250,000 troops out of which ''100,000 may be regular. as we stand now, we have 50,000 volunteers.''

Visitors to Taylor's territory put his estimated strength at less than 10,000 combattants, many of whom are untrained teenagers.

Reports carried on Radio France International Friday announced a new threat by Taylor to attack ships of the peace-keeping force if they enter Liberian territorial waters.

Thursday morning, 1,000 Nigerian troops arrived in Monrovia followed in the afternoon by 482 Ghanaian paratroopers on board the Nigerian cargo ship ''river Oli,'' which was also carrying 150 tons of rice for the near-starving population of Monrovia.

The reinforcements were brought into Liberia by the new ECOWAS field commander Nigerian Gen. Joshua Dogonyaro who toured the war-torn city Friday morning.

Two ECOWAS ships evacuated a total of 12,000 mainly Nigerian, Ghanaian and Sierra Leonean refugees from Monrovia, ECOWAS spokesman maj. Chris Otulana said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Education Department announced a plan Friday that will put the financially troubled Higher Education Assistance Foundation out of the guaranteed student loan business within three years.

HEAF, one of the nation's largest guarantors of student loans, has a loan portfolio of just under $9 billion and has been teetering on the verge of bankruptcy for several months.

HEAF, like other guarantee agencies, insures student loans by paying bank lenders 100 percent of a defaulted loan. The Education Department, in turn, reinsures the guarantor's loan. But for most of the last four years, the government has been paying HEAF only 80 percent of the loan amount, as the law requires, since HEAF's defaults have exceeded 9 percent of its entire portfolio.

In August, Sallie Mae, or the Student Loan Marketing Association, extended HEAF $200 million in credit as a way to avoid bankruptcy.

Now, under an agreement in principle between the Education Department and Sallie Mae, HEAF's existing portfolio will be managed by HEAF and a new subsidiary of Sallie Mae for the next three years. By the end of the three-year period, all of HEAF's existing portfolio will have been assigned to new guarantee agencies.

Under the plan - to cost the government about $30 million - HEAF will do no new guarantee business once the Education Department names, within a few days, interim guarantors in states where HEAF currently is the designated guarantor - West Virginia, Minnesota, Kansas, Wyoming and Washington, D.C. The Nebraska

Student Loan Program will continue to serve as the designated guarantor for the state of Nebraska, where HEAF also has done business.

Permanent guarantors will be designated by late 1993.

A new HEAF board will be appointed by the Education Department and Sallie Mae.

Also, Sallie Mae will finance HEAF's operations, but neither Sallie Mae nor its new subsidiary will be allowed to issue new guarantees.

Education Undersecretary Ted Sanders said the deal will not be complete until Sallie Mae and HEAF formally agree to the plan, but he said he does not anticipate any hitches.

Through management fees and performance incentives, Sallie Mae could earn up to $20 million for its efforts, Sanders said, but noted that Sallie Mae's costs could run about $15 million.

Sanders also said Richard Hawk, HEAF chairman and chief executive office, ''is not a part of the new organization.''

HEAF's financial woes were caused largely because nearly three- fourths of its loan portfolio a few years ago were loans for trade schools, which had a high default rate. Its 1989 mix was about 35 percent for trade schools and the rest for four-year institutions, Sanders said.

The Education Department's inspector general has been investigating HEAF's financial crisis, but Sanders said initial reports have not uncovered any wrongdoing.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Crude oil prices closed near their record levels Friday in the absence of fresh news from the Middle East to prompt another price surge on well-stocked world markets.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery found strength near its record closing level of $39.54 a barrel established Thursday, and closed a mere 3 cents lower at $39.51 a barrel.

On the spot market, the WTI closed down 10 cents a barrel to $39.50.

Refined oil products remained strong, with heating oil contracts for October delivery gaining further ground on the last day of the products futures trading month, to close up 0.61 cent a gallon to $1.0498 a gallon.

Unleaded gasoline contracts for October delivery lost 0.93 cents to close at $1.0176 a gallon, from $1.0269 Thursday.

Traders, who Thursday pushed oil prices up to record highs in nervous sessions dominated by war rumors, cautiously limited their buying, keeping prices at an apparent holding level just below their peak.

''The market is steady and rather quiet in the absence of news from the Middle East, and traders have little inclination to establish fresh positions,'' said Steve Platt, senior energy analyst wiht Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in Chicago. ''People are nervous about the recent volatility, and for now, they want to stay on the sidelines.''

The WTI traded in a fairly narrow range, with a high in the morning of $39.95 followed by a prompt retreat indicating that it would take another round of alarming reports from the Middle East for the U.S. benchmark to close above the psychologically important level of $40 a barrel.

The WTI had briefly surged to $40.10 a barrel Thursday.

The low for the day was $38.65 and followed a lackluster statement from the much-awaited meeting of the International Energy Agency in Paris.

The IEA, citing ample oil world supplies, stopped short of asking its 21 member nations to release their oil stocks to curb the rise in oil prices. IEA members hold an estimated 1.7 billion barrels in their reserves.

''The market is pretty steady,'' said Chris Bray, energy analyst with Paine Webber Inc. in Andover Mass. ''There is no real news from the Middle East, except for some article in the Iraqi press about 'upcoming fire in the Gulf,' and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is going to speak on Sunday, which is the birthday of Prophet Mohammad, and the topic could be again a holy war.''

On the European spot market, where crude is bought and sold for cash, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent retreated slightly from its $41-a-barrel high Thursday to close at $40.80 a barrel.

But another key international crude, the United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light, which is mostly shipped to the Far East, gained some, to close at $35.35, up from $35.10 Thursday.

''The prices now solely reflect the escalation in rhetoric from Iraq such as 'We'll bomb Saudi Arabia oil fields' or 'We'll bomb Israel,' and this is leading to a war psychosis, and benefiting speculators who want to keep prices up,'' said David Mizrahi, editor of the authoritative MidEast Report.

Mizrahi did not expect any major development in the Middle East over the weekend, although he pointed out that an unpredictable move by Iraq was always a possibility - even if only remote.

''Speculators are capitalizing on the war psychosis in order to push the oil prices up and so far, they are succeeding because, in terms of supplies and demands, there is no reason for these prices.''

In Washington, Congress, seeking to further dampen fears of an energy crisis, moved swiftly to allow the Energy Department to triple the size of a test oil sale from America's strategic petroleum reserve.

The House passed an emergency bill by voice vote to increase, from 5 million barrels to 15 million barrels, the amount of oil the department can remove from the reserve and sell on the open market under a ''test draw-down'' ordered by President Bush on Wednesday.

Lawmakers, moving with unusual speed, acted a day after Energy Secretary James Watkins asked Congress for authority to triple the size of the oil reserve test.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which earlier this month allowed its members to raise production to reduce the shortage resulting from the embargo against Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil, said the grouping should be able to produce about 22.2 million barrels a day in October - virtually the cartel's output ceiling approved in July.

DALLAS (SEPT. 28) UPI - The growing problems of the nation's banking industry could adversely affect the federal government's effort to resolve the thrift crisis because a large number of the thrifts have been sold to banks, a top thrift regulator warned Friday.

''It generates concern because 80 percent of the thrifts have been sold to commercial banks,'' Timothy Ryan, director of the Office of Thrift Supervision told reporters after a luncheon meeting sponsored by Southern Methodist University.

If the banking industry's problems deteriorate, Ryan said, ''We diminish the number of potential bidders for the thrifts.''

Stocks of U.S. commercial banks have plunged because of Wall Street's fears their earnings will decline sharply as a result of worsening real estate loan portfolios and other loan losses. The tide of small bank failures across the nation shows no sign of easing, and rumors abound that larger banks are experiencing financial problems.

Speaking at the SMU's management briefing luncheon, Ryan gave an overview of of the government's thrift cleanup effort - whose costs continue to mount with more institutions facing collapse.

Ryan said the Treasury Department's latest estimate of the cost is between $90 billion and $130 billion on a present value basis. He also noted the General Accounting Office has put the cost between $350 billion to $500 billion, estimates that include funds needed to finance the bailout over 40 years.

But he said the signing of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act by President Bush in August 1989 has strengthened regulatory standards, especially in enhancing capital standards for thrifts and requiring their owners to put their own money at risk.

He said under the act, regulators can level civil money penalties of up to $1 million a day on individuals and institutions that do not meet their fiduciary responsibilities.

The Resolution Trust Corp., created by the act to manage failed thrifts and their assets, has thusfar resolved 264 institutions with $80 billion in assets without harming insured depositors.

''RTC is the single largest financial startup in the history of this country '' Ryan said, noting that the agency's creation a year ago, 487 thrifts with total assets of $168 billion have been placed in its conservatorship program.

Speaking about the entire thrift industry, Ryan said in the second quarter of this year, the nation's 2,452 institutions holding over $1 trillion in assetslost $196 million.

''This represents a continuing moderation of losses in the private- sector industry, due to transfers to the RTC and reductions in loan-loss provisions '' he said.

Ryan said 1,169 thrifts, representing 48 percent of the industry and holding $371 billion in assets, or 35 percent of the total, have been consistently profitable in the past four quarters, earning a total of $2.33 billion.

Another 27 percent of the institutions, 674 in all, with assets of $352 billion, or 33 percent of the total, earned about $500 million over the past year.

Thus, better than two-thirds of the industry are profitable and meet the tougher regulatory capital standards, he said.

At the end of June 30, he said, there were only 244 institutions, or 10 percent of the industry, with about $160 billion of assets, that would be taken over by the RTC. Another 350 institutions with low earnings and poor capital may also become RTC candidates.

''Any further deterioration in economic conditions in the real estate markets, or volatility in the financial markets, will certainly impair the prospects of the survival of the troubled S&Ls,'' Ryan said.

Ryan said the RTC and OTS have instituted a new accelerated resolution program designed to speed up the marketing and sale of troubled thrifts before they are declared insolvent and brought under conservatorship. He said this is being done to prevent the loss of franchise value, which occurs after a thriftis placed in conservatorship.

He said the future thrust of RTC's activities must consist of the orderly but rapid disposition of assets at the best possible price.

Contrary to public perception, Ryan said, only about 30 percent of the assets in RTC hands are real estate. The rest consists of assets that can be marketed and sold quickly.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 28) UPI - A senior U.S. official said Friday that U.S. commitment to Israel's defense is ''rock-hard.''

But, as that was explained to reporters by several administration officials, that commitment is specific and limited and does not apply to future threats beyond the crisis in the Persian Gulf:

-It applies only to an attack by Iraq on Israel and does not necessarily apply to any attack from another Arab country. Israel believes that the main threat to its security comes from Syria. It says nothing about what the United States would do if the Israelis were to attack Iraq in the case of Iraq crossing into Jordan.

-It does not specify what form the U.S. aid would take, but the commitment was made on the assumption that Israel is not interested in having American troops involved in Israel's defense.

-Therefore, there is the assumption the American commitment will involve only an attack by Iraq, thus placing Israel and Saudi Arabia on a parallel.

The commitments, which were stated publicly earlier this month in Congress before a House subcommittee by Assistant Secretary of State for Near East Affairs John Kelly, were renewed this week in talks between U.S. officials and Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy in New York.

The Israelis, in mentioning them to reporters, appeared pleased with the restatement of U.S. policy, despite its limitations.

American sources close to Israeli officials quoted Secretary of State James Baker as telling Levy that ''the United States would regard an attack on Israel as a detonator for (a U.S.) attack on Iraq.''

Israeli officials were said to be pleased about the reassurance because although Israel had agreed with the United States to remain ''sidelined'' during the Persian Gulf crisis, the Jewish state had begun to ''feel ignored as well,'' the sources said.

The United States has sought to keep Israel out of the crisis so that Washington could line up a coalition of Arab states to oppose Iraq's conquest of Kuwait. Washington feared the coalition would fall apart if Israel surfaced visibly as one of the front-line states in the conflict.

But this low profile policy has created anxiety in Israel, the sources said, because Israeli short- and long-term needs are being ignored while billions of dollars in military and economic aid are being earmarked for Egypt, Turkey and Jordan.

There is concern in Israel, too, that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will make good on his threat of Sunday to launch a preemptive strike against Israel and the Saudi oilfields if the economic embargo strangles Iraq.

Baker's reassurance to Levy also was viewed as a nuance in the U.S. position toward Israel since the crisis erupted.

''It was a different line from what the United States had been saying - that the United States will take care of Saudi Arabia while Israel will defend itself,'' one source said. ''It's also a way of (Baker) saying to Israel, 'Don't worry, if they (the Iraqis) attack, we'll attack.'''

Baker met Friday with foreign ministers of the Gulf Cooperation Council to discuss the threat from Saddam, as well as with the foreign ministers of Syria Tunisia and Algeria.

One official summed up the series of meetings between Baker and the Arab states as reflecting a new awareness of the threat that Saddam represents to the region, and a new willingness to do something cooperatively about the future threat, once the current crisis is finished.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (SEPT. 28) UPI - The launch of a $30 million Delta 2 rocket Friday carrying a $65 million Global Positioning System military navigation satellite was postponed to Saturday because of rain and heavy clouds.

The 126-foot, blue-and-white Delta 2 rocket had been scheduled for liftoff at 5:44 p.m. EDT from launch complex 17 at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, despite predictions of a 90 percent chance of stormy weather that would prevent an on-time launch.

Mounted inside a protective nose cone atop the slender rocket was a Global Positioning System ''Navstar'' satellite, the ninth in a planned network of such spacecraft that ultimately will allow military forces on the ground, at sea and in the air to determine their location and altitude to within 53 feet anywhere in the world.

But shortly after 5 p.m., Air Force mission managers decided to cancel the launch attempt because of stormy weather over the Air Force station. The flight was rescheduled for liftoff at 5:40 p.m. Saturday with forecasters calling for a 40 percent chance of more bad weather.

The Delta record stands at 20 successes in a row dating back to May 3, 1986, and a perfect 12 straight for the upgraded Delta 2, including five commercial launches. The rockets are built by McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif.

The Air Force plans to launch 21 upgraded ''block 2'' GPS satellites to join seven older and less sophisticated ''block 1'' spacecraft already in space. The satellites are built by Rockwell International's Satellite Systems Division in Seal Beach, Calif., under a $1.2 billion contract.

Eighteen block 2 satellites are required to complete the global navigation network. Three of the 21 bound for orbit will serve as spares with another seven available on the ground for launch as needed.

Additional satellites are planned and through the end of the century, the GPS program is expected to cost some $8.5 billion.

Equipped with sensitive atomic clocks, four such satellites will be ''visible'' at any given time from anywhere on Earth. Military forces on the ground, at sea or in the are will be able to use radio signals from the satellites to pinpoint their locations to within about 53 feet.

GPS satellites originally were to be launched from NASA's space shuttle.

But after the 1986 Challenger disaster, which grounded the shuttle program for 32 months, the Pentagon embarked on an unprecedented rocket construction program to guarantee independent access to space.

McDonnell Douglas was awarded a $316.5 million contract Jan. 21, 1987, to build seven Delta 2 rockets for the GPS program. The contract included options however, for 13 additional vehicles for a total contract value of $669 million.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - House and Senate negotiators on clean air legislation traded angry words over alternative fuel provisions Friday, prompting one key senator to express concern about a communications breakdown that could kill the bill for this session.

With Congress scheduled to adjourn within two weeks, the negotiators agreed time was short to reach a final compromise between the differing clean air bills passed by the House and Senate earlier this year.

The two sides then proceeded to hurl recriminations at each other over a new House proposal on low-polluting ''clean fuel'' vehicles that can run on alcohol fuels or natural gas.

As for the overall progress of negotiations, Sen. Max Baucus, D- Mont., chairman of the Senate delegation, lamented, ''We are still miles apart on some key issues. I am quite concerned with the relatively slow pace.''

The darkest note was sounded by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., who charged the complicated House proposal on alternative fuels - 12 days in the making - was part of an effort to push senators up against time pressures that would force them to accept House language.

''I fear what's going on here is a delaying strategy,'' said Chafee, the leading Senate Republican on clean air issues. ''I worry we're going to be put in a take-it-or-leave-it situation.''

Chafee said if that occurred, senators might be inclined to leave it and start over next year with a new clean air bill.

Chafee said even if the negotiators reach agreement, the resulting compromise bill faces a possible filibuster on the Senate floor that could be fatal, especially considering the little time remaining in the session.

The senators' complaints drew a sharp response from Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. chairman of the House negotiators, who asked senators to cut their ''constant carping'' and get down to business.

The squabbling came one day after President Bush proposed a compromise clean air plan out of concern over lagging negotiations. Both senators and House members said Bush's plan came too late and could worsen matters by reopening issues already settled.

The bitter exchange over alternative fuels was touched off by Baucus's opening remarks, in which he dismissed the House proposal as a setback entirely unacceptable to senators. ''It does not even serve as a basis for further negotiations,'' he said.

Baucus criticized House negotiators for taking 12 days to formulate the plan, with virtually no communications with the Senate. He said the Senate had been ''very forgiving'' about House dawdling, but that time is running out.

Baucus's sharp remarks drew a seething reply from Dingell.

''I was not aware that there was anything (in the House proposal) that would occasion such a splendid response,'' Dingell said with heavy sarcasm.

However, he added, ''I will ignore a number of the remarks made, in fact, most of them. We can sit here and listen to speeches of this character or we can address the business of this conference.''

Tempers had cooled somewhat by the end of the meeting, with senators agreeing to take another look at the alternative fuel proposal and House members promising to clarify any misunderstandings.

(SEPT 28) UPI - A cold front curving through the nation's midsection brought cool temperatures to northern states and triggered a line of showers and thunderstorms from the Rockies to Michigan.

Midday temperatures reached only the 50s and 60s in the northern Plains, Great Lakes and upper Mississippi Valley, the National Weather Service said. Ahead of the front, temperatures warmed to the 80s in the southeastern and south central states.

On the edge of the front, showers and thunderstorms spread across parts of New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa, Indiana and Michgan, the NWS said. Showers also were scattered over Florida.

Fair and dry weather prevailed across the rest of the nation.

Early morning fog that covered parts of Kentucky, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania burned off by midday. The fog had dropped visiblity to near zero in low-lying areas, especially near streams and rivers.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 28) UPI - The dollar moved mostly higher in thin, end-of-period trading Friday as currency market players who had squared their books took advantage of a day without significant news to move to the sidelines.

Another factor reducing foreign exchange trading volume was that for Japan it was the end of the first half of the fiscal year beginning in April. Also, the Jewish high holy day of Yom Kippur began at sundown.

''It was month-end, quarter-end and fiscal half-year end for the Japanese, so there were very few participants who wanted to deal in the market,'' said vice president Charles Spence of First Interstate Bank.

Bob Hinton, a Harris Bank vice president and senior advisor, said there was ''really no movement at all'' in the Japanese yen, while most other currencies were ''a little paralyzed'' by the Persian Gulf stalemate.

''A lot of people were very happy to see the end of the quarter ... square out (their books) and leave it alone,'' Hinton said.

But Gulf-related uncertainties obliged a certain number of players to buy the U.S. unit to cover short positions for the weekend, analysts said. The stock market's recovery also helped the dollar, they said.

Late in the New York session, the dollar was quoted at 1.5660 German marks, up from 1.5610 Thursday, and 138.53 Japanese yen, up from 138.10.

Hinton said there was little reaction to the government's announcement that the forward-looking index of leading economic indicators slipped 1.2 percent in August. It was the largest decline this year.

Commented Spence of First Interstate: ''It basically came out as expected, so there was no real impact on the market at all.''

The British pound ended at $1.8770, down from $1.8785.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2975 Swiss francs, up from 1.2930; 5.2400 French francs, off from 5.2525; and 1,170 Italian lire, up from 1,167.30.

In Europe, the dollar closed mostly lower in light trading as players waited for fresh Gulf news and a U.S. interest rate shift.

''There is nothing going on, but the dollar is fundamentally weak,'' commented analyst George McMahon with Kleinwort Benson. However, ''nobody is going to sell (the U.S. unit) with the Gulf hanging over.''

Analysts said the dollar would stay in a narrow range in the absence of major Gulf developments or U.S. monetary policy shifts.

In London, the pound declined against the dollar despite rising oil prices to close at $1.8690 vs. $1.8710 at the close Thursday.

The dollar ended lower in Frankfurt at 1.5665 German marks vs. 1.5680, and in Zurich also fell, to 1.2980 Swiss francs vs. 1.3085.

It slipped in Paris, Brussels, and Milan, at 5.2365 French francs vs. 5.2485, 32.25 Belgian francs vs. 32.28, and 1,170.70 Italian lire vs. 1, 172.60.

In Tokyo, the dollar gained on the yen amid concern Gulf tensions could drive oil prices even higher. It closed at 137.95 yen vs. 137.50 Thursday.

''The market has been nervous about the Mideast, so it reacts to every rumor '' said Sumitomo Bank manager Hidehiko Nakagawa.

Gold closed higher in Zurich at $406.50 an ounce vs. $404.50. But it moved up in London, to $404.75 an ounce vs. $405.25.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $403.75 an ounce, off from $405.75 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $402.50 an ounce, down from $405.

Silver remained unchanged in Zurich at $4.80 an ounce, but was slightly lower in London at $4.81 an ounce compared with $4.82.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.785 an ounce, off from $4.80. Comex silver finished trading at $4.761 an ounce, also down from $4.771.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Justin Lebo, 13, of Saddlebrook, N.J., who fixes bicycles for poor youngsters, will accompany President Bush to the opening of the United Nation's World Summit on Children, the White House said Friday.

Justin runs his bicycle shop on money he raises from lemonade sales. Earlier this year, he was selected as one of Bush's ''daily points of life,'' distinguished volunteers in service to America.

The two-day children summit begins Sunday. Justin will join 70 other youngsters as official escorts for their respective heads of state, the White House said.

Justin will also serve as the U.S. youth representative at the concluding session by witnessing the signing of the Summit Declaration.

For the past three years, Justin has repaired and restored old and discarded bicycles for distribution to disadvantaged children.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The Education Department announced a plan Friday that the agency said will put the financially troubled Higher Education Assistance Foundation out of the guaranteed student-loan business within three years.

HEAF, one of the nation's largest guarantors of student loans, has a loan portfolio of just under $9 billion and has been teetering on the verge of bankruptcy for several months.

HEAF, like other guarantee agencies, insures student loans by paying bank lenders 100 percent of a defaulted loan. The Education Department, in turn, reinsures the guarantor's loan.

But for most of the last four years, the government has been paying HEAF only 80 percent of the loan amount, as the law requires, since HEAF's defaults have exceeded 9 percent of its entire portfolio.

In August, the Student Loan Marketing Association, known as Sallie Mae, extended HEAF $200 million in credit as a way to avoid bankruptcy.

Now, under an agreement in principle between the Education Department and Sallie Mae, HEAF's existing portfolio will be managed by HEAF and a new subsidiary of Sallie Mae for the next three years. By the end of that period, all of HEAF's existing portfolio will have been assigned to new guarantee agencies.

Under the plan - to cost the government about $30 million - HEAF will do no new guarantee business once the Education Department names, within a few days, interim guarantors in states where HEAF currently is the designated guarantor - West Virginia, Minnesota, Kansas, Wyoming and Washington, D.C. The Nebraska Student Loan Program will continue to serve as the designated guarantor for the state of Nebraska, where HEAF also has done business.

Permanent guarantors will be designated by late 1993.

A new HEAF board will be appointed by the Education Department and Sallie Mae.

Also, Sallie Mae will finance HEAF's operations, but neither Sallie Mae nor its new subsidiary will be allowed to issue new guarantees.

Education Under Secretary Ted Sanders said the deal will not be complete until Sallie Mae and HEAF formally agree to the plan, but he said he does not anticipate any hitches.

Through management fees and performance incentives, Sallie Mae could earn up to $20 million for its efforts, Sanders said, but he noted that Sallie Mae's costs could run about $15 million.

Sanders also said Richard Hawk, HEAF's chairman and chief executive officer, ''is not a part of the new organization.''

HEAF's financial woes were caused largely because nearly three- fourths of its loan portfolio a few years ago were loans for trade schools, which had a high default rate. Its 1989 mix was about 35 percent for trade schools and the rest for four-year institutions, Sanders said.

The Education Department's inspector general has been investigating HEAF's financial crisis, but Sanders said initial reports have not uncovered any wrongdoing.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Richard Claytor, President Bush's new choice to oversee the Energy Department's troubled nuclear weapons complex, breezed through a Senate confirmation hearing Friday with no sign of opposition.

Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee said they saw no obstacles to quick approval of Claytor, who was nominated by Bush earlier this month to be assistant secretary of the Energy Department in charge of defense programs.

''I see no opposition at all,'' Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., told Claytor, currently principal deputy assistant secretary for nuclear energy in the Energy Department.

As with Energy Secretary James Watkins, Claytor got his grounding in nuclear engineering as a former aide to the late Adm. Hyman Rickover, chief proponent of the nuclear Navy. He then worked with the engineering firm of Burns & Roe.

The low-key hearing on Claytor was a stark contrast to the controversy that torpedoed Bush's first nominee for the weapons plant post, Victor Stello, who withdrew from consideration five months ago.

Stello, a former Nuclear Regulatory Commission official, dropped out following the release of an NRC inspector general report that raised questions about Stello's truthfulness in answering questions about an internal NRC staff rift. Stello remains at the Energy Department as principal deputy assistant energy secretary for defense programs, a post that requires no Senate confirmation.

If confirmed, Claytor would be Stello's direct supervisor and have overall responsibility for the department's 17 nuclear weapons plants, most of which face severe pollution and safety problems that have grown up over four decades of operation.

Claytor's nomination is especially sensitive in view of revelations that weapons plant operators - shielded by national security secrecy - routinely discharged huge amounts of toxic and radioactive waste into the environment in flagrant violation of environmental protection laws.

In addition to addressing environmental problems, Claytor must resolve safety problems that have shut down several aging plants, in particular three 1950s-vintage weapons reactors at the department's Savannah River Plant in South Carolina and the Rocky Flats facility in Colorado. The plants produce radioactive tritium and plutonium for use in nuclear warheads.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - The House approved an emergency measure today to increase the amount of oil that can be removed from the strategic petroleum reserve. The Senate is likely to get a similar bill later today. The House bill would triple the size of a test oil sale from the reserve to 15-Million barrels... in an effort to ease jittery nerves on the oil markets.

The action in Congress follows a request earlier today from the International Energy Agency. It asked its 21 member nations to get ready to use their strategic oil reserves if it's necessary to increase the world petroleum supply.

WICHITA, Kan. (SEPT. 28) UPI - Kansas Gas and Electric Co. Friday asked a federal court to issue a summary judgment that Kansas City Power & Light Co.'s unsolicited tender for KGE violates the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

KGE claims in documents filed in U.S. District court in Kansas City, Mo., that the KCP&L offer is unlawful.

The Wichita utility said the act makes it illegal for any company owning 5 percent or more of one public utility's voting securities to acquire 5 percent or more of another without Securities and Exchange Commission approval.

KCP&L owns 47 percent of the Wolf Creek Nuclear Operating Corp., a public utility, KGE said.

KGE also asked the court to request the SEC file a friend of the court brief regarding the legality of the offer under the Holding Company Act.

Earlier this week, KGE claimed the tender was illegal in another filing with the federal court. KGE answered a KCP&L request that the court rule its actions complied with certain securities laws.

KCP&L on July 23 announced an unsolicited $857 million tender for KGE's common stock.

KGE officials have rejected the offer, saying it is inadequate and does not reflect the future value of KGE.

The Wichita utility said it is negotiating with an unidentified third party regarding a transaction that could lead to a merger.

PROVIDENCE, RI (SEPT. 28) UPI - Providence Journal Co. said Friday it has agreed to loan the Lowell Sun, of Lowell, Mass., $26 million over five years.

The Journal says that, as part of the agreement, there is an option to convert the loan after three years into a one-third interest in the Sun.

In a prepared statement, Sun Publisher John Costello said both his newspaper and the Journal are ''rich in tradition and understand the need to provide quality journalism'' to readers.

Journal Chairman Stephen Hamblett said he is ''very optimistic'' about the growth potential in the Lowell market. Lowell, a city of about 90,000, is about 35 miles northwest of Boston.

The Journal is a privately-held media company that recently announced it was selling its cellular phone subsidiary for $710 million.

The Sun is also a privately held paper. Its general manager, Kendall Wallace, says the infusion of new money from the Journal will relieve the Sun from debt pressure and allow it to consider new capital expenditures.

Under terms of the agreement, the Journal has up to five years to exercise its stock option and can loan the Sun more money during that time.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 28) UPI - The foreign ministers of the U.N. Security Council's five permanent members agreed Friday to seek separate solutions to the Persian Gulf crisis and the Palestinian problems in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The foreign ministers from the United States, Soviet Union, China, Great Britain and France reiterated their condemnation of Iraq and demanded the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

''This aggressive action must not be tolerated,'' the ministers said in a statement that emphasized their ''commitment to seek together ... a peaceful solution to the crisis.''

Expressing concern over the rising tensions in the Middle East, the communique also urged countries in the region to negotiate a peace plan ''leading to a comprehensive, just and lasting peace.''

Such a peace plan should be based on two previously adopted U.N. resolutions - 242 and 338 - that guarantee the existence of Israel and call for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from the occupied territories of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, the statement said.

Attending a luncheon meeting hosted by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar were U.S. Secretary of State James Baker, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd and French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas.

Although the two issues dominated the discussion at the foreign ministers' meeting, Hurd said the Security Council members agreed that the Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and settlement of the Palestinian question should not be linked.

''It's very clear there should be no linkage between them,'' Hurd said.

The ministers demanded that Iraq withdraw unconditionally from Kuwait, which was invaded Aug. 2 and later annexed; allow the restoration of Kuwait's legitimate government; free all hostages held in Iraq and Kuwait; and respect the immunity of diplomatic officials.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The president of a rural Alabama telephone company, Jeff McGehee, Friday became the newest member of the board of directors for the Rural Telephone Bank.

The bank was created by Congress in 1971 to assist rural utilities with financing electric and telephone service. It has a loan portfolio of $1.5 billion.

McGehee, president and general manager of Southland Telephone Co. of Atmore, Ala., was elected to a two-year term to represent stockholders from the bank's commercial segment.

Five other directors were re-elected. Two of them, Arne Haynes of Mashell Telephone Co. Inc. of Eatonville, Wash., and Curtis Sampson of Communications Systems Inc. of Hector, Minn., also represent commercial stockholders.

The other three represent cooperative-type stockholders. They are Gary Kennedy of Panhandle Telephone Cooperative Inc., Guyman, Okla., John McAllister of West Carolina Rural Telephone Cooperative Inc., Mount Carmel, S.C., and Joseph Velone of the National Telephone Cooperative Association.

The telephone bank is part of the Agriculture Department.

REDWOOD CITY, CA. (SEPT. 28) UPI - Police arrested two teenagers Friday accused of setting a house aflame and making a videotape of the raging fire narrated by a whispering and maniacally laughing arsonist.

Police spokesman Howard Baker said one of the youths, now 19, confessed to sparking the 1988 fire and filming the chilling tape.

Detectives linked the teenager to the torching of 11 other structures and ignition of 15 grass fires in a series of arson blazes that scorched parts of Redwood City and San Mateo County south of San Francisco in 1987 and 1988, Baker said. Four of the structure fires caused more than $2 million in damage.

''There's no motive,'' Baker said. ''We don't know if there are other suspects involved or not.''

Police arrested the two males early Friday on suspicion of arson for starting the Aug. 15, 1988 videotaped fire that burned to the ground an unfinished house under construction on Colton Court in Redwood City.

A 17-year-old boy was released to the custody of his parents. The 19- year-old was confined at juvenile hall pending a judge's decision on whether he would be tried as a juvenile or adult, Baker said.

Investigators got 1,600 calls and possible leads from people across the nation after the videotape was shown on the national television program ''Unsolved Mysteries.''

Investigators were given the tape after a family whose car had broken down found it wrapped in an old military fatigue jacket beside Highway 205 near Stockton, Calif. in August 1989.

The tape shows flames consuming a house at night as an eerie voice whispers, ''Ancient spirit of evil. Look at it. The fire department is trying to put it out. What a laugh.''

The unseen narrator, breathing heavily and laughing, spoke to someone named ''Omar.'' Some investigators thought it could be a reference to Satan.

''Look at it Omar ... this is what I've been doing all week's vacation ... I said I'll do it, I said I'll do it.''

Along with the videotape and jacket, the family found a skull, a pestle used to crush herbs, and other evidence suggesting satanic rituals and worship.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - The farm price index fell a sharp 2 percent this month, propelled by a 25 cent a bushel drop in corn prices and the latest in a four-month skid in wheat prices, the government said Friday.

The index is the Agriculture Department's measurement of prices paid to farmers for their crops and livestock. The September reading of 148 was the lowest since last November.

''Decreases in corn, hogs, potatoes and cattle prices more than offset higher prices for apples, tobacco, broilers and eggs,'' the department said. ''Milk prices were at a record high for September.''

Corn prices dropped 25 cents a bushel since mid-August, ''the largest month to month decrease since a 28-cent decline during the same two months in 1986,'' with prices averaging $2.26 a bushel this month.

The all-milk price was reported at $14.40 per 100 pounds, up 10 cents from August and 40 cents higher than last September when a sudden collapse in production was driving up prices.

Wheat prices averaged $2.48 a bushel, down 10 cents since August and $1.24 lower than one year ago. The September slump in wheat prices followed declines of 21 cents in August, 29 cents in July and 32 cents in June.

This year's wheat crop is estimated at 2.76 billion bushels, the third largest crop on record.

Market prices for barrows and gilts averaged $53.60 per 100 pounds in September, down $3.10 from August. Cattle prices, which reached the record level of $76.10 in August, were down slightly this month to average $75.50 per 100 pounds.

Prices for broilers averaged 35.2 cents a pound, up 2 cents from August. Egg prices, at 68.5 cents a dozen, were 2.9 cents higher than August's level.

The price index stood at 151 in August and 152 in July.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - President Bush says he and Kuwait's ousted emir agreed in talks today that all options must be kept open in the Persian Gulf crisis. National Security adviser Brent Scowcroft says the emir also talked about the ''urgency of the situation'' in the White House discussions. Bush is expected to devote most of his annual address to the United Nations Monday to the gulf situation.

A landmark obscenity trial opened today in Cincinnati. An art gallery faces criminal charges for showing photographs by the late Robert Mapplethorpe. Two starkly different views of his pictures were presented in opening statements. The prosecutor told the jury the photos are obscene, then had two vice squad members testify. A defense lawyer said the photos enhance the culture and education of Cincinnati.

The budget summit conference is back in session. White House and congressional negotiators have yet to work out a five-year 500-BILLION- dollar deficit reduction plan. Talks resumed this afternoon... hoping to reach agreement by the end of the day. This is the deadline President Bush set for agreement about three weeks ago.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 28) UPI - State smog regulators, moving to establish the world's most stringent tailpipe-emission rules, approved Friday a sweeping plan that includes a requirement for mass-production of electric cars by 1998.

''We recognize that these are very dramatic requirements we are imposing,'' said Jananne Sharpless, chairwoman of the state's Air Resources Board. ''It's going to take a lot of work, but we think it's feasible.''

The program, designed to clean up some of nation's dirtiest air, will require carmakers to start selling progressively cleaner cars beginning in 1994. By the year 2003, every one of the estimated 2 million cars sold in the state would have to be producing 70-percent less pollutants than 1993 models.

The plan includes the requirement that 2 percent of all new cars sold in California in 1998 emit no smog, in effect a mandate to produce an electric car. By 2003, 10 percent of all new cars would have to be electric.

California is regarded as the pace-setter in air-quality regulation, so the plan is expected to have a profound impact. Already, regulators in New York voted earlier this week to follow the California plan, but there are questions whether they have the legal authority to do so.

The plan was approved on an 8-0 vote following two days of hearings, which featured pleas from the auto industry to ease the requirements for specific numbers of cleaner cars.

But, in a victory for the oil industry, the board agreed to drop a proposed requirement that refiners produce a specific volume of cleaner- burning fuels, such as methanol, starting in 1994. Instead, the board agreed to boost the required number of gasoline stations offering the cleaner fuels, raising the 1994 requirement from 30 to 90 stations.

That number would grow to 200 in 1995 and to 400 in 1996. By 2003, the board plans for 6,000 of the state's current 13,000 gas stations to offer clean fuels.

The agency, in a last-minute revision, also agreed to conduct a comprehensive review of the plan in the spring of 1992.

Board member Brian Bilbray, a San Diego County Supervisor, said that the agency has has been under ''immense'' lobbying pressure on the plan, including threats to challenge the board's authority over clean-air regulation in the state.

''I think we need to continue taking the war to the enemy - dirty air,'' Bilbray said. Then, addressing the many representatives of the oil and auto industries in the audience, he said, ''When we're done with this whole thing, you're going to thank us for it.''

The board has been developing the regulations for two years. A key goal is to help the Los Angeles Basin - plagued by the nation's dirtiest air - meet the U.S. government's deadline of 2007 to comply with federal clean air standards or risk losing federal funds.

During the two days of testimony, oil and auto industry representatives complained that the deadlines were not realistic and would force them to adopt technologies that consumers might not accept.

But the agency, composed of appointed officials who oversee all air- quality regulation issues in California, had been widely expected to approve the plan, partly because it has already implemented the nation's toughest tailpipe standards.

''We knew this was coming,'' said Samuel Leonard, director of automotive emission controls for General Motors Corp., which sells about a quarter of the 1.2 million cars sold each year in California, the nation's largest car market.

''The board's idea of feasibility is a lot different than ours,'' Leonard said. ''We'll just have to go back to Detroit and turn our engineers loose.''

GM debuted a prototype electric car, the Impact, in January. At that point, then-Chairman Roger Smith said that under ideal conditions, the vehicle could be ready for mass production in five years.

Leonard, who said GM is committed to an electric car eventually, said the company is not yet certain how soon it would be available, because of the technical problems in developing a longer-lasting, more powerful battery. Such a car would probably need about 800 pounds of batteries and have a range of less than 200 miles per charge.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - There were 173,933 cases of AIDS reported in Latin American, the Caribbean, the United States and Canada by the end of September and 101,602 of the victims had died, officials said Friday.

More than 95 percent of the cases were reported in the United States, Brazil, Canada, Haiti and Mexico, according to statistics released at a meeting of the Pan American Health Organization, which is part of the United Nation's World Health Organization.

The United States reported 143,209 cases while Brazil reported 11,070 cases, Canada 4,427 cases, Haiti 2,456 cases and Mexico 4,454 cases, officials said.

Delegates at the meeting approved a resolution aimed at fighting the spread of the AIDS virus, and expressed concern over the increasing spread of the disease among heterosexuals.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - Utah aerospace companies Thiokol Corp. and Hercules Inc. have received Air Force contracts totaling nearly $130 million to build Peacekeeper rocket motors, Rep. James Hansen, R-Utah, said Friday.

Thiokol, headquartered in Ogden, Utah, will receive more than $76 million for 12 first-stage Peacekeeper rocket motors; while Hercules, based in Magna, will receive nearly $54 million for 12 Peacekeeper third-stage motors, Hansen said.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 28) UPI - A judge denied Friday a request by four performance artists to set aside $23,000 in disputed funds from the National Endowment for the Arts pending outcome of the artists' lawsuit alleging they were denied the money for political reasons.

Lawyers for Karen Finley and Holly Hughes in New York and John Fleck and Tim Miller in Los Angeles requested the funds be earmarked as a precautionary measure ensuring the artists would receive the money if they win the lawsuit.

But U.S. District Court Judge Terry Hatter said the four artists - whose work deals with topics ranging from rape to women's and homosexual rights - could receive the 1990 funds in back payments from the NEA if they prevail.

In their lawsuits filed Thursday, the artists claim they were wrongfully denied funding by the NEA for political reasons in violation of their rights to free speech.

NEA Chairman John Frohnmayer in June vetoed the funding, which already had been approved by an NEA grant review panel, .

Frohnmayer's decision, rather than predicated on artistic merit, was made ''solely on the basis of the political realities (of) the NEA in today's society,'' Carol Sobel, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney representing the artists, said Friday.

Finley and Miller are prior recipients of NEA funds. The suit seeks resconsideration of all four artists application for NEA funds in 1990.

The National Endowment of the Arts has been under attack from artists and arts institutions ever since Congress passed legislation requiring all grant recipients to sign a promise to not produce obscene works.

Several organizations, including Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival, the Los Angeles-based Bella Lewitzky Dance Company have sued the NEA claiming the obscenity pledge is a violation of constitutional rights.

The suit by the performance artists was the first against the NEA by a rejected grant recipient.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 1) UPI - BankAmerica Corp. said Friday it has petitioned the superintendent of banks in Ecuador for permission to close its two branches in the country.

BankAmerica said it wanted to replace the branches, in Guayaquil and Quito, with a representative office that would handle strictly wholesale banking activities, such as trade finance. The branches are operating with skeleton staffs pending the official decision, BankAmerica said.

The move is part of BankAmerica's five-year-old strategy to focus strictly on wholesale banking overseas, while concentrating heavily on retail operations in the western United States, particularly California.

Since the early 1980s, BankAmerica has closed its retail operations in a number of countries, including Italy, Chile, Argentina, El Salvador, Guatemala Nicaragua and Peru.

At the same time it has rejuvenated its retail operations in California under the leadership of Richard Rosenberg, who oversaw the branch network before being named chief executive officer earlier this year.

TORONTO (SEPT. 28) UPI - Disgraced sprinter Ben Johnson can compete for Canada again in the Olympics and the Pan Am Games, the Canadian Olympic Association decided Friday.

COA President Carol Letheren said the COA executive committee voted 9-3 in favor of Johnson.

''It's just our feeling that the public disgrace and humiliation he's undergone are unprecedented in sport history,'' said Letheren.

Johnson, 28, was stripped of the 100-meter Seoul Olympic gold medal after traces of anabolic steroids were found in his urine. Johnson also lost his world records. His automatic two-year suspension by the International Amateur Athletic Federation was lifted Monday.

The Canadian federal government and Athletics Canada had earlier given Johnson permission to race.

In the past, the COA always banned drug offenders from participating in the next Olympics. Letheren said that in Johnson's favor was the fact he admits what he did was wrong, he's become an anti-drugs spokesman, his new advisors are committed to his well-being and he has been ''punished adequately.''

Johnson has reportedly said his tumble from grace cost him over $20 million in race fees and endorsements.

The COA did not reinstate four weightlifters nabbed for steroid infractions just before Seoul, because they either didn't apply for reinstatement or applied too late, said Letheren, recently appointed an IOC member for Canada.

The COA doping review committee that examined Johnson's reinstatement was headed by Dick Pound, an IOC vice president from Montreal.

Both Letheren and Pound had earlier supported Johnson's reinstatment. Pound argued that banning Johnson from the next Olympics was tantamount to an unfair lifetime ban because of the sprinter's age.

International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch says Johnson should return. But his predecessor disagrees.

''If he is guilty, he should be banned for life,'' former IOC president Lord Killanin said on a British television program Sept. 13.

Letheren said Samaranch's opinion wasn't discussed by the committee.

Johnson's first race will be an indoor sprint in Hamilton, Ontario, Jan. 11. He announced his competitive schedule in Italy earlier this month. He said he would return to sprinting prominence, with his two major goals being the 1991 World Championships in Tokyo and the 1992 Barcelona Olympics.

Johnson and his entourage refuse to release his current training times.

Johnson has reportedly said: ''I know when the races start I'll be ready to set world records again.''

Johnson's handlers are portraying him as a champion of drug-free sport and a role model for children.

Andy Higgins, a longtime Canadian national coach at the University of Toronto, expressed revervations.

''Of course I'm skeptical,'' Higgins said. ''He beat the tests for eight years. Where do you see a change (in attitude)? With the rarest of exceptions, the greatest indication of what people will do in the future is what they've done in the past.''

ROMULUS, MI (SEPT. 28) UPI - Threat of a fire forced the evacuation of a Northwest Airlines jetliner on a taxiway at Detroit Metropolitan Airport and Fire retardant was discharged into the power unit's compartment but when the warning light remained on, crew members called for the evacuation, he said. It was not known if there actually was a fire on the plane, carrying 143 passengers and six crew members from Montreal.

The injured persons, all passengers, were taken to a hospital with bumps and sprains suffered while exiting the plane on emergency slides.

SANFORD, FL. (SEPT. 28) UPI - A circuit judge under fire for freeing a rapist and blaming his victim for the attack Friday was granted his request to be relieved of all his criminal cases.

Seminole County Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffle, under pressure from Gov. Bob Martinez and women's rights groups, has refused calls for his resignation.

However, he acknowledged the uproar Friday and wrote a one-sentence memorandum to the chief judge of his circuit, asking that he be shifted from criminal to civil cases.

''Due to the potential adverse effect of continued publicity about me on pending criminal cases, I request you temporarily reassign me to civil work,'' Leffler wrote.

Chief Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. responded with a two-sentence letter granting the request and an administrative order that shifted onto his own docket all of Leffler's criminal cases.

''Pursuant to your request, I am reassigning you to a caseload of general civil cases,'' Eaton wrote to Leffler.

Eaton had no power to discipline Leffler and in an interview earlier this week declined to pass judgment on Leffler's ruling or comments the judge made about the rape victim.

On Sept. 20, Leffler shocked the defense and prosecution by ignoring a plea bargain that called for confessed rapist David McCulloch, 36, to be sentenced to 4 1/2 years in prison and 10 years probation.

Instead, Leffler placed McCulloch on two years probation, resulting in his release from jail that day, and said the victim was partly to blame for the attack.

Leffler said he had presided over the victim's divorce, believed she took advantage of men who cared for her and called her ''pitiful.''

State Attorney Norm Wolfinger has appealed the sentence to the 5th District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach, calling it illegal because it falls below the state sentencing guidelines, which require defendants to be sentenced to 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 years in prison for the crimes McCulloch committed.

In July McCulloch pleaded guilty to sexual battery, false imprisonment and battery.

Leffler previously announced his plans to retire in December.

BOSTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Several New England Patriots dispute details of a woman reporter's description of how she was sexually harassed in the team's locker room.

Lisa Olson of the Boston Herald charges that on Sept. 17 she was sitting on a bench, interviewing cornerback Maurice Hurst, when five naked players approached her and made lewd comments. She says that receiver Zeke Mowatt asked, '''Do you want to take a bite out of this?''' while other players ''egged him on.

Mowatt contends he made reference to himself, but not in the manner Olson described.

''The only comment I made to the reporter was: 'You are not writing, you are looking (at us),''' Mowatt said. ''That is all I said and all that I personally am aware of.''

My religious values and my character would never allow me to do or '' he added. ''I am deeply troubled by what has been said about and ''what has been sai

Receiver Cedric Jones also took issue with the account in an interview with the Providence (R.I.) Journal.

''It didn't happen like she's saying,'' receiver Jones said. ''She's making it sound like everybody was standing around cheering. The reason guys were close to her was that she was sitting near the scale. Everybody weighs in, before and after practice.''

Hurst told the Journal, ''Some of the guys felt she could have done (the interview) somewhere else'' rather than near the scale, but this is where Hurst's locker is situated. He agreed with some of Olson's allegations, saying ''Some guys made comments on their way to the showers. I never paid attention to who it was. I was looking at her to see if she'd look up and say something. She never turned her head to see who was talking.''

Hurst says the players did not approach Olson, ''If she says guys were in her face, she's telling a story there.''

Tackle Bruce Armstrong said he saw the entire incident and agrees ''that something was said which was in very bad taste. I'm not trying to justify what Zeke said or to say she wasn't wronged.''

He agreed that other players called out to Olson, but ''I can't say who it was without hurting who said it. But, after Zeke said what he did, somebody said, 'Did you tell her about it?' They didn't say, like some people claim, 'Did you show her?'''

General Manager Patrick Sullivan was not present when the incident took place but told another Herald reporter that ''what was alleged to have happened wasn't what happened.'' The Patriots fined Mowatt $2,000 and Sullivan twice apologized to Olson for the incident.

Mowatt's scheduled Friday morning meeting with NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue was cancelled. Because the controversy kept growing during the past week and became a national issue, Tagliabue decided that a special counsel was necessary to investigate the incident.

On Friday, the Herald reiterated its call for fans to boycott Sunday's Patriots home game against the New York Jets. As of Friday afternoon, the Patriots had more than 20,000 seats remaining for the game at Foxboro Stadium, which has a capacity of 60,794.

YANBU, SAUDI ARABIA, (SEPT 29) - Some 150 Legionnaires were Saturday among 900 French troops who arrived in this western port city by sea to join the multinational forces in Saudi Arabia.

The soldiers arrived aboard the car ferry "Corse," one of three ships transporting French forces, along with military trucks, correspondents said. The two other ships were roll-on, roll-off vessels with 250 vehicles on board.

The soldiers unloaded the equipment before settling into a mammoth hangar, normally used as a depot for plastic products. It will provide temporary quarters until they are deployed on the frontline.

France is contributing to a U.S.-led multinational force to defend Saudi Arabia against possible Iraqi attack after the August 2 invasion of Kuwait. The troops are also enforcing a U.N. trade embargo against Baghdad.

The new arrivals were expected to travel to King Khaled Military City in northeast Saudi Arabia within 48 hours to join other French soldiers already deployed, said General Michel Roquejeoffre, commander of the French military operation in the kingdom.

On Sunday and Monday, five ships are expected to bring in more French forces, including another 1,000 Legionnaires.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS, (SEPT 29) - The United States and communist-ruled Albania have held two rounds of talks this year on resuming diplomatic ties after a 51-year break, an Albanian diplomat said here Saturday.

"We have held two rounds of talks in Washington and New York, including one earlier this month," said Genc Mlloja, a counsellor at the Albanian U.N. mission.

"The talks have been constructive and the process is continuing," he told Agence France-Presse.

Albania's chief U.N. delegate Bashkim Pitarka, who led his country's team in the talks, was quoted by The New York Times Saturday as saying: "We are waiting for the last O.K. from the president of the United States. We are ready to begin tomorrow."

A State Department spokesman said a resumption of ties was "likely" but added that an announcement could take several weeks.

"It's the policy of Albania to have good relations with all countries which want to have good relations with us, which want to reciprocate friendship with friendship," Mr. Mlloja said.

The talks are in line with Tirana's new policy of ending its long-standing self-imposed isolation, in the wake of the democratic revolution in Eastern Europe.

In his first address to the U.N. General Assembly Friday, Albanian President Ramiz Alia said his country totally supported efforts to end "the division of Europe into blocs and spheres of influence."

He also said Tirana hoped to become a full participant at the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE) summit scheduled to be held in Paris in November.

Albania will be attending a two-day CSCE preparatory meeting, which opens here Monday, as an observer. It has expressed its desire to join the forum, which groups 33 European nations along with Canada and the United States, as a full member.

Last April, Mr. Alia, who assumed power five years ago after four decades of hardline rule by Enver Hoxha, told the Central Committee of the Albanian Communist Party that he was willing to restore ties with both Washington and Moscow.

The United States brofe off ties with Albania in 1939 after the small European country was invaded and occupied by Italy.

Tirana resumed ties with Moscow last July after a break of 30 years which occurred when the Albanian Communist Party sided with Beijing in an Soviet-Chinese ideological dispute.

BEIRUT, (SEPT 29) - Lebanese President Elias Hrawi on Saturday went to Damascus for talks with his Syrian counterpart on a possible military operation against Christian military leader Michel Aoun, a presidential spokeswoman said.

Mr. Hrawi, who made an unannounced visit to Damascus, discussed "the situation in Lebanon, notably the possibility of a military option, and all solutions that would isolate General Aoun," said May Kahhaleh.

The visit comes a day after the Lebanese army blockaded the region held by Gen. Aoun in President Hrawi's strongest bid yet to force his authority on the Christian leader.

Mr. Hrawi and Syrian President Hafez al-Assad also discussed the Gulf crisis as well as the Syrian leader's recent visit to Iran and its impact on Lebanon, Mrs. Kahhaleh said.

The visit coincided with a fuel shortage which began pinching residents of the Christian regions where stores were closed Saturday, correspondents said.

Streets in those areas were almost deserted and the few service stations that remained open were selling petrol (gasoline) for 35,000 Lebanese pounds (37.23 dollars) for 20 liters (five gallons), four times the usual price.

Mr. Hrawi's army, led by General Emile Lahoud, surrounded the area overnight Thursday and took control of crossing points previously held by Gen. Aoun's bitter Christian rivals, the Lebanese Forces (LF) militia.

Troops then began preventing all vehicles, except those of MPs, diplomats and Red Cross workers, from entering the 300-square-kilometer (116-square-mile) region, which includes areas in Beirut and northeast of the capital.

Political sources in Syrian-controlled west Beirut said the blockade was likely to be extended to pedestrians in the next few days.

BAGHDAD, (SEPT 29) - Iraqi Trade Minister Mohammed Mendi Salih denied on Saturday that foreigners held in Iraq would be refused certain rationed foods.

Salih told the Iraqi News Agency Ina that the present rationing system did not discriminate between Iraqis, diplomatic staff, foreign workers and those he described as ''Iraq's guests''.

The trade minister said there were no instructions to deprive foreign nationals of ration cards ''as some hostile and dubious media claimed,'' according to Ina.

Salih said Iraq had rejected requests by some governments to provide their nationals with more food than they were entitled to by official quotas.

Iraq introduced ration cards for specific foods in the wake of the United Nations trade embargo imposed after Baghdad occupied Kuwait on August 2.

JERUSALEM, (SEPT 29) - A Jewish mystic predicted 55 years ago that a "bacteriological and atomic war" would erupt in the Middle East in 1990 during the Jewish feast observed October 4-11, a report published here Saturday said.

The ultra-orthodox weekly Yom Hashishi said Rabbi Haim Shvili predicted in 1935 that a lightning doomsday war would break out during the thanksgiving feast of Succoth which this year starts on October 4 and would pit the Arabs, grouped in strange alliances, against each other.

The prediction published in the current issue of the magazine marking the religious feast of Yom Kippur, or day of atonement, observed on Saturday, said "a downpour of hailstones, bacteria and electric bombs would fall on the enemy" which the rabbi did not name.

But, through a miracle, "the deadly and atomic arsenal set up by the enemy will not funtion", as "the divine presence will protect with its wings the residents of this country (Israel) against the bombs and gas, and enemy aircraft will explode in the sky and discord will tear the enemy apart," he said.

After the war, the mystic said, Jerusalem would enjoy peace "and no enemy will ever again dare to attack it."

SAN DIEGO, (SEPT. 28) PR NEWSWIRE - The bankruptcy judge in the Imperial Corporation of America (ICA) Chapter 11 case today confirmed ICA's Plan of Reorganization over the objections of the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS)

Judge Louise DeCarl Malugen found after a two-day hearing that the plan was proposed in good faith by ICA for the purpose of limiting its tax liability under applicable law and preserving its $12 million of assets for distribution to creditors.

The RTC and IRS objected to plan confirmation, arguing that if the court delayed confirmation it might enable the RTC, or the IRS, to trigger taxable events in upcoming months which would support a priority claim for taxes of between $39 and $170 million.

The RTC supported the IRS objection and has filed claims against ICA in excess of $600 million.

SACRAMENTO, CA. (SEPT. 28) UPI - A federal judge, ruling in a landmark case destined for the Supreme Court, refused Friday to reinstate California's law limiting campaign contributions, except for one crucial part.

U.S. District Judge Lawrence Karlton, who earlier this week ruled the law unconstitutional, reinstated a provision that limits contributions to legislative races.

By doing so, he blocked the state from applying another set of rules that are even more restrictive, but apply only to legislative races.

His decision allows legislators to contribute freely to candidates for statewide office.

It is expected to have a profound effect on candidates strapped for money in the final weeks before the Nov. 6 general election, such as Democratic gubernatorial nominee Dianne Feinstein.

Under the law that Karlton threw out, contributions were limited on a fiscal year basis to $1,000 from individuals, $2,500 from small political action committees and $5,000 from large PACs and political parties.

Voters passed the law in 1988 as Proposition 73 in hopes of curbing special-interest influence over politicians by clamping a lid on big contributions.

After Karlton tossed out the law Tuesday, Feinstein, locked in a tight race against the well-financed Republican Sen. Pete Wilson, raised $200,000 in donations from two labor unions: $50,000 from the California Teachers Association and $150,000 from the California Association of Highway Patrolmen.

The donations would have been banned under Proposition 73. Other candidates also sought larger donations.

Karlton said that although his decision had changed the rules of the game only five weeks from Election Day, constitutional rights were at stake.

''I can't close my eyes to the fact there's an election going on ... and everybody planned their campaigns on the basis of what those rules were,'' Karlton said at a hearing on a motion to suspend his ruling.

The Fair Political Practices Commission, the state's watchdog over campaigns, had planned to implement a rival measure, Proposition 68, that was passed on the same ballot as Proposition 73, but never took effect because it got fewer votes.

Proposition 68 has stricter limits on contributions, but they apply only to legislative races.

Karlton's tricky ruling prevents the FPPC from using Proposition 68, except for its more lenient ban on fund transfers, which allows legislative campaigns and committees they control to donate to statewide campaigns.

The judge said Proposition 73 violates First Amendment rights of free speech by giving incumbents an unfair advantage over challengers, who can only raise money for the election during the fiscal year, rather than the entire election cycle.

''We expect it is going to the U.S. Supreme Court,'' Karlton said during a hearing on efforts to overturn his ruling.

Supporters of Proposition 73 filed an emergency request for a stay late Friday with the Supreme Court, and also have asked the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to suspend the ruling.

''The decision leaves California's political landscape in a state of disarray barely five weeks before Election day,'' GOP Chairman Frank Visco said.

Joseph Remcho, a lawyer for Democrats whose lawsuit challenged Proposition 73, said candidates are ''all in the same boat'' without its restrictions, just as they were before Karlton tossed it out.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 28) UPI - Negotiations aimed at ending three days of student protests that have shut down the University of the District of Columbia failed to yield an agreement Friday and the students and school trustees said they would resume talks in the morning.

Trustee A. Knighton Stanley said the students agreed to further talks Saturday after the board of trustees vowed to open the school Monday. Opening the school may have meant the forcible removal of about 100 students occupying a building on campus.

Student protesters met with trustees for about 15 minutes Friday, but no progress was made on any of a list of student demands, said student leader Mark Thompson.

Mayor Marion Barry also met with a majority of the 15-member board Friday morning and discussed ''how to keep the university on track'' as hundreds of students, angry over how the school is run, continued to occupy a campus building for a third day.

Councilwoman Charlene Drew Jarvis said she was puzzled at the request by students for city council members to join the talks, but she expressed confidence that ''things could be worked out.''

''The students want stability,'' she said.

Councilman Harry Thomas said it was ''disgraceful'' that students felt they had to shut down the university in order for their complaints and fears to be heard.

''I support whatever those young people want to do 100 percent,'' he said.

Thompson vowed to continue occupying the building until concessions were made by board members. He also urged students of other institutions to join a Friday night rally in a show of support for the UDC students.

''We need major changes at UDC,'' he said. ''Through these emergency meetings, hopefully we will bring that about. We are not backing away from anything.''

Earlier in the day, Barry declined to discuss specifics of the proposal he presented to the board but said he did not ask any member to step down as the students demanded. He said negotiations were going to focus on the ''underlying meaning of the movement'' and not board member resignations.

The board is composed of 11 mayoral appointees, three university alumni and one student representative.

Barry then returned to the university for the second time in as many days and presented a proposal that called for students to meet with the trustees immediately.

''The basic proposal is that they immediately meet with the Board of Trustees themselves,'' Barry said. ''I'm doing all I can to help but I don't want to keep shuffling back and forth.''

On Thursday, Barry met for some four hours with student leaders who issued a lengthy list of demands including mass resignations by the board. Students also demanded that the board rescind its acceptance of a controversial artwork called ''The Dinner Party.''

The board had planned to spend $1.6 million to rennovate part of the campus' Carnegie Library to house the artwork, which has been criticized for its depiction of female genitalia.

The government has threatened to cut $1.6 million in badly needed federal funding for the university because some members of Congress declared the work obscene.

The students said they feared the university could lose accreditation due to actions by the board and accused the trustees of mismanagement.

''We are prepared to stay here until we get exactly what we asked for,'' one student protest leader said Friday. He said the students will remain barricaded in the buildings ''for as long as it takes.''

Hundreds of students Wednesday forced their way into the administration building and the student center. Fewer demonstrators occupied the student center building Thursday and all the protesters had left the administration building.

Interim UDC President Miles Fisher agreed to keep the system's three campuses closed Friday.

The controversy is the latest unrest at UDC, which was formed in 1977 as an open-admissions university run by the District of Columbia. It has had five presidents or acting presidents in the past eight years and the search is on for a successor to Raphael Cortada, who was fired as president earlier this year.

Trustees, faculty and administrators have frequently wrangled over personnel and academic issues but it is the first time the students, most of them city residents and many of them needing remedial help to remain enrolled, have registered their protests in such physical fashion.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 29) UPI - The special counsel to the Senate Ethics Committee recommended that the panel clear two of the five senators under investigation for their links to the savings and loan scandal, it was reported Saturday.

In a confidential report submitted to the committee on Sept. 10, the special counsel, Robert Bennett, concluded that there was not adequate evidence to merit a full investigation of Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and John McCain, D-Ariz., several officials told The New York Times.

There was some disagreement among committee members on whether they should accept Bennett's recommendation.

Officials told the Times, however, that Bennett had advised the committee to move forward with an investigation of the other senators linked to Charles Keating, owner of the failed Lincoln Savings and Loan Association of Irvine, Calif..

The other senators involved are Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Donald Riegle, D-Mich., and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

The committee announced in December that it was looking into whether the five lawmakers had improperly intervened with regulators on behalf of Lincoln at a time when it was approaching insolvency.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 29) UPI - Republicans at the bipartisan budget summit talks dropped their long-standing demand late Friday for a lower or inflation-adjusted capital gains tax, pushing instead for other pro-growth incentives, two sources said.

One source confirmed that Republicans had given up on capital gains but said that Democrats would give the GOP ''a fig leaf'' - some kind of minor inflation adjustment to keep from embarrassing Bush and making it appear that Republicans had completely caved in on the controversial issue.

The new GOP position came after Democrats and Republicans hit what one source called ''a wall'' in their unsuccessful attempts to agree on how high income tax rates on the rich should be in exchange for the capital gains adjustments President Bush and Republicans have wanted.

Optimistic negotiators recessed their talks shortly after 11:30 p.m. EDT Friday and planned to resume at noon Saturday. Asked as he left the talks if there had been much discussion about capital gains, Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said ''not much.''

''We're moving in the right direction and we're all moving together,'' White House chief of staff John Sununu said as he left the talks.

Bargainers hope to reach agreement by Sunday.

More than $105 billion in automatic spending cuts triggered by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law are scheduled to kick in Monday if the negotiations fail.

That law set the deficit reduction target for fiscal year 1991, which begins Monday, at $64 billion. The administration has projected next year's deficit to be about $169 billion - $105 billion over the target. The automatic cuts are designed to force government spending down to that target level.

Bush has vowed to veto any congressional attempt to delay the Gramm- Rudman cuts, called sequestration, unless a budget agreement is reached first.

Instead of capital gains, a source said, Republicans are now concentrating the demands on pro-growth incentives such as the establishment of enterprise zones tax breaks for investments in emerging or small business and the family savings plan Bush first proposed back in January when he submitted his fiscal year 1991 budget plan.

The source said Republicans had offered during a full day of talks on Friday to alter an anomaly in the 1986 Tax Reform Act, called the bubble, in which couples with taxable incomes of $78,400 to $185,730 paid a higher marginal income tax of 33 percent on that income while richer taxpayers saw their rate drop to 28 percent for income earned over $185,730.

Republicans offered a new top rate of 31 percent, the source said, if Democrats would accept a new package of pro-growth proposals that did not contain a lower or inflation-adjusted capital gains rate.

The 31 percent rate was acceptable, the source said, because that is the rate at which the effect on federal revenues is neutral - those whose taxes would go up from the current 28 percent would pay enough in extra taxes to offset the loss to the Treasury from those whose rate would drop from 33 percent.

Democrats, however, held out for a 32 percent marginal income tax rate, which was not revenue neutral, and the two sides determined that they had reached a stalemate and decided to drop the whole package, the source said.

Both the House and Senate plan to meet in rare Sunday sessions and the spectre of bitter partisan confrontations loom.

If no budget agreement is reached by Sunday, Democrats may try to force Bush's hand by trying to pass a temporary money bill to continue spending for a week or two at this year's level and, in the process, delay the Gramm-Rudman cuts. Bush has threatened to veto such a proposal.

Or, without a bipartisan agreement, Democrats may try to pass their own budget plan to cut the deficit and force Bush to sign or veto that.

If an agreement is reached, Congress on Sunday could pass a budget plan adopting the tax increases and spending cuts it contains before Monday's deadline. At the least, lawmakers could approve a bill delaying the cuts for a few days until the budget agreement could be implemented legislatively.

Both parties have said the Gramm-Rudman cuts would devastate federal programs and services, such as air traffic control and meat inspection, require unpaid furloughs of thousands of government workers and inconvenience or aggravate millions of Americans.

The five top congressional leaders of both parties and three key White House negotiators have met for all but one day since Sept. 18 trying to hammer out a budget accord. A larger bargaining group, which began meeting May 15, failed to strike a deal and broke up on Sept. 17 after 10 days of secluded talks at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - A special grand jury in Travis County, Texas, says insurance fraud is a booming business in the Lone Star state. The grand jury released a report Friday following a five-month investigation. The report blames a lack of supervision and control by the state Board of Insurance for the fraud which it says has the potential for a- quote- ''savings and loan type disaster.''

More than 70 world leaders will gather at the United Nations beginning Saturday to plot how to save the lives of thousands of children who die each day. The U-N Children's Fund says many children die because of a lack of medicines that cost only a few cents each. UNICEF is calling for worldwide disarmanent to free up money for children's needs. Such aid could promote pre-natal care... lower infant and child mortality... and help provide education.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 29) UPI - The World Summit for Children, the largest gathering ever of presidents and prime ministers, is to adopt a plan of action designed to drastically cut the globe's 40,000 daily deaths of children.

The summit, to be witnessed by fewer than 200 children, has strained the capability of the United Nations to handle the more than 70 leaders, including President Bush, Britain's Margaret Thatcher and Czechoslovakia's Vaclav Havel.

Nearly 150 motorcades will take the dignitaries from their hotels to the U.N. building Saturday afternoon for the summit opening. Participants were asked to be present at 7 a.m. Sunday for a daylong debate.

Had it not been for the Persian Gulf crisis, King Hussein of Jordan and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia would have attended. Except for the Kuwaiti emir and Lebanon's Prime Minister Selim El-Hoss, all other Middle East leaders stayed home.

King Baudoin of Belgium will be the only monarch at the summit. All Latin American heads of state and government will be present. African leaders will show up in force, including Uganda's President Yoweri Museveni, Mozambique's Joaquim Chissano and Zimbabwe's Robert Mugabe.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and China's Prime Minister Li Peng first accepted the invitation, but later declined in order to deal with domestic problems, U.N. officials said.

The U.N. Children's Fund said 40,000 children die every day, many of them because of a lack of medicines that cost only a few U.S. cents each. In recent years, many have died of AIDS.

The agency, which has spearheaded aid to remedy famine and help poor mothers for more than 30 years, said millions of children suffer poverty and are victims of conflicts.

It said 100 million children get no formal education, and close to 150 million go to bed every night hungry.

It said 500,000 mothers die annually from causes related to childbirth.

The formal declaration and the plan of action to be adopted at sunset Sunday would have the leaders make a ''an urgent universal appeal - to give every child a better future.''

They will pledge to cut down the number of deaths since scientific progress and mass educational program now give every child the right to reach adulthood UNICEF's tireless executive-director James Grant said.

The declaration said the post-Cold War era now makes it possible to achieve results in many fields. Resources from a worldwide disarmanent should go to children's needs, which UNICEF estimated at $2.5 billion a year in order to cut down the daily deaths and give them education.

The leaders will make a ''solemn commitment'' to carry out a 10-point program, which includes ratification of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, enhance children's health, promote pre-natal care and lower infant and child mortality ''in all countries and among all peoples.''

The Convention on the Rights of the Child has become an international law after 50 governments ratified it by Friday. In all, 105 countries have signed the document, excluding the United States.

Scores of governments have contribued $3 million to defray costs of the summit. In addition, New York City police would spend $6 million in overtime for police work, city officials reportedly said.

Critics, and for that matter, cynics already said the amount spent would not improve a child's lot worldwide.

The gulf crisis has put children in the back seat, they said. Horrendous living conditions for millions of children in south Asia, including slavery and prostitutions, have compounded the problems and make any solution nearly impossible.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - Sources say Republican budget negotiators in Washington have dropped their demand for a capital gains tax cut. The sources say G-O-P leaders will instead seek other measures they consider pro-growth... along with a minor inflation adjustment offered by the Democrats to allow the Republicans to save face. Negotiators could NOT agree on a new top income tax in exchange for the capital gains cut. Talks recessed Friday night and are set to resume at noon Saturday.

The five permanent members of the U-N Security Council agreed Friday to pursue separate solutions to the Persian Gulf crisis and the problems of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories. The communique signed by the five foreign ministers called for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait and also reiterated adherence to previous U-N resolutions regarding withdrawal of Israeli troops from the occupied territories.

Bitter words were exchanged Friday as House and Senate negotiators butted heads over differing versions of clean air legislation. The main sticking point is the perception by some senators that the House may be trying to force the upper chamber to accept House language regarding a new proposal on so-called clean-burning fuels. Rhode Island Republican John Chafee says the situation could force lawmakers to set the legislation aside for this session.

New regulations adopted Friday by California smog regulators mandate the mass-production of smogless cars in the Sunshine State within eight years. The guidelines O-K'd in the sweeping plan require two percent of all new cars sold in California in 1998 emit NO smog. The number of NON- fossil fuel-powered cars would increase to 10 percent of the total by the year 2003.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - Thousands of troops loyal to pro-Syrian President Elias Hrawi tightened the blockade Friday around the Christian enclave where renegade General Michel Aoun is holed up. The effort is part of Hrawi's attempt to force the recalcitrant Christian militia leader to surrender. But Aoun says he has NO intention of giving up, and threatened to take whatever steps are needed to secure essential materials.

Talks are slated to resume Saturday morning between protesting students at the University of the District of Columbia and school officials. The two sides reached NO agreement Friday in the third day of a student demonstration that has shut down the facility. The students have issued a lengthy list of demands including mass resignations by the school's board of trustees.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - New York is forcing Pittsburgh to go out and win the National League East title and, so far, the Pirates have accepted the challenge.

New York has won four in a row but Pittsburgh has taken five straight, including Friday night's 6-4 victory in St. Louis. That leaves New York three games behind the Pirates - with five to go for each team - and means the Mets can do nothing except keep winning and hope Pittsburgh cracks.

''Tomorrow is the most important game and, if we win, Sunday is the most important game,'' Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden said.

Jay Bell hit a three-run homer and Wally Backman scored two runs Friday night, helping the Pirates lower their magic number to three. New York kept pace with a 7-1 rout of the Cubs.

Any combination of Pittsburgh victories and New York losses totalling three would give the Pirates the National League East title.

''We knew it was not going to be easy,'' said Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland. ''But we won, too. We're not making it any easier for them and they're not making it any easier for us. It's a dogfight.''

Bill Landrum, 6-3, who relieved John Smiley in the third, picked up the win, Pittsburgh's fifth straight. Landrum entered the game with the Pirates trailing 4-3 and allowed one hit in 3 2-3 innings. Cardinals starter Ken Hill, 5-4, took the loss.

''With a three-game lead it lays a little easier (on your mind),'' Bell said. ''We can go out and relax and play good fundamental baseball. We don't have to worry what's going on with the Mets.''

Gooden extended his lifetime domination over Chicago, helping the Mets keep the pressure on.

Gooden, 19-6, gave New York its fourth straight win and sixth in its last seven games. He walked one and struck out 10 in raising his career record over Chicago to 22-3.

Pat Tabler hit a three-run homer and Dave Magadan drove in three runs. Greg Maddux, 14-15, lasted five innings.

In other games, Philadelphia held off Montreal 5-4, San Diego nipped Cincinnati 2-1, Houston shaded Atlanta 2-1 in 10 innings and San Francisco outlasted Los Angeles 7-6.

In the American League, it was: Boston 7, Toronto 6; Baltimore 2, Cleveland 0; Detroit 3, Minnesota 1; Oakland 4, Texas 1; Seattle 13, Chicago 4; New York 7, Milwaukee 2; and Kansas City 2, California 1.

Phillies 5, Expos 4

At Montreal, Wes Chamberlain hit a two-run home run, helping Philadelphia hand the Expos their eighth straight loss. Jason Grimsley, 3-2, pitched five scoreless innings. Roger McDowell pitched 1 2-3 innings and survived two runs to pick up his 21st save. Dennis ''Oil Can'' Boyd, 10-6, took the loss.

Padres 2, Reds 1

At Cincinnati, Benito Santiago delivered an RBI double with two out in the ninth, helping San Diego keep the Reds on the brink of the NL West title. The Dodgers' loss cut Cincinnati's magic number to one for clinching its first title since 1979. The victory snapped the Padres' eight-game losing streak.

Astros 2, Braves 1 (10 innings)

At Houston, Casey Candaele doubled home two runs with one out in the 10th, rallying the Astros. It was the 27th extra-inning game for the Astros, which leads the major leagues. It tied the NL record established by the 1943 Boston Braves and equalled by the 1967 Los Angeles Dodgers.

Giants 7, Dodgers 6

At San Francisco, Will Clark scored on a wild pitch by Jim Gott, 3-5, with none out in the ninth, lifting the Giants. The next Cincinnati victory or Los Angeles loss will give the Reds the NL West penant. Francisco Oliveras pitched a scoreless ninth to raise his record to 2-2.

(SEPT. 28) UPI - Powerful thunderstorms caused flooding in the Texas panhandle early Saturday as rain covered southeastern Florida and dense fog shrouded north-central Pennsylvania.

The National Weather Service warned that 60 mph wind gusts were possible Saturday on the western slopes of the Wasatch Mountains in Utah, where 49 mph gusts were recorded Friday at Centerville and winds ripped a removed a camper shell from a pickup truck in Provo Canyon. Salt Lake City's airport recorded 25 mph winds.

The NWS posted a flash flood watch until 7 a.m. Saturday in the western two-thirds of the Texas panhandle, including Amarillo, and said downpours covered all but the southeast portion of the region.

Flooding was reported in the Oldham County city of Vega, sheriff's officers said. Numerous storms were sweeping northeast through the panhandle area at 15 mph, the NWS said.

Showers and thunderstorms, many with very heavy downpours, were scattered throughout an area of rain that enveloped much of southeastern Florida, the NWS said.

One of the strongest of the early morning thunderstorms was spotted between Florida City and Elliot Key.

Fog socked in areas of north-central Pennsylvania for the third consecutive night, cutting visibility to zero at the Williamsport airport and in the towns of Jersey Shore, Linden and Hughesville. Near- zero visibility was reported along Route 220 and Interstate 180 in Lycoming County. Observers said Saturday's fog was even worse than Thursday's and Friday's.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - The Toronto Blue Jays showed a lot of courage in the ninth inning Friday night but they didn't count on Boston's heart of stone.

Jeff Stone, in his first big-league at-bat of the season, capped a two-run ninth inning with a bases-loaded single Friday night, rallying the Boston Red Sox into sole possession of first place with a 7-6 victory over Toronto.

Stone's liner into the gap off reliever Tom Henke gave Boston the opener of a three-game weekend series between the two contenders in the American League East, and gave the Red Sox a one-game lead in the standings.

Both teams have five games left, including two against each other this weekend. If the teams finish the regular season in a tie, they would play a one-game playoff Thursday in Toronto.

''It didn't work out quite the way Hollywood thought it was going to, '' said Boston Manager Joe Morgan. ''But for the locals it did.''

The crowd of 35,735, the largest paid attendance at Fenway Park since 1978, ''was going crazy,'' recalled Stone. ''I felt like 'The Natural.'''

Stone's last major-league hit was off Henke last season. But the Blue Jays hurler didn't recall it, or the fact that Stone is a fastball hitter.

''I never faced him,'' said Henke, 2-3. ''But it wouldn't have mattered, I was going to go after him anyway.''

After Junior Felix had put Toronto ahead 6-5 with a two-run homer in the top of the inning, Jody Reed drew a walk from Henke, and Carlos Quintana sacrificed. Wade Boggs walked and Ellis Burks singled to left, loading the bases. Mike Greenwell tied the score with a single to right and Stone hit the second pitch to right-center.

''It's good pennant baseball,'' said Henke. ''It was a pretty emotional rollercoaster - up and down, back and forth, and they got the last ride.''

Boston has won nine of 11 from Toronto this year, including all five at Fenway Park. Jeff Reardon, who underwent back surgery Aug. 4, improved his record to 4-3.

In other American League action, Baltimore blanked Cleveland 2-0, Detroit downed Minnesota 3-1, Seattle pummeled Chicago 13-4, New York pounded Milwaukee 7-2, Oakland tripped Texas 4-1, and Kansas City edged California 2-1.

In the National League it was: New York 7, Chicago 1; Philadelphia 5, Montreal 4; San Diego 2, Cincinnati 1; Pittsburgh 6, St. Louis 4; Houston 2, Atlanta 1; and San Francisco 7, Los Angeles 6.

Orioles 2, Indians 0

At Cleveland, Bill Ripken drove in a run with a 25-foot single and rookie Ben McDonald pitched his second shutout to hand the Indians their third straight loss. McDonald, 8-5, struck out four and walked one to give the Orioles their second straight win. He retired the final 10 batters.

Tigers 3, Twins 1

At Detroit, Chet Lemon and Travis Fryman hit back-to-back home runs in the sixth to pace the Tigers. Lemon's homer - his fifth of the year and first since May 7 - came off loser Allan Anderson, 7-18, and broke a 1-1 tie. Fryman then hit his eighth homer of the season. Jack Morris, 14-18, won his third straight game. Mike Henneman earned his 22nd save.

Mariners 13, White Sox 4

At Chicago, Alvin Davis hit his third grand slam of the season and added a double and a bases-loaded walk to a 14-hit attack, leading Seattle. Randy Johnson, 14-10, struck out 11 in his fifth complete game of the season.

Yankees 7, Brewers 2

At Milwaukee, Steve Adkins flirted with a no-hitter for six innings then settled for his first major-league victory, guiding New York. Adkins, 1-1, allowed four hits and two runs over eight innings. The Brewers' Greg Vaughn led off the seventh with a double on a 3-1 pitch to end Adkins' bid to throw the 10th big-league no-hitter this year. Loser Ted Higuera, 10-10, allowed six runs on nine hits in 3 2-3 innings.

A's 4, Rangers 1

At Arlington, Texas, Mike Moore, outdueled Charlie Hough and helped bring Oakland a victory. Hough, 12-12, pitched what was probably his last game as a member of the Rangers, receiving a standing ovation when he left the game in the ninth. Texas is not expected to offer a 1991 contract to Hough, the Rangers' all-time leader in wins. Moore raised his record to 13-14.

Royals 2, Angels 1

At Anaheim, Calif., Steve Farr scattered six hits over 5 1-3 innings for his fifth straight win as a starter and Gary Thurman singled in the deciding run carrying Kansas City. Farr, 13-7, beat the Angels and Chuck Finley, 18-9, for the second time in five days. Finley lost his third in a row and his chance to be the first 20-game winner for the Angels since Nolan Ryan in 1974.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (SEPT. 29) UPI - The anti-apartheid African National Congress Saturday opened its first two legal regional congresses in South Africa in 31 years and a keynote speaker accused the Pretoria government of fomenting a wave of factional black violence.

ANC Treasurer-General Thomas Nkobi told the Cape Town regional congress, attended near the city by some 500 delegates of 81 branches, that the government had a dual agenda: ''to negotiate with the ANC for the purposes of responding to international pressure'' and to promote violence ''in order to weaken the ANC.''

''It is this double agenda which is designed to break us down,'' charged Nkobi a member of the ANC's 37-member National Executive Committee. ''They are using every vile tactic possible to weaken our movement.

''The vicious violence ... is aimed at destroying our spirit of resistance and defiance,'' he told representatives of some 40,000 ANC members in the Cape Town area, apparently referring to allegations of police involvement in stirring the strife.

Nkobi's tough stance contrasted with more cautious statements of recent weeks from ANC leader Nelson Mandela, who has never accused the government of outright and deliberate duplicity.

ANC Internal Leader Walter Sisulu was due to address the other congress, incorporating the Johannesburg area, the heartland of the Congress's power.

He was also to address the issue of the now-dormant internecine conflict among blacks.

President Frederik de Klerk imposed a tough set of military-style measures codenamed ''Iron Fist'' this month to quell the fighting, which in more than six weeks killed up to 800 people.

De Klerk has repeatedly denied the government wants to gain any advantage from the strife.

''They want us to bow down to their bayonets and jackboots,'' Nkobi said of ''Iron Fist'' and a related nightly curfew.

But police say the actions have largely restored peace and emptied hundreds of hospital beds in the nation's largest black township of Soweto.

De Klerk suggested the battles in the townships around Johannesburg were initially tribal-based, pitting the mixed-tribal support of the ANC against followers of the exclusively Zulu Inkatha movement.

But, with wary and limited assent from de Klerk, the ANC has insisted a shadowy ''third force'' has been involved, possibly consisting of rogue police officers or members of the burgeoning number of right-wing terror groups fighting de Klerk's eight-month-old racial reform program.

Nkobi said Pretoria's moves away from 42 years of white minority rule - including preliminary talks with the ANC - were a result of international pressure, and said the government's ''double agenda'' could not be allowed to succeed.

''We must frustrate them in their attempts. We must build up the ANC into a powerful voice for the people,'' Nkobi said.

The two ANC gatherings were the first formal congresses of the movement inside South Africa since the National Congress in 1959, the year before the ANC was banned by a government outraged by its demands for power sharing in a non-racial state.

But de Klerk legalized the movement Feb. 2 this year, at the start of his package of racial reforms, then released Mandela from 27 years in prison Feb. 11 and has since allowed the return from exile of scores of senior ANC officials.

Two rounds of preliminary talks between the ANC and Pretoria opened the way to full-blown negotiations on a post-apartheid state, but both sides have said the factional strife has threatened the talks process.

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 29) UPI - A U.S. airman was listed in good condition Saturday with a gunshot wound to his shoulder, inflicted in unspecified circumstances while on duty in eastern Saudi Arabia, a statement said.

An official statement said the unidentified soldier was wounded at dusk on Thursday while serving as a general purpose mechanic with the 883rd Transportation Squadron.

It said he was taken to a hospital run by the 354th Tactical Fighter Wing, where he ''remains in good condition.''

An inquiry had been ordered into the circumstance that led to the serviceman being shot in the shoulder.

The only other bullet wound inflicted during Operation Desert Shield was on a soldier of the 82nd Airborne Division last week, but a statement indicated that the foot injury was self-inflicted.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (SEPT. 29) UPI - The United States delivered four helicopter gunships to the Philippine Air Force Saturday for use its battle against communist guerrillas fighting the government for the past 21 years.

Philippine Air Force Vice Chief of Staff Brig. Gen. Loven Abadia said the choppers arrived at the U.S. Clark Air Base, 50 miles north of Manila, and will be transferred to the 15th Strike Wing in Cavite province across Manila Bay next week.

Abadia said the four choppers were the first batch of 28 McDonnel Douglas 520 MG Defender helicopters to be delivered under the foreign military sales credit in exchange for the use of six U.S. bases in the Philippines.

He said the helicopters were new and cost $1.36 million each.

It was the first time this type of helicopter was delivered to the Philippines. Previous deliveries consisted of refurbished Huey and Sikorsky helicopters extensively used during the Vietnam War.

Abadia said the Defender is a ''fast-reacting gunship'' that can be deployed to combat areas within a 30 mile radius in minutes. It also is capable of operating at night and can be armed with machineguns, rocket launchers and missiles, he said.

The United States provides the Manila government $481 million each year for the use of Clark, Subic Bay Naval Complex and four smaller installations. The lease on the facilities expires on Sept. 16, 1991.

Philippine and U.S. negotiators last week adjourned the second round of talks on the future of the bases. The discussions resume next month in Manila.

Communist guerrillas have expressed opposition to U.S. military aid to the 159,000-member Philippine armed forces and is urging for the immediate dismantling of the bases in 1991.

Two sources close to the budget negotiations say Republicans have dropped their demand for a lower capital gains tax. Negotiators are optimistic. They recessed late last night, and will resume later today. By Monday they need an agreement or automatic budget cuts begin under the Gramm-Rudman law.

The House moved swiftly yesterday toward increasing the supply of oil to keep prices down. It granted Energy Secretary James Watkins' request to draw-down the U-S oil reserve by 15-Million barrels. The Senate is considering a similar bill. President Bush on Wednesday allowed sales of five-Million barrels.

The United Nations is hosting the largest gathering of presidents and prime ministers in history this weekend. It will take 150 motorcades to take them from hotels to the U-N grounds. The world leaders are holding a World Summit of Children, intended to reduce the 40-thousand deaths of children that take place each day.

Environmental groups have asked a federal court to halt next week's launch of the space shuttle Discovery. It is scheduled to put a nuclear- powered solar spacecraft, Ulysses, into orbit around the sun. The activists argue that an accident during Discovery's launch could release 24 pounds of plutonium fuel.

An Air Force spokesman says General Michael Dugan, the fired chief of staff, is working as a special assistant to Air Force Secretary Donald Rice. Defense Secretary Cheney fired Dugan for talking about bombing plans against Iraq. The special assistant's job apparently will be temporary until Dugan is retired from the service.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - The Illinois Supreme court ruled that a pair of three-year-old twins can NOT be forced to undergo tests to determine if their bone marrow can be donated to their half-brother. The older boy, who turns 13 tomorrow, is dying of leukemia. The twins' mother says she does NOT want to risk danger to the children.

Jews began observing Yom Kippur at sundown yesterday. Yom Kippur is the day of atonement when Jews seek forgiveness for their sins. In Israel, broadcast stations went off the air and Ben- Gurion Airport closed. But the armed forces are on heightened alert because in 1973 Israel was attacked on Yom Kippur.

A six-day cease-fire was shattered yesterday in Liberia's capital, Monrovia. Government troops and forces of rebel leader Prince Johnson fought for several hours. The government troops were in the presidential mansion where soldiers loyal to the late President Samuel Doe are trapped between two different rebel forces.

Leftist rebels ambushed a police patrol in southern Peru yesterday and killed six officers. A police spokesman says about 50 rebels attacked. Military sources say the rebels are trying to take over production of coca leaf which is used to make cocaine.

The California Air Resources Board yesterday approved a plan that will require mass production of electric cars by 1998. It mandates that by then two percent of all new cars sold in California will produce NO smog. Only electric cars can do that. By 2003, the NO-smog requirement applies to 10 percent of all new cars.

CAIRO, EGYPT (SEPT. 29) UPI - The restoration of diplomatic ties between Britain and Iran could pave the way for the resumption of British-Syrian relations and set the stage for the release of British hostages held in Lebanon, Arab and foreign diplomats said Saturday.

They also said the normalization of relations between Britain and Iran makes the Tehran government less likely to stand with Iraq in its confrontation with the West over the Gulf crisis.

Last Thursday, Britain and Iran resumed diplomatic relations, which were severed more than a year ago when the late Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini issued a death order against Indian-born British author Salman Rushdie for his novel ''Satanic Verses,'' considered by Moslems as blasphemous to Islam.

Since then, Rushdie has been in hiding under the protection of the British government.

''I believe the restoration of diplomatic ties between Britain and Iran will eventually lead to restoration of ties between London and Syria,'' a Cairo-based Arab diplomat said. ''This could happen in a short time, particularly since relations between the two countries have been warming for the past few months.''

Syria earlier this month gave British airliners permission to cross Syrian airspace en route to Jordan carrying supplies to refugees from Iraq and Kuwait in the kingdom.

The move was seen as a thaw of relations between Damascus and London, which reached its lowest ebb when the government of British Prime Minister Margeret Thatcher accused the government of President Hafez Assad of involvement in an attempt to blow up an Israeli jetliner at Heathrow airport five years ago.

Syria and Britain have found themselves in the same trench in dealing with Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of the oil-rich emirate of Kuwait. Both countries have sent troops to the gulf region to counter any possible Iraqi aggression.

''It seems clear that both countries are in full agreement on the necessity of checking and repulsing the Iraqi president in the Gulf,'' said an Arab diplomat, who asked not to be identified. ''The Gulf crisis has apparently narrowed the gap between the two countries.

The diplomats believe that restoration of diplomatic relations between Britain and Iran will make the Iranian leadership less likely to forge a strong alliance with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, even though ties between Baghdad and Tehran have become more and more normal after a decade of hostility marked by the 1980-88 Persian Gulf war.

''In my belief, the Iranians will avoid any measures that could be seen as a violation of the U.N trade and air traffic embargo against Iraq, just because they want to show the world community that they are adhering to international law despite the fact they are disappointed over the lack of such measures by the world organization when Iraq launched an aggression against Iran,'' one of the diplomats said.

During the eight-year Iran-Iraq war, Iran had tried unsuccessfully to pursuade the U.N Security Council to adopt resolutions condemning Iraq as an aggressor.

The diplomats also said that now that diplomatic relations between London and Tehran have been restored, Iran is likely to use its influence to win the release of British hostages held by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon. It may also lead to the release of British businessman Roger Cooper, seized in Tehran in 1985 for alleged espionage.

''Iran may use its role in releasing the hostages held in Lebanon as a cosmetic operation for its image abroad,'' one diplomat said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 29) UPI - While the United States gauged the impact of the international embargo against Iraq, President Bush was heading for a weekend of personal diplomacy at the United Nations.

Bush, who will address the World Summit for Children at the United Nations on Sunday, will meet with 20 foreign leaders in his continuing diplomatic effort to isolate Iraq following its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Among those scheduled to meet with Bush were British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Bush also had a series of bilateral meetings scheduled Saturday with the leaders of Colombia, Lebanon, Nicaragua, Poland and Japan.

The highlight of the president's three-day trip to New York will be his address to the U.N. General Assembly on Monday, in which he is expected to salute the international solidarity for a sea and air embargo of Iraq designed to pressure Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his forces from Kuwait.

In meetings last week with Turkish President Turgut Ozal and Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al Sabah, the emir of Kuwait, Bush heard an assessment of Iraqi forces.

After a two-hour meeting Friday with the emir, Bush said: ''His highness and I reaffirmed our support for the U.N. Security Council resolutions as the means to bring about a peaceful end to the crisis. But ultimately, that is up to Saddam Hussein.''

The emir told Bush that his nation is being destroyed in an Iraqi reign of terror with ''terrifying'' pillaging and looting with its ''population assaulted, incarcerated, intimidated and even murdered.''

Bush said the two leaders agreed that all options must be kept open ''to ensure that Iraq's unlawful occupation in Kuwait is ended and Kuwait's legitimate government is restored.''

But national security adviser Brent Scowcroft said time will be allotted to see if the international embargo against Iraq is effective in forcing Iraq to leave Kuwait.

''I believe it is in everyone's interest to see whether or not there's a peaceful solution,'' Scowcroft said. ''There is no question what goes on in Kuwait affects the timetable (for use of other options).''

''I think we need to come to a sincere judgment of whether there is a peaceful way,'' Scowcroft said.

He said that the emir ''talked about the urgency of the situation'' but also told Bush he believes Saddam is feeling the effect of the sanctions.

While the U.N. charter has a specific provision for military action to enforce its resolutions, Scowcroft said that the president would not request it ''on this trip to New York.''

''There are additional U.N. articles that could be called into operation,'' Scowcroft said.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 29) UPI - More than half of all Americans are concerned about the level of personal debt they currently owe, with 27 percent saying they're very concerned, according to a survey by a national credit reporting company.

Dr. Alan F. Westin, a professor of public law and government at Columbia University, said an analysis of the recent Louis Harris- conducted survey reveals that Americans between the ages of 18-24, people with the least formal education, and blacks were most likely to express concern.

Westin did the analysis for Equifax Inc., an Atlanta credit reporting company that requested the survey.

''Although 27 percent of the general public say they are very concerned, more than half of black Americans (56 percent) say they are very concerned about their current debts,'' Westin said. The survey shows 51 percent of the general public are generally concerned about their current debt.

Additional findings include the following:

- Of those concerned about their debts, 33 percent have been turned down for credit, compared to 18 percent of those unconcerned.

- Eighteen percent of those concerned wish that a credit grantor had looked at their debts and turned down their application for further credit, compared to 4 percent of those unconcerned.

Americans concerned about their debt level are significantly more worried about threats to their privacy than those unconcerned, and they also believe more strongly that consumer privacy rights today are not adequately protected by law or organizational rules.

Westin called on the National Foundation for Consumer Credit to ''add a strong statement of privacy principles and procedures to its already excellent Code of Ethics for Consumer Credit Counseling Services.''

The NFCC serves as the umbrella group for 550 Consumer Credit Counseling Service offices. NFCC is a non-profit membership organization whose purpose is to educate, counsel, and promote the wise use of credit.

Equifax Inc. is the leading provider of information for consumer financial transactions.

A PORT IN EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 29) UPI - More U.S. Army personnel arrived and shrink-wrapped Chinook and Huey helicopters were lifted off the decks of cargo ships Saturday, as U.S. forces strengthened their numbers in Saudia Arabia and an airman was reported wounded under unspecified circumstances.

Military officials had no information on how the soldier was shot but said an investigation was underway. Soldiers at bases in Saudi Arabia have told reporters they have been under orders to travel in pair for their safety.

The unidentified airman was reported in good condition at a military field hospital recovering from his wound, which he suffered Thursday. He was the third soldier to suffer a gunshot wound since the start of Operation Desert Shield to counter Iraqi aggression after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Huge C-5A Galaxy transports disgorged Army soldiers who rested and gathered their gear in shady hangers before loading onto buses for the trip to their final destination.

At the port, Army personnel from Fort Bragg, N.C., cut away plastic shrink wrap for the past two days and hung rotor blades on the Chinooks to get them ready for deployment. It took about four to five hours working in temperatures still well over 100 to get each aircraft ready to operate.

Both the Chinooks, including the new D model, and the 25-year-old Hueys, have special screening to help keep the fine invasive sand of the region from doing too much damage to the aircraft. The sand - so fine that Saudi Arabia must import sand for concrete - can scratch and wear away turbines and rotors and get into hydraulic systems.

In addition to maintenance problems, the sand can blot vision sometimes, swirling up around a landing helicopter. And pilots said the flatness of the terrain can lead to depth perception problems.

Capt. Kurt Fedors, operations officer for the 18th Aviation Brigade and a veteran of the U.S. invasion of Panama, said, ''It's a big concern. There are a couple of concerns. Flying low you pick up a lot of rotor wash and just kicking up sand and out here there's no terrain relief here like where we're from you can see trees and river valleys.''

''Out here in the desert it'll just jump up and you'll get a 100 foot rise and you can't see it,'' he said. ''It's like flying over water. You lose your depth perception. If you're flying at 50 feet and look away for a second and the radar altimeter reads zero feet and you're in trouble.''

The older Chinooks have had some problems with a transmission that combines power from two jet engines and earlier in the year some were briefly grounded for repairs. Capt. Corey Mahannah, the 18th's spokesman, said his units choppers were in good shape.

''The modifications have all been done,'' he said.

Also with the unit was Capt. Lorelei Coplen, a self-described Army brat whose husband, Capt. Richard Coplen, is a military intelligence specialist studying at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Government and International Relations.

She hasn't spoken with her husband since getting to Saudi Arabia, but was cheered by a letter, and Coplen's brother - her brother-in-law who serves under her in the helicopter maintenance unit and arrived with the ships carrying the helcopters.

As an Army child, Coplen said she spent much of her childhood in Lebanon and North Africa and is familiar with the Arab culture, so coming to Saudi Arabia was no shock to her.

''In fact, I'm beginning to recognize the (Arabic) symbols again. My contact with the local population has been limited to officials and military officers and they have been the utmost in politeness.''

In a statement on the shooting incident, officials said the airman suffered a gunshot wound in the shoulder about 6 p.m. Sept. 27 at a facility in the country.

Although the airman was not named, he was described as a mechanic with the 833rd Transportation squadron based at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M. He was treated at the 354th Tactical Fighter Wing's mobile hospital and was in good condition. He was assigned to the transportation element suporting both the 354th and 23rd Tactical fightear Wing operations as part of Operation Desert Shield.

It was the third gunshot wound reported during the operation. Soldiers in the 24th Mechanized Division and the 101st Airborne Division suffered gunshot wounds in the lower limbs earlier.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - Defense, the Chicago Bears and Los Angeles Raiders are on the upswing in this young NFL season. All three come together Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The Bears and Raiders, whose past successes were built on intimidating defenses, are off to strong starts after slumping in recent years. They are among the five teams left unbeaten after three weeks of a season that has been dominated so far by defense.

Los Angeles has given up only one touchdown and its 25 points allowed are the lowest in the league. Chicago has the NFC's second-best defense, surrendering just two touchdowns and 29 points. Each team has 11 sacks.

''They're the best team we've seen on film so far, without question,'' Bears Coach Mike Ditka said of the Raiders. ''They're a good football team. They're well coached. They love to hit you. They love to beat on you. It ought to be a great game. I just hope it's not too hot. I'll get tired.''

The Bears have the most rushing yards in the league, led by Neal Anderson with 263. But Chicago ranks 27th in passing and the Raiders 25th, so Sunday's game figures to be slugged out in the trenches.

''Who knows?'' said Raiders Coach Art Shell, not necessarily buying that theory. ''It might be high scoring. All I know is I want to do whatever it takes. I don't care if we win 3-0 or 34-33.''

A 34-33 score is unlikely. Chicago quarterback Jim Harbaugh was awful in last week's 19-16 victory over Minnesota, completing just 5 of 16 passes. Jay Schroeder of the Raiders averages a league-high 9.3 yards per attempt, but only two of his 54 passes have gone for touchdowns.

Second-year defensive end Trace Armstrong leads Chicago's rejuvinated front with a league-high five sacks.

''Last year was just such a different year,'' Armstrong said. ''It was really hard for anybody to excel. We had so many people coming in and out of the huddle, so many injuries. That combined with camp is why I didn't play the way I was a capable of last year.''

The New York Giants and Cincinnati Bengals also try to reach 4-0 this weekend. The Giants, another dominant defensive team, play home against Dallas Sunday and the Bengals play in Seattle Monday night. The other unbeaten team, San Francisco, is off this week with the rest of the NFC West.

At East Rutherford, N.J., the Giants shoot for their second triumph over the Cowboys in three weeks. New York dominated in a 28-7 victory over Dallas Sept. 16, holding the Cowboys offense without a touchdown while holding the ball for 41:14.

''As good as the Giants are playing right now, I don't know if anybody looks forward to playing them,'' Dallas Coach Jimmy Johnson said. ''But we feel we can do a better job than we did down here.

''It helps (to play so soon) in some ways because you do have them fresh on your minds.''

In other games Sunday, it's Cleveland at Kansas City, Tampa Bay at Minnesota, Denver at Buffalo, Miami at Pittsburgh, Indianapolis at Philadelphia, Houston at San Diego, Green Bay at Detroit, the New York Jets at New England, and Washington at Phoenix.

At Kansas City, Chiefs Coach Marty Schottenheimer faces his old team for the second time since leaving Cleveland after the 1988 season.

''The truth is no, it really isn't (special),'' Schottenheimer said. ''I think I mentioned a year ago when I went back to Cleveland I had anticipated that it would be kind of unique. I thought walking into the stadium I might have this sense of (emotion) but when I got there I didn't feel that.

''This is an opportunity for the Kansas City Chiefs to take on one of the best football teams in the American Conference and we need to try to find a way to win.''

The Browns, 1-2, have been far from one of the best teams in the AFC so far while the Chiefs, 2-1, have looked like the contenders they were supposed to be this year.

At Phoenix, the Redskins seek their second victory over the Cardinals this season but are without quarterback Mark Rypien. Stan Humphries replaces Rypien who is on injured reserve with a knee injury. Cardinals lost opener 31-0 in Washington.

''Stan Humphries is a good quarterback,'' Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said. ''He wouldn't be in this league if he wasn't, and we have confidence in him.

''It's not on any one player's shoulders to win the game. If Stan keeps things simple and doesn't force anything, he'll do just fine.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 29) UPI - The Cold War really has not ended in Angola, the oil-rich southern African nation where U.S.-backed rebels are still battling a leftist government in a war that has left hundreds of thousands dead.

The United States has given tens of millions of dollars in covert military aid to the rebels since 1986. The reason then was that Angola was ruled by a one-party government, propped up by 50,000 Cuban troops and Soviet money.

But now, with the Cubans withdrawing, the Soviets growing more friendly and peace talks set to resume in late October between the Angolan government and the rebels, Congress is considering whether to continue that aid.

In addition, a complicating factor exists - famine, which prompted an agreement Sept. 24 between the United States and Angola to allow the shipment of supplies through both rebel- and government-controlled areas.

Hoping to shore up his U.S. support, rebel leader Jonas Savimbi of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, or UNITA, will come to Washington on Monday for several days of meetings with members of Congress and President Bush.

His message: Stay the course.

''The present U.S. policy has been very effective. It has paid off. If today we are talking about prospects for peace in Angola and Cuban withdrawal from Angola, it was because UNITA was able to resist,'' said Jardo Muekalia, chief representative to the United States for the rebel group.

Muekalia said military aid will be needed until the government recognizes UNITA as a political party and elections can be held. Aid now is particularly important, he said, because the Persian Gulf crisis has boosted the government's oil revenues.

''The Cold War may be winding down but ... the goal of U.S. policy in Angola has been national reconciliation,'' he said. ''The need for democracy and free and fair elections has nothing to with the winding down of the Cold War.''

However, American black leaders, including Jesse Jackson, and liberals in Congress have been working to end the aid to UNITA, which, because it is covert, has been provided without open debate in the House and Senate.

UNITA opponents argue that rather than being a fighter for democracy, Savimbi is an oportunist whose past patrons have ranged from Maoist China to racist South Africa. His record, they say, includes torture.

The next forum for the aid foes will be the House Rules Committee, which could act as early as Tuesday on whether the House will get a chance to cut off the money and whether to consider having a public debate.

The Senate already has passed its intelligence authorization bill, but opponents of aid in the House say they are more confident than ever that they may be able to eliminate or limit the money for Savimbi.

''We have a fighting chance on this one. It is not a kamikaze effort, '' said one congressional source who opposes Angolan aid.

But UNITA's Muekalia said he was not worried.

''Most people on the Hill, in Congress, understand that this is now a time when we need to concentrate on how to bring about democracy (in Angola) and not changing course in midstream,'' he said.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - It's back to the drawing board today for White House and congressional negotiators working on a budget deal. White House chief of staff John Sununu left talks yesterday saying- ''we're moving in the right direction.'' That- after Republicans reportedly yielded on their demand for a cut in the capital gains tax. Sources say G-O-P negotiators now will push for pro-growth incentives.

Demonstrations in the Middle East yesterday show contrasting views of the Persian Gulf crisis. Tehran radio says huge crowds marched in the Iranian capital chanting anti-U-S slogans. Iran condemns Iraq's invasion of Kuwait but criticizes the presence of U-S-led forces in Saudi Arabia, where Islam's holiest sites are. In the United Arab Emirates, reports say 10-thousand Kuwaitis and other Arabs attended a rally in support of Kuwait's deposed emir.

The House passed an emergency bill to triple the size of a test oil sale from the nation's strategic reserve. Energy Secretary Watkins yesterday asked Congress for power to increase the test to 15-Million barrels. President Bush Wednesday ordered a test draw-down of five- Million barrels of oil to be sold on the open market. The move is an attempt to end the kind of speculation that drove oil prices to nearly 40-dollars a barrel.

Air Force managers are watching the skies over Cape Canaveral, Florida, where a Deltam, E- D-T. Lift-off yesterday was postponed when clouds and heavy rain moved over the area. Forecasters now say there's a 40-percent chance of more bad weather today. The 30-Million-dollar rocket will carry a Global Positioning System military satellite into orbit.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - Everyday life came to a halt at sundown yesterday in Israel as sirens marked the start of the holiest day of the year for the world's Jews observing Yom Kippur. Jews around the world are fasting in observance of the day of atonement when forgiveness is sought for the sins of the past year. During the 25-hour fast in Israel, all businesses, restaurants and places of entertainment close and public transportation halts.

Police in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, are looking for the kidnappers of two college students who were freed for 300-thousand dollars. The children of two prominent businessmen were kidnapped 17 days ago by members of a crime syndicate. Police say the kidnappers initially demanded 10-Million dollars and 11 pounds of pure gold, but later reduced the amount. Police say the students were freed UNharmed in a northern suburb.

Twin Peaks now belongs to Washington state. NOT the television show, but the pristine wooded site east of Seattle, best known to television viewers as the setting for the ''Twin Peaks'' series. State wildlife officials bought the 740-acre tract from Georgia-Pacific in an 820- thousand-dollar deal. Public lands chief Brian Boyle calls the area an ''excellent wildlife habitat,'' home to cougars, black bears, coyotes, bobcats, mountain goats, elk and deer.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 29) UPI - A 538-foot Norwegian tanker lost power and collided with a tugboat and two barges, dumping more than 100,000 gallons of light crude oil into the Houston Ship Channel, but most of it had evaporated Saturday, officials said.

''The loss of power appears to have caused the vessel to go off course,'' said

Petty Officer Mike Sams of the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office in Galveston.

The crash Friday 3.5 miles east of Texas City pierced the hull of one of the barges, spilling the oil into the water, Sams said.

Officials said the tanker was headed out of the channel and collided with a tugboat and the two 297-foot barges it was pushing at about 9 p.m.

Investigators were trying to determine what happened between the time of the power loss and collision, he said.

Lynn Garner, president of a cleanup company hired by the owners of the tanker, made an aerial survey of the spill and said it should all be evaporated Saturday afternoon.

Garner said about 126,000 gallons of crude spilled into the water but Sams said the Coast Guard had not made an official estimate.

Sams says Coast Guard personnel wore protective gear, including respirators.

The channel was reopened to barge traffic at 5:30 a.m. Saturday, Sams said.

The inbound barges were struck by the tanker as they were being pushed stern-to-stern by a tugboat, he said.

The ship was moved out of the spill area and anchored about 10 miles away, where it is undergoing a damage assessment, Sams said.

Garner said the collision left 10-foot holes in the ship and the barge. He said the hole in the barge is above the water line and the leaking has stopped.

The Coast Guard and officials from the Texas Water Commission are conducting tests to determine the extent of environmental damage, officials said.

TALLAHASSEE, FL. (SEPT. 29) UPI - Florida officials told a congressional subcommittee Saturday that diversion of hundreds of millions of gallons of water for Atlanta could dry up the Apalachicola Bay's fragile oyster industry.

U.S. Rep. Bill Grant, R-Fla., who represents the eastern Panhandle area affected by the plan, promised to introduce legislation to put the bay's seafood industry on equal footing with urban and farming interests upstream in Georgia and Alabama.

''We don't believe the burden of Atlanta's growth should be placed on the shoulders of the people of North Florida and Alabama,'' Grant said.

Grant arranged the meeting of the House subcommittee on water use to hear from oyster harvesters and state environmental officials.

At issue was diversion of waters from Lake Lanier, the headwaters of the Chattahoochee River, which joins the Flint River at the Florida line to make the Apalachciola River, which empties into the Gulf of Mexico at the world-famous oyster bay.

For differing reasons, Florida and Alabama officials vigorously oppose massive diversion of Lanier's waters for Atlanta's growth needs. Some downstream farming counties within Georgia also oppose the plan.

Atlanta officials say their residents and businesses need the proposed diversion of Lake Lanier. The U.S. Corps of Army Engineers has proposed diverting the water from hydropower and navigation to recreation and water supply, to meet Atlanta's needs through the year 2010.

Alabama has filed a federal suit to stop the diversion and Florida has joined in the litigation - contending that removal of the water would reduce the freshwater flow to Apalachicola Bay, thus increasing salinity in oyster beds already hard hit by two hurricanes in the late 1980s and persistent drought.

''Even the remote possibility for contamination of the Apalachicola Bay is unacceptable,'' Florida Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher testified. ''We're talking about the future of the seafood industry in Florida and along the entire Gulf Coast.''

While Gallagher testified in person, Education Commissioner Betty Castory and Attorney General Bob Butterworth submitted written testimony. As members of the state Cabinet, all three said the economy and ecology of the Panhandle and Gulf Coast could not afford any loss of freshwater flow in that area.

Castor wrote that Florida has been dealing with growth management and comprehensive planning for many years and suggested ''our neighbors in Georgia may find it helpful to come work with the people in our agencies and water management districts to craft a strategic water plan that will meet their needs.''

Butterworth said Florida will ''push on'' with Alabama's lawsuit if that state works out a settlement with Georgia not acceptable to Florida.

State Rep. Al Lawson, D-Tallahassee, said 85 percent of Franklin County residents earn their livings from the bay. He said seafood accounts for $12 million in annual sales.

Grant said Corps of Engineers plans recognize transportation, recreation, drinking needs and other usages - but not seafood production. ''I intend to introduce legislation to change that.''

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL. (SEPT. 29) UPI - Launch of a $30 million Delta 2 rocket carrying a $65 million Global Positioning System military navigation satellite was postponed Saturday for the second day by bad weather.

A third launch attempt was scheduled for 5:31 p.m. EDT Monday.

The 126-foot, blue-and-white Delta 2 rocket was scheduled for liftoff at 5:40 p.m. EDT Saturday from launch complex 17 at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, 24 hours behind schedule because of stormy weather Friday.

More bad weather prompted Air Force mission managers to order a second delay Saturday.

The goal of the flight is the launch of a Global Positioning System ''Navstar'' satellite, the ninth in a planned network of such spacecraft that ultimately will allow military forces on the ground, at sea and in the air to determine their location and altitude to within 53 feet anywhere in the world.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 29) UPI - An explosion at a nuclear fuel plant spewed poisonous gas across the Soviet city of Ust-Kamenogorsk, prompting officials there to ask the Kremlin to declare the area an ecological disaster zone, The New York Times reported Saturday.

No loss of lives or evacuations were reported in the complaint filed by the republic of Kazakhstan, but the region, located near the Soviet borders with China and Mongolia, suffered widespread contamination, the newspaper said.

The blast occurred Sept. 12 at the Ulba Metallurgical works and released a ''poisonous cloud'' across the republic's eastern area, a region about 2,000 miles southeast of Moscow, according to Soviet news accounts, the Times said.

The Soviet accounts said the plant's process involved beryllium, a heavy metal that is an element used in fuel for nuclear power reactors. Beryllium is not radiactive but is a toxic chemical.

The local Soviet authorities, who are reported to have waited four days before announcing the nature of the explosion to the public, have said that it left a residue variously reported as an ''insignificant increase'' and an amount double the normally permissible level of beryllium contaminants in the air.

The Times said a quantitative measurement of the beryllium was not reported, nor was there any description of how harmful it might be to human health.

President Nursultan Nazarbayev of Kazakhstan said in his message to the Kremlin that the local authorities had already declared the region an ecological disaster area, according to the Soviet press agency Tass.

''The Kazakh public and the town's population demand urgent measures and compensation for their damaged heath,'' Tass quoted Nazarbayev as saying.

The Kazakh authorities want the Kremlin to act urgently and dispatch experts to the region to determine in the nuclear fuel plant should be closed, the Times said.

The region has been closed to foreign correspondents.

KINGSTON, MA (SEPT. 29) UPI - Mourners overflowed a church Saturday for the funeral of a 13-year-old girl found partially clad and buried in her neighbor's basement, as new reports emerged about his history of sexual assaults.

Family and close friends of Melissa Benoit crowded the First Parish Unitarian Church, a simple white New England church with a bell in its spire, as hundreds of other mourners huddled outside to hear the service broadcast on speakers.

Pink ribbons, which adorned trees during the southeastern Massachusetts town's massive search for Benoit, decorated the green outside the church.

Meantime, published reports Saturday revealed the man charged with murdering Benoit had admitted to previously molesting children, raping a young woman at knifepoint, masturbating while watching school girls and making obscene phone calls.

Henry Meinholz Jr., 52, was arrested Wednesday shortly after Benoit's body, clad in only a pink T-shirt, was found in a shallow grave in the basement of his home.

While a cause of death has not been conclusively determined, court documents revealed an autopsy found ''injuries consistent with sexual assault'' and bruises ''consistent with a struggle prior to death.''

Reports indicated Benoit was bound with rope around her body and one of her hands.

Meinholz, 52, a bookkeeper for a lumber company and a church deacon, pleaded innocent at arraignment Thursday and was ordered to undergo psychiatric testing.

His attorney, Jack Atwood, said Meinholz was questioned by the FBI earlier this month and ''made certain disclosures about other crimes he may have committed.''

Published reports quoted unnamed sources as saying Meinholz told investigators he raped a young woman at knifepoint at a fair in nearby Marshfield about 10 years ago, masturbated while watching school-aged girls, made obscene phone calls and followed school buses to watch young girls.

He also reportedly admitted to three decades of molesting children and told investigators of a history of incest in his family.

Atwood has said his client remembered nothing about the Benoit slaying and has had out-of-body experiences in which he sees himself in other places, and recurring nightmares about being in a crypt or coffin.

Police questioned Meinholz after an officer recalled Meinholz was accused in 1979 of molesting one of his two daughters, who are now adults no longer living at home.

State welfare workers reportedly removed the daughter from the home in October 1979 for two months after substantiating a report of abuse against Meinholz.

Meinholz reportedly failed a lie detector test when questioned about Benoit's whereabouts last week. Police then obtained a warrant to search his home.

Police dug up two areas of Meinholz's yard Thursday and Friday in search of more bodies but stopped searching and said they only found more evidence in the Benoit case.

State police said Meinholz is not considered a suspect in any other slaying.

Benoit, a soft-spoken eighth-grader at the Sacred Heart School, vanished Sept. 15 after spending the afternoon watching television at another neighbor's house. She is believed to have left that house, 50 feet from her own, to visit the grave of her father, who died one year ago last week.

Meinholz, a deacon at the First Baptist Church in Plymouth, and his wife lived next door to Benoit and were among scores of neighbors and friends who combed the town of 4,300 residents looking for the missing girl.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 29) UPI - The World Summit for Children, the largest gathering of presidents and prime ministers ever, began Saturday at the United Nations with a public plea for payment of a world debt and a series of private meetings.

''The world has a social debt it has to pay to the poorest,'' said the first head of state to address the meeting, Chile's President Patricio Aylwin Azocar at a background briefing.

In the world, 40,000 children die every day from causes that could be avoided and prevented, Aylwin said. In Latin America and the Caribbean there are more than 100 million poor people, mostly children, he said.

Canada's Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, one of the initiators of the unprecedented summit, met with Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu in a basement conference room at the U.N.

They were the first world leaders Saturday to hold private, bilateral discussions in the complex.

The summit, witnessed by fewer than 200 children, has strained the capability of the U.N. to handle the more than 70 leaders, including President Bush, Britain's Margaret Thatcher and Czechoslovakia's President Vaclav Havel.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who greeted the arriving dignitaries, said nearly all the officials were ''extremely concerned about the difficult situation'' in the Persian Gulf.

However, they combined their concern with hopes for the success of the summit, which he described as a ''tender occasion.''

Nearly 150 motorcades took the dignitaries from their hotels to the U.N. building for a series of bilateral and multilateral meetings and a windup dinner exclusively for heads of state and or government Saturday evening.

Participants were asked to be present at 7 a.m. Sunday for a daylong debate.

Had it not been for the Persian Gulf crisis, King Hussein of Jordan and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia would have attended. Except for the Kuwaiti emir and Lebanon's Prime Minister Salim Hoss, all other Middle East leaders stayed home.

King Baudoin of Belgium will be the only monarch at the summit. All Latin American heads of state and government will be present. African leaders will show up in force, including Uganda's President Yoweri Museveni, Mozambique's Joaquim Chissano and Zimbabwe's Robert Mugabe.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and China's Prime Minister Li Peng first accepted the invitation, but later declined in order to deal with domestic problems, U.N. officials said.

The U.N. Children's Fund said many of the child fatalities are caused by a lack of medicines that cost only a few U.S. cents each.

Officials of UNICEF estimate the meeting will cost between $3 and $5 million.

Scores of governments have contribued $3 million to defray costs of the summit. In addition, New York City police would spend $6 million in overtime for police work, city officials said.

Dr. Nafis Sadik, executive director of the U.N. Population Fund, told the briefing, ''Up to 20 percent of all pregnancies are unwanted ... the first child of a teenage mother is 80 percent more likely to die than the second or third child ot a woman aged 20-24...''

''Children born less than two years after their older brother or sister are 66 percent more likely to die in infancy,'' said Sadik. ''By expanding effective, modern family planning, infant and child deaths in the Third World would be cut to by 3 to 5 million; perhaps a third of the estimated 13 million such deaths annually.''

Diarrhea was the single most fatal disease, causing 4 million annually among children under 5 years of age.

However, Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima, director general of the World Health Organization said 700,000 children already have been born with AIDS, and estimates 700,000 have been born infected with HIV, the human immunodeficiency virus, which causes aids.

He told the briefing that by the year 2000 over 10 million infants and children will have been infected by HIV, and at least 1 million will die of AIDS.

''More than 10 million uninfected children - mostly in sub-Saharan Africa - will be orphaned as their parents die of AIDs,'' he said.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 29) UPI - While the United States gauged the impact of the international embargo against Iraq, President Bush arrived Saturday for a weekend of personal diplomacy at the United Nations.

Bush, who will address the World Summit for Children at the United Nations on Sunday, will meet with 20 foreign leaders in his continuing diplomatic effort to isolate Iraq following its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Among those scheduled to meet with Bush were British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Bush also had a series of bilateral meetings scheduled Saturday with the leaders of Colombia, Lebanon, Nicaragua, Poland and Japan.

The highlight of the president's three-day trip to New York will be his address to the U.N. General Assembly on Monday, in which he is expected to salute the international solidarity for a sea and air embargo of Iraq designed to pressure Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his forces from Kuwait.

A White House aide said there would be ''a couple of surprises'' in Bush's speech to the General Assembly. He did not explain or elaborate.

In meetings last week with Turkish President Turgut Ozal and Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al Sabah, the emir of Kuwait, Bush heard an assessment of Iraqi forces.

After a two-hour meeting Friday with the emir, Bush said: ''His highness and I reaffirmed our support for the U.N. Security Council resolutions as the means to bring about a peaceful end to the crisis. But ultimately, that is up to Saddam Hussein.''

The emir told Bush that his nation is being destroyed in an Iraqi reign of terror with ''terrifying'' pillaging and looting with its ''population assaulted, incarcerated, intimidated and even murdered.''

Bush said the two leaders agreed that all options must be kept open ''to ensure that Iraq's unlawful occupation in Kuwait is ended and Kuwait's legitimate government is restored.''

But national security adviser Brent Scowcroft said time will be allotted to see if the international embargo against Iraq is effective in forcing Iraq to leave Kuwait.

''I believe it is in everyone's interest to see whether or not there's a peaceful solution,'' Scowcroft said. ''There is no question what goes on in Kuwait affects the timetable (for use of other options).''

''I think we need to come to a sincere judgment of whether there is a peaceful way,'' Scowcroft said.

He said that the emir ''talked about the urgency of the situation'' but also told Bush he believes Saddam is feeling the effect of the sanctions.

While the U.N. charter has a specific provision for military action to enforce its resolutions, Scowcroft said that the president would not request it ''on this trip to New York.''

''There are additional U.N. articles that could be called into operation,'' Scowcroft said.

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (SEPT. 29) UPI - Unknown gunmen fired shots at Panama's presidential palace early Saturday from a passing car, a presidential spokesman said.

Local news reports said no one was hurt in the incident.

Carlos Bares, chief of presidential security, said an attack was made against the presidential palace at 1:30 a.m. local time Saturday, but would not provide more details.

He said President Guillermo Endara was in New York for the United Nations summit on children at the time of the attack.

Witnesses living near the palace said two men in a rented Mitsubishi car sped through the security chains at the entrance to the palace and fired several shots at the front of the building.

They said the car bolted from the scene down a street leading to the waterfront and careened into the ocean.

No bodies were recovered from the wreck, local television station Channel 4 reported.

The attack was the second since Endara was ushered into office during the December U.S. invasion of Panama. The first, which also occurred when Endara was out of the country, left one palace worker dead.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 29) UPI - Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin was more seriously injured than first reported in a traffic accident a week ago, and the charismatic populist has been confined to bed for 10 days, a newspaper reported Saturday.

The official trade union newspaper Trud quoted a Yeltsin aide identified only as G. Burbulis saying ''consequences of the road accident turned out to be more serious than seemed to be at first.''

Trud said Yeltsin had suffered serious bruises, particularly in the area of his hip, and doctors had ordered that he stay in bed for 10 days.

''Nevertheless, Boris Nikolaevich (Yeltsin) as usual does not lose his optimism and follows all events closely,'' Burbulis was quoted as saying.

Since the Sept. 21 accident Yeltsin has missed a week of sessions of the Russian Supreme Soviet of which he is chairman. He was also conspiciously absent from the debates over granting extra economic powers to his erstwhile rival President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Yeltsin, dogged by accidents throughout his life, was injured when a small Lada driven by a pensioner ploughed into the side of his official Volga sedan.

Unlike other top Soviet officials, who have traffic blocked or use escorts with red lights and sirens to clear the way, Yeltsin has ordered that no special provisions be made for him and his driver negotiates normal traffic on Moscow streets.

Trud said there have been numerous telephone calls and cables offering whatever help is needed since the accident, but said all Yeltsin required was rest and he was being taken care of by family members. It was unclear if he was in a hospital or at home.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - France warned Saturday it would retaliate if the grenade attack on a cafe that killed a 9-year-old boy is linked with Iraq, and Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz of Iraq made an unexpected visit to Jordan for talks with King Hussein.

Iraq denied it will withhold food from foreigners beginning Monday as previously threatened, as President Bush headed into a weekend of personal diplomacy at the United Nations to continued his effort to isolate Iraq following the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Among the foreign leaders Bush will meet are British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. Bush also had a series of meetings scheduled Saturday with the leaders of Colombia, Lebanon, Nicaragua, Poland and Japan.

Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu is expected to explain the steps Japan has taken in the crisis, including its pledge of $4 billion in financial support and a proposal under consideration to permit unarmed Japanese to go to the Persian Gulf for non-combat duty.

The highlight of Bush's three-day trip to New York will be his address to the U.N. General Assembly on Monday, in which he is expected to salute the international solidarity for a sea and air embargo of Iraq designed to pressure Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his forces from Kuwait.

The Iraqi foreign minister Aziz, who boycotted the U.N. General Assembly after a dispute with the United States over what type of aircraft could carry him to New York, unexpectedly visited Jordan and held talks with Hussein Saturday in a closed meeting, presumably to try to convince the monarch to ease the restrictions against Iraq, Jordan's largest trading partner.

The Jordanian monarch, who has been trying to walk a fine line between maintaining friendly relations with Iraq and conceding to world pressure, said three days ago that he would honor the economic embargo against Iraq by limiting air traffic between Baghdad and Amman to passenger flights only.

Iraq, meanwhile, denied that foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait would be barred from obtaining food under a new rationing system that starts Monday.

''The rationing card system will ensure the basic and necessary commodities are distributed in equal quotas, without discrimination between Iraqis, Arabs, diplomats, foreigners working in Iraq, and those who are guests of Iraq,'' said Muhammed Mahdi Saleh, minister of trade, in a statement carried by the official Iraqi News Agency INA.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein refers to Western hostages held at key military and economic sites as guests, even though they are being held against their will.

Iraq said two days ago that foreigners would be denied ration cards, which are used in the distribution of the dwindling supplies of food in Iraq and Kuwait due to the economic embargo imposed by the United Nations.

Iraqi authorities have been rationing bread for weeks, but under the new plan that starts Monday many other staples will be rationed as well and people redeeming ration cards will have to produce I.D. cards to guard against cheeting.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said France would respond firmly if it were proven the Thursday night grenade attack on the Cafe de Paris used by French citizens in the East African nation of Djibouti was sponsored by Iraq.

''It is abominable to strike at innocents,'' Dumas said on France- Inter Radio of the attack that killed a 9-year-old French boy and injured 17 other people. ''One must energetically condemn such an attack.''

Dumas said no evidence unearthed yet has definitely linked the incident to Iraq, but warned France would respond firmly if a link was proven.

He noted the attack coincided with the arrival this weekend of 4,000 French troops in Saudi Arabia.

France deployed he additional troops after Iraqi presidential guardsmen burst into the French Ambassador's residence at Kuwait City and seized three French civlians sheltering there.

A Paris-based Djibouti opposition group condemned the cafe attack in a statement Saturday and said it was ''can only be the work of isolated individuals.'' It also said Djibouti authorities recently had imported arms from Iraq that apparently were distributed clandestinely.

As the French government flexed its military muscle, thousands of French demonstrators marched across the river Seine in Paris to protest French military involvement in the Persian Gulf.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - At Cape Canaveral, Florida, engineers will try again this evening to get a 30-Million-dollar Air Force Delta-2 rocket off the ground. The launch of the rocket carrying a Global Positioning System military navigation satellite was postponed yesterday because of rain and heavy clouds.

The Coast Guard and Texas water officials are trying to determine the extent of environmental damage in the Houston Ship Channel, where 126- thousand gallons of a light crude oil were spilled last night. The spill occurred after a tanker and two barges collided. NO one was injured, and officials say most of the oil has evaporated.

A new survey shows that more than half of all Americans are concerned about their personal debt. The survey by Equifax Incorporated, an Atlanta credit reporting company, found that 31 percent of those who expressed concern about their debts have been turned down for credit... compared to 18 percent of those unconcerned.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (OCT. 1) UPI - Northwest Airlines is asking its union employees to consider accepting concessions or come up with other ways to save the carrier money in the face of skyrocketing fuel costs.

Northwest Chairman Al Checchi made formal requests Friday in separate meetings with the chairman of the airline's 5,600-member pilots union, the president of its 24,000-member machinists union and in a telephone conversation with the national airline director of the Teamsters Union, which represents 8,500 Northwest flight attendants.

Union leaders said Checchi did not threaten layoffs if concessions are not granted. But they said he made it clear that all airlines are hurting because of the higher fuel costs.

''He's interested in having us, well, brainstorm for creative things we can do to keep the airline moving forward and get through this fuel crisis ahead of the game, or at least not lose ground,''said Duane Woerth, chairman of the Northwest council of the Airline Pilots Association.

Northwest's annual fuel bill was about $1.2 billion at mid-July prices but will rise an estimated $600 million in the next 12 months if prices stay at current levels. It is estimated that would use up most of the carrier's annual cash flow if the higher costs are not passed on to passengers or offset by budget cuts.

Northwest is the nation's fourth-largest air carrier and has about 14,000 employees.

The union leaders were not quick to jump on the concession bandwagon.

''I think the membership in general is skeptical,'' said Guy Cook, president of the International Association of Machinists at Northwest. ''They like Checchi. But they read the papers. They see Eastern, they see Hormel. They have a feeling that once you start these concessions they never stop.

''Sure, we have an interest in keeping Northwest healthy.But my people also look at it personally. There's a feeling that throughout the economy, the worker's standard of living goes down but management's doesn't.''

Cook said if he had to make an immediate decision, he would lean toward taking layoffs rather than reopening labor agreements for renegotiation.

Woerth said his union is ''not in any mood to negotiate anything, but we'll try to stay on top of the situation and we expect to be kept in the loop.''

Checchi apparently set no deadline for a response from the unions, nor did he say how much money the airline needs to save in labor costs or specifically how that might be achieved.

Northwest is expected next week to begin modest cost-cutting measures, possibly including reduced food service or fewer flight attendants on certain flights. Other airlines are also taking similar steps.

SOUTH BEND, IN (SEPT. 29) UPI - Raghib Ismail ran for 82 yards and a touchdown, leading a 362-yard ground attack by top-ranked Notre Dame in Saturday's 37-11 rout of Purdue.

Ismail, a junior, carried five times and scored on a career-longest scrimmage run of 64 yards. Fourteen Irish rushers carried a total of 65 times and Notre Dame owned the ball for 38:48. Even fourth-string walk- on quarterback Matt Johnson had a chance to rush against the outmatched Boilermakers.

The Irish, 3-0, won their fifth straight over Purdue and 12th straight over a Big Ten foe. Notre Dame, now on a 19-game home win streak, has beaten the Boilermakers, 1-2, by a combined point total of 214-54 over the past five seasons.

Ismail took a pitch from quarterback Rick Mirer on a flanker reverse and rushed 64 yards down the left sideline for a touchdown, giving Notre Dame a 20-3 lead 10:37 before halftime. ''Rocket'' kept back judge Ted Defilippo between himself and Purdue defenders until he crashed into the official as he fell across the goal line.

Linebacker Scott Kowalkowski and tackle Chris Zorich led a relentless Irish pass rush that sacked Purdue sophomore quarterback Eric Hunter four times for 36 yards. Kowalkowski knocked loose two Hunter fumbles, recovering one to set up a touchdown. Zorich recovered the other a play before Ismail's touchdown run. Hunter completed 21 of 37 passes for 354 yards but Purdue failed to convert on any of 10 third-down attempts.

Mirer completed 11 of 17 passes for 130 yards, but the Irish sophomore had no need of the last-second heroics he used the past two weeks in leading Notre Dame past Michigan and Michigan State. Mirer rallied the Irish for two fourth-quarter touchdowns each of the past two weeks with the help of deflected passes that fell into the hands of Notre Dame receivers.

Rodney Culver scored on a 2-yard run with 2:04 remaining in the second quarter giving the Irish a 27-3 halftime lead. The play capped an 89-yard, 17-play drive lasting 6:23. Notre Dame rushed for 247 yards on 33 carries and had the ball 18:52 in the first half. Purdue managed 1 yard on 13 carries and failed on all six third-down conversion attempts.

Mirer scored the first Irish touchdown on a 12-yard run 45 seconds into the second quarter. The sophomore weaved past four tacklers before reaching the end zone. Notre Dame led 6-3 after one quarter on field goals of 44 and 43 yards by Craig Hentrich. Larry Sullivan kicked a 31- yard field goal for Purdue.

Shawn Davis, a cornerback converted to split end this season, scored on a 1-yard run after Kowalkowski's third-quarter fumble recovery. Hentrich added a 24-yard field goal to give the Irish a 37-3 lead.

Curtis McManus caught a 38-yard touchdown pass from Hunter with 3:23 remaining and Ernest Calloway caught a two-point conversion pass for the final points.

OLYMPIA, WA (SEPT. 30) UPI - Lawmakers are looking at an updated form of the ancient Chinese medical practice of acupuncture as a possible remedy for drug addiction.

A State Senate panel was told Friday that a modernized form of the technique known as electroacupuncture is gaining popularity among treatment professionals.

Under the method, five needles are stuck in each ear and then electrofied by a mild current. As the patient sits quietly for about an hour, the electrified needles calm the nervous system that has been disrupted by alcohol or drugs, according to therapists who have used the practice successfully.

''It appears to be an effective way of detoxifying without the anguish and pain seen in other methods,'' staff counsel Rod McAuley told the Senate Law and Justice Committee.

Sen. Gary Nelson, R-Edmonds, who chairs the committee, said he's been interested in the technique for several years, particularly as a way to help pregnant women addicted to drugs lessen their pain and the effects of drugs on their babies.

McAuley said the benefits of acupuncture in addiction treatment were discovered aboud 15 years ago in Hong Kong. There, drug addicted patients who used acupuncture as an anesthetic during surgery reported they lost their craving for drugs after the operation.

Since then, clinics in London have been using electroacupuncture to help addicts and the treatment is available in about half a dozen cities in the United States, he said.

KINGSTON, MA (SEPT. 30) UPI - Mourners overflowed a church Saturday for the funeral of a 13-year-old girl found partially clad and buried in her neighbor's basement, as new reports emerged about his history of sexual assaults.

About 150 family members and close friends of Melissa Benoit crowded the First Parish Unitarian Church, a simple white New England church with a bell in its spire. Hundreds of other mourners huddled outside to hear the Rev. Walter Braman's 40 minute service broadcast on speakers.

Pink ribbons, which adorned trees during the southeastern Massachusetts town's massive search for Benoit, decorated the green outside the church.

''Melissa was one fiber warp and woof of the fabric of our lives,'' Braman said, using weaving terms metaphorically. ''This fiber was cut short, but it remains strong.''

The Benoit family arrived in a limosine and said nothing while entering and leaving the church. Occasional sobs and prayers went up from the clusters of mourners outside the church.

Braman urged mourners to remember the strong community response to Benoit's disappearance, the ''love and hope'' of the 11-day ordeal, rather than letting the episode's ''cynicism and fear'' triumph.

Meantime, published reports Saturday revealed the man charged with murdering Benoit had admitted to previously molesting children, raping a young woman at knifepoint, masturbating while watching school girls and making obscene phone calls.

Henry Meinholz Jr., 52, was arrested Wednesday shortly after Benoit's body, clad in only a pink T-shirt, was found in a shallow grave in the basement of his home.

While a cause of death has not been conclusively determined, court documents revealed an autopsy found ''injuries consistent with sexual assault'' and bruises ''consistent with a struggle prior to death.''

Reports indicated Benoit was bound with rope around her body and one of her hands.

Meinholz, 52, a bookkeeper for a lumber company and a church deacon, pleaded innocent at arraignment Thursday and was ordered to undergo psychiatric testing.

His attorney, Jack Atwood, said Meinholz was questioned by the FBI earlier this month and ''made certain disclosures about other crimes he may have committed.''

Published reports quoted unnamed sources as saying Meinholz told investigators he raped a young woman at knifepoint at a fair in nearby Marshfield about 10 years ago, masturbated while watching school-aged girls, made obscene phone calls and followed school buses to watch young girls.

He also reportedly admitted to three decades of molesting children and told investigators of a history of incest in his family.

Atwood has said his client remembered nothing about the Benoit slaying and has had out-of-body experiences in which he sees himself in other places, and recurring nightmares about being in a crypt or coffin.

Police questioned Meinholz after an officer recalled Meinholz was accused in 1979 of molesting one of his two daughters, who are now adults no longer living at home.

State welfare workers reportedly removed the daughter from the home in October 1979 for two months after substantiating a report of abuse against Meinholz.

Meinholz reportedly failed a lie detector test when questioned about Benoit's whereabouts last week. Police then obtained a warrant to search his home.

Police dug up two areas of Meinholz's yard Thursday and Friday in search of more bodies but stopped searching and said they only found more evidence in the Benoit case.

State police said Meinholz is not considered a suspect in any other slaying.

Benoit, a soft-spoken eighth-grader at the Sacred Heart School, vanished Sept. 15 after spending the afternoon watching television at another neighbor's house. She is believed to have left that house, 50 feet from her own, to visit the grave of her father, who died one year ago last week.

Meinholz, a deacon at the First Baptist Church in Plymouth, and his wife lived next door to Benoit and were among scores of neighbors and friends who combed the town of 4,300 residents looking for the missing girl.

SEOUL, South Korea (SEPT. 30) UPI - Millions of South Koreans, taking advantage of nearly a week of upcoming holidays, began moving to and from Seoul Saturday for reunions with relatives and fun at resorts.

Railroad stations and express bus terminals in Seoul were crowded with people going to and coming from provincial points. Radio and television stations were advising people to leave private cars at home and use mass transportation so as not to overcrowd highways.

Authorities estimated that about one-third of the nation's 43 million people will be on the move during the holiday period ending Thursday.

Monday is Armed Forces Day, a legally designated public holiday. Tuesday through Thursday are Chusok, or Mid-Autumn Moon Festival holidays, also officially recognized.

On Chusok, Koreans are reunited with relatives and visit ancestral graveyards to offer fresh fruits and boiled rice and wine made of newly harvested crops. Many people visits resorts for fun after the Chusok rituals.

The Korean version of Thanksgiving, Chusok is one of the most important holidays in the nation.

This year, Chusok Day falls on Wednesday, which coincides with the National Foundation Day marking the founding of Korea by a legendary king.

To commemorate the National Foundation Day, the government freed 773 prisoners including 147 juveniles, from correction institutions across the country Saturday.

It is a standing practice for the government to mark major holidays by releasing convicts with good prison records.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro Saturday presented President Bush with a mounted Soviet-made AK-47 assault rifle once belonging to the Sandinistas, saying it symbolized the end of the civil war in her country.

''I want to give it to you as a sign of the end of the war and the beginning of our democracy,'' Chamorro said, handing the inoperable weapon to Bush.

''I don't know if you really like it,'' Chamorro said with a laugh.

Bush protested, ''I do, I really do.''

The exchange took place during a picture-taking session at the start of a meeting between the two leaders.

The gun was part of a cache of weapons surrendered by the Sandinistas after Chamorro, an opposition candidate, was elected president Feb. 25. Bush said he will put the gun in a trophy case at Camp David.

Chamorro was one of 20 leaders Bush planned meeting with this weekend at the United Nations.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (SEPT. 30) UPI - A former U.S. adviser to the Salvadoran military testified in the controversial case of six Jesuit priests murdered by members of the armed forces, court sources said Saturday.

The Supreme Court said in a statement Maj. Eric Buckland testified in the home of a U.S. diplomat ''for security reasons.''

No details of his testimony were immediately available.

Buckland, who was called back to the United States early this year, has provided evidence of the Salvadoran military's cover-up of its role in the Nov. 16 slaying of the priests, their housekeeper and her teenage daughter.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jefferson Brown said Buckland was made available to the court despite diplomatic status that exempted him from testifying.

''The judge thought his testimony was important and we wanted to do everything possible to cooperate in the case,'' Brown said.

Buckland had previously submitted written testimony saying military investigators covered up a direct confession from Col. Guillermo Alfredo Benavides, who is accused of ordering the killings.

Benavides, three lieutenants and four lower-ranking soldiers have been charged with murder.

The priests were top members of San Salvador's Jesuit-run University of Central America and were El Salvador's most respected leftist intellectuals. They were gunned down in their residence by members of an elite U.S.-trained battalion.

Benavides is the highest ranking army officer ever to be charged in a political killing in El Salvador, despite the army's alleged involvement in thousands of such deaths during the decade of civil war with leftist rebels.

More than half of the 72,000 people killed in the conflict have been civilians and thousands of suspected leftists have been executed by death squads believed to be linked to the military.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - President Bush promised to seek duty-free status for Colombia's exports of cut flowers Saturday to help wean its economy away from the illegal drug trade.

During a meeting with Colombian President Cesar Gaviria, Bush announced that cut flowers - Colombia's largest export to the United States - would be targeted for beneficial tariff treatment in trade legislation to be sent to Congress next week.

Announced by Bush early this summer, the legislation would provide preferential treatment for trade from the four Andean countries of Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru just as the Caribbean Basin Initiative has been used to encourage exports from the Caribbean.

For months, Colombian officials have sought concessionary treatment of cut flowers and other products to spur legal exports to the United States. The issue of economic assistance has been entangled, however, in a trade dispute arising from U.S. charges that Colombia has unfairly ''dumped'' cut flowers on the U.S. market at low cost, to the detriment of American producers.

Gaviria, one of more than 20 foreign leaders Bush will meet with during a weekend of diplomacy at the United Nations, welcomed the assurance from Bush as ''the kind of help we are expecting, we are asking for.''

Speaking to reporters after the two met at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Gaviria said he was satisfied that Colombia would receive the ''special treatment'' warranted for its front-line position in the war on illegal drugs.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - President Bush met for a little more than an hour Saturday with Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, wrapping up his first day of conferences with world leaders to solidify opposition to Iraq's occupation of Kuwait.

Richard Solomon, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, said Kaifu extended an invitation to Bush to visit Japan early next year and Bush accepted. No date for the visit was set.

Solomon described the 65-minute discussion as ''wide ranging and dealing with critical issues when the world is in dramatic change.''

Solomon said Bush expressed appreciation to Kaifu for Japan's cooperation during the Persian Gulf crisis. Kaifu, in turn, praised Bush for his ''leadership and courage.''

Solomon said the two leaders also discussed trade issues, particularly the four-year multi-lateral negotiations between the two countries set to end in December.

Bush and Kaifu also discussed some ''interesting changes'' in North Korea and the prospect of normalized relations between the communist country and Japan, Solomon said.

Under questioning, Solomon said China is cooperating with the sanctions against Iraq, despite news reports to the contrary.

The two leaders also discussed Japan's energy situation in light of rising oil prices. Solomon said currently there is no ''supply problem in Japan,'' which imports all of its oil.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - President Bush met with six global leaders Saturday in a prelude to his address to the United Nations General Assembly Monday, spotlighting world efforts to stop Iraqi aggression in the Persian Gulf.

As he conducted diplomatic exchanges in New York on the first day of a three-day visit, Bush also kept a close eye on the budget summit negotiations in aimed at averting $100 billion in automatic cuts scheduled to go into affect Monday.

White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters there was a good chance that Bush would interrupt his New York sojourn and fly back to Washington Sunday to sign a budget accord if the negotiations yield an agreement.

Bush made tentative plans to hold a formal ceremony hailing the agreeement amid a report from White House Chief of Staff John Sununu that signs were hopeful for an agreement on the budget, which has been the subject of negotiations since May 15th.

Fitzwater said Bush's speech to the U.N. General Assembly Monday will deal with the Persian Gulf situation. He said it picks up on the ''new world order'' theme that Bush has been trumping since the stunning collapse of communism in Europe.

One White House aide said the president should have a ''couple of surprises'' in his remarks on efforts to compel Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his troops from Kuwait, which was invaded and annexed Aug. 2.

The president arranged to attend church services Sunday and then address the World Summit for Children at the United Nations before an elite audience of some 70 other heads of state.

During a meeting with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, co- chairman of the children's summit, Bush teased his friend and close ally, asking him whether he ''put the arm on the other heads of state'' to come ot the summit as he did Bush.

Fitzwater said despite reports to the contrary, ''We are very supportive of the goals of the children's summit.'' But he confirmed the United States was not prepared to sign the U.N. convention on children's rights until it was reviewed. He said there were some conflicts between the convention and state laws, such as the barring of capital punishment for children under 18.

The president has meeting with nine more foreign leader scheduled for Sunday, including one with Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel and dinner with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

During the revoloving door meetings with foreign leaders Saturday, Bush urged Japanese Prime Minster Toshiki Kaifu to speed up the dispersment of $4 billion that Japan has committed to ease the economic burden on front-line countries who are suffering from the gulf crisis. Kaifu also extended an invitation to Bush to visit Japan early next year and Bush accepted. No date for the visit was set.

Bush also met with Lebanese Prime Minister Selim Hoss and assured him the United States ''supports Lebanon's indepence, unity, soverignty, and territorialintergrity,'' Fitzwater said. Bush reaffirmed the the United States is seeking the withdrawl of all foreign forces from Lebanon, referring to Syria and Israel.

Bush emphasized the renewed U.S. contacts with Syria ''would in no way be detrimental to Lebanon.'' Fitzwater said.

In meetings last week with Turkish President Turgut Ozal and Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al Sabah, the emir of Kuwait, Bush heard an assessment of Iraqi forces.

After a two-hour meeting Friday with the emir, Bush said: ''His highness and I reaffirmed our support for the U.N. Security Council resolutions as the means to bring about a peaceful end to the crisis. But ultimately, that is up to Saddam Hussein.''

The emir told Bush that his nation is being destroyed in an Iraqi reign of terror with ''terrifying'' pillaging and looting with its ''population assaulted, incarcerated, intimidated and even murdered.''

Bush said the two leaders agreed that all options must be kept open ''to ensure that Iraq's unlawful occupation in Kuwait is ended and Kuwait's legitimate government is restored.''

But national security adviser Brent Scowcroft said time will be allotted to see if the international embargo against Iraq is effective in forcing Iraq to leave Kuwait.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - Sources say bi-partisan budget negotiators are still in a race against the clock to come up with a deficit-cutting package. Negotiators reportedly are hung up over how much the rich would contribute to the deal. Earlier, sources said Republicans had dropped their demand for a capital gains tax cut in exchange for other economic growth incentives. Without an agreement automatic spending cuts go into effect Monday.

Iraq says it will NOT withold food from foreigners starting Monday as previously threatened. A new food rationing system goes into effect Monday to cope with dwindling food supplies due to the economic embargo against Iraq and Kuwait. The Iraqi trade minister says the new plan will ensure basic necessities are equally distributed to everyone... including so-called ''Iraqi guests.''

Liberian rebel factions battled in the streets of Monrovia today, one day after a cease-fire broke down. Intense firing echoed throughout the capital city as troops loyal to Prince Johnson clashed with government forces. Johnson told U-P-I today that main rebel leader Charles Taylor has attacked his troops twice in the last two days... leaving one of his soldiers dead.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - President Bush received an UNusual gift today from Nicaraguan President Violetta Chamorra. Chamorro presented Bush with a Soviet-built A-K-47 assault rifle once belonging to the Sandinistas. Chamorra says the mounted weapon was a sign of the end of her country's war.

(SEPT. 29) UPI - Sunday's midnight deadline looms above congressional budget negotiators as they try to patch together a debt-reduction compromise. A bit of headway was reported last night by sources close to the talks. The sources say Republicans backed off from their demand for reduced capital gains taxes. The G-O-P action was predicated on the Democrat's agreeing to provide another pro-growth incentive in place of slashing capital gains taxes.

A new food rationing system is scheduled to be implemented in Iraq Monday amid shortages caused by U-N-imposed sanctions. Food distribution will be regulated by ration cards, which Iraqi officials say will be given to everyone living in Iraq. Baghdad previously threatened to cut off food to foreigners. But Iraqi officials say food will still be made available to NON-Iraqis.

ISLAMABAD (SEPT. 30) - A total 52,493 Pakistanis have returned from Kuwait and Iraq since the Gulf crisis began, officials said Sunday, adding that Islamabad would receive one billion dollars in international aid.

There were more than 120,000 Pakistanis in the two countries when Iraq took over Kuwait by force in early August.

A government statement said that of the 52,493 refugees who had returned as of Saturday, about half come back overland via Iran.

Sartaj Aziz, the finance minister, said Sunday that Pakistan would be treated as one of the worst affected countries by the crisis, and would receive one billion dollars in aid from the international community.

He told a press conference that half the money had been promised Pakistan for the next six weeks and that the other half should be available before the end of the fiscal year in June 1991.

He said donors included Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Japan and the European Economic Community.

Pakistan, which has sent troops to Saudi Arabia, has suffered greatly from the rise in oil prices. More than half its imports came from Kuwait at a preferential cost of 17 dollars per barrel.

The return of tens of thousands of Pakistani workers has also meant a heavy loss in foreign exchange remittances and is likely to increase the number of unemployed.

NEW YORK, United Nations (SEPT. 30) - More than 70 world leaders attended the first World Summit for Children Sunday and pledged to improve life for poor children throughout the world.

Malian President Moussa Traore, looking regal in a blue-and-gold traditional African robe, opened the meeting, thanking U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar for hosting the summit, which also drew 69 foreign ministers as observers.

In a welcoming speech, Mr. Perez de Cuellar said: "This world summit represents a commitment at the highest level to build a world order that will guard what is the most precious resource of the human race, its children."

Held at the initiative of Canada, Egypt, Mali, Mexico, Pakistan and Sweden, the summit was organized by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) at a cost of three million dollars.

Participants are scheduled to adopt a five-page declaration and action plan on the survival, protection and development of children. UNICEF estimates that the plan will cost five billion dollars annually over the next decade.

It sets out specific goals that world leaders hope to meet by the end of the century. These objectives include the eradication of polio, halving the maternal mortality rate, a 50-per-cent reduction of child deaths caused by diarrhea, and a 90-per-cent reduction in measles cases.

Earlier, Mr. Traore and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, the co-chairman of the summit, joined British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher,

According to U.N. figures, some 14 million children under the age of five die every year from the combined effects of malnutrition and preventable diseases.

Mr. Mulroney noted that "many problems that children face can be solved readily and at a modest cost."

Mr. Bush, in his address, said: "Saving one child is a miracle. As world leaders, we can realize such miracles -- and count them in the millions."

Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni, whose country is being ravaged by AIDS, noted in his speech that "the children of Africa are amongst the most vulnerable in the world. Twenty-one out of the 30 countries with the highest under-five mortality rate are in Africa."

He appealed to all world leaders present "to support Africa's efforts so that the survival and development of her children can be secured."

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, who did not attend the summit, sent a communique addressed to "my dear junior citizens of the world" in which he appealed to children "to learn the skill of living in harmony."

Encouraging them to take part in "a new world order," the Soviet leader said that "all of us shall have to work hard to get rid of the ills inherited from the past," such as resolving controversies by force, environmental pollution, and poverty.

UNICEF officials also hope that during the summit more countries will ratify the Convention on the Rights of the Child, which was unanimously adopted by the General Assembly last November and came into force September 2, when it was ratified by the necessary 20 countries.

Some 126 countries have signed the convention -- 13 of them did it Sunday -- and another 49 have ratified it.

The United States has not signed the convention. American conservatives have criticized the convention for failing to condemn abortion and for opposing the death penalty for people under 18 years of age. Some U.S. states allow the execution of minors.

PARIS (SEPT. 30) - The Soviet economy needs a massive injection of "10 to 12 million dollars at the minimum" to pay for consumer goods in order to prime the transition to a market economy, according to Nikolai Petrakov, an economic adviser to President Mikhail Gorbachev.

In an interview appearing Monday in the financial daily La Tribune de l'Expansion, Mr. Petrakov also said the Soviet president will issue a decree "in a few days" authorising the creation of completely foreign-owned subsidiaries in the Soviet Union.

The system for creating joint ventures, which has so far been excessively bureaucratic, will be modified, as will the fiscal system, Mr. Petrakov said.

A solution to the problem of repatriating capital will also be found, he said, without stating precisely how this will be achieved, and the exchange rate for the ruble "will be modified later."

The ruble is not convertible into other currencies, a major factor in limiting foreign investment since investors are unable to take their profits out of the country in the form of cash.

Mr. Gorbachev has just been granted extraordinary powers to speed the transition to a market economy, but Mr. Petrakov said the process could not begin while stores remain empty.

"To begin the market, we need a massive injection of all kinds of consumer goods," Mr. Petrakov said. "Several people -- banks, government and businesses -- have already offered us loans for that. We need 10 to 12 billion dollars at the minimum."

To make the transition to a market economy, Mr. Petrakov said the Soviet Union had to "break the monopolistic structures" of the ministries, transform large industries into private share-owned businesses, privatise smaller businesses and open the economy to international competition.

Mr. Petrakov also said he had prepared "a kind of black envelope" for Mr. Gorbachev containing advice on very strict and concrete measures to be taken immediately in case of unexpected difficulties.

"All the scenarios, even the most negative, have been foreseen. Whatever happens, we will not caught unprepared," he said.

MANAMA (SEPT. 30) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Sunday appeared to back away slightly from previous threats and hardline declarations and pronounced himself ready for a dialogue with all parties to the Gulf crisis.

"We must encourage any foreign initiative, including that which comes from those implicated in the concentration of fleets (in the Gulf region)," he said in a televised address to mark the birthday of the prophet Mohammad.

He also spoke positively of a three-point plan for the Gulf put forward at the United Nations General Assembly last Monday by French President Francois Mitterrand and said Iraq was in contact with the French government to explain its position.

The speech was different in tone from remarks September 23 in which he vowed to destroy Saudi Arabia and Israel if Iraq were attacked by the United States.

But the apparent overtures could also be a ploy to gain time, as Mr. Hussein repeated his determination to hold on to Kuwait -- which Iraqi troops seized August 2 -- in defiance of repeated international demands for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal.

"One of the most important considerations for Iraq, and one on which Iraq will never compromise, is that we must not return to the situation before August 2 " he declared Sunday.

BOGOTA (SEPT. 30) - The Colombian Government Sunday held peace talks with Maoist rebels from the Popular Liberation Army (EPL), touching on issues such as politics, development, violence and human rights, officials said.

The main issues were naming 20 EPL members to act as go-betweens with the government, and the setting up of three committees to explore proposals discussed by the negotiating committee.

The EPL and government have been engaged in peace talks for the past six months. They are trying to reach an agreement similar to the one the government and M-19 rebels signed in March which turned that guerrilla movement into a political party.

So far, the peace talks have allowed the EPL to station units in 10 camps in the provinces of Antioquia, Bolivar, Cordoba, Caldas and Putumayo.

KARACHI (SEPT. 30) - Pakistan's ousted prime minister Benazir Bhutto appeared before a special court here Sunday to answer charges of corruption, telling journalists before entering that she disputed the court's jurisdiction.

"We do not recognize the jurisdiction of special courts because they do not fulfill certain conditions required internationally and even by our own judicial system," Ms. Bhutto said.

Ms. Bhutto is charged here with committing irregularities in alloting a cotton contract to a private firm and appointing a consultant to a power project funded by the Asian Development Bank.

She is facing similar charges in two cases pending before another special court in Lahore, which has ordered her to appear before it on Tuesday and on October 9.

If convicted, she is liable to be disqualified from participating in the elections and barred from politics for seven years.

Hundreds of supporters chanted "long live prime minister Bhutto" outside the court premises as she attended the session, accompanied by her husband Asif Ali Zardari and a panel of lawyers.

Smiling and looking confident, Ms. Bhutto, 37, remained silent during the nearly two-hour court session, witnesses said. The court adjourned until October 10.

Her chief counsel, Yahya Bakhtiar, who also served as attorney-general during Ms. Bhutto's 20-month rule, said she had appeared out of respect for the judiciary although it did not signify her "recognition" of the special tribunal.

The court is one of the 11 set up by the interim government to try and sentence former members of Ms. Bhutto's government, which ended when President Ghulam Ishaq Khan fired her and dissolved parliament August 6, levelling charges of corruption, mismanagement and abuse of power.

Mr. Ishaq Khan subsequently called for general elections on October 24 and installed Ms. Bhutto's former parliamentary opposition leader, Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi, as caretaker prime minister until the elections.

In a statement to the one-judge court, Mr. Bakhtiar questioned the president's use of discretionary powers and called his intentions in subjecting only one side to accusations and trial "malafide and discriminatory".

He said Ms. Bhutto had come to the court although she had not received a summons, and said he had received no documents relating to the cases. The judge ordered that the documents be provided.

Ms. Bhutto told journalists she had decided to appear in court, reversing an earlier stance, to focus attention on how the leader of the largest political party "is being called from court to court".

"I came here to make this point before the judge and I have nothing against him," she said.

"Only leaders of her Pakistan People's Party (PPP) are being dragged into cases" instituted to "keep us tied down and prevent us from campaigning for the October 24 elections," she added.

She charged Mr. Ishaq Khan with taking part in the proceedings against her rather than maintaining neutrality and said the caretaker government had no intention of holding fair polls.

Ms. Bhutto wore traditional dress and a Moslem talisman used to ward off evil during a difficult task or journey.

Justice Wajihuddin Ahmed, who subpoenaed Ms. Bhutto in two cases, said the respondent "is being and will be treated as innocent unless proved otherwise," adding that the burden of proof rested with Mr. Ishaq Khan and his counsel.

The PPP leader is to begin the second leg of a massive election campaign Monday by addressing rallies at three places in populous Punjab province.

The elections are widely expected to be a close race between the PPP and the eight-party Islamic Democratic Alliance (IJI), which controls the interim federal government and that of the four provinces.

In 1988 elections following the death of military ruler Mohammed Zia ul-Haq in a plane crash, the PPP emerged as the largest single group in the 237-member National Assembly, with the IJI close behind.

BEIJING (SEPT. 30) - China said Sunday it welcomed the possibility of normalized ties with the European Economic Community (EEC).

Italian Foreign Minister and EEC President Gianni de Michelis told a news conference Friday in New York that he would advise his EEC colleagues to normalize ties with China in light of domestic and international developments.

"We welcome this expression by the EEC of its hope to normalize its relations with China as soon as possible," a foreign ministry spokesman said.

The EEC imposed a series of political and economic sanctions against Beijing after its bloody crackdown on pro-democracy protests here in June, 1989.

"It is our hope that with the joint efforts of the two sides, the relations between China and the EEC states will be improved and developed promptly," the spokesman added.

Observers said Beijing's recent cooperation in international efforts to resolve the Cambodian conflict and the Gulf crisis had encouraged the EEC to soften its stance.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (SEPT 30) - The West German Bundesbank, in a bid to one-up counterfeiters, will start introducing new Deutsche Mark notes on Monday, two days before German reunification.

Notes of 100 and 200 marks -- the latter denomination being printed for the first time -- will be the first to leave the central bank presses.

Five-mark notes (3.2 dollars), as well as 10, 20, 50, 500, and 1000-mark (640 dollars) notes are to be replaced by the end of 1992.

The blue-greenish 100-mark note carries an effigy of German pianist Clara Schumann, while German chemist Paul Ehrlich adorns the orange-yellow 200-mark note.

"The Deutsche mark is a very attractive and very safe currency, in the sense that it resists well to inflation", Guenter Storch of the Bundesbank board of directors said, adding that the switch was primarily aimed at making Deutsche mark notes safe against fakes.

The West German police sees color photocopiers as the biggest threat to the currency.

While color photocopiers were practically unknown in West Germany in 1987,

"false bank notes from photocopy machines made up 9.3 per cent of all counterfeit notes only two years later", Horst Burgermeister of the Federal Office of Criminal Investigation at Wiesbaden, central Germany, said.

New bank notes will carry a shiny metallic filament that will turn black on a photocopied note.

At 0.25 marks (0.16 dollars) a note, the new bills will be slightly more expensive than the old ones that were introduced in the 1960's but an alarming increase of counterfeit notes over the past three years seems to be worth the money.

Police officials seemed positive that international counterfeiters -- doing business mostly in Italy -- will ultimately turn away from the Deutsche mark to easier prey such as the U.S. dollar.

But officials fear that East Germans who have only fingered Deutsche marks since they were introduced in soon-to-vanish East Germany on July 2 may become soft targets for counterfeiters seeking to rid themselves of surplus stocks of false Deutsche marks.

HAMBURG, West Germany (SEPT. 30) - Ruling Christian Democratic Union (CDU) parties from East and West Germany will merge at a two-day congress here Monday, two days before the formal unification of the two countries.

The merger of the conservative party whose western chairman, Chancellor Helmut Kohl, has been the driving force in the rapid unification process will boost membership to nearly 900,000 -- 670,000 in the West and 200,000 in the East.

At an early meeting Monday, Mr. Kohl's CDU will amend its statutes, paving the way for formal unification.

Six regional federations from East Berlin and the five future federal states in East Germany will later join the congress.

On October 22, the united party is to adopt a platform outlining party politics ahead of the December 2 all-German election, which Mr. Kohl is tipped to win.

Mr. Kohl, western CDU head since 1973, will become the re-united Germany's first chancellor on Wednesday.

His leadership before the dramatic changes in East Germany that led to the ouster of the hardline communist regime had been disputed increasingly within party ranks and top party officials had sought to challenge him in a party vote.

But grasping the opportunity of rapid unification after Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev gave up initial resistance to a united Germany, Mr. Kohl's position firmed.

East German CDU leader Lothar de Maiziere will become deputy chairman at the unification congress here. The post was especially created for the East German prime minister, elected only last April, whose terms ends with German unification at midnight Tuesday.

Mr. de Maiziere has said the united CDU will have to give more weight to social issues in a future party platform.

Protestants will gain more influence in the party because East Germany is a mainly Protestant nation, while protestants and Roman Catholics are equally represented in West Germany, Mr. de Maiziere said in an interview with the weekly Bild am Sonntag.

He also predicted a long "learning process" before the two parties really become one and said the party must scrap derogatory terms such as "Ossies" when speaking of East Germans.

The CDU was founded after World War II and became a dominant force in West German politics under the late chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

But in the Soviet-occupied East, the party was made to cooperate closely with the ruling Socialist Unity Party (SED) during its 40-year existence.

Until the downfall of the hardline leadership last year, the East German CDU was one of four non-communist puppet parties designed to keep up a semblance of democracy in the Stalinist regime.

Mr. de Maiziere took over the eastern party after the resignation of its disgraced leadership following last year's anti-communist demonstrations.

JAMMU, India (SEPT. 30) - At least 12 people, including seven Moslem militants fighting for independence in India's northern state of Jammu and Kashmir, were killed in violence here at the weekend, police said Sunday.

Four militants were shot dead in a fierce gunbattle early Sunday as they tried to cross from Pakistan to a village in India-controlled Kashmir, a police spokesman said.

He said two policemen from the paramilitary Central Reserve Police Force died in a clash with militants in Sopore in the Kashmir valley late Saturday. Three militants were also killed.

Another constable from the Kashmir police and two civilians were also killed by militants fighting for independence from New Delhi.

Meanwhile a work stoppage by some 170,000 state employees in Jammu and Kashmir entered its 16th day Sunday with no solution in sight.

Strikers are demanding that the government reinstate five dismissed senior officials.

They also want the government to take no action against colleagues who complained to human rights organisations and the United Nations of alleged excesses by security forces in the state.

More than 1,645 people have died this year in violence linked to the separatist campaign.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) - President George Bush will visit five South American countries December 2-8, U.S. officials said.

Mr. Bush will visit Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile and Venezuela, the officials said Saturday in New York, where the president was scheduled to remain until Monday to address the U.N. General Assembly.

The exact dates of the visits were not disclosed.

The president will also visit Mexico at the end of November for talks with Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari on a proposed bilateral trade agreement, U.S. officials said.

That visit has been tentatively scheduled for November 28-29.

Mr. Bush had been scheduled to visit South America in late September, but the trip was postponed because of budget negotiations between the White House and Congress.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 30) - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir issued a new warning here Sunday against an attack on Israel, saying the use of force against his country would be a "terrible mistake."

"These days we hear threats in the Middle East against the security and existence of the state of Israel," Mr. Shamir said at a ceremony for soldiers killed in the October 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

"We hope these threats will not be put into execution. But if anyone tries to hit Israel, he will very quickly realize his terrible mistake," he said. "It's time Arab leaders understand using force against Israel is of no use."

BEIRUT (SEPT. 30) - Tens of thousands of people on Sunday demonstrated their support for the Lebanese Christian military leader, General Michel Aoun, and their opposition to a blockade imposed by Syrian-backed President Elias Hrawi.

The rally was held at the Baabda presidential palace where Gen. Aoun has his headquarters. Organizers put the crowd at 200,000 but there was no independent confirmation.

Since Friday, Mr. Hrawi's troops have imposed a blockade of the Metn, a 300-square-kilometre (120-sq.-mile) region controlled by the general that stretches northeast of Beirut.

The road leading to Baabda, dubbed the "people's palace" by supporters of Gen. Aoun, was filled with cars and buses provided by organizers of the rally.

"Your presence today is the greatest challenge to those encircling us," he told the crowd. "We are battling for Lebanon's sovereignty against a government that represents foreign interests and wants to eliminate its people."

The crowd reacted with cries of, "With our blood, with our soul, we will defend you, general."

Gen. Aoun refuses to recognize the Syrian-backed president, who was elected last November under an Arab peace plan. The general has rejected the plan because it failed to call for the withdrawal of Syrian troops in Lebanon.

Syrian President Hafez al-Assad met Mr. Hrawi for more than four hours Saturday in Damascus to discuss the Lebanese government's efforts to extend its authority throughout the country.

A presidential spokeswoman in Beirut indicated the two leaders were examining the possibility of a military operation against Gen. Aoun.

Mr. Hrawi's army surrounded the Christian region controlled by Gen. Aoun overnight Thursday, stopping all traffic except vehicles belonging to members of parliament, diplomats and Red Cross workers.

The blockade has caused fuel shortages and has led to a run on food in the Christian region. Political observers said the latest showdown could settle the fate of Gen. Aoun or President Hrawi's administration.

OLONGAPO, Philippines (SEPT. 30) - Filipino workers in all U.S. military bases in the Philippines staged a strike Sunday to protest alleged U.S. violation of a wage agreement with the workers' union, labor leaders said.

Primo Galvez, an official of a federation of Filipino base workers representing 22,000 Filipinos, said the strike was aimed at protesting Washington's 1990 general appropriations act, which provides only a 3.5 per cent wage increase.

He said a base labor agreement signed in 1968 provided that Filipino base workers are entitled to wage increases equal to the average given to workers of the Philippines' top 36 corporations.

Salary increases are granted to base workers every October, Mr. Galvez said, adding that Filipino base workers were entitled to an 18 per cent rise this year.

"We just want the U.S. authorities to implement the base labor agreement," Mr. Galvez said, adding that workers in Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base, the two largest overseas U.S. bases, are picketing the base gates.

"We will continue our strike until our demands are met," he added.

U.S. ambassador to the Philippines Nicholas Platt has said U.S. authorities were seeking an exemption on salary hike caps for Filipino workers.

ISLAMABAD (SEPT. 30) - The Afghan guerrilla resistance Sunday stepped up its rocket attacks on the capital Kabul, killing or wounding at least 36 people, official Radio Kabul said.

A rocket explosion killed at least 10 people in one section of Kabul, the radio said in a report monitored here.

A spokesman for the Soviet-backed Afghan government earlier reported aerial raids Sunday on mujahedeen resistance positions outside the city.

He said Soviet-made MiG-21 aircraft had destroyed at least 70 resistance vehicles carrying arms and ammunition in Logar province, south of Kabul.

Afghan ground forces also stepped up operations and artillery strikes north, east and west of Kabul, the spokesman said.

MONROVIA (SEPT. 30) - A fragile eight-day ceasefire in this Liberian capital was broken Sunday when fighting broke out between rebels and the presidential guard, according to Agence France-Presse journalists on the scene.

They said that the guard and rebels of Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) exchanged rifle and machine-gun fire.

The journalists said that at mid-afternoon (1430 GMT) mortar fire was also heard less than 500 metres from the presidential palace where the guard, supporters of the late President Samuel Doe, was holding out.

A ceasefire was declared unilaterally by the NPFL in Monrovia on September 22. But it was respected for most of the week by the government troops. The two sides were often seen fraternising over the last few days.

Gunfire was also heard on Friday but there were no reports of violence on Saturday.

The cause of the latest fighting was not clear. Some NPFL rebels accused the presidential guard of breaking the ceasefire.

They said the guard was caught in the middle between the NPFL rebels on one side, and on the other by a splinter rebel group led by Prince Johnson and by the peace-keeping force of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

Other NPFL rebels said the NPFL had asked the guard to let them through so they could attack the splinter rebel group and the peace-keeping force. When the guards refused, the NPFL rebels tried to break through, they said.

BAGHDAD (SEPT. 30) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Sunday appealed for a dialogue with all parties to the Gulf crisis, including the United States, to reach "a just and comprehensive solution."

"We must encourage any foreign initiative, including that which comes from those who are implicated in the concentration of fleets (in the Gulf region)," Mr. Hussein said in a televised message marking the birth of the prophet Mohammad.

He made specific reference to a plan put forward last week by French President Francois Mitterrand.

LISBON (SEPT. 30) - The Mozambican rebel Renamo movement said here at the weekend that it would not resume negotiations with the government until about 35,000 Zimbabwean soldiers leave Mozambique.

The statement was made Saturday by Manuel Frank, representative of the Mozambican National Resistance (Renamo) in the Portuguese capital.

The Zimbabwean troops are helping the government resist the rebels, who have been fighting a murderous guerrilla campaign since Mozambique became independent in 1975.

"If we return to the negotiating table, that means that the Maputo authorities have made a concession, and that they have ordered the retreat of the Zimbabweans and other foreigners in Mozambique," Mr. Frank said.

On Thursday, President Joaquim Chissano said in New York that he was ready to resume peace talks with Renamo in October.

There have so far been two rounds of talks between the two sides in Rome, sponsored by the Catholic Community of Sant'Egidio.

Renamo refused to take part in a third round of talks scheduled for September 18 in Rome, because of what it called an intensification of a government offensive against the rebels in the central province of Zambezia.

It said the offensive was backed by the Zimbabwean forces.

President Chissano subsequently said the Zimbabwean troops might be withdrawn if Renamo showed itself willing to discuss a cease-fire. "The Zimbabweans did not come to stay," he said.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) EFE - Spanish Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez is to ask U.S. President George Bush for financial help for war-devastated Central America when they meet Sunday in New York.

Spanish Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez told reporters Saturday that Central America had been seriously affected by the Gulf crisis.

He said Gonzalez would urge Bush to lend assistance to the region, already crippled by civil wars and guerrilla insurgencies, to repair their economies.

Gonzalez's Socialist government has often highlighted Central and South American countries' problems before the international community and helped draw attention to their pleas for aid.

Fernandez Ordonez also spoke with reporters about Gonzalez's meeting Saturday with United Nations General Secretary Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Perez de Cuellar and the prime minister, who are in New York for the United Nations World Summit for Children, agreed that U.N. resolutions were the best way to solve the Gulf crisis sparked by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Gonzalez also met in New York with Argentine President Carlos Menem with whom he discussed bilateral relations between Madrid and Buenos Aires and the crisis in the Gulf.

The Spanish Prime Minister held talks Saturday with Brazilian President Collor de Mello and Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez with whom he also discussed the consequences of the Gulf crisis.

During his meeting with Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro, Gonzalez was briefed on the economic and political crisis the Managua government currently faces.

Madrid's prime minister also spoke to Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari about preparations for annual meetings between Latin American leaders.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 30) EFE - Three Palestinians were killed and over 30 others were wounded in clashes in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip this weekend, Radio Israel reported Sunday.

Israeli police Sunday killed a Palestinian activist and wounded 21 others in the West Bank village of Jammain in the most serious clash over the last three months.

In the northern West Bank town of Jenin and the southern Gaza Strip town of Rafah, Palestinian militants shot dead two men suspected of collaborating with Israeli authorities.

The latest deaths bring to over 280 the number of Palestinians killed for allegedly collaborating with the Israeli Army since the uprising or "intifada" began in the Occupied Territories nearly three years ago.

Other incidents included a violent clash Saturday between 100 Arab militants and police in Jerusalem. Three Palestinians were wounded, according to Palestinian sources.

The sources added that seven Arabs, including a 9-year-old child, were wounded in clashes in other West Bank towns.

AMMAN (SEPT. 30) EFE - Jordan plans to introduce measures shortly to stem a new expected influx of thousands of refugees from Iraq and Kuwait following reports that foreigners there may be refused food rationing cards, Interior Ministry Secretary General Salameh Hammad said Sunday.

+I am afraid I will have to ask the government to adopt the necessary measures to ensure that the number of (refugee) arrivals does not surpass the number of evacuations,+ said Hammad, Jordan's chief coordinator in the refugee operations.

Since the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, at least 640,000 foreign nationals have fled the two countries to temporary refugee camps in neighboring Jordan.

He said that in the past few days there had been a noticeable increase in the number of refugees coming into Jordan to await repatriation.

An estimated 43,000 are currently sheltered in the camps but Hammad said any new influx may be catastrophic given the expected deterioration of conditions with the coming of winter.

The new measures would have to be taken +given that there are nearly two million people of different nationalities still in Iraq and Kuwait and that winter is approaching and the rains may start at any moment+.

Jordan, he said, feared that reports that Iraq would prohibit food rationing cards to foreigners could trigger a new major flood of refugees.

Criticizing the distribution of the financial aid sent to the country, Hammad said that of the estimated dlrs 100 million spent so far, only dlrs 800,000 had been handed to local Jordanian authorities, making coordination operations more difficult.

While praising the international financial efforts to help alleviate the refugee crisis, he hit out at the fact that the funds were going to the African and Asian countries whose citizens made up a majority of the refugees, and not to Jordan which was bearing the brunt of the crisis.

+The volume of aid is insufficient,+ said Hammad, adding that Jordan had forked out some dlrs 40 million so far in camp equipment, water and electricity supplies, and other services.

He said Jordan, meanwhile, hoped to draw up a new emergency plan in conjunction with international organizations which would allow for 150,000 refugees to be accommodated and which would ensure their evacuation within a specified time limit.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - At 6:15 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 28, 1990, Sunbeam-Oster, a company formed by Japonica Partners, a New York and Rhode Island-based investment firm, acquired all of the assets of Allegheny International (NYSE: AG) and its subsidiaries. The name Sunbeam-Oster was chosen for the new company because it best reflects its global consumer products franchise.

Sunbeam-Oster, headquartered here, is emerging with a strong balance sheet, having approximately $250 million in equity, and only $110 million in acquisition debt financing. Sunbeam-Oster will have annual sales of more than $1.0 billion.

Sunbeam-Oster's two operating units are Sunbeam Americas Holdings Limited

("SAHL") and Oster-Sunbeam J.V. ("O/S J.V."). SAHL's autonomous major business units include: Sunbeam Leisure (outdoor and indoor barbecue grills and accessories), Sunbeam-Northern (warming/heating sensor blankets and warmers and a wide variety of home health and personal care products), Professional Products (personal and professional electric clippers and animal grooming products, including Stewart-Oster clippers), Sunbeam Casual Furniture (lawn and patio furniture and related products), Sunbeam Canada (multiple consumer products), Springfield Instrument (temperature and weather measuring instruments and a wide selection of clocks), Hanson Scale (personal and professional scales and health care monitors , and Sunbeam Intercontinental (multiple consumer products).

O/S J.V.'s major business units include: kitchen and personal care products in the United States, Mexico, Venezuela and Peru. Its best known product lines include: Oster Kitchen Centers, Osterizer blenders, Oster Designer line products, Sunbeam Mixmasters, Sunbeam steam and Spray Mist irons, Oskar food processors and Sunbeam toasters.

A Japonica Partners general partner, Paul B. Kazarian, has been named Chairman and Managing Director of Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc. Thomas C. Welch will head up the Seasonal Products Group and David T. McGoldrick will head up the Small Household Appliance Group.

There will be no trading in the common stock of Sunbeam-Oster until after the conclusion of the 45-day election period during which creditors and shareholders of Allegheny International and its subsidiaries will have the right to choose to receive either common stock of Sunbeam-Oster or cash.

Allegheny International's former creditors and shareholders shortly will be receiving further information from Sunbeam-Oster.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - An optimistic source at the bipartisan budget talks in Washington says the two sides are close to an agreement Saturday night. The hint of a positive resolution comes more than four months after White House and congressional negotiators sat down to try to reach a compromise debt-reduction package. The tentative package includes a hike in the gas tax and other energy taxes and a 10-percent rise in taxes on luxury items.

President Bush spent about one hour Saturday with his Japanese counterpart in New York. The meeting with Prime Minister Kaifu wrapped up a busy day of meetings for Bush, who is seeking to solidify the international community's isolation of Iraq. An aide to the president said the discussion between the two men was ''wide ranging.'' He also said Bush accepted an invitation to travel to Japan next year.

Radio reports from Yugoslavia say militant Serbs overpowered police in four stations in the Croatian republic and stole weapons late Saturday. The action takes place as ethnic Serbs argue they are subject to discrimination. Serbs... who make up a majority of Yugoslavia's population but are a minority in Croatia... have staged riots recently to voice their concerns.

A daylong debate is slated to begin Sunday morning at the U-N World Summit for Children in New York. The conference opened Saturday as an UNprecedented number of government heads arrived in the Big Apple to chart possible ways to lessen the suffering among the world's children. The U-N Children's Fund says many young deaths are caused by a lack of medicines that cost as little as several U-S cents a dose.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Church leaders in Fernandina Beach, Florida, say they'll back the Nassau County school board in its legal fight over a teacher's 30-year tradition of reading Bible stories to her fifth-grade students. The board voted unanimously this week to support teacher Martha Mitchell against the protests of one student's parents. The board's lawyer has warned the readings clearly violate the constitutional separation of church and state.

The Press Trust of India reports a group of legislators are calling for Prime Minister V-P Singh's resignation... accusing him of mismanaging the nation's affairs. The report came as violent protests that have rocked New Delhi during the past few days subsided. Demonstrators have been protesting a government job quota plan that would reserve 27 percent of federal jobs for the so-called backward classes.

#90273u0173 09/30/1990 ~United Press International

Cincinnati Manager Lou Piniella, owner Marge Schott and Reds' players strutted on the field during a rain delay Saturday to celebrate clinching the National League West title when the Los Angeles Dodgers lost to San Francisco 4-3.

Despite a 3-1 loss to San Diego in 6 1-2 innings, Cincinnati treated its fans to fireworks and flashing scoreboards declaring the Reds ''1990 National League West Champions.

''I don't care how we won it,'' said relief pitcher Rob Dibble. ''The bottom line is, we won it. We're 20 games above .500. We deserve to be the champions.''

''Any old way you win a division is the way to win it,'' declared outfielder Paul O'Neill. ''The season is 162 games long. We know we're the best team in the division this year.''

The Reds shot to the lead with nine straight victories at the start of the season, and never looked back. They became the first NL team to hold first place every day of a 162-game season. The 1984 Detroit Tigers also did it. The 1923 New York Giants and 1927 New York Yankees went wire-to-wire during a 154-game season.

The Padres rallied from a 1-0 deficit after five innings with two runs in the sixth and another in the seventh. Ed Whitson, 14-9, gave up one earned run, struck out five and walked two to get the win.

Cincinnati starter Norm Charlton, 12-9, lasted 6 2-3 innings, surrendering eight hits and three runs. He struck out five and walked three.

Cincinnati will host the opening two games of the NL playoffs next week against either Pittsburgh or New York. Pittsburgh clinched at least a tie for the NL East crown with an 8-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. The Pirates would gain the title Sunday with a victory or a Mets' loss.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

In other National League games, Chicago shaded New York 3-2, Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 8-0, Houston pummelled Atlanta 9-0, San Francisco edged Los Angeles 4-3, and Montreal pounded Philadelphia 5-1.

Cubs 3, Mets 2

At New York, Doug Dascenzo singled home two runs in the second to lift Chicago and leave the Mets on the brink of elimination of the NL East. Cubs starter Les Lancaster, 9-5, gave up five hits and two runs while walking one and striking out five over five innings. Frank Viola, bidding for his 20th victory gave up three unearned runs in the second and fell to 19-12.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 0

At St. Louis, Bob Walk pitched a four-hit shutout and doubled home a run and Sid Bream homered. Walk, 7-5, walked two and struck out four in his first shutout. Bob Tewksbury, 10-9, was tagged for four runs in 6 1- 3 innings.

Astros 9, Braves 0

At Houston, Glenn Davis drove in three runs and scored twice, and Bill Gullickson threw a six-hitter for the Astros. Gullickson, 10-14, threw his first shutout since 1987, before he went to Japan, and his second complete game of the season. Charlie Leibrandt, 9-11, took the loss.

Giants 4, Dodgers 3

At San Francisco, Kelly Downs, 3-2, allowed no hits through the first 4 1-3 innings. Steve Bedrosian pitched 1 1-3 innings for his 17th save. Jim Neidlinger, 5-3, took the loss.

Expos 5, Phillies 1

At Montreal, Marquis Grissom and Andres Galarraga drove in two runs each, backing Brian Barnes' first big-league win and helping the Expos snap an eight-game slide. Barnes, 23, hurled a three-hitter to even his record at 1-1 in his fourth start in the majors. Pat Combs, 10-10, took the loss.

CHALLIS, ID (SEPT. 30) UPI - A minor earthquake shook central Idaho Saturday evening, the U.S. Geological Survey said Sunday.

The agency said it had received no reports of damage from the quake, which registered 3.9 on the Richter scale and reportedly was felt in the Challis area.

The shaker, which struck at 7:08 p.m. MDT, was centered about 10 miles southwest of Challis, or about 110 miles northeast of Boise, the U.S.G.S. said in an announcement from its National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

#90273u0206 09/30/1990 ~United Press International

(SEPT. 30) UPI - The Southeastern Conference race came no closer to being solved Saturday night than it was before the day began.

Stan White passed for 338 yards and three second-half touchdowns, rallying No. 3 Auburn to a 26-26 tie against No. 5 Tennessee in a battle between the two SEC front-runners.

White connected with Greg Taylor twice and Dale Overturn once in the second half to bring the Tigers back from a 19-3 halftime deficit. Tennessee's Greg Burke missed a 34-yard field goal attempt with 15 seconds left that would have given the Volunteers the win.

''I don't think I have seen two teams give as fierce an effort,'' Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors said. ''Both teams are disappointed, but by the way the crowd reacted I would say they were very happy.''

The winner of the game was expected to have the inside track at the SEC title and a shot at the national championship. Instead, the result left both teams with 1-0-1 conference record and the SEC race in a muddle.

''Our players have won three straight championships and a loss tonight might have knocked us out (of the SEC race) because I don't know who is going to beat Tennessee,'' Auburn Coach Pat Dye said.

With Tennessee leading 26-9, Auburn's Herbert Casey ran 34 yards with a kickoff return and White completed passes of 10, 11, 6 and 12 yards that put Jim Von Wyl in position to make a 25-yard field goal.

White then engineered a sputtering drive from the Auburn 49. The Tigers had an 8-yard TD strike to James Joseph called back on an illegal-shift penalty. On fourth-and-13, White hit Overton in the end zone with 8:28 remaining, making the score 26-19.

Auburn's defense held to give White the ball back at the Tennessee 43 with 3:26 to play. White then hit Fred Baxter for 22 yards and Joseph carried 10 more to put the ball on the Tennessee 11. With 1:30 remaining, White completed an 11-yard TD pass to Taylor.

Instead of going for the lead with a two-point conversion, Auburn Coach Pat Dye elected to have Von Wyl kick the extra point. The move backfired somewhat, as the Tigers never got the ball back to try for the win.

Andy Kelly directed a drive from his own 23 to set up Burke's field- goal attempt, but the kick was wide left.

''Both teams laid it on the line and spilled their guts on the field, '' Majors said. ''We played hard. They made a great comeback. I take nothing away from them.''

--- AROUND THE COLLEGE SCENE ---

In other games featuring Top 10 teams, No. 1 Notre Dame bashed Purdue 37-11, No. 2 Florida State ran past Virginia Tech 39-28, No. 4 Brigham Young lost to Oregon 32-16, No. 6 Nebraska outlasted Oregon State 37-3, No. 7 Michigan pounded Maryland 45-17, No. 8 Virginia steamrolled William & Mary 63-35, No. 9 Miami shot down No. 25 Iowa 48-21 and Louisiana State upset No. 10 Texas A&M 17-8.

Also, No. 16 Colorado held off No. 11 Washington 20-14, No. 14 Southern Cal topped No. 12 Ohio State 35-26, California upended No. 13 Arizona 30-25, No. 17 Florida defeated Mississippi State 34-21, No. 18 Clemson blasted Duke 26-7, No. 20 Michigan State stuffed Rutgers 34-10, co-No. 21 Mississippi beat Tulane 31-21, co-No. 21 Arkansas topped Colorado State 31-20 and Missouri stunned co-No. 23 Arizona State 30-9.

In late games, No. 19 Fresno State overwhelmed Fullerton State 38-3 and co-No. 23 Wyoming overhauled Utah 28-10.

At South Bend, Ind., Raghib Ismail ran for 82 yards and a touchdown, leading a 362-yard ground attack by Notre Dame against Purdue. Ismail carried five times and scored on a career-long run of 64 yards.

At Tallahassee, Fla., Errol McCorvey ran 77 yards with a fumble for one touchdown and Terrell Buckley returned an interception 53 yards for another to lead Florida State. The Seminoles trailed by 18 points in the first half before extending college football's longest winning streak to 14 games.

At Eugene, Ore., Daryle Smith intercepted three passes and Oregon sacked Ty Detmer five times to upset the Cougars. Bill Musgrave passed for 286 yards and three touchdowns, becoming Oregon's all-time passing leader. Detmer hit 33 of 57 passes for 442 yards and two touchdowns.

At Lincoln, Neb., Leodis Flowers ran for a career-high 151 yards and a touchdown for Nebraska, including 117 yards in the second half. The Cornhuskers scored 21 fourth-quarter points after trailing 7-3 at halftime.

At Ann Arbor, Mich., Jon Vaughn scored two touchdowns and Michigan intercepted three passes. Vaughn, who gained 489 yards in his first two collegiate starts, scored finished with 89 yards on 22 carries.

At Charlottesville, Va., Terry Kirby ran for 188 yards and four touchdowns and Nikki Fisher added 164 yards and a pair of scores for Virginia. The Cavaliers piled up 689 yards total offense.

At Miami, Craig Erickson passed for three touchdowns and Steve McGuire ran for two to lead Miami. Iowa closed within 24-21 before the Hurricanes pulled away with 24 unanswered points.

At Baton Rouge, La., Todd Kinchen caught a 79-yard touchdown pass and Harvey Williams rushed 1 yard for another score to lead Louisiana State. The Tigers intercepted four Lance Pavlas passes on the night.

At Boulder, Colo., Darian Hagan rushed for two touchdowns to rally Colorado past Washington. Hagan scored on runs of 15 and 3 yards before leaving the game with an injured shoulder. He is expected to return for next week's game.

At Columbus, Ohio, Ricky Ervins rushed for a career-high 199 yards and scored twice to lead the Trojans. The game was was called with 2:36 remaining because of heavy lightning in the area.

At Tucson, Ariz., Russell White ran for 99 yards and scored twice as California continued its recent mastery of Arizona. The Golden Bears have three wins and a tie in their last four games against the Wildcats.

At Gainesville, Fla., Shane Matthews fired three touchdown passes for the second straight week to lead Florida. The Gators, No. 1 in the Southeastern Conference in total defense, limited Mississippi State to nine first downs.

At Clemson, S.C., DeChane Cameron passed for two touchdowns and ran for another score to spark Clemson. Chris Gardocki added two field goals, including a 51-yarder that was his third of the season from 50 yards or more.

At East Rutherford, N.J., Tico Duckett rushed for a career-high 229 yards and a touchdown to lead Michigan State. The Spartans recorded their 500th win in school history.

At Oxford, Miss., Randy Baldwin rushed for a school-record 241 yards and two touchdowns to power Mississippi. Baldwin carried the ball 15 times to break a school record that stood for 41 years.

At Little Rock, Ark., Quinn Grovey threw for three touchdowns and ran for another to lead Arkansas. The Razorbacks survived four second-half turnovers and four unsportsmanlike-conduct penalties to hold off the Rams.

At Columbia, Mo., Kent Kiefer passed for 279 yards and two touchdowns and Damon Mays and Michael Jones scored two touchdowns each to lead Missouri. Arizona State lost quarterback Paul Justin midway through the third quarter with a separated shoulder.

At Fresno, Calif., Aaron Craver rushed for 121 yards and two touchdowns to become the fifth-leading rusher in Fresno State history. Punter Brad Seagal had the longest run of the night - 47 yards - on a fake punt to set up a 24-yard field goal by Derek Mahoney.

At Salt Lake City, Tom Corontzos passed for two touchdowns and Dwight Driver ran for another pair to power Wyoming. The Cowboys, playing without injured kicker Sean Fleming, passed on three fourth-down plays rather than attempting field goals and converted each time, leading to a pair of touchdowns.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 30) UPI - Budget negotiators, after four months of hard bargaining, appeared to be on the verge of agreeing Sunday on a package of tax increases and spending cuts to slash the deficit by $500 billion over five years.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas told reporters as the talks recessed shortly after 2:30 a.m. EDT that ''we just don't have a deal yet.''

But he said negotiators, a few of whom planned to keep talking most of the night, should know by 10:30 a.m. EDT Sunday, after they meet on budget process reform with Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., at about 8 a.m. EDT, if the deal is set.

''I assume by then (10:30 a.m.), we'll have an agreement,'' Dole told reporters. ''But until we get it all together, we don't have anything.''

A spokesman for House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said Saturday's talks were ''the most successful 24 hours of discussions'' negotiators have had yet but that ''some matters remained to be resolved.''

He would not say if a deal had been tentatively struck on all key issues - taxes, spending cuts and defense - except process reform and enforcement, issues about which Byrd has been deeply concerned.

Dole said that if President Bush, who was in New York City, is notified by 10:30 a.m. EDT Sunday that there is a deal, he will fly back to the White House for a 12:30 p.m. EDT joint announcement of the budget plan with congressional leaders and negotiators. He would then return to New York.

Negotiators are fighting a midnight Sunday deadline to come up with a package of tax increases and spending cuts that would reduce the deficit by $50 billion in the new fiscal year beginning Monday and by $500 billion over five years. Failure to do so would trigger up to $105.7 billion in automatic spending cuts, split between defense and domestic programs.

Without a deal and subsequent passage of stalled spending bills, the government would run out of money and could shut down Monday.

While figures could change, the package is expected to include an 8 cent-a-gallon hike in gasoline taxes and other energy taxes, higher taxes on alcoholic beverages and cigarettes, sharply lower defense spending over five years, big cuts in Medicare and a new 10 percent luxury tax on expensive cars, boats, furs, jewelry and electronic equipment.

It is not expected to include lower capital gains taxes, sought by President Bush, or higher income tax rates on the rich, sought by Democrats as the price the GOP had to pay to get a capital gains cut.

Early Sunday morning, Dole confirmed that negotiators stripped from the package an element that probably would have angered many elderly people: increasing income taxes on Social Security payments for single beneficiaries making $25,000 a year and couples making $32,000 a year.

People in those category now have their Social Security benefits taxed at 50 percent. Under the plan that had been discussed - and may still find its way back into the package - that would go up to about 70 percent, sources familiar with the discussions said.

Wealthier senior citizens mounted an intense and successful lobbying campaign last year to get Congress to scrap the landmark catastrophic health insurance law, complaining about the increased costs of expanded health benefits.

The deal was made possible, in part, when Republicans dropped their demand for a big cut in capital gains taxes on profits from the sale of assets. Republicans also ditched their fall-back position of adjusting capital gains taxes to compensate for the bite inflation takes from any gain over the years.

Instead, Republicans concentrated on pushing other economic growth proposals, such as creating enterprise zones, which give tax breaks for businesses that locate in depressed areas, and tax incentives for venture capital investments in small firms.

Democrats responded by scrapping their call for an income tax rate hike on the rich, who Democrats said would benefit most from a capital gains cut, and by accepting at least some of the GOP's economic growth alternatives to capital gains.

''What we're looking at is a growth-tax fairness alternative to the capital gains rate change and the general (income tax) tax change'' Democrats had originally demanded, said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

Bush, in New York for meetings with world leaders at the United Nations, said earlier in the day tha the talks ''seemed to be advancing a little bit,'' but added ''we just don't know when it will be wrapped up.''

Democrats agreed to give Republicans what one source called a minor ''fig leaf'' on capital gains so as not to embarrass Bush and make it appear Republicans had completely caved in on the key issue, a rallying point for the party ever since Bush abandoned his ''read my lips, no new taxes'' pledge in late June.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (SEPT. 30) UPI - Unknown attackers mutilated, burned and killed four whites in a black township near the central South African city of Welkom, police said Sunday.

A patrol found the partially dismembered and burned bodies of the four - three men and a woman - in Khutloanong township north of Welkom late Saturday, police spokesman Maj. Johan Fouche said.

Three of the bodies lay beside a gutted vehicle and the fourth, that of a man, some 55 yards down the road, Fouche noted, saying the latter victim had probably tried to escape the attackers.

Fouche said the four had apparently visited a bar in the township Saturday afternoon, but he declined to speculate on a possible motive for the killings.

A Department of Law and Order spokesman ruled out any connection with a wave of factional black violence which, in more than six weeks, killed up to 800 people until it was quelled in mid-September by the imposition of tough military-style measures.

TOKYO (SEPT. 30) UPI - Typhoon Gene weakened before hitting the city Sunday, but killed at least four people and injured at least 12 before its winds died down to 43 mph, Japanese television said.

The weakened storm, which had cut a swath through southwestern Japan in the morning with winds then clocked at up to 80 mph, moved north out to sea Sunday night after its passage through Tokyo.

After making its initial landfall about 450 miles southwest of Tokyo at 8 a.m. Sunday, the typhoon did not cause serious damage in Osaka, but flooded hundreds of houses in Wakayama state and Miyazaki state on the neighboring island of Kyushu, police said.

Initial reports said only two people were known dead, but a later count put the number of fatalities at four, with at least 12 people reported injured.

Typhoon Gene, the 20th of the year, hit Japan just 10 days after Typhoon Flo, a savage storm that left up to 38 people dead and caused millions of dollars' worth of crop and property damage.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Around the World... around the clock... news from United Press International:

Optimistic sources at the budget talks in Washington say they expect an agreement Sunday after four months of talks aimed at reducing the nation's debt. The package on the table is said to include an increase in taxes paid at gasoline pumps and on so-called luxury items. An aide to President Bush says the president will return to Washington from New York to sign the agreement if it is solidified overnight.

Iraqi officials deny they will curtail access to food by Western foreigners deatined in Iraq. This word came as the distribution of food rationing cards was announced. The Middle East nation previously threatened to cut off food supplies to Western nationals because their governments had condemned Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait.

More than two dozen anti-abortion activists were arrested Saturday in Milwaukee after they refused to disperse from a woman's health clinic where they were picketing. The director of the clinic said members of the group pushed her and two other employees against the doorway and recited biblical verses before they were hauled off by authorities. Some protesters face additional loitering charges for refusing to leave the police station after being processed.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - 83 years to the day after it was begun, the Washington Cathedral had its final stone set in place Saturday. The Episcopalian Cathedral Church of St. Peter and St. Paul is roughly modeled after 14th century English Gothic architectural designs. The edifice is two football fields in length and seats four-thousand people. The building's central tower rises more than 300 feet, making it the sixth tallest cathedral in the world.

A 23-year-old woman is scheduled to be arraigned Sunday in the Long Island town of Bellport on charges of assault, criminal mischief and reckless endangerment. Natalie Thomas is accused of punching a police officer and dragging him some 50 feet after he tried to pull her from her vehicle. Officer Christopher Baron's glasses were broken, but he was otherwise well after the incident.

It was love at first sight for an octogenarian and his 78-year-old fiancee... but it wasN'T for another six decades that they decided to tie the knot. The ceremony is scheduled to take place next Saturday. 63 years ago, 81-year-old Oliver Sawyer thought his girlfriend, Eunice Whedbee, was too young. The two then went their own ways, marrying other people. It was NOT until Sawyer's brother saw Whedbee at a Virginia nursing home recently that the two met again.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 30) UPI - President Bush urged leaders attending the World Children 's Summit on Sunday to join in a partnership to save millions of children dying of disease and malnutrition.

In an address prepared for delivery to the United Nations-sponsored conference Bush delcared that the children ''can be saved when we live up to our responsibilities, not just as an assembly of governments but as a world community of adults, of parents.''

He cited steps the United States is taking to reduce infant mortality and to improve the health of both mothers and children, and he announced that he is sending Health Secretary Louis Sullivan to Africa, where acquired immune deficiency syndrome is killing many children.

Bush said Sullivan will ''see what else America and the world can do to advance child survival across the continent and across the world.''

''There is still another child-killer loose in the world that knows no cure: AIDS,'' Bush said. ''And nowhere is this killer taking more lives than in Africa.''

Speaking of the fate of the world's children, mainly in the poverty- stricken areas, Bush said: ''The facts are as stark as they are oppressive. They are almost 3 billion young jpeople on Earth today, and more than 14 million of them will die this year.''

''In the next hour alone, 1,000 babies will perish,'' Bush said. ''But we are here to defy cold statistics. We have seen children with swollen bellies. We have seen the pleading eyes of starvation. We have heard the cries of children dying of disease.

''So let us affirm, in this historic world summit, that these children can be saved.''

The summit, which brought together more than 70 world leaders, was called to set goals to improve the lives of deprived children throughout the world.

The leaders also were urging nations to ratify the Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted last year by the U.N. General Assembly after a decade of debate.

Some 100 countries have signed the convention and more than 40 have put ratification on their legislative agendas, but the United States has balked so far at putting the convention up for ratification so far.

The U.S. opposition centers on the failure of the convention to condemn abortion and its opposition to capital punishment for persons under 18 years of age. The capital punishment provision conflicts with some state laws.

But Sullivan and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos dismissed as ''technicalities'' the U.S. failure to ratify the convention and said it agrees with the substance of the convention.

After speaking at the United Nations, Bush was prepared to rush back to Washington to seal a budget summit accord with Congress.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - A Brooklyn man who allegedly handed out baseball bats to a gang of whites before the racial killing of a black teen in Bensonhurst goes on trial this week on murder and manslaughter charges.

Opening statements in the trial of Charles Stressler, 22, were scheduled for Monday in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn. His trial is the third stemming from the Aug. 23, 1989, racial killing of Yusuf Hawkins, a black teen shot to death on a Bensonhurst street when he wandered into the predominantly white neighborhood.

State Supreme Court Justice Thaddeus Owens was also expected to decide Monday whether Stressler's co-defendant, John Vento, will be tried by same the jury as Stressler.

Vento, 21, was acquitted of an intentional murder charge June 3, but that jury failed to reach a verdict on a second murder charge. Owens declared a mistrial and ordered the new trial.

Prosecutors said Stressler supplied eight to 10 bats to a gang of whites that gathered in a frenzy over rumors that blacks and Hispanics were coming to Bensonhurst to attend a birthday party.

The gang instead encountered Hawkins and three friends, who had come to the neighborhood to look at a used car. Hawkins, 16, was shot to death during the confrontation.

Stressler is charged with second-degree murder, first- and second- degree manslaughter, riot, unlawful imprisonment, and nine counts of weapons possession.

The first two defendants in the case, Keith Mondello and Joseph Fama, both 19, stood trial before different juries last spring.

Fama was convicted May 17 of second-degree murder for shooting Hawkins. Mondello, who prosecutors portrayed as the ringleader in the attack, was cleared May 18 of manslaughter charges but convicted of riot, unlawful imprisonment, menacing, discrimination and weapons possession.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 30) UPI - Budget negotiators put together the final details of a $500 billion deficit-cutting package they hoped would be approved at a Sunday afternoon White House meeting with President Bush.

Bush, in New York for the United Nations World Summit on Children, was to return to the capital for about two hours at mid-day to meet with budget negotiators and then return to New York.

''The propsal will be discussed and I hope that will result in agreement,'' said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, appearing with Foley on ABC's ''This Week with David Brinkley,'' said, ''We don't have a deal that's signed, sealed and delivered ...(but) we have the makings of a final agreement that is not completed.''

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said details of budget process reforms remain to be settled but told reporters all other issues have apparently been resolved, including taxes.

At the White House, aides prepared for an early afternoon Rose Garden ceremony to announce that a budget pact had been reached, but officials stressed no deal was final until the president had personally signed off on it.

The negotiations recessed shortly after 2:30 a.m. Sunday. Some of the participants then met a few hours later with Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., to discuss budget procedures.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - A gun-toting Brooklyn pastor was questioned by police for more than 10 hours, and surrendered his rifle, in a church burglary case in which a suspected thief was shot and killed.

But the minister, the Rev. Charles Nesbitt, said Sunday the grueling interrogation didn't bother him one bit - and only convinced him the neighborhood needed ''more police.''

''I'm not bitter. They can question me all they want,'' he said. ''We need some more police, that's all.''

No arrests have yet been announced in the predawn break-in Saturday at the Bethesda Baptist Church in the crime-plagued Bushwick section near the border of Queens.

Nesbitt's daughter, Marlene Kelly, preparing to go to her post office job, called police after the church alarm rang at 6:30 a.m., and the pastor, who lives next door, was outside waiting when police arrived.

A man who remained unidentified Sunday was found inside the three- story building with a single gunshot in the back of the head. Police speculated that he had been one of at least two burglars who broke into the church, but for some reason, was killed and left behind.

A man at the church who asked not to be identified said the church had been thorough ransacked.

''I'll tell you one thing, there's been a whole lot of killings and robberies in this area. It's frightening,'' Nesbitt said.

Nesbitt, his wife, Doris, and a man living at the church were taken to 83rd Precinct headquarters for questioning. They were released at 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

A weary-sounding Nesbitt said before Sunday services, ''They talked to us quite a while. But everything's okay.''

Police also confiscated the reverend's rifle for ballistics tests in the case. No weapon had been found inside the church.

Just last April, Nesbitt and several ministers were interviewd by The New York Times for an article on measures being taken by clergy to protect themselves, their churches and congregations against criminals.

MEMPHIS, TN (SEPT. 30) UPI - About 1 million home-baked cookies should be in the hands of American troops in Saudi Arabia by the end of the week, the organizer of the drive says.

Kathy Lynn Young, owner of Kathy Lynn's Creative Corner, began the drive three weeks ago and Saturday was collection day.

She said the Pentagon will take care of shipping the cookies to the soldiers but her drive will apparently be the first and last of its kind of perishable goods.

''The original goal was a cookie per soldier. We bypassed that before the operation ever started. Maybe we can get a cookie tin per soldier,'' she said.

Operation Cookie Drop also collected thousands of letters to be passed around to the 165,000 troops, Young said.

Police routed one lane of traffic through the parking lot of Young's craft store so the cookie donations could be made.

Young, wearing a red shirt with ''General Kathy'' inscribed on it, used a bullhorn to direct about 50 volunteers.

The cookies were taped in tins and loaded into cardboard boxes which were placed in tractor-trailer rigs.

The loads will be transported to a secret location for inspection, Young said.

''We are taking security precatuions outlined to us by the Pentagon. After it leaves our hands it will be inspected by their means.

She said the cookies were originally to have been shipped from New York, but the location has since been changed three times.

Young said she started the operation to show support for the troops in the Middle East.

''We want them to know now that we're behind them because if something breaks out this type of operation would not be possible,'' she said.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Four months of hard bargaining appears to be paying off for budget negotiators in Washington. Kansas Republican Bob Dole says the negotiators should know by 10:30 a-m today... following a meeting on budget process reform. The Senate Republican leader says he assumes negotiators will have an agreement to slash the deficit by 500- BILLION dollars over five years. But- as Dole worded it- ''until we get it all together, we doN'T have anything.''

President Bush is meeting with world leaders this weekend in New York in advance of his address to the United Nations General Assembly tomorrow. The White House says Bush will talk about the Persian Gulf crisis, with one aide saying the president will likely have a ''couple of surprises.'' Bush met with six foreign leaders in revolving door meetings yesterday.

Tough anti-abortion legislation is headed for Poland's lower house and a (SEPT. 30) UPI - Services were held yesterday in Kingston, Massachusetts, for a 13- year-old girl found buried in her neighbor's basement. About 150 family members and friends of Melissa Benoit filled the First Parish Unitarian Church while hundreds more huddled outside the simple white New England church. A bookkeeper with a history of sexual assaults is charged in the child's death.

Church leaders in Fernandina Beach, Florida, say they'll help the Nassau County School board pay the legal fees stemming from a teacher who likes to read the Bible in class. The school board ignored an attorney's warning that the readings violate the Constitution. The board says it will support the teacher. The American Civil Liberties Union plans to seek an injunction against the readings on behalf of the parents of one student.

As lawmakers struggle with the federal deficit on Capitol Hill, Americans are battling personal debt at home. A national credit reporting company says more than half of the Americans it surveyed said they are concerned about the level of personal debt they currently owe. 27 percent of those questioned described themselves as very concerned about their personal red ink.

A woman in Bellport, New York, will be arraigned on assault charges today after allegedly dragging a policeman about 50 feet with her car. Police say Natalie Thomas refused the officer's order to get out of her car because of suspended license plates. The offier tried to handcuff her through the car window. The Long Island woman allegedly put the auto in reverse and dragged the policeman about 50 feet.

WASHINGTON. DC (SEPT. 30) UPI - As Germans prepare to celebrate the reunification of their divided fatherland, map makers are scrambling to meet an unprecedented demand for maps that reflect the changes in European geography.

The non-profit National Geographic Society believes it is first out of the gate with a new map of a united Germany and new atlases reflecting the historic reunification schewduled to take place Wednesday.

Spokeswoman Barbara Hand said National Geographic is rushing to print 11,000 of the new maps to meet a ''tremendous interest ... in having this map.''

The new map retails for $7.95 and will be available to the public Oct. 3, reunification day. One of the first copies will be presented to the German Embassy in Washington Thursday, and expected on hand for the presentation are the ambassador and West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper.

''It's the first time Germany has been a united nation in a long time,'' the spokeswoman said, explaining why staff cartographers rushed to put our the new map. ''We're delighted.''

The decision to publish the maps was made in early summer, before the reunification was a certainty. National Geographic was taking a chance and the chance paid off, Hand said, noting the rapid rush toward reunification did create some problems for the company, she said.

National Geographic had printed 240,000 maps for new atlases, reflecting a unified Germany, but protectively showing Bonn and Berlin as capitals. However late last Friday the West German embassy phoned to say the parliaments of both Germanys had decided on Berlin as the future capital, bringing the publication to a screeching halt.

The decision was made last Sunday to reprint the Germany pages in order to reflect Berlin as the capital. The decision carried a pricetag of $100,000, Hand said. Some 2,000 editions were bound before word of the change and Hand predicted they could become collectors items.

Travel industry giants are also rushing to put out their new atlases and travel guides reflecting the historic changes taking place in Europe.

Rand McNally, a Skokie, Ill.-based firm that bills itself as the nation's largest commericial map maker, is also rushing to put out a new atlas showing one Germany. The new publication is expected out sometime around the reunification date, said spokesman Conroy Erickson.

Fodor's Travel Guides, based in New York City, will have a new guide to Germany available by winter and the travel book will include what was East Germany, with a heavy emphasis on East Berlin.

Editorial director Michael Spring said the popular guide to Eastern Europe will also be revamped, and will no longer include what had been a large component, East Germany.

The political changes in what until recently had been the Iron Curtain are bringing handsome returns to Fodor's, which according to Spring has doubled its sales of Eastern Europe travel guides in the past year and has gone back to press three times with it to meet demand.

The changes in Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and the recent Persian Gulf crisis have all fostered a greater interest in geography, which has translated into increased sales for the many maps, globes and atlases put out by Rand McNally, Erickson said. He noted his firm will publish, for the first time, a comprehensive regional map of the Middle East.

''We have imported Middle East maps made by foreign map makers'' for distribution in Rand McNally travel stores, Erickson said. ''The whole situation in the Middle East has created sufficient demand to justify our investment in creating the map.''

Erickson said the map is expected to be available during the first week of October and will retail $6.95. He declined say how many maps were being printed or discuss revenue projections.

Retailers say the Middle East Maps come none to soon.

While commercial and non-profit map makers are hurrying to get their products up to snuff, federal agencies with cartographic responsibilities also must make the necessary changes.

Spokesmen for the CIA and the Pentagon's Defense Mapping Agency say their agencies are awaiting word from the State Department that the new German boundaries are recognized by international commissions that are involved in cartography and boundary issues.

The German boundary changes, Saddam Hussein's continued occupation of Kuwait and volatile areas of ethnic unrest in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union are keeping federal map makers plenty busy.

However, the government apparently is taking the political changes in stride.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Another night of budget talks continued into the morning in Washington. But negotiators were optimistic as the discussions recessed just after 2:30 a-m saying a deal will likely be announced this afternoon. If an agreement is reached to slash the deficit... President Bush plans to fly back to the capital for a joint announcement. Bush would then return to New York, where he is preparing to address the United Nations tomorrow.

A day of debate is scheduled at the United Nations today, but the talk will NOT be focused on the Persian Gulf crisis. The largest gathering of presidents and prime ministers ever is attending the World Summit for Children. The leaders are considering action to combat a global situation that has 40-thousand children dying each day from preventable causes.

France says it has NO evidence yet to link Iraq to a grenade attack that killed a nine-year-old French boy. But the Paris government notes the attack coincides with the arrival this weekend of four-thousand French troops in Saudi Arabia. French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas says France will respond if it is proven that Iraq sponsored Thursday night's attack on an East African cafe frequented by French citizens.

Police decline to discuss possible motives in the deaths of four whites found slain in a black township in central South Africa. Authorities are NOT holding any suspects in the attack. The mutilated and burned bodies of three men and a woman were found late yesterday. Police are ruling out any connection between the killings and black factional violence.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - A former U-S adviser to El Salvador's military spoke about last year's killings of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her teen-age daughter. The U-S Embassy says Major Eric Buckland testified in the case, despite diplomatic status that exempted him. Buckland in the past provided evidence of a military cover-up in the case. Eight members of the Salvadoran military are charged in the brutal slayings.

Japanese television reports say Typhoon Gene petered out before it hit Tokyo today, but killed four people and injured 12 in other parts. The storm moved north of Tokyo and out to sea after cutting a swath through southwestern Japan this morning. UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 30) UPI - The Soviet Union and South Korea decided Sunday to establish diplomatic relations in an apparent political thaw in North Asia also reflected by increasing contacts between rivals Japan and North Korea.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his South Korean counterpart, Choi Ho-joong, met at the U.N. headquarters to sign an agreement that will set up embassies in Moscow and Seoul on Jan. 1, 1991.

They said in a joint declaration that they were guided by the desire for ''friendly ties and cooperation between the two countries in various fields.''

They said relations between the two nations will be based on the ''principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, non-interference in internal affairs of each other, full equality and mutual benefit in accordance with the U.N. Charter.''

Shevardnadze told reporters after signing the documents, ''We have decided to set up the ties as of today.'' He said other bilateral matters will be discussed at a later date, including a meeting between the two countries' leaders.

Choi said Shevardnadze encouraged north and south Korea to continue their dialogue at the level of prime ministers to ease tensions on the peninsula. The chiefs of government are scheduled to meet for a second round of talks in Pyongyang Nov. 16.

Choi said he hoped that the Moscow-Seoul ties will have a ''favorable effect'' on the normalization of relations between his country and China.

Last week a Japanese government delegation visited Pyongyang to explore ways of restoring diplomatic ties between the Japan and North Korea. In a joint communique issued last Friday, Japan apologized for the ''unhappy past which Japan inflicted on Korea,'' and agreed to negotiate financial compensations for occupying the peninsula for some 30 years beginning in 1910.

North Korean President Kim Il-sung agreed to release two Japanese fishermen detained since 1983 and let Japanese women married to Koreans visit Japan.

Pyongyang had never recognized Japan and South Korea in protest of their joint defense pact with the United States.

The Moscow-Seoul contacts culminated with the unprecedented meeting between Presidents Mikhail Gorbachev and Roh Tae Woo in San Francisco in June.

The Soviet Union and all Soviet-bloc nations participated in the 1988 summer Olympics in Seoul to the satisfaction of South Korean officials who sought to set up ties with Socialist nations.

The Korean peninsula was divided after World War II, with the north aligning with the Communist bloc and the south following Western democracies.

The last time a diplomat from unified Korea, under the Li dynasty with Seoul as the capital, was accredited to Moscow was before the 1917 Russian Revolution.

South Korea and the Soviet Union made cultural exchanges in the past years and their two-way trade totalled about $500 million in 1989.

South Korea maintains ''de facto consular'' relations with the Beijing government, dealing mostly in trade. But the ties will be upgraded to a full consular office in mid-October.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 30) UPI - Just hours shy of a midnight deadline, President Bush and congressional budget negotiators agreed Sunday to increase gas and other taxes and slash government spending to cut the nation's deficit by $500 billion over five years.

At a Rose Garden ceremony to hail the pact, Bush, flanked by the bipartisan group of negotiators from Congress and the administration, said the new budget would include $182 billion in cuts in government spending, with defense spending accounting for $67 billion, and $134 billion in new tax revenues, mostly from a phased-in increase in the tax on gasoline.

''This is priority. This is priority for our nation,'' Bush said in announcing the agreement and pledging to set aside partisanship in seeking approval for it from the full Congress.

Bush said although he was not happy about the tax increase on gasoline, which would raise the current tax five cents in the first year and five cents in the following years, he said he was pleased that the agreement would extend the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law for another five years, as well as ''important new initiatives'' to stimulate economic growth.

And Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said, ''Now comes the hard part.''

''This agreement is a compromise,'' Mitchell said. ''Both sides can accurately say the agreement includes provisions they don't like. ... Cutting the deficit requires difficult choices, but our nation's economic future requires that we make those choices.''

The quickly arranged White House ceremony, following a brief, final meeting between both sides, sealed the $500 billion deficit-cutting deal with Congress after four months of intensive bargaining.

With only 11 hours until a midnight deadline was to bring severe cuts in government spending, the president flew in for the sessions from New York, where he cut into a full day of business at the United Nations World Summit on Children.

But Bush made no mention of the pact not including his long-sought, controversial cut in the capital gains tax - battled by Democrats as a boon for the wealthy - but pointed to provisions extending tax credits for research and development and tax breaks for small businesses.

''This is real, not a phony smoke and mirrors deficit-cutting program,'' Bush declared.

The final round of negotiations recessed shortly after 2:30 a.m. Sunday. The package must then win the approval of the House and Senate, both of which scheduled rare Sunday sessions.

Bush said the pact, which would slash $40 billion in the first fiscal year that begins Monday, also would save a crucial $119 billion in entitlement and mandatory spending programs, and that while the cuts in discretionary programs would come principally from defense spending, ''all other discretionary programs would be firmly capped'' and only allowed to grow at the inflation rate.

''The bipartisan group of leaders and I have reached agreement on the federal budget,'' Bush said in spelling out the pact's provisions.

At the same time, he sent a strong message to investors, noting the breadth of the cuts and pledging his full support to winning passage of the package.

''Prompt enactment of this entire five-year deficit-reduction package would itself help stimulate long-term economic growth,'' Bush said. ''The leaders and I here think that these are real deficit-reduction figures. ... This package should be a strong component of a positive, responsible fiscal and monetary policy.''

''It is balanced; it is fair; and in my view, it is what the United States of America needs at this point in its history,'' he said.

Negotiators were fighting a deadline to come up with a package of tax increases and spending cuts that would reduce the deficit by $50 billion in the new fiscal year and by $500 billion over five years. After the ceremony, several congressmen said the cuts in the first year were reduced to $40 billion to take into account energy cost increases expected in light of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Failure to reach agreement would have triggered up to $105.7 billion in automatic spending cuts, split between defense and domestic programs, and without a deal and subsequent passage of stalled spending bills, the government would run out of money and could shut down Monday.

Bush, who campaigned for the presidency in 1988 on a pledge of ''no new taxes '' said of the gasoline tax increase: ''I do not welcome any such tax measure nor do I expect anybody up here does. However, this one does have the virtue not only of contributing to deficit reduction, but also, over time, of decreasing American's dependence on foreign oil.''

The president, speaking shortly before he headed back to New York, said the pact also included incentives for domestic exploration for gas and oil resources.

BEIJING (SEPT. 30) UPI - Chinese Premier Li Peng praised the ''relaxation'' of China's relations with the West Sunday in a National Day speech whose moderate tone contrasted sharply with last year's harsh and defensive state address.

Li spoke at an annual banquet in the Great Hall of the People held to celebrate 41 years of communist Chinese history.

China's ruling Politburo and other senior officials sat at a long table at the front of a vast room filled with government officials, foreign diplomats and invited guests.

The banquet was held on the eve of Oct. 1, the 41st anniversary of the day when the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung proclaimed the founding of China's communist regime.

Citing China's newly established ties with Saudi Arabia and Indonesia, the premier said China has strengthened regional and Third World relations and repaired damaged relations with the West.

''Now there has been substantive relaxation in (China's) relations with Western countries,'' Li said.

''The facts show that China has more and more friends and that its international status is even more enhanced,'' he said.

Li's remarks contrasted with his harsh warning of a year ago that Western countries, not China, would suffer for economic sanctions imposed to punish China for its June 4, 1989, crackdown on democracy protestors.

Li also had lashed out last year at unidentified ''hostile foreign forces'' that he accused of trying to subvert China's socialist system, and denounced deposed Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang by name.

Such heated remarks were conspicuously absent from this year's speech, in which the premier made bland statements praising China's efforts to wipe out corruption and crime and claimed the country's sluggish economy was ''taking an upward turn.''

A Western diplomat who attended the reception dismissed the speech as a burst of overly positive rhetoric with little meaningful content.

''Everything's good, no problems,'' was how the diplomat paraphrased Li's speech.

Li mentioned but gave no details of a new five-year economic plan to be approved at a forthcoming meeting of the ruling Communist Party Central Committee.

The meeting, known as the 7th plenum, is expected to take place following the Oct. 7 conclusion of the Beijing Asian Games.

Foreign journalists were invited to the banquet and seated at tables in the back of the room, but were brushed away by plainclothes security police when they tried to speak with senior leaders.

VATICAN CITY (SEPT. 30) UPI - Pope John Paul II Sunday officially opened a month-long synod of bishops called to deal with the problems facing Roman Catholic priests in the modern world.

The Polish pope, wearing golden vestments and carrying a mitre, led a procession of churchmen to the altar at St. Peter's Basilica in a morning Eucharistic mass inside the world's largest Christian church which initiated the Sept. 30-Oct. 28 meeting.

Present were the ''fathers'' of the synod, the cardinals, archbishops, bishops and priests present in Rome. The official title of the synod is ''The Formation of Priests in the Circumstances of the Present Day.''

The synod, attended by 238 delegates from around the world, will attempt to strengthen the training of priests in the face of changing social and moral conditions in the modern world.

''This synod will analyze the principles and qualities that priests should have to best perform their mission,'' John Paul told a crowd gathered in sunny St. Peter's Square for his regular noon blessing.

''The Holy Spirit will be with us during this synod. I'm sure that we will be well-guided. I know that this meeting will yield substantial fruit and contribute to the improvement of the priesthood.''

John Paul asked the faithful ''to pray for your priests and support and encourage them in their pastoral ministries.''

Basis for the synod, the eighth since the Second Vatican Council ended in 1965 will be a working paper circulated among delegates in July. The document is divided into four sections:

-a description of the modern-day circumstances in society, the church and the priesthood

-the identity and mission of the priest

-vocations to the preisthood and formation leading to ordination

-ongoing priestly formation

The continuing worldwide shortage of priests will be one of the major topics up for discussion, according to Vatican watchers. But they said the touchy issue of priestly celibacy is one requirement which has no chance of being modified, although the controversial issue is certain to be discussed.

''Some priests question the requirement (of celibacy) and some candidates leave ... for this reason,'' said the synod working paper. ''The problem becomes more serious as priests live in a world dominated by eroticism.''

The number of men studying for the priesthood fell sharply in the years 1965-79, but has been slowly picking up over the past decade.

''The priesthood is undergoing a revolution,'' said Rector Luigi Conti of Rome's main seminary. ''The seminary is ideally a community where young men prepare for pastoral service and work.''

The synod working paper takes note of the difficult conditions facing priests in the 1990.

''Our age is marked by manifestations of a cultural tradition which, though rich in potential, is very unstable and uncertain,'' it says. ''As society undergoes a change, the church also finds herself involved in a transformation which concerns not only her external aspects, but deeply affects her life and task in the world.''

''I got a universal sound but it's going to be James Brown,'' he told the Los Angeles Times. ''If your living in Australia, you're going to say 'That sounds like something we do.' If you live in Brazil, you'll be saying, 'That sounds Latin,' and if you're living in Germany, you'll say, 'Something's very European here.' That's the way I'm going.''

VANDALS AT GRACELAND: Elvis Presley's Graceland mansion in Memphis, Tenn., was hit by vandals Thursday night but officials says Elvis's grave was not disturbed. Police said someone scaled a fence surrounding the estate and spray-painted obscenities on the walkways. Graceland director Jack Soden said the vandals apparently entered while security guards were patrolling the opposite side of the estate so an electronic device was brought in to beef up security. The paint was cleared up before Graceland opened for visitors Friday morning. Soden said that the last such incident occurred two years ago. ''It's usually just a nut,'' he said.

CAIRO (SEPT. 30) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said Sunday he was willing to consider a French-sponsored peace plan that calls for the complete withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and that he wants to meet immediately with French officials to discuss points in the plan.

In what may have been a retreat from this former hard-line policy, or a tactical ploy to buy more time, Saddam called for the opening of a dialogue to replace ''threats and massive armies''.

In a statement carried by the official Iraqi news agency INA and monitored in Cairo, Saddam said he wanted to meet with French officials to consider a plan proposed by President Francois Mitterrand last Monday during a U.N. General Assembly meeting.

The plan calls for the unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and the immediate release of all hostages held in Kuwait and Iraq.

The French president differed from U.S. policy by calling for a simultaneous resolution of the Palestinian problem and free elections in Kuwait. U.S. officials have said Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the Israeli 1967 occupation of the West Bank and Gaza strip are unrelated issues.

Mitterand said it was not right that the U.N. Security Council moved so quickly to vote for sanctions against Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait while moving slowly on a 20-year-old U.N. resolution calling for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from the occupied territories.

The United States has also said Kuwait's former ruling al-Sabah family must be returned to power, while Mitterand called for free elections in the emirate.

''We must view the speech of the French president, despite the objections on it, as different in its language from the others and we hope that our positive conclusion in regard to this was correct,'' Saddam said.

Saddam referred to his Aug. 12 ''initiative,'' in which he said he was willing to withdraw from the oil-rich emirate if Israel withdrew from the territories and Syria withdrew its troops from Lebanon.

The proposal was rejected outright by Israel, Syria and the United States.

Analysts have said Saddam has been backed into a corner by the aggressive U.S. policy to force him out of Kuwait. His troops face a massive multinational military force in the gulf region and his economy has been seriously squeezed by an enforced economic embargo.

In Sunday's statement, Saddam reiterated his call for the complete withdrawal of Western forces from the region.

But in previous statements, Saddam has said the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait was irrevocable. He made no such claim in Sunday's statement, given according to INA in honor of the Prophet Mohammed's birthday on Tuesday.

Instead, he appeared to indicate he would settle for the eviction of the al-Sabah family.

''The president further stressed that among the most important things that concerned us, and that we were determined on, was that affairs should not return to the situation that preceded Aug. 2 on all levels,'' INA said.

Before the invasion, Iraq had accused the Kuwaiti government of driving down oil prices by pumping more oil than its allotment.

The al-Sabahs had also faced internal dissention. Massive pro- democracy protests this spring led the emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al- Sabah, to promise the restoration of Kuwait's Parliament, which he had dissolved in 1986.

Analysts say, however, that Saddam will not accept any solution to the crisis in which he will appear to be the loser.

''What Saddam wants now is a quiet diplomacy, free of threats, so he can change his mind regarding the occupation of Kuwait,'' said one longtime observer of the gulf region, who asked not to be identified.

''What is important is that a serious dialogue should start for exploring a possible and reasonable solution,'' Saddam said in a translation of the Arabic by INA. ''This solution should be comprehensive so that we could enjoy peace, and those concerned in the region establish their future on a solid base that would not be shaken as a result of circumstantial changes.''

MANTENO, IL (SEPT. 30) UPI - For someone who began reading the newspaper at 18 months, 11-year-old Loren J. Wilson II has made the adjustment to high school with little fanfare.

Loren, a seventh grader at Manteno Junior High School, now is taking English, algebra and computer science at Manteno High School.

School officials say he has made the adjustment with ease.

''I'm adjusting pretty good,'' Loren said during a recent interview. ''I'm having no problems in the classroom and most of the other kids are treating me fine. Some of the kids are a little off. I mean, I think some of them are a little jealous because I'm in high school at such a young age.''

Loren has been performing amazing feats for a long time. His parents, Loren and Kathy, said they knew he was a special child from early on.

''He was doing things that kids his age could never have done,'' the parents said.

Loren is in the top 1 percent of Illinois' nearly 2 million students from kindergarten through grade 12.

''This is a highly gifted student,'' said Wilma Lund, a consultant with the state's gifted education program.

Because of his intelligence - he was operating the phonograph at 3 and speed-reading a 4 - his mother enrolled him in special schools.

Loren attended Matteson's Raygor Day School at age 3 and read at a third or fourth grade level, according to school Director Georgiana Raygor. Since then he has been a member of the National Gifted Association.

Loren entered kindergarten at age 4 and has since attended private and public schools. ''We've tried to put Loren and his sister in the best environment anywhere we lived,'' Kathy said.

Loren's 8-year-old sister, Katherine, also is an honor student. ''She's intelligent. She has good memorization,'' Loren says of his sister.

Loren says his parents deserve the credit for his intelligence.

''I'd say my parents were very influential,'' he said. ''They were both intelligent at younger ages. When I was 1 1/2 or 2 years old, my mother would read stories to me. When I looked at the pages and she'd say the words, that's when I really learned to read. My father would take me to his job where he works as a heavy equipment operator.''

As a sixth grader, Loren took the Scholastic Aptitude Test, which is designed for college-bound juniors, and scored 700 out of a possible 1600, said David Nelson of Manteno Junior High School. On his sixth grade standardized tests, Loren scored in the 99th percentile and at 12th-grade equivalents in most subjects, Nelson said.

As a result of his performance, his teachers and Manteno school officials decided to allow Loren to spend mornings with his 7th grade class but permitted him to take freshman algebra, computer programming and college-prep English in the afternoon.

If Loren adjusts to his new courses, he could graduate from Manteno High School at age 14, school officials said.

Loren, however, who wants to be ''some kind of a lawyer,'' is not making any predictions about his future. He's too busy with his latest challenges.

''I like this better than junior high because for the first time I'm being challenged,'' he said. ''I'm still adjusting but maybe later I can go to high school full time.''

Loren has become known as Manteno's ''Doogie Howser'' - the television character who is a child prodigy and physician.

''I would never be a doctor,'' said Loren. ''I hate the sight of blood. I once fainted in class because we were talking about blood and platelets. I just went out.''

Meanwhile, Loren is busy with typical high school activities - like preparing for his role in the upcoming production of ''Bye, Bye, Birdie.''

The three-day production opens Oct. 11.

''I'm excited about the play,'' he said. ''I already know most of my lines and half of my songs.''

(SEPT. 30) UPI - It appears budget negotiators may be on the verge of agreement on a package of tax increases and spending cuts to slash the deficit by 500- BILLION-dollars over five years. President Bush plans to return to Washington from New York to wrap up the agreement.

The State Department is warning Americans abroad there are ''growing indications'' that they could become targets of terrorist attacks by pro-Iraqi elements. A statement aired by Voice of America radio advises U-S citizens to be cautious, especially near American-owned buildings or businesses and U-S military installations. The statement said such attacks could occur in the near future- quote- ''under the sponsorship of Iraq in Europe and the Middle East.'' .

In another development, a London newspaper reports that an unnamed senior British army officer says Britain would respond with nuclear weapons if Iraq attacks with chemical weapons. The officer reportedly is part of a unit being dispatched to the Gulf and which is normally equipped with three nuclear weapons systems. Britain's Ministry of Defense refuses to confirm the report or comment on the brigade's nuclear capability.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 30) UPI - Tony-award winning producer Lawrence Kasha, whose credits included the Broadway shows ''Applause'' and ''Woman of the Year '' has died, a spokeswoman said Sunday. He was 57.

Kasha, who also wrote, produced and directed many recent episodes of the television series, ''Knots Landing,'' died Saturday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. A spokeswoman said he suffered from brain cancer.

Kasha was still a high school student at Brooklyn's James Madison High School when he conceived and created his first musical, called, ''Sing,'' which later inspired a film by the same name.

While studying at New York University and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, he began producing plays in Greenwich Village. In 1964, he produced his first Broadway musical, ''She Loves Me,'' with partner Hal Prince.

After directing Barbra Streisand in the London production of ''Funny Girl,'' and the Lincoln Center opening production of ''Showboat,'' Kasha in 1970 garnered his first Tony as producer of ''Applause,'' starring Lauren Bacall.

In 1981, he produced ''Woman of the Year,'' which brought him four more Tonys.

After working for several years with CBS-Lorimar's ''Knots Landing,'' Kasha returned to the stage in 1987 to direct a revival of ''Singin' in the Rain.'' He most recently produced ''At Wit's End,'' a one-man show abut the life of Oscar Levant.

Kasha is survived by his younger brother Al Kasha, an Oscar-winning motion picture score composer; his sister-in-law Ceil and a niece, Dana. The family asked that remembrances be sent to the American Cancer Society.

He is to be buried Tuesday at Hillside Memorial Chapel in Los Angeles. Memorial services in both New York and Los Angeles are to be announced.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - South African police say they found the partially dismembered and burned bodies of four whites in a black township near the central city of Welkom late yesterday. A police spokesman says the four apparently had visited a bar in the township yesterday afternoon, but he declined to speculate on a possible motive for the killings. A Department of Law and Order spokesman ruled out any connection between the slayings and a wave of factional black violence that has raged in the past six weeks.

The World Summit for Children continues today at the United Nations headquarters in New York. It's the largest gathering of presidents and prime ministers ever- with more than 70 heads of state attending. Chile's president was the first to address the meeting, saying 40- thousand children die every day from causes that could be avoided and prevented.

SOWETO, South Africa (SEPT. 30) UPI - Black leader Nelson Mandela Sunday welcomed the top military strategist of the African National Congress, and said Pretoria's decision not to prosecute the man boosts chances for talks on ending apartheid.

But Mandela and Chris Hani also reasserted that the government's tough military-style reaction to factional black violence contradicts the spirit of preliminary peace talks aimed at clearing the way to full- blown power-sharing negotiations.

The ANC military wing abandoned its armed struggle Aug. 6 in exchange for promises of further racial reforms.

Hani, the military wing's chief of staff, said Sunday that he supported negotiations but repeated his warning that the ANC might renew its armed struggle if negotiations fail. A similar statement last month angered Pretoria and led to the possibility of Hani's arrest if he entered the country.

Pretoria earlier granted immunity from prosecution to Hani and several senior ANC figures who had been living in exile. But Pretoria on Aug. 19 refused to renew Hani's three-month immunity, citing the militaristic comments he made while in South Africa's nominally independent tribal territory the Transkei.

The ANC insisted Hani, a 48-year-old Congress veteran and acknowledged hawk, was indispensible to talks on abolishing 42 years of white rule, and the government Thursday backed down and granted him immunity until Dec. 31, allowing him to return from the eastern Transkei territory.

''The granting of this ... indemnity will help restore a more positive atmosphere in which (talks) can take place,'' Mandela said Sunday. ''We are pleased to note that common sense has at last prevailed.''

Mandela mocked a statement by Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok that residents of black townships are thanking police and soldiers for cracking down on the strife, saying, ''We are very much used to fairy tales from members of the government, including Mr. Vlok.''

Police reported Sunday at least three people were killed overnight in flashpoint black townships around Johannesburg as a result of violence that spokesman Capt. Piet van Deventer said was ''possibly related'' to black-on-black battles.

Police did not link the murder late Saturday of four whites in a black township north of the central city of Welkom to political activity, and a spokesman said, ''It looks like a criminal attack.''

The joint appearance of the ANC leaders at Mandela's Soweto home followed the first two legal congresses of the movement in South Africa in 31 years, one Saturday in the Johannesburg area, the other Saturday and Sunday in Cape Town. Both meetings were marked by hard-line comments on Pretoria's handling of the now largely dormant black-on-black strife.

Mandela, 72, had spent Sunday morning in door-to-door canvassing across the Soweto suburb of Orlando West to sign up members for the ANC. He was warmly greeted at every home and said later, ''If they were not already members, they joined immediately. ... They also said we should do something constructive to end the violence.''

Hani said Pretoria's anti-violence steps, codenamed ''Iron Fist'' and imposed in mid-September, ''definitely do not'' address root causes of the strife which killed as many as 800 people in more than six weeks, and are being used to ''hinder and obstruct the activities of the ANC.''

The predominantly Xhosa support of the ANC has been battling followers of the exclusively Zulu Inkatha movement.

Mandela said President de Klerk made ''serious mistakes'' in imposing the measures, despite statistics showing they largely restored peace to the strife-torn townships straddling Johannesburg.

He said ''Iron Fist'' measures run ''contrary'' to the Aug. 6 pact struck by the government and the ANC which led the movement to suspend its 29-year-old guerrilla war against white minority rule in exchange for promises of an acceleration of the racial reforms launched by de Klerk in February.

Speakers at the historic ANC congresses had slammed the government for its reaction to the internecine fighting. ANC Treasurer-General Thomas Nkobi said in Cape Town Saturday that the government had a dual agenda: ''to negotiate with the ANC for the purposes of responding to international pressure'' and to promote the bloody violence ''in order to weaken the ANC.''

FOXBORO, MA (SEPT. 30) UPI - New England Patriots owner Victor Kiam, responding to the sexual harassment of a woman sports writer in the team locker room, Sunday vowed ''mammoth changes'' in team management.

Kiam had earlier shrugged off the Sept. 17 incident as a ''flyspeck in the ocean.'' But in televised interviews Sunday, he blasted Patriots officials for not informing him of the incident until the following weekend. He also said he was given wrong information by management, which resulted in Kiam making false accusations.

Boston Herald sportswriter Lisa Olson says that on Sept. 17, receiver Zeke Mowatt suggested she perform oral sex in the locker room. She says four other players ''egged'' Mowatt on and while they were naked approached her.

After the Patriots' Sept. 23 game at Cincinnati, Kiam was heard by several reporters describing Olson as ''a classic bitch.''

But Kiam said on Sunday's NBC program ''NFL Live,'' the controversy is ''is a grievous injury to a lovely young lady. Lisa Olson is a lady. Lisa Olson was assigned a responsibility. She was carrying out her responsibility. The statements that I made were based on information forwarded to me from personnel of the Patriots.''

Kiam, who lives in western Connecticut, was not in the locker room when the incident took place.

In live interviews with several television sports programs, Kiam hinted General Manager Patrick Sullivan's job may be in jeopardy.

''I've already had a discussion with Patrick. He's issuing a statement this afternoon,'' Kiam told CBS's ''NFL Today.''

''We're certainly going to investigate who was knowledgable within the organization and certainly the top echelon of this organization has got to be adjusted,'' Kiam told ESPN. ''I cannot really detail it now.''

''I would say there will be mammoth changes,'' he told NBC's ''NFL Live.''

Kiam also called on any Patriots player who witnessed or participated in the alleged harassment to step forward.

Last week, the Patriots fined Mowatt $2,000 for his part in the incident but then declared their investigation complete. The NFL, responding to demands from the Boston Herald, launched an investigation and Commissioner Paul Tagliabue said he would appoint a special counsel to investigate the matter.

Kiam took out full-page newspaper ads Sunday, denying he ever called Olson a ''classic bitch'' and apologizing for having trivialized the locker room incident.

The advertisement appeared in The Boston Sunday Globe and The New York Times with three large-print, bold-faced statements by Kiam that assert ''There's no excuse for what happened in the locker room,'' I ''

Olson, also appearing on ''NFL Live'' said Kiam's actions are ''a start.''

''The players involved must be identified,'' she said. ''Zeke Mowatt is taking the brunt of the punishment. He certainly deserves it. He does not deserve it all ... It was a premeditated act. It was planned an hour and a half before it happened. This is not the end.''

Olson said she could not identify the other four players involved, saying she tried not to look up when the incident occured.

She said she received calls from two Patriots players last week who warned her the team may try to link her romantically with Patriots players because of the scandal.

''I'm the victim here. They're going to put me on trial,'' Olson said.

''This was far beyond boys-will-be-boys. It was premeditated. It was the most disgusting, humiliating thing I have ever gone through in my life. I'm still a reporter. The whole time, I've been trying to act professionally. That's all I ask of these guys.''

The Patriots have a history of such incidents. A female television reporter was harassed by two players in 1988, and two years previous another female sports writer was harassed by a player who wanted her to leave the locker room.

Sullivan, 37, has been the Patriots general manager since 1983. His father, Bill Sullivan Jr., was awarded the franchise in 1959. Kiam bought the Patriots from Sullivan in October 1988 and Patrick Sullivan stayed on as general manager.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Budget negotiators appear close to a deal after a night of talks that House Speaker Thomas Foley called ''the most successful'' yet. But Foley says some matters remain to be resolved. Negotiators are fighting a midnight deadline to come up with a package of tax increases and spending cuts to slash the deficit by 500-BILLION dollars over five years. .

If negotiators fail to reach agreement, it would trigger massive automatic spending cuts, split between defense and domestic programs. President Bush plans to return to Washington for about two hours today to meet with negotiators to wrap up the budget agreement. Bush then plans to return to New York for the U-N's world summit on children.

President Bush today called on world leaders to help save Millions of children dying of disease and malnutrition. In a speech for delivery at the U-N's World Summit for Children, Bush cited steps the United States is taking to reduce infant mortality and to improve the health of both mothers and children.

The State Department is warning of possible terrorist attacks against Americans abroad. In a statement read by Voice of America radio, the department said there are ''growing indications'' Americans may become targets ''in the near future'' of attacks by pro-Iraqi elements. .

In other developments today in the Gulf crisis, Saudi Arabia accused Iraqi authorities of executing eight Kuwaitis. In a dispatch from Bahrain, the Saudi news agency reported that Iraqi soldiers executed the Kuwaitis a week ago for-quote- ''carrying out activities against Iraqi occupation forces.'' It says each was shot once in the head and once in the chest.

In London, a British newspaper reports an unnamed senior British army officer as warning Britain will respond with nuclear weapons if Iraq troops attack British forces with chemical weapons. The paper says the officer is part of a brigade being dispatched to the Gulf and which is normally equipped with three nuclear weapons systems.

South African police are ruling out the killings of four whites in a black township to a recent wave of bloody factional black violence. Police say unknown attackers mutilated, burned and killed the three men and one woman near the central South African city of Welkom. Police declined to speculate on a possible motive for the killings.

New York City police say thieves broke into a hall used by the world- renowned Harlem Boys Choir early today and carted off a steel safe belonging to the troupe. Detectives are NOT sure just how much money was in the safe. Police say the thieves, at least one of them armed with a gun, tied up a security guard, but the guard was NOT injured.

KIEV, Ukraine, U.S.S.R. (SEPT. 30) UPI - More than 100,000 Ukrainian nationalists marched through Kiev Sunday, demanding secession, independence for a non-communist Ukraine and support for a general strike on Monday.

Older Ukrainians called the demonstration, organized by the Rukh nationalist movement and other groups, the largest in Kiev during the 72-year Soviet period. Many said the only precedents were rallies in 1905 during an abortive revolution against Czar Nicholas II.

Witnesses reported seeing army troop concentrations outside Kiev Sunday. But there was no official confirmation of troop movements near the capital of the Ukraine, which is second in importance only to the giant Russian Federation in industrial might, agricultural wealth and population.

Beneath a sea of blue and yellow national flags and banners, the marchers first rallied in the city's main soccer stadium pledging support for the strike slated to start Monday morning and to last eight hours.

Organizers from Rukh, the Green ecological movement and other groupings said the three demands of the strike on Monday are: no agreements with Moscow on keeping the Ukraine in the Soviet Union, depoliticizing the KGB scret police and nationalization of all Communist Party property.

The assembly then passed a resolution calling for secession of the Ukraine from the Soviet Union and dismantling Kiev's statue of the founder of the Soviet state Vladimir Lenin.

Under the watchful eyes of riot police, the demonstrators marched three miles into the center of city, chanting slogans calling for the Ukraine to reject a new proposed Union Treaty with Moscow that would keep the republic part of the 15-republic Soviet Union.

''No agreements with Moscow,'' they shouted, demanding that Ukrainian leaders pay no heed to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachevs plans for forging a new Union Treaty to replace the 1922 national compact that set up the Soviet Union.

Observers estimated the crowd at more than 100,000. The official Tass news agency, which reported the demonstration in a dispatch from Kiev, gave no crowd estimate.

Filling the wide streets of Kiev, rebuilt from rubble after World War II, the marchers chanted and waved banners and slogans calling for an end to Communist control of their republic.

''Dissolve the Communist Party and nationalize its property,'' read one banner hoisted by the marchers who repeatedly sang: ''We will fight for a free Ukraine and its glory.''

As the 90-minute procession wound through the city of 2.5 million people, third largest in the Soviet Union, residents stood on balconies, waved support to the marchers and shouted: ''Down with the Red Mafia.''

At the head of the procession, the demonstrators carried a wooden coffin painted with the slogan, ''Down with the Empire.'' As they headed to the Lenin Museum, they whistled in derision at riot police along the way.

When the marchers found the steps to the Lenin Museum blocked by KGB security police, they threw the symbolic coffin to the ground, broke it and then trampled it into smithereens.

Even a one-day strike in the Ukraine, the coal mining center and a major breadbasket of the nation, would be a hard blow for the Soviet Union whose economy needs great reserves of coal and a strong harvest as winter approaches.

Although almost all of the Soviet republics have passed declarations of sovereignty, secession by the Ukraine, the size of France, would be a fatal blow to any new union of Soviet states envisioned by Gorbachev.

Located on the Black Sea with major ports, the Ukraine by virtue of its size and location is a potential European econonic dynamo. It covers an area of 171,770 square miles, has a population of some 55,000, and possesses besides Kiev such major cities as Kharkov, Donetsk, Odessa, Dnepropetrovsk, Lvow and Krivoi Rog.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (SEPT. 30) UPI - A high-ranking Croatian official Sunday accused Serbia's communist-led government of stirring up ethnic unrest that may plunge this multi-national country into civil war.

Ethnic tensions in Yugoslavia's western Croatia republic rose further as groups of Serbs demanded protection from the Yugoslav armed forces and asked the authorities to release many Serbs arrested in the past three days, Zagreb Radio said.

Hundreds of militant Serbs over the weekend broke into Croatian police stations in at least four Serbian-dominated towns and seized weapons which they said would use to defend themselves from the new Croatian nationalist government that allegedly pursues anti-Serbian policies.

Croatian authorities and police Sunday urged Serbs to return rifles and guns they had stolen from police stations, the radio said.

Croatian police have arrested an unspecified number of Serbs who were involved in ethnic riots and raids on police stations. A number of police officers, believed to be Serbians who assisted the demonstrators, were also arrested for allegedly failing to fullfil their duties.

Protesting Serbs demanded Croatian special task police must leave Serbian-dominated towns in Croatia and let local police maintain order, the radio said.

Ethnic unrest has been reported in the Croatian towns of Petrinja, Glina, Dvor Na Uni, Donji Lapac, Obrovac, Benkovac and Knin.

Vladimir Seks, vice-president of the new Croatian non-communist assembly, Sunday said the Serbian leadership in Belgrade was pulling the strings of the current Serbian revolt in Croatia.

In his statement on Zagreb Radio, Seks said, ''We shall not permit much longer that Croatia is destabilized and turned into a new Lebanon. This is an assault of pro-Chetnick gangs (of extreme Serbian royalist) who are under direct control of the Serbian government of President Slobodan Milosevic and the Serbian dominated-part of the Yugoslav state presidency the wish to destroy Yugoslavia and turn it into a big Serbia.''

Seks said Serbian nationalists plan to destabilize liberal republics in the west of the Yugoslav federation and then ''provoke a civil war and force the military to react.

''Croatia must act resolutely so not to lose confidence among its people and finally put an end to those terrorist groups and their policy,'' Seks told the radio.

In Petrinja, 30 miles southeast of Zagreb, several hundred Serbs, including women with small children, spent the night Saturday to Sunday at the Yugoslav army barracks to dramatize they fears from Croatian special task police. Petrinja authorities could not convince the Serbs the special police force would not harm them, Zagreb radio said.

During the riots, Josip Bozicevic, the 27-year-old officer of the Croatian special police force, was recovering in a hospital from firearms wounds he suffered Friday afternoon in Petrinja. Bozicevic was not on the danger list, said doctors in Zagreb, the Croatian capital, 250 miles west of Belgrade.

At least five Yugoslav journalists have been assaulted and injured by rioters, Yugolav news media said.

In the Knin region, with a majority Serbian population some 180 miles south of Zagreb, Serbian vigilantes blocked roads Sunday demanding the release of the arrested Serbs, Belgrade Radio said.

This radio said Yugoslav President Borisav Jovic, who represents Serbia republic in the federal 8-man collective presidency, has cut short his current visit to the United Nations in New York and was returning home to Belgrade because of the ethnic crisis.

Many of about 600,000 Serbs who live in Croatia, the second biggest of Yugoslavia's six republics, fear the new Croatian nationalist government may violate their human rights.

But, many of 4.6 million Croatians fear domination by the 8.5 million-strong Serbian majority in the loose Yugoslav federation of 23 million people.

Serbs constitute a majority in Yugoslavia's police and armed forces.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas says budget negotiators have the makings of a final budget deal. Dole says- quote- ''It's NOT a perfect package,'' but he says he thinks it's a ''good package'' and hopes to get an agreement. Dole says the 500- BILLION-dollar deficit-cutting deal contains taxes. But he says negotiators ''didn't touch Social Security.''

More than 70 world leaders are meeting at the United Nations today for day-long discussions to ensure the survival of children. President Bush told the leaders at the World Summit for Children that some one- thousand babies would perish in the first hour of the conference because of poverty and disease. He urged the world's leaders to listen to children... saying ''they will also teach us of a child's need to be nourished, in body and spirit.''

American fears of Iraqi terrorism are heating up. The State Department warned over the Voice of America radio today that there are ''growing indications'' Americans abroad may become targets of terrorist attacks by pro-Iraqi elements. The warning advised U-S citizens overseas to be particularly cautious when near U-S-owned buildings or businesses and U-S military installations.

Voters went to the polls in Hungary today in nationwide municipal elections, completing the country's political revolution. The balloting is expected to sweep away thousands of communist bureaucrats who still dominate political life in the towns and rural areas six months after their party lost power. The voting also is seen as a first referendum on the performance of the new democratically elected government.

In Bonn, three days before the reunification of Germany, polls show West German Chancellor Kohl and his conservative Christian Democrats surged ahead of the rival Social Democrats. (SEPT. 30) UPI - President Bush and congressional budget negotiators today reached agreement on a deficit package that would slash the nation's deficit by 500-BILLION-dollars over five years. Agreement came just hours shy of a midnight deadline. The deal calls for increasing gasoline and other taxes.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he's willing to consider a French-sponsored peace plan that calls for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait. Saddam made the comments in a statement carried by the official Iraqi news agency I-N-A. He said he wants to meet immediately with French officials to discuss points in the plan. .

Saddam called for the opening of a dialogue to replace what he termed ''threats and massive armies.'' His comments may be seen as a retreat from his former hard-line policy... or a tactical ploy to buy more time. France has differed from U-S policy by calling for a simultaneous resolution of the Palestinian problem and free elections in Kuwait.

More French troops arrived in Saudi Arabia today. The arrival of the elite units of the French Foreign Legion and a marine regiment coincided with news reports that French President Mitterrand plans to visit the Persian Gulf, perhaps as early as this week. A total of four-thousand French troops are expected by tomorrow.

Children were at the forefront today as they led more than 70 world leaders into the U-N General Assembly for a day-long world summit on children. The summit is expected to adopt a solemn declaration to improve the lot of children worldwide and a plan of action to cut down on the daily deaths of 40-thousand children.

Unrest in the Israeli-occupied territories has left three Palestinians dead in one of the most violent days in the territories in months. -- AROUND THE NL --

Cubs 6, Mets 5

NEW YORK (SEPT. 30) UPI - Ryne Sandberg broke a tie with a ninth-inning ground ball Sunday, giving the Chicago Cubs a 6-5 victory over New York in a game that ended after the Mets' elimination from the National League East race.

Sandberg grounded a ball to shortstop Howard Johnson, who made an error on the play. Sandberg, however, received credit for the RBI that made a winner of Jose Nunez, 4-7. Mitch Williams got one out for his 15th save. John Franco, 5-3, lost his third straight decision.

With Mets ahead 5-2 in the eighth, the scoreboard flashed news of Pittsburgh's victory over St. Louis that clinched the division title. The crowd of 39,195 at Shea Stadium gave the Mets a one-minute ovation.

Phillies 2, Expos 1

MONTREAL (UPI) - Wes Chamberlain scored the first run and and singled home the winner lifting the Philadelphia Phillies to a 2-1 win over the Montreal Expos.

It was Montreal's ninth loss in its last 10 games.

Terry Mulholland allowed just five hits as he improved his record to 9-10. Rookie southpaw Chris Nabholz fell to 6-2 for Montreal after winning six straight decisions since he was called up from the minors.

Padres 3, Reds 0

CINCINNATI (UPI) - Derek Lilliquist permitted four hits over six innings while Joe Carter and Jerald Clark singled in runs to lift San Diego to a 3-0 win over Cincinnati giving the Padres a three-game series sweep of the National Legue West champion Reds.

The Reds, who clinched the division title Saturday, started only two regulars in Sunday's game, center fielder Billy Hatcher and right fielder Glenn Braggs.

Lilliquist, 5-11, struck out five and walked two. Greg Harris pitched the final three innings for his ninth save.

Jose Rijo, 14-8, whose next start will be in the opening game of the National League playoffs against Pittsburgh on Thursday, pitched the first five innings surrendering four hits and two runs, one of them earned. The right-hander struck out five and walked two.

Pirates 2, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - The Pittsburgh Pirates, with ace right-hander Doug Drabek finalizing his Cy Young credentials, clinched their first National League East title in 11 years with a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

By taking their seventh straight victory, the Pirates earned the right to face the West Division champion Reds in the NL playoffs beginning Thursday night in Cincinnati.

Neither team has reached the playoffs since 1979, when Pittsbugh swept Cincinnati in three games then topped the Baltimore Orioles in a seven-game World Series.

Drabek, 22-6, hurled a three-hitter, leaving the Pirates at least four games ahead of second-place New York with three games to play, and eliminating any chance of the Mets overtaking Pittsburgh in their three- game series this week.

Astros 6, Braves 2

HOUSTON (UPI) - Mark Portugal allowed three hits over seven innings and drove in a run, and Casey Candaele added a two-run single leading the Houston Astros to a 6-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Portugal, 11-10, had a no-hitter through five innings before Jeff Treadway and Ron Gant led off the sixth with consecutive singles. Portugal, who struck out five and walked six in Houston's final home game of the season, left after loading the bases with none out in the eighth.

Jim Clancy pitched two innings for his first save. Tom Glavine, 10- 12, took the loss.

Giants 8, Dodgers 2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Robby Thompson homered and added two singles and Rick Reuschel pitched five shutout innings to lead the San Francisco Giants to an 8-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Thompson also stole two bases, drove in two runs and scored three as the Giants completed a three-game series sweep that pulled them into a second-place tie with Los Angeles.

Reuschel, 3-6, making his second start since coming off the disabled list Sept. 17, notched his first victory since April 29. Raphael Novoa pitched four innings for his first save. Loser Fernando Valenzuela, 13- 13, lasted four innings.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - Here are some of the major provisions of the $500 billion, five-year deficit-reduction agreement reached Sunday by White House and congressional budget negotiators, according to budget director Richard Darman.

The accord cuts the deficit by $40 billion in fiscal year 1991, which begins Monday, and by $500 billion over five years. The budget blueprint still must be passed by both the House, and Senate and the tax increases and spending cuts it requires must be implemented in separate legislation and signed by President Bush.

TAX INCREASES

Taxes and fees would raise $16.2 billion next year and $133.8 over five years. Major changes include the following:

-A phased-in, 10-cent increase in the federal gasoline tax, now 9 cents a gallon, by 5 cents the first year and 5 cents the following year.

-Though not absolutely determined, taxes on alcoholic beverages would be raised, $1.20 per gallon on hard liquor, probably a doubling of the tax on beer to 32 cents a six-pack, and table wine taxes would rise to 24 cents per bottle.

-The federal cigarette tax would be raised from 16 cents to 20 cents per pack in 1991 and to 24 cents per pack in 1993.

-A new 10 percent luxury excise tax would be established for cars costing more than $30,000, private boats costing over $100,000, jewelry costing more than $5,000 and furs priced above $5,000.

-Some $4.04 billion in fees would be raised for the Bank Insurance Fund assessment by charging banks a higher percentage on deposits.

DEFENSE

-Pentagon spending would be cut by $9.8 billion in fiscal 1991, $22.6 billion in 1992 and $34.8 billion in 1993. The following two years were not covered by the agreement. Additional costs of Operation Desert Shield in the Middle East also would be handled under a separate spending bill.

MEDICARE

-Program costs would be cut by $30 billion from providers and $30 billion by raising the deductibles for beneficiaries from $100 in the coming year to $150 in 1993-95 and hiking the premium level to a cap of about 30 percent. However, a $2 billion offset was included to help elderly people living around the poverty level to pay their premiums.

In addition, Darman said the following entitlement programs were slated for cuts during the five-year period:

-Agriculture programs, $13 billion, through a comobination of target price and/or base acred reduction programs.

-Repeal of the civil service retirement fund lump sum payments, with a 30-day grace period; $8.1 billion.

-Postal service, $4.2 billion, requiring Postal Service to pickup employer health care component of annuties, now paid out of general revenues, and $1.9 billion by requiring Postal Service to increase contributions to pay for cost-of-living increases for employes retiring.

-Miscellaneous, $1.6 billion, mostly reform of government purchases of pharmaceuticals.

-Student loan programs, $2 billion, by moving to disqualify schools with the worst default records.

-Rail Fund Pension Liability contribution, $200 million.

-FHA, $2.5 billion.

-Delaying unemployment insurance benefits at federal level for two weeks, $4.6 billion.

-Veterans, $2.7 billion, with specific policy changes not specified.

-Unspecified entitlements and fees, $3 billion.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - After months of wrangling, administration and congressional budget negotiators finally agreed on a deficit-reduction package. The deal came just hours shy of a midnight deadline... and it calls for increasing gasoline and other taxes and slashing government spending to cut the nation's deficit by 500-BILLION dollars over five years. .

President Bush hailed the pact at a Rose Garden ceremony, saying- ''This is real, NOT a phony smoke and mirrors deficit-cutting program.'' But the president made NO mention that the pact does NOT include his long-sought, controversial cut in the capital gains tax... which Democrats had fought against as boon for the wealthy.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he'll consider a French-sponsored peace plan calling for Iraq's complete withdrawal from Kuwait. He said in a statement he wants to meet immediately with French officials to discuss the plan. .

Saddam's statements come as Gulf news reports say there were widespread demonstrations in several Iraqi cities to protest the country's deteriorating economic situation. Analysts say the U-N economic embargo has caused severe shortages of food and other goods in Iraq, which starts a tough new rationing program tomorrow.

In Liberia, rebel leader Prince Johnson is declaring all-out war on rival rebel forces... ending a fragile cease-fire in the war-torn nation. Johnson said there is now NO hope of peace talks to end the nine-month-old civil war in Liberia and he declared the ''only solution is violence'' to establish real democracy in the country.

Pope John Paul the Second officially opened a month-long synod of bishops at the Vatican today. The synod, attended by 238 delegates from around the world, was called to deal with the problems facing Roman Catholic priests in the modern world. Vatican watchers say the continuing worldwide shortage of priests will be one of the major topics up for discussion.

Divers are searching a shallow Northern California lake for the last of seven people believed to have died in the crash of a World War Two plane yesterday. Rescuers pulled three bodies from the frigid waters of Clear Lake yesterday and three more were recovered today. The plane went down while making low passes at the lake for the 11th annual ''Seaplane Fly-in.''

(SEPT. 30) UPI - A budget agreement was reached today... just hours before a midnight deadline. The pact agreed upon by President Bush and congressional negotiators calls for hikes in gas and alcohol taxes, and cuts in government spending. The goal is to reduce the deficit by 500-BILLION dollars in five years. Automatic spending cuts that might have crippled government services were averted by the agreement.

The House and Senate scheduled sessions today to suspend those cuts. Congress now has until October 19th to pass the budget agreement, which President Bush calls ''balanced'' and ''fair.'' At a White House ceremony today, Bush did NOT mention that the agreement does NOT include his long-sought cut in the capital gains tax. Democrats had said such a cut would be a tax break for the rich.

President Bush tomorrow speaks to the United Nations General Assembly in New York. Aides say the speech will be an attempt to rally world leaders behind his tough stand against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein . Bush is expected to re-affirm that Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait before any negotiations can take place to end the Persian Gulf crisis.

Iraq's president may be backing off from his hard-line position. Saddam Hussein says he is willing to consider a French-sponsored peace plan, and says he wants to meet with French officials to discuss it. The plan calls for withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait... free elections in Kuwait... and arms reduction throughout the region. It also calls for a solution to the Palestinian problem.

Researchers say an abortion pill developed in France was ''well- liked'' by women taking part in a small U-S study, and it produced NO excessive side effects. 16 American women tested the drug in a study at the University of Southern California Medical School in Los Angeles. Researchers say the results were consistent with larger studies conducted in France.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Israel and the Soviet Union today upgraded their diplomatic status to full consular relations. The Soviet Union broke ties with Israel because of the 1967 Israeli-Arab war. The two countries began an exchange of diplomats in 1987, with the Soviets working through the Finnish Embassy in Tel Aviv and the Israelis working through the Dutch Embassy in Moscow.

World leaders meeting in New York today adopted a joint declaration promising to work toward a better future for children. More than 70 world leaders issued the statement at the U-N World Summit for Children. It says children are ''innocent, vulnerable and dependent,'' and makes a joint commitment ''to give every child a better future.''

#90273u1740 09/30/1990 ~United Press International

(SEPT. 30) UPI - Congress today passed a stop-gap measure suspending automatic spending cuts that would have gone into effect tonight. The move comes after President Bush and congressional negotiators agreed on a budget pact that would cut the federal deficit by 40-BILLION dollars in the new fiscal year. If agreement had NOT been reached, spending cuts totaling BILLIONS would have gone into effect at midnight.

President Bush calls the new budget ''balanced'' and ''fair.'' But getting it approved by Congress may prove difficult. House Speaker Thomas Foley says ''it's NOT going to be easy or simple to obtain the votes necessary.'' Some conservative House Republicans indicate they might oppose the plan. Representative Robert Walker of Pennsylvania calls it a ''package where Republicans did the giving and Democrats did the taking.''

A possible sign of softening in Iraq's hard-line stance. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he wants to meet with French officials to discuss a peace plan offered by French President Mitterrand last week at the United Nations. The plan calls for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, and calls for a simultaneous resolution of the Palestinian problem. U-S officials have resisted efforts to link the Persian Gulf crisis and the Palestinian uprising.

The Persian Gulf crisis apparently will be the focus of a speech by President Bush tomorrow to the United Nations General Assembly. Aides say Bush will try to rally world support for his tough stand against Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait. Bush also is expected to discuss the ''new world order'' that has resulted from the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - A budget accord reached today by White House and congressional negotiators averts automatic spending cuts that could have crippled government services. But the reprieve may be temporary. Congress must still approve the pact.

And it must be approved by Friday. President Bush says he will NOT sign an extension if Congress fails to act by the end of the week. That means the threat of a government shutdown is again alive, for one week from tomorrow.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he is willing to consider a French-sponsored peace plan calling for the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait. It might be a softening of his stance, or it might be a ploy to gain time.

In Washington, administration officials say the United States has been consulting with its allies and the Soviets about Persian Gulf options. One involves drafting of a U-N resolution to authorize use of military force against Baghdad.

Two more U-S soldiers in the Persian Gulf region were killed in an accident. A military spokesman says an Air Force FE jetfighter on a training mission crashed today in the southern region of the Arab Peninsula, killing both crew members.

Hungarians showed their dis-enchantment with the country's new democratic leadership today. They stayed away from the polls in nation- wide municipal elections. The turnout was so low that a second round of voting must be held.

Tomorrow is an important day in U-S naval history. The U-S-S Blueback, the last remaining U-S Navy sub to run by conventional power, is to be de-commissioned. That will give the United States the first sub fleet completely powered by nuclear energy.

Wednesday's elections in Brazil could be a turning point for President Fernando Collor de Mello. The voting will be his first big popularity test as an incumbent.

Four whites were brutally murdered today in a black township in central South Africa. The four were mutilated and burned to death. An official source said a racial motive was unlikely, even though two black men were arrested.

In Nicaragua, Sandinista leaders today announced a campaign of walkouts and marches to protest government economic policies. A Sandinista leader said the civil disobedience campaign will begin tomorrow in Managua and across the country.

The sexual harrassment of a female reporter in the New England Patriots locker-room September 17th may cost the jobs of some of the team's management. Team owner Victor Kiam says there will be ''mammoth changes'' in team management when the National Football League completes its investigation.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - The United States is consulting with its allies and the Soviet Union about a possible U-N resolution authorizing use of military force against Iraq. But Bush administration officials say NO such resolution has been drafted yet. If it is, it apparently would call for use of force in the event that economic sanctions do NOT force Iraq out of Kuwait.

Hardly anyone would avoid the pinch if a budget agreement reached today by White House and congressional negotiators is approved by Congress. It calls for higher taxes on beer, liquor, cigarettes, gasoline and other items. Senate Republican leader Robert Dole says- ''If you smoke, drink or drive, you're going to pay a little more.'' The plan is aimed at cutting the federal deficit.

World leaders at the U-N Children's Summit today called for schools for the 100-Million illiterate children around the world. They also called for health care for mothers, half-a-Million of whom die every year from childbirth-related causes. The pleas are in a joint statement issued at the summit in New York. One goal of the meeting is to cut the child death rate.

In New York City, a 13-year-old boy playing in a Brooklyn park became the 10th child to be shot this month in the city. Police say he was wounded in the arm when shots were fired by a drive-by attacker in an apparently random shooting. The boy was hospitalized in stable condition. He's the 24th child to be struck by gunfire in the city since July 22nd, and the sixth in the past 10 days.

(SEPT. 30) UPI - The Soviet Union today broadened its diplomatic ties. Full consular relations have been restored between the Soviet Union and Israel. The Soviets cut off relations with Israel because of the 1967 Israeli-Arab war, but they had been dealing with each other through other nations since 1987. Also today, the Soviet Union and South Korea decided to establish diplomatic relations.

REDMOND, WA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Microsoft Corp. Monday announced the availability of The Microsoft Office for Windows, which combines three of the company's leading business applications for the Microsoft Windows graphical environment version 3.0 in one convenient and economical package.

The three products address the core productivity needs of general business users. The Microsoft Office includes Microsoft Excel for Windows, the leading graphical spreadsheet, Word for Windows, the best-selling full-featured word processor for Windows, and Microsoft PowerPoint for Windows presentation graphics program, the new Windows version of the leading presentation graphics program for the Macintosh.

Available in hundreds of retail stores today, The Microsoft Office has an introductory suggested retail price of $995. Dealer discounts will bring the price even lower. If purchased separately at list price, the three Windows applications would cost nearly $1,500. The Office contains disks and documentation for all three products. In addition, a new manual titled ''Microsoft Windows Applications Working Together'' instructs users on how to use the applications together most effectively. Installation of the three products is also easier due to The Office's new mini-application, Windows Office Setup. A coupon for Q+ETM, the query-and-edit tool that connects Windows applications to a variety of back-end databases, will also be included in The Office.

Attendance at a series of free seminars sponsored by Microsoft on the Microsoft family of Windows applications has increased steadily this summer. Microsoft will expand this series to accommodate expected demand for the Microsoft Windows applications and The Microsoft Office. Targeted at small-to-medium businesses, the seminars are designed to familiarize end users with Windows computing and applications integration.

Seminar attendees can purchase The Microsoft Office for a special price or any individual Microsoft Windows application for only $99. For more information on the seminars, please call 800/227-4679, ext. 6160.

Mirroring end-user reactions, resellers have been very pleased with sales of Microsoft Windows applications and are enthusiastic about The Microsoft Office.

Microsoft Corp. (NASDAQ:MSFT) develops, markets and supports a wide range of software for business and professional use, including operating systems, network products, languages and application programs, as well as books, hardware and CD ROM products for the microcomputer marketplace.

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Data-Design Laboratories Inc. (NYSE:DDL) announced Monday that it intends to terminate its defined-benefit pension plan.

In its Annual Report to Shareholders for its 1990 fiscal year, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on Sept. 26, 1990, DDL indicated that it was evaluating alternatives with respect to the pension plan as a possible way of increasing cash and tangible net worth.

On Sept. 28, 1990, the board of directors adopted a resolution to terminate the plan effective Dec. 1, 1990, or as soon thereafter as administratively feasible. While the ultimate financial impact will not be known until the termination is completed, the termination should result in significant income and positive cash flow to the company during the next 12 months.

DDL is primarily engaged in the manufacture and assembly of printed circuit boards for computer, communications and instrumentation industries. It also manufactures broadband communications equipment at its Catel Telecommunications subsidiary for the CATV and telephone markets.

MILPITAS, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - LSI Logic Corp. (NYSE:LSI) Monday introduced the Ngine RPM3310, a RISC subsystem based on the MIPS architecture that integrates the critical functional blocks of a high-performance workstation into a self-contained module measuring 3.5 inches per side.

Based on LSI Logic's 25 MHz LR3000 MIPS RISC architecture, the RPM3310 is the first of a family of high-performance subsystems that offers system designers a proven CPU implementation and simplified interface, thus minimizing system development time and risk.

The RPM3310 is expected to be used in UNIX-based workstations, computer servers, high-performnace laser printers and X Window terminals.

The RPM3310 includes LSI Logic's LR3000 MIPS RISC Microprocessor, the LR3010 MIPS Floating-Point Accelerator (FPA), and LR3220 Read-Write Buffer (RWB). Timing-sensitive functions associated with RISC designs are eliminated by placing the 32-kbyte instruction- and 32-kbyte data-cache memories, four-phase clock generation circuitry, and reset configuration logic on the module.

The complex timing constraints associated with RISC-based architecture are resolved on-board, according to Smits.

On-board reset logic enables the system designer to optimize the module configuration to target applications ranging from workstations to peripherals. Future Ngine models will be pin-compatible through a LSI Logic-established standard 100-pin microstrip connector. This will simplify debug, service and performance upgrades.

The module's compact size (3.5 by 3.5 by 0.67 inch) is achieved by utilizing a double-sided printed circuit board and direct die attach assembly. The CPU, Floating Point Accelerator and Read-Write Buffer circuits are die-mounted and encapsulated directly on the integral heat-sink/printed circuit board.

Thermal management and electrical properties are greatly enhanced with power dissipation at 25 MHz measured at approximately 22 Watts, worst case, with air-flow requirements of 150 linear feet per minute at 50 degrees C ambient temperature.

LSI Logic Corp. is a leading supplier of high-performance semiconductors. The company is the premier manufacturer and marketer of HCMOS application specific integrated circuits (ASICs), with over 8,000 designs completed worldwide.

FOSTER CITY, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - MacUser, the leading Macintosh magazine, Monday announced the opening of MacUser Labs' NetWorkShop, the only independent testing facility for Macintosh products used in networked systems.

The NetWorkShop is designed to provide business users with the information needed to make important and often costly network purchasing decisions. Dedicated entirely to connectivity, networking and productivity issues, MacUser Labs' NetWorkShop tests and recommends products for the growing number of networked Mac users.

''For many years, the Mac was considered a standalone computer. However, in today's business environment the networked Mac is the rule rather than the exception,'' said Jon Zilber, MacUser's editor.

MacUser Labs' NetWorkShop is a one-of-a-kind facility with the capacity to hold 60 CPUs with monitors and four printers. It has custom-designed racks linking all the systems to a patch panel where they can be connected to LocalTalk, Ethernet or Token Ring.

On site are more than 30 Macs, a NeXT workstation, a Sun SPARCstation, two micro VAXs and four IBM compatibles; Novell NetWare and 3Com 3+ Open File Servers and a variety of routers and gateways. It also incorporates major operating systems including UNIX, VMS, DOS, OS/2, Windows and Mac OS.

Products to be tested include servers, 10Base T-Ethernet cards and concentrators, multiuser databases, routers and gateways, network management products, Mac as a workstation, terminal emulation software and any Macintosh product capable of operating in a networked environment.

Headed by Henry Bortman and MacUser Labs' director Andrew Eisner, the NetWorkShop staff represents over 40 years of experience in networking high tech. Each lab member has a recognized standing in the Mac industry.

MacUser magazine, a Ziff-Davis publication, is produced for serious business buyers of Macintosh products. MacUser is the leader in lab-based product evaluations and is the primary source of Macintosh buying and ''how to'' information available anywhere.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Maxtor Corp. (NASDAQ:MXTR), a leading manufacturer of high-capacit y, high-performance data storage products, Monday announced the industry's highest capacity 3.5-inch disk drive, the LXT-535, with 535 megabytes of storage.

The LXT-535 can be de-populated to 437 megabytes and is available with either SCSI or AT interface.

The LXT-535 and LXT-437 are platform compatible with the rest of the LXT family including the LXT-200, LXT-213 and the LXT-340. If customers have already qualified the LXT-200, they need only perform a limited qualification for other members of the LXT family because of commonality of hardware and firmware. Maxtor implements the same base code for the entire family of LXT products, allowing customers to bring their systems to market faster when they use the LXT family of drives.

In addition to leading-edge packaging and mechanical techniques, the LXT family incorporates unique buffering and caching algorithms to provide the fastest time-to-data in the industry.

The LXT-535/437 feature an average seek time of 12 milliseconds read and 13 milliseconds/write.

They have a maximum bus transfer rate of 5 megabytes/second in a synchronous mode, 3 megabytes/second in an asynchronous mode and 4 megabytes/second implementing an AT interface. The track-to-track seek time is 3 milliseconds.

The LXT-535 is ideal for the workstation marketplace. With applications and system software becoming more and more memory- intensive, Maxtor's LXT-535 provides the capacity and performance not previously available in a 3.5-inch form factor.

Maxtor is already shipping the LXT-535 and LXT-437 to beta sites and will begin shipping evaluation quantities in November; volume deliveries will begin in early 1991. OEM volume pricing for the LXT- 535 is $1,450 and $1,250 for the LXT-437.

Maxtor Corp. was founded in 1982 and has its headquarters in San Jose. The company and its subsidiaries design and manufacture high-capacity Winchester and optical data storage products in San Jose; Longmont, Colo.; Singapore; Hong Kong; and Malaysia, and have a worldwide sales and distribution network.

Maxtor's products range from 40 megabytes to 2.1 gigabytes and are designed for use in computer systems, workstations, personal computers, laptop computers and local area networks.

In addition, Storage Dimensions Inc. a wholly owned subsidiary of Maxtor Corp. markets magnetic disk and optical storage subsystems for personal computers and microcomputer-based networks. Maxoptix, a joint venture of Maxtor and Kubota Ltd. in which Maxtor is a 75 percent owner, designs and manufactures the Tahiti(RI), the world's highest performance one gigabyte erasable optical disk drive.

Maxoptix also markets the RXT-800 WORM (read once, write many) optical disk drive. Maxoptix is the only U.S. entrant in the high-performance erasable market.

CUPERTINO, CALIF. (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Apple Computer is beginning a sweeping 18-month overhaul of its service policies and programs to make them more cost-effective, less time-consuming and less complicated for service providers.

Both Apple authorized resellers and direct service providers will benefit from the new plan, called Service Provider Business Platform, features new computer-based tools and a mix of liberalized reimbursement and inventory management programs.

''The costs of doing business for personal computer service providers have risen steadily over the years as the number of products has increased and the range of service situations has broadened,'' said Taylor Pohlman, director of Apple Service. ''Apple's new programs will give service providers a lot more freedom to manage their own businesses and control costs.

Apple will roll out five new or substantially revised service programs between Oct. 1, 1990, and late 1991 for all service providers. The key aims of the programs include:

-- Providing a powerful new on-line order processing system for ordering service parts and finished goods or tracking orders, claims and credits.

-- Abolishing specific service parts stocking requirements in favor of flexible guidelines and a new statistical model that helps any individual service provider tailor inventory according to the needs of a particular installed base.

-- Simplifying the warranty claim reimbursement structure increasing servic providers' average reimbursements substantially.

-- Giving Apple dealers or other service providers a new capability for continuously updating service inventories.

-- Supplying new technologies for improving field troubleshooting and providing up-to-date information on repair procedures.

In addition to the above, which affect all service providers, Apple will improve the service proposition specifically for resellers by offering immediate inventory relief with special Apple buy-back plans covering obsolete inventory.

DAYTON, OH (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - NCR Corp. announced that Sizzler Restaurants International has selected NCR's 2760 Food Service System and personal computers, implementing those systems throughout its restaurants nationwide.

The contract with Sizzler is valued at approximately $2.5 million over the next several years.

For example, in an average 250-seat Sizzler restaurant, three 2760 point of sale (POS) terminals are located in the front of the restaurant for entering customer orders. The order is then automatically transmitted to the kitchen printer. When the order is ready, a server brings the order to the customer's table.

At the end of the evening, the POS data is integrated with an inventory software package that calculates food consumption and cost. It enables the restaurant manager to better control food costs by knowing which items to reorder and in what quantity. The inventory package was developed by ReMACs Inc., one of NCR's Solutions Partners.

The NCR 386SX personal computer is used as the Manager's Workstation and provides all management reports, inventory and recipe control. Sizzler also plans to use the system for labor scheduling, time/attendance and personnel information management.

The NCR 2760 Food Service System is NCR's latest food service POS system that blends intelligent programmable terminals with an industry-standard PC which serves as a Manager's Workstation to provide valuable back office processing capabilities.

Sizzler's new Buffet Court and Grill offers a tremendous variety, including Italian, appetizer and dessert bars as well as grilled food offerings.

Sizzler-owned restaurants and francises are located throughout North America. Internationally, Sizzler plans to open a substantial number of new restaruants first in Asia and then in Europe.

Service and maintenance support for NCR products is provided by NCR's 5,000 customer service and software engineers at 400 locations throughout the United States.

NCR, based in Dayton, develops, manufactures, markets and supports business information systems for worldwide markets.

CUPERTINO, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Tandem Computers Inc. (NYSE:TDM) Monday announced that Heidelberger Drucksmaschinen AG of Wiesloch, Germany, a major printing press manufacturer, has chosen a four-processor NonStop Cyclone mainframe computer system to control large parts of its warehousing, manufacturing, and dispatch operations.

In addition, the German Post Office, headquartered in Bonn, has chosen Tandem for an electronic/physical mail distribution system. The order includes a four-processor NonStop CLX 740 system.

The fault-tolerant NonStop Cyclone, recently installed at Heidelberger's main Wiesloch manufacturing plant, is already handling more than 120,000 transactions per day. At Wiesloch up to 30 printing presses are produced daily, and the variety of products effectively means that each machine is customized to match a customer's specification.

The NonStop Cyclone links with other Tandem systems to control component warehousing, batch production of sub-assemblies, custom-order final assembly, and dispatch of finished machines and associated extra parts. Automated picking and driverless in-plant delivery systems, controlled by the Tandem systems, ensure that right parts reach the assembly areas as they are required for building.

The IT Director at Heidelberger Drucksmaschinen, Dr. Ing Helmut Eitel, said that rapid growth in new and existing technology led them to decide to tie their existing systems together with a new Tandem NonStop Cyclone. This allows them to reshape their computing by allocating separate resources to their two major functions, operations and system development.

Altogether, over 500 terminals, data stations and local PC networks are connected into the Tandem system, and future plans include the use of the Tandem NonStop SQL relational database management software.

This application will enable users to store letterhead and facsimile signatures on the electronic mail distribution system, as well as individualized or bulk letters, and address lists. The system will electronically distribute individual letters to local electronic mail centers, where they will be printed, inserted into envelopes and delivered with normal mail.

By moving mail electronically, rather than physically, over long delivery distances the post office expects important cost benefits for themselves and users. Also, they anticipate faster service with smaller environmental impact.

The primary target market for the service will be registered users, which include high volume organizations like direct mail houses and public authorities. Also, the post office anticipates the system will appeal to public users sending urgent mail to business and domestic correspondents not equipped to receive fax, telex or other electronic messages.

Users can access the service via a range of devices like fax, telex and teletext. Registered users will use personal computers.

The German post office is talking with other postal authorities about internationalizing the project for cross-border deliveries.

GEI of Bonn, a Daimler Benz subsidiary, is the prime contractor for this project. Softlab AG of Munich is responsible for providing X.400 software. The first node in the project is scheduled to begin operation in mid-1991 in Frankfurt.

Tandem manufactures and markets computer systems and networks for online transaction processing, large database applications and the UNIX system marketplace. Company headquarters are located at 19333 Vallco Parkway, Cupertino, Calif. 95014, 408/725-6000.

MILWAUKEE (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Fiserv Inc. (NASDAQ/OTC:FISV), a leading computer services company providing data processing and information management systems to financial institutions worldwide, has announced a major contract expansion and renewal with American Savings Bank of Stockton, Calif.

The seven-year contract, which includes additional outsourcing of the institution's data processing services to Fiserv, is projected to generate over $100 million in revenues for Fiserv. All data processing operations for American Savings will now be handled through the Fiserv center in Fresno, Calif., and backed by the support of the company's national network of centers.

''American Savings has been a Fiserv client since 1983, and we're very pleased to be able to support their strategic business plan through the outsourcing of all of their data processing,'' says George D. Dalton, chairman and chief executive officer of Fiserv.

''What's truly rewarding is to have a client like American Savings express their confidence in us by expanding their service contract. We were in competition with some of the largest data processers in the industry, and came away the winner. That feels good.''

For large financial institutions, outsourcing -- using an external, specialized servicer as opposed to maintaining an in-house data processing facility -- continues to play an increasing role as an economical, efficient alternative. That means these institutions must look for a data processing servicer with the resources, technical expertise and experience to provide for their special needs.

''Outsourcing means more than just providing cost reductions, even though that is the major consideration for many institutions,'' Dalton adds. ''It's an integral part of any strategic plan. Outsourcing offers financial institutions a way to keep up with technology changes, and provides an economical way to incorporate services and products that will differentiate them from their competition.

''That's where Fiserv can offer a unique solution -- because we have the financial stability, the nationwide resources and the proven expertise to help an insitution meet its strategic goals through outsourcing. Plus, we're dedicated exclusively to serving financial institutions. We understand their needs, and that's an important comfort factor.''

In 1989, American Savings engaged the Booz Allen Hamilton consulting firm of Dallas, to evaluate their real estate lending applications and their strategic planning. After a comprehensive study, Booz Allen Hamilton highly recommended

American Savings expand their data processing relationship with Fiserv.

''Fiserv creates a true strategic alliance for American Savings' banking strategies as they move forward into the technology-oriented '90s,'' said Ray Lane, partner of Booz Allen Hamilton.

''Expanding our contract with Fiserv was a strategic, corporate decision,'' says Robert T. Barnum, executive vice president and chief financial officer of American Savings Bank. ''The Fiserv selection supports our focus on the mature market as our key customer. That customer wants good, personal service. So we needed to focus our resources on things which meet our customers' needs. Two computer oprations didn't make sense economically, or in terms of the service we need to deliver.

''With the decision to choose Fiserv, American Savings can continue to provide our retail bank customers with uninterrupted, reliable cost-effective service.''

In the early '80s when American Savings Bank became a client, Fiserv performed the largest conversion of a financial institution in the industry at that time. ''In four months we converted their core applications, which were processed through two large data centers,'' said Jack J. McMenimon, president of Fiserv Fresno.

''At that time, the institution continued to maintain an internal data processing capability supporting several custom systems and a large print operation. With this new outsourcing agreement, we've gained responsibility for all of American Savings' data processing functions and facilities, including their retail and lending systems development.''

''By giving Fiserv complete responsibility for data processing, we will save $5 million in 1991, $7 million in 1992 and over $12 million by 1995,'' Barnum says. ''A savings that significant is another step in enhancing the value of American Savings to our customers. As we focus on Fiserv as our sevice provider, Fiserv will be able to help us focus on delivering responsive service.''

In the past six years Fiserv, a Milwaukee-based company, has grown into a ntaional network of specialized information management centers and subsidiary companies. The company's data centers are located throughout the United States, processing over 19.5 million customer accounts for more than 950 client financial institutions.

In 1989, the company's annual revenues were over $164 million, an increase of 31 percent over the prior year's record. A publicly held company, Fiserv stock is traded in the NASDAQ over the counter market system under the symbol FISV.

American Savings Bank, headquartered in Stockton, has 176 branches and 30 residential loan centers located throughout California. With assets of $16.4 billion, the institution employs over 4,500 people.

PHOENIX (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - America West Airlines (NASDAQ:AWAL; PSE:AWA) Monday announced that it has signed contracts in a multi-party transaction for the acquisition of up to 118 Airbus Industrie A320s.

The transaction involves America West committing to purchase or lease a total of 74 aircraft on firm order, including the lease of 16 immediately and holding 44 options. Assuming the exercise of options, aircraft will be delivered over a 15-year period making this the largest A320 commitment by any airline to date.

Parties to the transaction with America West and Airbus Industrie include Guinness Peat Aviation, Kawasaki Enterprises and International Aero Engines, who will be providing the V2500 power plant for the 148-seat two-class configued airplane. Assuming the exercise of all options, this transaction is valued at approximately $5 billion.

As part of this agreement, America West received on signing cash advances and support from the engine supplier and lessors and Airbus introductory spare parts and training support totaling $220 million.

America West plans to begin A320 service in January 1991 and will have 16 A320s in service by mid-year, all leased from Guiness Peat Aviation, with an additional 10 aircraft to be leased from a Guinness Peat Aviation affiliate between 1993 and 1996.

Twenty-four aircraft will be acquired under long-term lease from Kawasaki Enterprises and will be delivered to America West over a 5-year period beginning in 1992. Firm aircraft orders from America West will deliver between 1996 and the year 2000 and 44 related options will be available between 1999 and 2005.

Michael J. Conway, America West president, who headed up the airline's efforts in bringing together the parties in the transaction, stated, ''This is by far the largest single aircraft order in our history, and by its terms, it makes America West a much stronger carrier.''

He continued, ''With long-term lease financing already in place for the first 50 aircraft, and a very strong up-front support package, our company is in an excellent position to realize several opportunities in the marketplace over the near term.''

COLUMBUS, OH (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Drug Emporium Inc. (NASDAQ:DEMP) continued to post strong sales for the second fiscal quarter and first half ended August 31, while profits overcame $2.5 million of pretax non-recurring vendor rebates last year to hold even for the six months.

For the quarter, net sales reached $147.2 million, up 23 percent from sales of $119.7 million in the corresponding three months last year. Net income was $2,212,000 or 17 cents per share compared with $2,372,000 or 18 cents per share a year ago. Last year's quarterly pretax results benefited from $1.5 million in vendor rebates.

For the six months, net sales increased 23 percent to $288.3 million from $233.6 million in the first half last year. Net income was on par with a year ago, $4,044,000 or 31 cents per share versus $4,130,000 or 31 cents per share. Chief Executive Officer Gary Wilber said the pricing strategy that the company put into effect nearly a year ago continues to drive sales.

Same-store sales were up 12 percent for both the second quarter and six months over the similar periods last year. ''Now, we are seeing store operating profits come along with sales as our cost- control measures take effect,'' Wilber said.

He pointed out that more favorable year-to-year profit comparisons are expected during the second half as vendor rebates will be similar for both years. He also noted that the three stores in the Minneapolis franchise acquired early in the first quarter this year contributed to the sales increases.

The company recently announced agreements to acquire the Charleston, S.C., St. Louis and San Diego franchises with a total of nine Drug Emporium stores. This week the company reached agreement to acquire the five-store Indianapolis franchise. In addition, the company has opened four new stores this year.

As of August 31, Drug Emporium, a national deep-discount drugstore chain, owned and operated 87 stores and franchised an additional 112 stores specializing in brand-name health and beauty aids, cosmetics and prescription drugs.

MEMPHIS, TN (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Seven Oaks International Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:QPON) Monday announced that A. M. Sackett has resigned as a director.

He indicated that his action was based on the demands on his personal schedule from other commitments which were making it increasingly difficult to continue in service to Seven Oaks. A special committee of directors has been appointed to recommend a nominee to replace Sackett and to consider the overall composition of the board.

The committee's report is expected before the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board on Nov. 27, 1990.

Rear Admiral Sackett, U.S.N. (Ret.), has been a director of Seven Oaks since 1982. Since February of 1983, he has been director of community relations of the Memphis Publishing Co.

Frank J. Donato, chief executive officer, said, ''We sincerely appreciate Al Sackett's past service to Seven Oaks. We understand the time requirements imposed by his other responsibilities and accept his decision to end his active involvement as a member of the board of directors.''

Seven Oaks International operates as a clearinghouse between retailers and product manufacturers in processing cents-off coupons. The company's common shares are traded over-the-counter under the National Market System symbol QPON.

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - The first commercials in a major new advertising campaign created by Della Femina McNamee for the Copier Products Division of Toshiba America Information Systems Inc. appeared Sunday, Sept. 30 on regional NFL games on the CBS television network.

Although one of the commercials appeared Sept. 30, the full campaign will kick off Oct. 4 in conjunction with the opening of the American and National League Baseball Championship Playoffs. The playoff series has one of the highest ratings of any sporting event on network television.

Network time has also been purchased for NFL and collegiate football games throughout the season. On cable, over 50 spots per week will appear on CNN, FNN and ESPN.

Cable programming will include tennis and golf events on ESPN, news programs on CNN and financial news updates and features on FNN. The television schedule is supported by advertising on CBS network radio and print ads in consumer and trade magazines and in USA Today.

''We're looking for adult professional and business people, and the mix of network and cable programming, supplemented by radio and print media in 1990-91, gives us better access to our target audiences than ever before,'' according to Walker.

Walker added that the 1990-91 (September to March) advertising budget is 300 percent more than any previous Copier Products Division period and marks the first time any Toshiba division's ads will appear on network television.

Toshiba office copiers are sold and serviced by a network of more than 350 dealers nationwide. Toshiba America Information Systems is one of five independently operating U.S.-based companies that comprise Toshiba America Inc., New York, a holding company which is part of the $29 billion Toshiba Corp. based in Tokyo.

PROVO, UT (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Larson Davis Inc. (NASDAQ:LDII) Monday reported that initial response to its recently introduced static version Electronic Text Retrieval technology has been very positive.

Brian Larson, president, said, ''The Electronic Text Retrieval technology developed by our subsidiary, Larson Davis Information Systems is currently being reviewed by several Fortune 500 companies. While our technology has widespread application, one area of strong interest shown by these companies is on line product and computer peripheral manuals.''

Larson continued, ''In addition, Commerce Clearing House (CCH), one of the nation's largest publishers, has had very good success marketing an electronic version of its 1990 Master Tax Guide. CCH has expanded its application of the Larson Davis technology to the Master Tax Guide for Australia and several other professional texts. Larson Davis receives royalty income on all products produced for CCH that are sold world-wide.''

An additional market rapidly evolving is catalogs, policy and procedure manuals, and student directories for colleges and universities. Larson Davis estimates the savings in publishing costs for universities across the nation would be in the millions. Virtually every college and university in the country is a prospective user of this technology.

Larson Davis recently entered into an agreement with Ricks College to electronically publish their catalogs, manuals and directories. Negotiations are currently underway with several additional colleges and universities.

Larson added, ''Recent software publishing industry figures are showing that industry growth has continued at 30 percent plus rate. Larson Davis is also finding that sales of its Electronic Text Retrieval technology as well as sales in its acoustical instrumentation division are not being impacted by recent national and international developments. We fully anticipate that our historical growth rate will continue in the months ahead.''

SUNNYVALE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - California Microwave Inc. (OTC:CMIC) announced it's board of directors elected Arthur H. Hausman, chairman of the board emeritus of Ampex Corp., and Robert C. Fitting, a vice president of California Microwave and president of the company's subsidiary, EFData Corp., to fill two vacancies created by an increase in the size of the board from seven to nine members.

Hausman, a business consultant and private investor, retired in 1987 from Ampex Corp. where he had served as chairman of the board and chief executive officer. He joined Ampex in 1960 as vice president and director of research and was appointed president in 1971.

Ampex Corp. is video systems manufacturer. Hausman was appointed by President Reagan to the President's Export Council in 1985 and served for four uyears. He also serves on the boards of directors of TCI International Inc., Drexler Technology Inc. and California Amplifier Inc.

Fitting is the president and founder of EFData Corp., which California Microwave acquired in 1989. At that time, Fitting became a vice president of California Microwave. Prior to founding EFData in 1984, Fitting held positions at Bell Laboratories, Motorola and Comtech Data Corp.

EFData, located in Tempe, Ariz., is a leading producer of satellite data transmission modems, which connect telephone lines to satellite communications networks.

The annual meeting of shareholders of California Microwave Inc. will be held on Oct. 25, 1990, to elect directors and to ratify the selection of the company's independent accountants.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - S&P assigns its 'A-1' rating to Australian Airlines Ltd.'s $500 million U.S. commercial paper program.

Also, the 'A-1' ratings on the company's Eurocommercial paper programs are affirmed.

Australian Airlines is one of two airlines that roughly split the market for long-distance air travel in Australia. Following deregulation of domestic air service on Nov. 1, the airline is expected to retain a strong market presence due to its extensive network structure, service quality, and low-cost position. Furthermore, potential entrants will be confined by limited access to financing, aircraft, and airport terminals, as well as by the entrenchment of the two existing airlines.

Still, a well-positioned rival, Ansett Transport Industries Ltd., some new entrants, and the government's removal of price and operating controls are expected to lead to price competition and shifting market shares for the next few years.

Internally generated funds are insufficient to meet high capital spending to modernize and expand the aircraft fleet, upgrade terminals, and invest in resorts and commuter airlines, resulting in high and increasing debt usage.

The airline's high financial risk is mitigated by the leverageability of aircraft assets, which are mobile and readily saleable. More important still, the Australian government's 100 pc ownership of the airline provides credit support.

Recently, the government decided to privatize the airline, but has yet to determine the timing and terms of the sell-off of its interest. While it is difficult to assess the impact of privatization at this time, privatization is expected to provide the airline with the benefits of a significant equity injection, links to financially strong investors, and ongoing access to equity markets.

The government is expected to remain committed to the airline's financial well-being through the privatization process, S&P said.

AUSTIN, TX (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Micro Devices Monday announced two highly integrated microprocessors that incorporate all the components of the original IBM AT motherboard on one CMOS integrated circuit.

The single chip, called the Am286ZXTM, contains an AMD CMOS 80286 microprocessor and all the ancillary chips required to build a basic AT-compatible personal computer. The new AMD device offers the functionality of an IBM AT motherboard that previously required up to 175 integrated circuits.

The companion chip, called the Am286LXTM, maintains the same functionality and is the first PC processor to offer on-chip power management. It also features battery-saving techniques targeted at the expanding notebook PC market.

Using AMD's Am286ZX or Am286LX integrated microprocessor, the PC core is reduced to one integrated processor, a keyboard controller and external memory devices, significantly cutting the number of components required to design an entire system.

Integrated onto the single-chip device are AT-compatible peripherals, including DRAM control logic, two DMA controllers, two interrupt controllers, three counter/timers, a real-time clock with CMOS RAM, flexible clock generation logic and an enhanced bus controller. Support is also provided for LIM 4.0 EMS memory management.

The proprietary Am286ZX and Am286LX microprocessors offer designers of entry-level desktop and portable personal computers lower power and significant board space savings in one low-cost package.

Entry-level desktop and laptop systems -- the target for the new AMD devices -- comprise 65 percent of the total personal computer market today, according to research firm International Data Crop. Both devices are compatible with MS/DOSTM, Windows 3.0 and OS/2 operating systems, which make up the bulk of the office environment personal systems.

Sampling of the new AMD integrated microprocessors will begin in Q4 1990 with production scheduled to begin in Q2 1991. Both processors will be offered initially at speeds of 12 and 16 MHz. Prices in 1,000-unit quantities range from $69 for the Am286ZX-12 to $89 for the Am286LX-16.

GLENDALE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Pollution Research and Control Corp. (NASDAQ:PRCC) reported Friday a loss of $1.5 million, or 43 cents per share, on revenues of $5.4 million, compared with net income of $435,000, or 24 cents per share, on revenues of $4.6 million for the 1989 fiscal year.

Albert E. Gosselin Jr., president and chief executive officer grimaces, ''It's a war out there,'' he said. ''For the past 20 years we have survived and outlasted eight out of 10 larger competitors. We did it by superior technology -- even though some of them were 50 to 100 times larger than we.''

''This past year,'' Gosselin claims, ''was a little like the 'Battle of the Bulge' and proved that the best products, temporarily, are not a match for well-financed, not to say unethical, tactics of two remaining competitors.'' Gosselin relaxes and smiles. ''After all,'' he points out, ''it has long been known that a dumb dollar will outbuy a smart dime most of the time.''

''Still,'' he said, ''we'll keep spending our smart dimes. A better day is coming.''

Pollution Research and Control, under the trade name Dasibi Environmental designs, manufactures and markets, internationally, air-pollution monitoring instruments. Gosselin, who has been referred to as ''the General Patton of small-business executives,'' said, ''We have regrouped, cut our losses and, personally, I intend to show the industry what a little Yankee know-how can do.''

SPOKANE, WA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Pegasus Gold Inc. (ASE, TSE: PGU) announced Monday that it will immediately commence construction of its recently acquired Black Pine property in Cassia County, Idaho.

The project, which is an open-pit, heap leach operation, is expected to produce an average of 60,000 ounces of gold annually over the current five year life of the mine, although this is planned to vary between 40,000 and 80,000 ounces in any given year. Proven mineable reserves are 7.7 million tons of oxide ore grading .042 ounces of gold per ton and 8.1 million tons of low-grade ore grading .014 ounces of gold per ton. Recovery rates of these ores are projected at 75 percent and 50 percent, respectively.

Initial capital cost for the project is $11.8 million with operating costs projected at an average of $4.88 per ton. The feasibility study for the project was reviewed by Pincock, Allen and Holt of Lakewood, Colo. Pegasus' Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer Michael L. Clark said: ''We are pleased to be able to add another mine to the five currently operating. Since the project is already fully permitted, we expect gold production to be slightly in excess of 20,000 ounces during the second half of 1991.''

Pegasus Gold Inc. is a major North American gold producer that currently produces over 340,000 ounces of gold from five mines in the western United States. The company also produces significant quantities of silver, lead and zinc. Pegasus Gold common shares are traded on the American Stock Exchange and the Toronto Stock Exchange under the symbol PGU. Options on the company's common shares are traded on the Chicago Board Options Exchange and the Montreal Stock Exchange.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - CIGNA Health Plan of California announced Monday that MCC Companies will manage its mental health/substance abuse treatment service for more than one-half million members.

MCC, an independent subsidiary of CIGNA Corp., is the largest provider of managed mental health/substance abuse service nationwide, covering more than 3 million people.

''MCC's approach is to provide each patient with the most appropriate care,'' said Jerrold Kreisler, president and executive director of MCC Managed Behavioral Care of California. ''By giving the patient the care that is needed, employers and insurers can better manage mental health/substance abuse benefits.''

The change to MCC which is being phased-in over five months, includes more than 500,000 people covered by CIGNA Health Plan in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, Ventura, San Bernardino, San Francisco, San Diego and Imperial counties.

Previously, mental health care was provided through CIGNA staff members and two other mental health care companies.

MCC began managing care for approximately 330,000 CIGNA Health Plan Los Angeles-area members in August. An additional 110,000 people will be added today in the Los Angeles area. About 40,000 people will be added Nov. 1 in San Diego and about 15,000 members in San Francisco will be added early next year.

Kreisler said CIGNA members will now be served by a larger network of mental health/substance abuse professionals. They will be able to get appointments quickly and close to their home or work.

To receive care, CIGNA Health Plan members call a toll-free number to schedule an initial appointment. Based on their location and problem, they are assessed at one of the eight MCC clinics or by one of the more than 450 contracted providers. A treatment plan is developed that best suits the individual's needs.

Minneapolis-based MCC Companies provides mental health/substance abuse services in 60 markets nationwide. Its 1989 revenues were $89 million.

MILWAUKEE (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Fiserv Inc. (NASDAQ/OTC:FISV), a leading computer services company providing data processing and information management systems to financial institutions worldwide, has agreed to acquire the California ratail automated teller machine (ATM) processing network of GTE Commercial Services Inc. of Long Beach, Calif.

GTE Commercial Services, which also does business as GTE EFT Services, is a wholly-owned subsidiary of GTE Information Services, based in Tampa, Fla. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

With this agreement, Fiserv acquires a network of 383 ATMs serving 16 major retailing clients throughout California. All processing for the transactions and related services for the ATMs in the network will be handled through the specialized resources of the Fiserv data center in Fresno, Calif. The ATMs are located in the stores of major retail chains, including Safeway, Vons, Pavilions, Hughes, Boys Markets and Price Club.

''As a servicer for financial institutions, we have a commitment to provide our clients' customers with access to the modern financial technology they need in today's fast-paced world,'' says George D. Dalton, chairman and chief executive officer for Fiserv.

''With this most recent agreement, we're growing our service capabilities to fit the lifestyle of these customers by providing the financial services they need within retail outlets.''

Among financial institution data processors, Fiserv is the fourth largest driver of ATMs in the industry, and ranks among the nation's top 20 third-party providers of EFT gateway services. The company provides interfaces to over 37 regional and national ATM and POS networks throughout the country, allowing shared access to over 60,000 ATMs nationwide.

''Nationally, Fiserv handles in excess of seven million ATM transactions per month, while directly driving over 1,200 ATMs,'' says Leslie M. Muma, president and chief operating officer for Fiserv.

''Our Fresno Center continues to enhance the services and technology unique to the EFT industry. Their efforts, combined with the expertise and resources available through the national Fiserv network, makes us a significant player in the ATM, point-of-sale debit and card management business.''

Kenneth Johnson, Senior Executive Vice President, Electronic Banking, adds, ''With our entry into the ratail ATM business for supermarket and warehouse outlets, Fiserv will be positioned to offer additional financial services such as point-of-sale debit, credit card and check authorization.''

In the past six years Fiserv, a Milwaukee-based company, has grown into a national network of specialized information management centers and subsidiary companies. The company's data centers are located throughout the United States, providing processing for over 19.5 million customer accounts and serving more than 950 client financial institutions.

In 1989, the company's annual revenues were over $164 million, an increase of 31 percent over the prior year's record. A publicly held company, Fiserv stock is traded in the NASDAQ over the counter market system under the symbol FISV.

GTE Information Services offers industry-specific software and services, publishing and marketing capabilities through its businesses.

SAN BERNARDINO, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Kasler Corp. (NASDAQ:KASL), a leader in the highway/heavy-construction industry, Monday announced that the company has agreed to an out-of-court settlement of its lawsuit against the Texas Turnpike Authority.

The suit, filed by Kasler in July 1988, involved claims in the form of additional costs incurred by the company on Contract DNT-113 and Contract DNT-114, two construction projects on the North Dallas tollway.

Bob Ferguson, the company's president and chief executive officer, commenting on the settlement, said, ''We are pleased that we were able to reach an agreement with the Texas Turnpike Authority that was acceptable to all involved.''

In accordance with an agreement between the parties, the amount of the settlement was not disclosed. According to Ferguson, however, the amount of the settlement exceeded the costs deferred by the company.

Kasler is a general contractor engaged in the construction of concrete roadways, bridges and other public-works projects including airfields and water-control distribution facilities.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Larry Gerhard, president, chief executive officer and director, Ventura Software Inc., a Xerox company, told users of its popular desktop publishing products that software companies able to supply cross-compatible, multi-platform solutions would make the critical market gains needed for continued success in the 1990s.

In his keynote address yesterday before more than 650 attendees at the second annual Ventura Publishers User Group Seminar meeting here, Sept. 30 through Oct. 2 at the Red Lion Inn, Gerhard said, ''Our strategy is to ensure that our rapidly growing portfolio of publishing solutions spans the full range of desktop computer platforms and cooperative processing environments -- today, every desktop computer user is a publisher.''

Ventura Publisher holds a leading market share on the PC platform. Recently introduced product additions will make Ventura Publisher available to Macintosh and OS/2 users. Plans call for the introduction of a UNIX version for Sun Microsystems' workstations in 1991.

Gerhard also announced a series of customer service and support enhancements, including a newly installed phone system, a strengthened support staff located at San Diego headquarters and programs to capture and use customer feedback.

Referring to the organizational changes the company has completed during the past year, Gerhard said, ''Today, we have in place a new company, a new team, and a new business strategy committed to the growing demands of our customers.

Ventrua Software Inc. is dedicated to programs that ensure superior product functionality and reliability; on-line, real-time, high-quality technical support and long-range responsiveness to business needs.''

The 1990 Ventura Publisher Seminar, co-sponsored by Ventura Software Inc. and the Ventura Publisher Users Group, is featuring more than 20 separate sessions on topics ranging from database publishing to vertical justification to starting your own desktop publishing business.

Users can visit a Technology Suite set up for free demonstrations and technical support, and can browse through the 100-plus pages of the Seminar Magazine filled with tips, tricks and information about Ventura Publisher.

Ventura Software Inc., a Xerox company, is a leading supplier of publishing, forms processing and database software solutions. Ventura Publisher and FormBase are currently available for IBM PCs and compatibles. By year end 1990, Ventura Publisher will also be available for the Apple Macintosh platform and in 1991 will be offered for the UNIX platform running under OPEN LOOK.

The company markets is software solutions through a worldwide dealer network of more than 6,000 outlets. Ventura Software Inc., formerly Xerox Desktop Software, has its headquarters in San Diego, Calif.

EL SEGUNDO, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Computer Sciences Corp. (NYSE:CSC) has won a contract valued at $347 million for technical and operating support services to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The contract significantly expands the scope of services that CSC provides to EPA's headquarters, 10 regional offices, 14 laboratories and National Computer Center. The company has been the agency's principal contractor for information technology services since 1977 under a series of prior contracts. It won the new award in a competitive procurement.

EPA amasses staggering amounts of data in its mission to preserve and improve the environment. National databases, for instance, store information on the contents and ownership history of toxic waste sites; on the composition and volume of waste water that individual companies are permitted to discharge into rivers and lakes; on particulates discharged into the air by autos and industry, and other sources of air, water and soil pollutants.

CSC assists the agency to manage and utilize this data effectively through the application of advanced information technology. The company provides a wide array of services in data processing and telecommunications, ranging from office automation and records management to data analysis, the development of geographic information systems and the preparation of computer models for predicting pollution patterns.

The company's responsibilities span virtually all of the agency's functions in information resource management, from assistance in monitoring compliance with federal regulations to supporting experimental research in EPA laboratories.

The company's Applied Technology division, with headquarters in Falls Church, Va., performs the work with a nationwide staff of some 1,000 analysts, programmers, telecommunications specialists, statisticians, meteorologists and other technicians. CSC expects this staff will increase to more than 1,600 over the term of the new contract.

CSC's EPA support operation has headquarters in Research Triangle Park, N.C.

The contract, effective Sept. 28, 1990, covers a five-year period. The company estimates its value at $54 million for the first year and at $347 million over five years if the government exercises all of its options.

CSC is a major supplier of information technology services to government and industry. With annual revenues of $1.5 billion, it is the largest independent professional-services company in the computer industry.

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Taking advantage of the overwhelming popularity of Hewlett Packard's Laserjet IIP, Laserjet III and Laserjet IIID, AMKLY Systems Inc. Monday introduced low-cost memory-expansion boards that provide up to 4 megabytes for the laser printers.

The Irvine-based firm, founded last year by Albert C. Wong, who is a former co-founder of AST Research Inc., is offering the AMjet series memory add-ons at substantially lower prices than HP and most other suppliers.

Available for immediate delivery from Ingram Micro D and authorized AMKLY resellers, the boards include the 1MB AMjet-1000 for $195 (suggested retail price), 2MB AMjet-2000 for $295, 3MB AMjet-3000 for $395 and 4MB AMjet-4000 for $495. All AMKLY boards co-exist with other 100 percent compatible memory boards as long as the total amount of memory does not exceed 4MB, and all carry a five-year warranty.

Equivalent memory-expansion boards from HP carry list prices of $335 for the 1MB version and $560 for the 2MB board. HP does not offer a 4MB version and upgrades require installation of two 2MB HP boards.

''According to all industry indicators, HP is doing everything right to maintain its dominant leadership position in the laser- printer market. And our research shows that there is definite user demand for economical alternatives to memory upgrades for the Laserjet IIP, III and IIID printers,'' said Wong.

''We are meeting that demand with high-quality products, reputable engineering surface-mount technology and top-grade components at very competitive pricing '' he said.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint Monday announced the availability of a nationwide 800-number product for residential use.

The service will permit consumers to have their own toll-free 800 number in their home without changing their current long distance company. The service uses the customer's existing equipment and telephone lines and permits the consumer to receive the same benefits that business users have discovered in using an 800 number.

''The time is right to introduce 800 service to the residential market,'' said Steve Akin, president of the Consumer Services Group for US Sprint.

''In today's society,'' Akin said, ''the use of an 800 residential number makes a lot of sense: Parents of college students can stay in touch with their sons and daughters on a regular basis and control costs. Large scattered families can talk economically with each other.

''Independent business people, such as real estate agents, sales representatives, and attorneys can offer their out-of-town clients and friends across the country the ease of using an 800 number when calling them. It adds a distinctive touch to our residential and small business offerings by letting our customers take advantage of this unique service.''

Residential 800 service offers an affordable alternative to collect and operator-assisted calling.

US Sprint's 800 service offers the user savings, convenience, and a highly personal product that can be readily implemented for a reasonable monthly fee. Set-up can usually be completed in five working days. US Sprint will waive the $50 installation fee for those signing up in the next three months. Users are billed a flat $10 monthly fee, plus normal long distance charges for calls received.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company based in Kansas City.

OAKLAND, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - W.B. Seaton, chairman of American President Companies Ltd., Monday announced the results of the company's cost repositioning and process simplification program.

During the month of September, the company eliminated 380 positions. Because of attrition and the company's ability to place employees into open positions, the actual number of full-time employees laid off was limited to approximately 200.

According to Seaton, the elimination of positions and other cost reduction activities will result in an annual operating cost savings of more than $40 million as the company enters 1991.

''The new organization resulting from our repositioning and simplification program will enable the company to improve responsiveness to customers, while maintaining a high level of service,'' Seaton said. He noted that the steps taken in the R&S program represented the effort of more than 100 APC employees working on cross-functional teams in recent weeks to make recommendations.

Seaton said the company is financially strong, with an excellent cash position. ''The proper time to implement this type of program is before a company is in trouble. The R&S program is a way to improve our financial performance and maintain our position as an industry leader.''

Employees laid off during the R&S program are eligible for a special severance plan. The plan includes compensation and benefits for an extended period after an employee's final day of work, career counseling or outplacement services, and use of a company-funded off-site transition center in Oakland.

DALLAS (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Commercial Metals Co. (NYSE), headquartered in Dallas, and Siskin Steel & Supply Co. Inc. of Chattanooga, finalized last Friday the purchase by Commercial Metals of substantially all the operating assets related to Siskin's scrap recycling operation.

In making the announcement Harry J. Heinkele, president of CMC's Secondary Metals Processing Division, said: ''In addition to the original agreement, announced in early August and now concluded, we have agreed to purchase a nine-acre tract of river front property in Chattanooga owned but not currently being used by Siskin. CMC plans to eventually develop this property as a scrap metal shipping and receiving facility.''

Heinkele earlier said the company plans to consolidate Siskin's scrap processing operation into CMC's current location at 400 East 20th in Chattanooga, as well as add new equipment already on order.

Siskin Steel will retain its multi-location steel service center chain which now serves seven states, an operation that grew out of its scrap recycling company founded over 90 years ago.

Commercial Metals Co. was founded 75 years ago as a scrap metal recycling company and has now grown into an organization consisting of three steel minimills, steel fabrication shops, a copper tube plant, over 30 scrap recycling sites and world-wide trading in various minerals, metals and semi-fabricated, nonferrous metal.

SALT LAKE CITY (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Questar Corp. (NYSE:STR) and Santa Fe Energy Resources (NYSE:SFR) of Houston, Monday announced that two of their affiliates have agreed to jointly drill a series of exploratory wells in the Powder River Basin of Wyoming.

Celsius Energy Co., a wholly owned affiliate of Salt Lake City-based Questar Corp., has entered into a joint oil and gas exploration agreement and area of mutual interest (AMI) with Santa Fe Energy Partners, L.P., (NYSE:SFP) of Houston.

The agreement, which became effective Aug. 1, involves leases on approximately 37,600 acres held by the two companies in the Powder River Basin in Campbell, Crook and Weston counties, Wyoming. It was signed for an initial term ending Dec. 31, 1992, and can be extended from year to year thereafter. Santa Fe is the designated operator of the joint venture during the initial term.

Under the terms of the agreement, each company has assigned to the other a 50 percent interest in all lands and leaseholds except those within existing producing areas in the AMI. The agreement also involves an exchange of proprietary seismic data by the respective companies.

The two companies anticipate drilling six Minnelusa Formation exploratory wells in 1990 and 10 wells yearly thereafter.

Questar Corp. is a diversified energy holding company that engages in natural gas distribution, natural gas transmission, and oil and gas exploration and production.

Santa Fe Energy Partners, L.P., is a publicly traded limited partnership whose units trade on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol SFP.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Maxtor Corp. (NASDAQ:MXTR), Monday announced the appointment of Albert J. ''Bert'' Moyer to the newly created position of president and chief operating officer of its Maxtor California operation, reporting to George M. Scalise, president and chief executive officer of Maxtor Corp.

Maxtor California designs and manufactures high-performance, high-capacity 5.25-inch and 3.5-inch magnetic disk drives with headquarters in San Jose and manufacturing operations in Singapore and Malaysia. It employs almost 5,000 people worldwide.

''With Bert's appointment as president of Maxtor California, we are completing the restructuring of Maxtor Corp. that commenced with the MiniScribe acquisition in April,'' Scalise said. ''I am confident that in all four of our operating units--Maxtor California, Maxtor Colorado, Storage Dimensions and Maxoptix--we now have the people and organizational structures in place to more effectively lead the data storage industry.''

Reporting to Scalise will be the presidents of the four Maxtor Corp. operating units, and the corporate vice presidents of human resources; sales; corporate affairs and communications; administration; finance and the corporate legal counsel.

Moyer, 46, has spent his career in the electronics industry, most recently at Western Digital Corp. where he was senior vice president, chief financial officer and had operations responsibilities for two strategic business units.

He has also held senior management positions at National Semiconductor and Westinghouse Electric. He is a native of Pittsburgh.

Maxtor Corp. was founded in 1982 and has its headquarters in San Jose, Calif. The company and its subsidiaries design and manufacture high-performance Winchester and optical data storage products in San Jose; Longmont, Colo.; Singapore; Hong Kong and Malaysia, and have a worldwide sales and distribution network. Maxtor's products range from 40 megabytes to 2.1 gigabytes, and are designed for use in computer systems, workstations, personal computers, laptop computers and local area networks.

The corporation employs approximately 9,000 people worldwide. Its stock is traded under the NASDAQ symbol MXTR.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Northern Telecom (NYSE:NT), in a filing Monday with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), proposed a planning framework to foster future evolution of personal communications systems (PCS) across a variety of existing and emerging technologies.

Key to the filing is a requirement for new radio spectrum to handle the huge anticipated demand for personal communications in an increasingly mobile society.

Northern Telecom stressed the need for the widest possible selection of spectrum and services, open access to that spectrum for all operators, and deregulation in every aspect other than standards, in managing the evolution of PCS.

Specifically, Northern Telecom recommended that the FCC:

-- encourage the telecommunications industry to quickly resolve key issues, such as establishing a common numbering plan;

-- create an environment that focuses on network interoperability, efficient bandwidth utilization, and prevention of radio interference, and that minimizes regulatory restrictions on services;

-- immediately allocate the necessary bandwidth to permit introduction of low-power, two-way wireless in-building and local area communications.

In a PCS environment, users are assigned a personal number which travels with them as they roam across various public, cellular, and business communications networks. PCS includes the intelligence to locate and identify users in transit, and to deliver their incoming calls.

To expedite initial development of these systems, Northern Telecom proposed an open standard for low-power, wireless, personal communications services, utilizing available spectrum. This proposed standard, referred to as PCI (for personal communications interface), would be made available to the entire industry.

PCI uses two-way communications channels and separate common channels for call set-up signaling. Benefits of this approach include quicker call set-ups, more efficient use of bandwidth, increased battery life for portable telephones, and rapid deployment within telecommunications networks.

Northern Telecom is the leading global supplier of fully digital telecommunications switching systems, providing products and services to telephone operating companies, corporations, governments, universities, and other institutions worldwide. Northern Telecom, with 1989 revenues of $6.1 billion, employs more than 49,000 people around the world.

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Everex Systems Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:EVRX) Monday announced the appointment of Michael McCloskey, formally controller, to the position of vice president of finance and chief financial officer.

McCloskey has a bachelor's degree in finance from the University of Santa Clara, and was previously employed at several high-technology startup firms. During his four-year tenure at Everex, McCloskey has been responsible for personnel, purchasing, accounting, inventory and other duties.

According to president and chief executive officer Steve Hui: ''Mike has been responsible for the day-to-day financial operations of Everex for several years. No one is better qualified for this new, expanded role within the company.''

The company also announced that founder Wayne Cheung has decided to leave effective Friday, Oct. 5. Cheung is leaving to form a trading company which will specialize in trading high technology products between the Far East and the United States. Everex does not view Cheung's venture as competitive.

Cheung is currently president of AGI Computer Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Everex. He is also vice president, Business Development, where he principally negotiated terms and conditions with outside vendors. His responsibilities at AGI will be assumed by Raymond Yu, vice president of Engineering.

Yu will also assume the title and most of the duties of vice president, Business Development. Cheung's responsibilities in dealing with outside vendors will be taken over by Philip Lau, vice president of Operations.

MILPITAS, CA (OCT. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Adaptec (NASDAQ:ADPT) Monday announced that it has filed suit against California Micro Devices Inc. for the return of mask sets and other confidential materials and for damages.

Under the framework of several engineering service agreements, CMD had been given access to Adaptec's intellectual property while developing tooling for the manufacture of some of Adaptec's early generation proprietary ASICs.

Because CMD was unable to complete the projects, Adaptec terminated the relationship. Despite repeated demands by Adaptec for the return of its intellectual property, CMD has refused.

''While the initiation of a lawsuit is a very serious matter and undertaken by Adaptec only in extreme situations, it has become apparent that CMD was unwilling to return Adaptec's property and confidential information after the termination of our relationship with them,'' stated John G. Adler, Adaptec's chairman and chief executive officer.

''Adaptec will take whatever action is necessary to protect its intellectual property rights.''

The suit was filed today in Santa Clara County Superior Court. It seeks the immediate return of Adaptec's confidential materials and tooling, attorney's fees and punitive and general damages including reimbursement for the expenses incurred by Adaptec resulting from CMD's failure to perform.

Adaptec is a leading supplier of high-performance semiconductor and software Input/Output solutions. Products include proprietary VLSI circuits for SCSI, AT and MCA interfaces, high-performance ESDI controllers for AT, EISA and Micro Channel interfaces, SCSI-based host adapters, a family of SCSI test and development systems, and a recently introduced family of laser printer controllers.

MANCHESTER, NH (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - SoftLogic Solutions Inc. Thursday announced a cooperative marketing agreement with Digital Equipment Corp. of Maynard, Mass., in which Digital will select SoftLogic's popular Software Carousel PC/DOS-based task-switching software system.

Software Carousel solves a major problem faced by many of Digital's customers who need to create simple, reliable, multi-tasking PC environments that support E-mail and other network applications.

''Companies that want to preserve their DOS-based computer investment are particularly in need of software solutions like Software Carousel becauses it gives them multi-application capabilities without the expense of upgrading to OS/2 or Windows,'' said Cliff Pratt, chief operating officer of SoftLogic Solutions.

Under the agreement, Digital will make Software Carousel available to customers through the company's direct sales force worldwide, its Personal Computing Integration Software and Hardware catalog, and the ''DEC Direct'' telecommunications store. Initially, Digital plans to target sales within its Fortune 100 multinational, financial service and commercial accounts.

Software Carousel, now in its fourth release, is one of the leading task-switching software programs available for DOS-based PCs. First published in 1986, the program sells for $89.95 and enables users to load as many as applications at the same time, then switch back and forth between them at the touch of a key using as little computer memory (RAM) as possible.

Digital Equipment Corp., headquartered in Maynard, Mass., is the leading worldwide supplier of networked computer systems and services. Digital offers a full range of computing solutions and systems integration for the entire enterprise -- from desktop to the data center.

SoftLogic Solutions Inc. of Manchester, N.H., established in 1983, is a privately held company that develops and markets innovative optimization software for DOS-based computer systems. In addition to Software Carousel, the company publishes Disk Optimizer, DoubleDos, Cubit, Magic Mirror, ClassiFile, Liberty, FATCAT and Open Link Extender (OLE'). WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - TEMPEST Technologies Inc. (NASDAQ: TTOI) Monday announced the formation of a new division to provide a wide ranging array of information security products and services.

The Information Security Technologies division will offer turnkey information security systems, designed to meet the needs of both government agencies and major corporations.

The announcement culminates several months of corporate planning and external negotiations, which led to a series of strategic agreements with key hardware manufacturers, software developers, and systems consultants, working in different facets of information security.

According to TEMPEST Technologies' President, David Lucien: ''We've put together a body of expertise and products that allows us to offer comprehensive turnkey solutions, which can be readily applied to a wide range of information security needs.''

He went on to point out that: ''The need to protect sensitive data is rapidly becoming one of the most important operational issues facing government agencies and large corporations today. Our engineering and production expertise in the TEMPEST arena, coupled with advanced hardware and software components developed by our strategic partners, provide a solid technological basis for immediate entry into this fast growing market.

''We can now offer turnkey solutions that are tailored to the specific requirements of a given organization, yet incorporate the dependability, immediate installation capability, and cost saving benefits of off-the-shelf components.''

The Information Security Technologies division is organized to support a new ''trusted'' line of comprehensive computer network systems, featuring multi-level computer and communications security.

The products are being built around the company's commercial system platform, the INTEGRATOR SERIES, which is a line of robust and flexible personal computer and micro computer based products.

These ''trusted systems'' offer enormous flexibility in terms of speed, memory multi-tasking ability, and applications software. They can be structured to meet even the most demanding security requirements, including DoD's B2 level security rating.

To further compliment its new offerings, Information Security Technologies has introduced a Communications Network Server that provides both physical and software security as well as a proprietary removable and transportable hard disk product line, called the TRANSPORT SERIES.

Among the companies supporting Information Security Technolgies in this new venture are: Trusted Information Systems Inc., developer of the Trusted Xenix operating system, the only operating system, thus far, that has been accepted for formal certification at the B2 level; the Verdix Corp., with its B2 certified VSLAN system, which permits multi-level security within a Local Area Network (LAN) environment; and AST Research Inc, with its innovative, high performance personal computer line, providing an advanced hardware architecture that supports Information Security Technolgies' strategy.

The emphasis being placed on this new division by the company's top management is reflected in the way it is being introduced in the marketplace. The divisional name will take precedence over its corporate affiliation: INFORMATION SECURITY TECHNOLOGIES, a division of TEMPEST Technologies Inc. ''This is a market we intend to be in for the long term,'' notes Lucien.

WALLINGFORD, CT (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: NMTXE) Monday announced results for the first quarter ended July 29, 1990.

The Company reported revenues for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 of $4,028,000 compared to $6,035,000 reported for the first quarter in fiscal 1990. The Company reported a net loss of $1,254,000, or $0.32 per share, compared to a net loss of $726,000, or $0.19 per share, for the comparable quarter in fiscal 1990.

William J. Lacourciere, President and Chief Operating Officer of NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC., stated, ''Revenues for the quarter reflect the after effects of a difficult year and the perception by many of the Company's distributors that a takeover by Siemens Medical Electronics Inc. was imminent which would result in their termination. The Company reassured its distributors that their fears were unfounded and, in fact, we have begun to attract new distributors to sell our products. For the current quarter, which ends October 28, 1990, we are experiencing an improvement in sales.''

Lacourciere continued, ''We are pleased to maintain a close working relationship with our primary lender as we continue to meet our monthly interest obligations in accordance with our May 1990 agreement with the bank.''

NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. is a leading developer, manufacturer and marketer of medical electronic instruments that non-invasively and continuously measure a patient's oxygen and carbon dioxide status. The Company's products are used in operating rooms, intensive care units, respiratory therapy departments and transport situations.

PARIS (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Apple Computer Europe Monday announced the promotion of Michael A. Newton to the position of general manager of Apple Computer U.K. Ltd. and director of Apple Computer Europe, effective immediately.

He will report directly to Soren Olsson, president of Apple Computer Europe.

Newton, 40, has directed the Customer Services and Distribution Department of Apple Computer U.K. since 1988. In this position he was responsible for technical support and training of Apple's dealers in the United Kingdom as well as distribution of finished product. Prior to joining Apple, Newton completed 16 years in the computer industry with computer companies ICL and then Prime Computer.

Senior management positions at Prime included European Marketing director and director of its Northern European Region. As such, he was responsible for Prime's operations in several European countries.

In announcing this appointment, Olsson emphasized that the promotion of Newton to general manager of Apple U.K. continues Apple's commitment to fulfilling customer requirements.

''Mike has proven his ability in effectively developing training and support for our channel and ultimately our customers. His computer industry experience, combined with his skills in managing large organizations, will help us realize the enormous potential of the U.K. market.''

Newton holds a Bsc Hons in Computer Science from Hatfield Polytechnic.

WALLINGFORD, CT (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: NMTXE) Monday announced that the U.S. District Court for the District of Connecticut granted summary judgment in the Company's favor, finding that NOVAMETRIX's pulse oximeters do not infringe on a patent owned by the BOC Group Inc.

On February 1, 1990, the Company announced that the U.S. Court of Appeals had reversed the U.S. District Court's decision that the Company's pulse oximeters literally infringed a patent held by the BOC Group Inc. At that time, the U.S. Court of Appeals remanded the patent action to the District Court of Connecticut for consideration of the doctrine of equivalents as it pertained to the issue of infringement.

The summary judgment granted by the District Court of Connecticut found that the Company's pulse oximeters do not contain certain elements which would constitute equivalency and, therefore, the pulse oximeters do not infringe on BOC's patent.

William J. Lacourciere, President and Chief Operating Officer of NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC., stated, ''We are extremely pleased with the District Court's decision, which has reaffirmed our consistent position since this litigation was initiated over four years ago that the Company would prevail in this action.''

NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. is a leading designer, developer, manufacturer and marketer of medical electronic instruments which non-invasively and continuously assess a critically ill patient's oxygen and carbon dioxide status. The Company's products are primarily used in operating rooms, intensive care units and respiratory therapy departments.

PHOENIX (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Best Western International has announced plans to add more than 120 hotels in eastern Europe, Greece, South America and South Asia by 1995.

The expansion marks the global lodging chain's first move into the Soviet Union, eastern Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Greece, Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, Paraguay, India, Nepal, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh. Best Western will also continue development in Hungary and Ecuador.

With the addition of Greece, Best Western is now represented in every western European country. The expansion will extend the chain's growth in South America and mark its first move into South Asia, according to Ronald A. Evans, Best Western's chief executive officer.

''Our main goal is to provide travelers to these areas with a name they recognize and quality hotels,'' says Evans. ''We will also be creating Best Western brand name awareness within these countries which will promote Best Western loyalty when those travelers visit the United States.''

Best Western opened its first Eastern bloc property, the 440-room Best Western Hotel Korona in Budapest, Hungary, in June 1990. More than 900 hotels in Europe are currently affiliated with Best Western, making it Europe's largest lodging chain.

One property--the 250-room Best Western Hotel Quito in Ecuador--has represented Best Western in South America since 1988. Centennial Enterprises Inc., will coordinate the continued development on that continent.

Consulting Marketing Services of Athens will organize development efforts in Greece, while efforts in South Asia will be managed by Uday Management Services Pvt. Ltd., of New Delhi which also serves as Best Western's general sales agent for the region.

By the year 2000, Best Western will be represented by more than 5,000 properties in 60 countries. Currently, Best Western is the world's largest lodging chain with more than 3,300 independently owned and operated hotels, motor inns and resorts in 37 countries throughout North America, western Europe, Israel, Hungary, Ecuador and the South Pacific.

WALLINGFORD, CONN. (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: NMTXE) Monday announced that it has received a $200,000 purchase order for its mainstream capnography products from an East Coast hospital.

On September 4, 1990, the Company announced a $200,000 purchase order for its oximetry products from a different hospital at a major East Coast university.

The order is the single largest Intensive Care Unit (''ICU'') order for capnography products in NOVAMETRIX's history. The hospital selected the Company's Model 7000 capnograph for use on ventilated patients in the respiratory ICU. Revenues from the order will be recognized during the quarter ending October 28, 1990.

Commenting on the capnography order, William J. Lacourciere, President and Chief Executive Officer, stated, ''We are particularly pleased to announce this order as it demonstrates the outstanding clinical performance of mainstream capnography over side stream competitors. Furthermore, we are encouraged about the increased utilization of capnography monitoring in the ICU, where the market potential for this technology far exceeds the operating room marketplace.''

NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. is a leading designer, developer, manufacturer and marketer of medical electronic instruments which non-invasively and continuously assess a critically ill patient's oxygen and carbon dioxide status. LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Nantucket Corp. announced Monday an agreement with Phoenix-based Digital Composition Systems (DCS) to become the exclusive international distributor of dbPUBLISHER Professional and dbPUBLISHER for Ventura.

''Nantucket's familiarity with the development community, and its excellent distribution capabilities are well suited to introduce and support dbPUBLISHER '' said Randy Best, president and chief technologist at DCS. ''We need a company with a strong background in the application development field as well as the international distribution network necessary for effective marketing.'' dbPUBLISHER is a complete database and spreadsheet information publishing system, that directly links to more than 85 dissimilar database, spreadsheet, word processor and graphic files to produce fully formatted typeset quality pages. Since the printed output is data driven, updates to files can be instantly translated into documents, eliminating aged information.

Popular uses include directories, catalogs, price lists, forms, financial/management reports, power form letters and bar coding.

''dbPUBLISHER complements our product portfolio,'' said Ulla Rodman, director of international sales and marketing for Nantucket, ''since the dbPUBLISHER market is comprised of users who need to combine the benefits of desktop publishing with live database and spreadsheets. We will also offer dbPUBLISHER users the same level of technical support users have come to expect from Nantucket.''

Nantucket, a leading developer of PC application development systems, has international offices in Germany, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union, as well as distribution channels throughout Europe, Australia, New Zealand, Latin America, Africa and Asia.

Founded in 1984, Los Angeles-based Nantucket is the maker of Clipper 5.0, an open-architecture application development system that includes user-extensible command function sets, a compiler with preprocessor, linker and a full set of development utilities. Clipper 5.0's database driver is replaceable, permitting concurrent use of multiple database formats within the same application.

Clipper is currently available in English, German, French, Spanish, Portuguese Japanese and Cryllic.

WALLINGFORD, CT (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: NMTXE) Monday announced that it has entered into a distribution agreement with Fukuda- Denshi, a leading distributor of medical products in Japan.

While specific terms of the agreement were not disclosed, the Company stated that Fukuda-Denshi has signed a commitment to distribute the Company's pulse oximetry and capnography products for a minimum of two years. Fukuda-Denshi has placed an initial purchase order of approximately $400,000 to be delivered during NOVAMETRIX's second quarter ending October 28, 1990.

The Company stated that Japanese distribution of its neonatal products will continue to be handled by Atom Medical International, a distributor which specializes in the neonatal market.

William J. Lacourciere, President and Chief Operating Officer of NOVAMETRIX MEDICAL SYSTEMS INC., stated, ''We are extremely pleased to announce our distribution agreement with Fukuda-Denshi as it once again affirms the Company's superior products and provides NOVAMETRIX with access to the Japanese adult critical care marketplace. We are confident that this arrangement will enhance our presence in the Far East, resulting in increased revenues for the Company.''

UNIVERSAL CITY, CALIF. (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - To insure its future growth and continued global expansion, Sid Sheinberg, president and chief operating officer of MCA INC., Monday announced the promotions of Jay S. Stein to the position of chairman and chief executive officer of MCA Recreation Services Group, with current Universal Studios Hollywood chief executive Ron Bension moving up to president and chief operating officer, MCA Recreation Services Group.

In announcing the promotions, which are effective immediately, Sheinberg said: ''MCA Recreation Services Group is one of the most important and evolving elements in the MCA family, especially as we move into the highly competitive '90s, facing increasingly sophisticated competition for audiences worldwide.

''We are, therefore, doubly fortunate in having available to us the talents, experience, energies and over 50 years of the combined executive leadership of Jay Stein and Ron Bension, two of the most creative and able individuals in the leisure-time industry.

''Jay Stein has made continued and significant contributions to our company for over three decades, including 16 years as president of MCA Recreation Services Group, and he is largely responsible for his division's significant leadership position.

''While continuing his oversight of existing Recreation Group activities, his new assignment will allow him to more fully devote his time, energies and unique experience in the development of new leisure-time business opportunities.''

Jay S. Stein, 53, joined MCA INC. in 1959 and has held a number of key executive positions within various departments of the company. He has served as a corporate vice president of MCA INC. since 1973 and in 1981 was also appointed chairman of the Yosemite Park and Curry Co.

Ron Bension, 36, began his career at Universal Studios Hollywood in 1971 and rose through the ranks to become, at age 33, one of the youngest senior executives of any major company in the United States. He was named president and chief operating officer of the facility in 1988.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Xsirius Inc. (NASDAQ:XSIR) Monday announced that research has been completed under a contract between its subsidiary, Xsirius Phontonics (XPI), and the Long Beach, Calif. V.A. Hospital to develop a hand-held radiation detector that will instantly indicate the presence of contamination by low-level radioactive isotopes such as tritium.

Immediate detection of contamination is important because the spread of low-level radiation can pose a health risk to researchers and can distort medical and scientific test results. Present methods of detection often take over 24 hours to provide results.

The target market for this detector consists of virtually every facility engaged in biomedical research, carbon dating, and all major hospitals and universities. The United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission requires users of radioactive materials to employ such state-of-the-art contamination detection equipment.

Now that the research phase of the project has been completed, XPI is finalizing plans to complete engineering and production design and to begin manufacturing and marketing the instruments.

Xsirius Photonics Inc., based in Los Angeles, is a leader in the development of advanced silicon avalanche detectors (SADs) that detect and amplify low-level light and radiation signals.

TOLEDO, OH (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (NYSE:OCF) announced today that Max O. Weber, formerly the company's president and chief operating officer, has assumed the positions of chairman and chief executive officer, succeeding William W. Boeschenstein who is retiring at the age of 65.

Mr. Weber's appointment to succeed Mr. Boeschenstein was announced at the company's annual meeting last April.

Mr. Weber, 60, who was named president and chief operating officer in 1988, joined Owens-Corning in 1955. He was named Senior Vice President and President, Construction Products Group, in 1986. Prior to that, he served as the vice president of a number of operating divisions within the company: the Insulation Operating Division (1984-1986); Mechanical Operating Division (1978-1984); and the Special Products Division (1975-1978). From 1955-1975, he held a variety of marketing and management positions in the company's construction products group.

Mr. Weber received a bachelor of science degree in marketing in 1951 from the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas. He is married, has a son and a daughter, and resides in Sylvania, Ohio.

Mr. Boeschenstein joined the company in 1950 and held a number of sales, management and marketing positions. He served as vice president for several sales organizations within the company and, in 1964, became vice president for marketing. He was elected executive vice president in 1967.

Mr. Boeschenstein was named president and chief operating officer in 1971, chief executive officer in 1973 and chairman of the board in 1981.

During his tenure as chief executive officer, Owens-Corning's sales increased from $729 million to over $3 billion. The company's growth resulted from expansion of the applications of fiber glass materials and the geographic scope of its markets. Mr. Boeschenstein committed the company to leadership in the technology, manufacturing and marketing of fiber glass. Today, the wide range of industries that use Owens-Corning's products include construction, automotive, pleasure boating, electronics, appliance, and aerospace.

Mr. Boeschenstein, who will remain a director of Owens-Corning, graduated from Yale University in 1950. He is married, has four sons, and resides in Perrysburg, Ohio.

ACTON, MA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - CML Group Inc. (NYSE:CML), a leading direct marketer of consumer products, Monday reported earnings from continuing operations in of $13,954,000 or $2.01 per share, fully diluted, for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990.

This compares to a loss of $5,534,000, or $.85 per share, in fiscal 1989.

As projected earlier, the writedown associated with the sale of its discontinued operations, in particular Carroll Reed, will result in a net loss of $12,918,000, or $1.99 per share, for the year. For fiscal 1989, there was a net loss of $31,897,000, or $4.92 per share. The sale of Carroll Reed completes the divestiture plan announced last fall.

Bank debt has been reduced by $17,000,000 from year-end 1989 levels from a combination of proceeds from the sale of discontinued operations and cash flow from continuing operations. Charles M. Leighton, chairman and chief executive officer of CML, stated that the net loss would be recaptured in fiscal 1991 as a result of tax loss carryforwards.

Led by the three major operating divisions, Britches of Georgetowne, The Nature Co. and NordicTrack, the company reported sales in fiscal 1990 of $278,815,000, a 19 percent increase from the $234,598,000 recorded in fiscal 1989.

For fiscal 1991, the company is projecting income before the utilization of the tax loss carryforward, to increase in the range of 20-25 percent. Says Leighton, ''We have two objectives this year: to continue to further reduce our bank debt by approximately $20 million, and to substantially increase our earnings.

''While it is still very early in our new year to be making any firm predictions,'' he continues, ''we are pleased by our August and September sales levels, which are running 30 percent ahead of a year ago. Our own internal projections call for sales increases in the range of 15-20 percent for the year.''

LAGUNA HILLS, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Newport Pharmaceuticals International Inc. (NASDAQ:NWPH) announced Monday that it has reached a conditional settlement of the two interrelated shareholder class action lawsuits brought in 1986 against the company and certain officers and directors, only one of whom remains associated with the company.

Under the terms of the settlement, the company would make a cash payment of $1 million and issue shares of the company's common stock having a market value of between $1.75 million and $2.1 milliion.

In connection with the settlement, the court has not made and will not make any determination as to the liability of any defendant, and the company continues to deny any fault, wrongdoing or legal liability on its part in the circumstances cited in the lawsuits.

The terms of the settlement must be approved by the court and are expressly conditioned upon the receipt of the approval of 100 percent of the holders of the company's outstanding class of 10 percent senior secured convertible notes due 2002, as required under the terms of the indenture relating to such notes.

The terms of the indenture restrict the company's ability to settle the lawsuits for more than $2 million without noteholder approval.

The company will shortly be filing preliminary solicitation documents for the review and approval of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). The solicitation of noteholders will commence after SEC approval is obtained.

The interrelated class action lawsuits had been brought on behalf of the class of persons who purchased the company's common stock during the period from May 15, 1985 to Feb. 21, 1986.

The suits alleged fraud and violations of securities laws, among other allegations, in connection with certain public statements made by the company in connection with its seeking FDA approval for its proprietary drug Isoprinosine.

FEDERAL WAY, WA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Nuclear Systems Inc. announced Monday that its Nuclear Packaging Inc. subsidiary (NuPac) has delivered and Westinghouse Electric Corp. has accepted the first of 15 U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (USNRC) certified TRUPACT-II packages to the Westinghouse Waste Isolation Division in Carlsbad, N.M.

The TRUPACT-II packages will be used to transport transuranic waste materials from the Department of Energy's (DOE) nuclear weapons facilities to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (WIPP) in Carlsbad. NuPac is a contractor to Westinghouse which operates the WIPP for the DOE.

The delivery and acceptance by Westinghouse of the first TRUPACT-II package marks the culmination of a series of events which included several USNRC inspections of the TRUPACT Assembly Facility (TAF) in Carlsbad, N.M., where NuPac fabricates the packages. The most recent USNRC inspection indicated that all discrepancies in the fabrication of the packages noted in earlier USNRC inspections had been satisfactorily resolved by NuPac. The remainder of the TRUPACT-II packages will be delivered to Westinghouse through mid-1991. According to David Dawson, vice president and general manager of Nuclear Packing, ''This first delivery is a significant milestone in a project which advances the state-of-the-art of USNRC-certified radioactive waste packages.''

Pacific Nuclear Systems Inc. and its subsidiary companies (Nutech Inc.; NuPac Services Inc.; Nuclear Packaging Inc.; PN Services Inc.; and Alaron Corp.) provide a wide range of services to the nuclear industry. The Flex Resource is the latest package offered by D&B Software under The Human Resource (THR) product line, which is aimed at employers using personal computers for their human resource processing. Flex Resource can be used alone or easily integrated with the complete line of THR applications that includes payroll, personnel, profit sharing, pension and COBRA plans.

''The Flex Resource dramatically simplifies the administration of popular but often complicated flexible spending accounts and puts all the information at the human resource professional's fingertips,'' said Ken Sawyer, vice president and general manager of the THR business unit for D&B Software. ''Combined with our comprehensive line of human resources products, The Flex Resource is the first fully integrated PC solution for complete HR processing.''

The package provides ready access with any dBASE-compatible software, taking full advantage of a relational database system. In addition, its open-architecture offers easy access to virtually any word processor or spreadsheet.

The Human Resource products can be run on any IBM PC XT/AT, PS2 or compatible, and requires 640k RAM. A networking version is also available. The Flex Resource is available immediately starting at $10,000.

Dun & Bradstreet Software, a division of The Dun & Bradstreet Corp., is the world's largest provider of financial, human resource, materials management, manufacturing and higher education software solutions, tools and services. D&B Software was formed in 1990 by the merger of two software industry giants, Management Science America Inc. and McCormack & Dodge Corp. D&B Software serves more than 10,000 customers worldwide, including 75 percent of the Fortune 500.

LONDON (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - 10/01-90--British Gas (NYSE:BRG) announced

Monday that the latest quarterly figures on European gas prices show that gas tariffs in Britain for domestic, and smaller industrial and commercial customers, are still among the cheapest. Only Dutch customers have prices which are comparable.

Weakening oil prices during the second quarter of 1990 closed the price gap a little between Britain and mainland Europe.

The last quarterly figures, which compare European gas prices at July 1, 1990, show that for around 700 therms a year - enough gas to run a central heating system in a small house - British Gas users pay about 48 pence a therm including the standing charge. The Dutch pay 49 pence, the West Germans 55 pence, the Belgians 58 pence, the French 62 pence and the Italians 86 pence.

At around 5,000 therms of gas per year, the price range across Europe is narrower. The British price is 43.5 pence per therm compared with 38.9 pence in Holland, 41.5 in France, 42.6 pence in Belgium, 47.8 pence in Italy and a range of between 36.3 pence and 65.6 pence in West Germany.

For customers who use more than 25,000 therms per year, gas prices in Britain are in the middle of the range of prices elsewhere in Europe.

Customers who use around 170,000 therms per year of firm gas pay 31.1 pence per therm in Britain. The prices in mainland Europe vary from the French range of 26.4 pence to 28.8 pence up to the West German range of between 27.4 pence to 47.4 pence. At around 3 million therms per year firm load, the price per therm in Britain is 26.5 pence. The European prices vary from 19.2 pence in Holland to a range of 23.2 pence to 32.8 pence in West Germany.

For organizations with medium or large gas loads on an interruptible supply contract, the price in Britain is 19.6 pence a therm compared with 15.6 pence in France, 17.4 pence in Belgium, 20.1 pence in Italy and 20.7 pence in West Germany. Interruptible supplies are not available in Holland.

British Gas, headquartered in London, is the largest integrated gas company in the Western world and is primarily involved in the purchase, transmission, and sale of natural gas to domestic, industrial and commercial customers in Great Britain. Important support activities to its marketing efforts include appliance trading and customer service to domestic gas customers. British Gas is also active in the exploration for and production of hydrocarbons both offshore and onshore. Expertise developed in the gas business is offered for sale overseas through the British Gas International Consultancy Service. American Depositary Receipts are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. LOS ALTOS, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - The David and Lucile Packard Foundation Monday announced the grant of $2 million in science and engineering fellowships to 20 faculty members at various universities in the United States.

Each of the 20 fellowships provides funding of $100,000 per year for five years for research expenses such as scientific equipment, research supplies and scholarship support for graduate students.

This is the third grant in a fellowship program initiated in 1988 to support basic scientific research being conducted by talented young faculty members and encourage the recipients to continue productive university careers. To date, the foundation has awarded 60 fellowships and is providing $6 million annually in funding.

An additional 20 fellowships will be awarded each year for two more years. By 1992, the foundation will be supporting the research of 100 science and engineering faculty members at a cost of $10 million per year.

The fellowship program aims to encourage scientific research and the pursuit of careers in U.S. universities, according to David Packard, president of the foundation and co-founder and chairman of Hewlett-Packard Co.

''Many of the most important technological contributions of this century have come from university faculty members who began their research early in their careers and have worked in their areas of interest over long periods of time '' Packard said. ''We want to nurture this kind of research.

This year's fellows were nominated by the presidents of their universities and reviewed by a committee of nationally recognized scientists and engineers.

The David and Lucile Packard Foundation was founded in 1964 to support and encourage organizations dependent upon private funding and volunteer leadership. It supports programs primarily in the arts, community, education and health areas.

CHICAGO (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Information Resources Inc. (NASDAQ:IRIC) announced Monday that it has closed the sale/leaseback of its headquarters complex and has received a favorable letter ruling from the Internal Revenue Service concerning the tax free nature of its proposed spin-off of VideOcart Inc., the Company's advertising and sales promotion division.

The company has filed a revised Information Statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission concerning the spin-off and anticipates setting a record date in mid-October 1990.

VideOcart is a computerized display device which attaches to the handles of an ordinary shopping cart. VideOcart Inc., the development stage company being spun out to holders of IRIC stock on the record date, is engaged in expanding its testing in three supermarkets over the past year to fifty supermarkets involving 10 large grocery retailers during the next three quarters. Upon successful completion of this phase in late 1991, VideOcart Inc. plans a multi-year expansion into a network of 5,000 large supermarkets in most large metropolitan areas.

In the sale/leaseback transaction, the company's headquarters complex was purchased by affiliates of W.P. Carey and Co. Inc., yielding net proceeds to the company of $29.1 million.

These proceeds will completely retire existing bank debt and increase the company's working capital. The company is also engaged in negotiations for a new bank credit line of approximately $20 million which, together with the sale/leaseback proceeds, will provide flexibility and funding for future operations, including the previously announced expansion of INFOSCAN into drug stores and mass merchandiser outlets and funding for the spin-off of VideOcart.

VideOcart Inc. will be run by John Malec, chairman and CEO, Ron Spears, who, as of Feb. 1, 1991, will join VideOcart Inc. as president and chief operating officer.

Malec, founder of the company and chairman of its board of directors as well as inventor of VideOcart, has resigned his board position with the company effective immediately.

He will, however, remain as a consultant to the company for at least the next five years. Although the company had previously announced that Malec would remain on the company's board and executive committee while also heading VideOcart, the demands upon his time prove to effectively preclude such an arrangement.

Spears, until recently president, MCI Midwest, an operating division of MCI Telecommunications, will be engaged on a regular basis as a consultant by VideOcart Inc. between now and Feb. 1, 1991, and will be named to VideOcart

Inc.'s board of directors.

As a result of restrictions requested by the IRS precluding the sale of stock by Malec after the record date, he announced his current intent to sell up to 300,000 shares of the company's stock to fund pre-existing obligations.

Closing of the sale/leaseback transaction will give rise to a one-time, tax-related charge of approximately 8 cents per share in the third quarter, resulting from the accounting treatment of deferred taxes on the transaction, as required by Financial Accounting Standards -- 96. The company also announced that although it had previously established a reserve fo VideOcart's ''discontinued operations,'' a further charge to the reserve of approximately $1.0 million pre-tax (approximately 3 cents per share) will be incurred in the third quarter to reflect anticipated incremental expenses related to the proposed VideOcart spin-off taking place in late October, 1990.

Information Resources Inc. develops and maintains computerized proprietary data bases, decision support software and mathematical models to assist clients, primarily in the consumer packaged goods industry, in testing, monitoring and evaluating their marketing plans for new products, media advertising, pricing and sales promotions.

MANSFIELD, MA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Codex Corp. Monday announced a Value-Added Reseller (VAR) agreement with Larse Corp. of Santa Clara, California.

Under terms of the agreement, Codex's Systems Division will market Larse TNDS CSUs and Split-T fractional T1 DSUs.

The Codex Systems Division will offer the product through custom bids as part of a complete networking solution. The TNDS DSU and Split-T Fractional T1 DSU will complement Codex's wide area and internetworking product offerings and allow Codex to develop customized networks for customers whose requirements include bundling data and voice applications on one T1 line.

The TNDS and Split-T products, along with the rest of the Larse product line, will be marketed through systems integration contracts. The Larse TNDS, a system of intelligent channel service units, offers full-time performance monitoring, alarm generation, remote diagnostic testing, and a detailed picture of network performance with rapid problem isolation.

The Larse Split-T DSU allows 56xn and 64xn Kbps data from multiple LAN bridges

CAD/CAM terminals, front-end processors, and other high-speed data terminals to be bundled into contiguous, alternate, or random DSO time slots. It also serves as an inexpensive and easy-to-use mini-multiplexer for companies that want to combine several data or voice applications onto a full T1 line worldwide.

The Codex Systems Division, formed in 1989, is chartered with providing networking solutions consisting of professional services and both Codex and non-Codex products.

Codex Corp., a subsidiary of Motorola Inc., is a leading supplier of network products and integrated network solutions. Offerings include network management systems, T1/E1 switches, X.25 networks, multiplexers, DSU/CSUs, modems, LAN internetworking devices, and professional services.

Headquartered in Santa Clara, Calif., Larse Corp. designs and manufactures telecommunications network equipment and systems. Larse is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Axel Johnson, Inc., a privately owned company.

BRYN MAWR, PA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - NewsNet, the world's largest current-awareness database of industry newsletters and newswires, and Dun & Bradstreet Business Credit Services, the leading marketer of commercial-credit and business information in the U.S., recently announced an agreement through which NewsNet will provide its customers with online access to D&B business-information through an intelligent gateway.

Three types of D&B business reports will be provided online via the NewsNet gateway: the Business Information Report, the Payment Analysis Report, and the Family Tree (R) Service.

The Business Information Report, the most widely accepted information tool for commercial credit and risk-management in the U.S., is available on millions of U.S. companies, and may contain data such as payment information, financial information, background and history on a company, business background of principals, public filings, and other relevant data.

The Payment Analysis Report provides an objective, third- party perspective of a company's payment history and trends as reported to D&B. Payments are analyzed for up to a full two-year period for evaluation of trends. The Payment Analysis Report also includes information on how a company pays its creditors in comparison with other companies in the same industry.

Family Tree Service links divisions and branches of a company to their headquarters, and links subsidiaries to parent companies. This service allows users to view key information for an entire company in a single report.

The gateway between NewsNet and D&B is an ''intelligent'' gateway that allows users to take advantage of D&B's information using quick, easy-to-use NewsNet commands. The prompts in the gateway have been designed so that no prior experience with retrieving D&B information is necessary.

In the weeks prior to release, NewsNet conducted a beta test of the gateway among selected NewsNet subscribers. The result was overwhelmingly positive: the testers found the D&B/NewsNet interface intuitive and easy to use, even without documentation. Several testers remarked that access to D&B makes NewsNet even more valuable to them for business information purposes.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Lotus Development Corp. Monday announced that it has begun shipping Lotus MarketPlace: Business, the first member of its new family of sales and marketing tools that help businesses find new customers.

Lotus MarketPlace: Business uses the Apple Macintosh personal computer and CD-ROM (compact-disc, read-only memory) to deliver a database of names, addresses, telephone numbers, and marketing data on 7 million U.S. businesses.

Using MarketPlace software, users navigate through this data to target customers, analyze markets, and create quality lists for business prospecting and direct marketing.

''MarketPlace is unique among desktop software applications because it delivers a hard return on investment to businesses by dramatically reducing the cost, complexity, and time involved in finding new customers,'' said Frank Ingari, vice president of Lotus's Emerging Markets Business Group. ''It's the first new approach in years toward meeting a universal business challenge: identifying the best prospects for your products and services.''

''In particular, MarketPlace will give small to medium-sized businesses the direct marketing punch that's previously been available only to the largest marketers,'' said Ingari.

Lotus MarketPlace: Business has been enthusiastically received by early testers of the product, who range from market researchers to computer dealers to accountants and employment consultants.

''MarketPlace has already helped my business tremendously,'' said Greg Amstutz president of Career One USA, a Tempe, Arizona-based national recruitment firm that organizes regional job fairs. ''I earned $20,000 in new revenue from the first list I created for our telemarketers -- from people I didn't even know existed before. And, because I can create comprehensive lists of qualified prospects without leaving my desktop, I estimate it's given me several months lead time over my competitors.''

''We've found MarketPlace to be a quick, easy-to-use tool for better defining our potential customers and getting to them in a more efficient manner,'' said Carlton Collins, president of Collins & Collins C.P.A.s, an Atlanta accounting firm that offers professional services and software seminars to area businesses. ''With MarketPlace, we can quickly weed out unlikely candidates and market directly to pre-qualified customers, saving us hundreds in advertising dollars.''

Quality Data for Direct Marketing Applications

Lotus MarketPlace: Business incorporates data from Trinet, one of the fastest growing providers of business information in the U.S. and publisher of Contacts Influential Directories. Trinet invests millions of dollars annually in data collection and maintenance, including overseeing more than six million telephone calls to businesses each year to confirm listings. Trinet provides quarterly updates of its data to Lotus.

Users navigate through the data using an extraordinarily easy set of maps, bar charts, and other intuitive graphical interface tools. These tools allow users users to select from such choices as annual sales, number of employees, type of business by SIC code (a government classification system that groups establishments by their primary product or service), location (to the five-digit ZIP code level), and area code. A series of data options allows users to further customize their lists, for example, by selecting only those names that have had a recent change in address or verification of address or key contact.

Typical uses of the product include generating telemarketing or mailing lists, defining sales territories, analyzing the potential of a new product through a limited test mailing or sample offer, planning for expansion into a new geographic area, or identifying a market sample for conducting a telephone survey of businesses' product preferences.

Clark Security Products, a national distributor of door security products based in San Diego, Calif., is using MarketPlace to develop telemarketing lists of commercial and industrial prospects for access control and other high-security products, based on company location, number of employees, and type of business.

Wedgmere Associates, a two-year old company in Winchester, Mass., that offers hospitals an alternative to employment agencies and traditional newspaper advertising for employment sourcing problems, used MarketPlace to quickly generate a national list of hospitals to receive notification of the company's recent name change.

CCH Computax Inc., of Torrance, Calif., a leading national supplier of services, software and continuing education seminars for professional tax preparers, is using MarketPlace to identify geographic distributions of accountants and bookkeepers in order to optimize the company's sales and training opportunities in cities across the country.

MarketPlace allows users to identify and purchase from the database only those names that meet their criteria. Users have unlimited flexibility to view all seven million names, as well as redefine and further customize the data before actually ''buying'' lists. Once satisfied with a list's characteristics, the user ''buys'' the list by clicking an icon on the computer screen.

An innovative software meter, similar to a postage meter, is automatically installed on the hard disk when the user installs MarketPlace. The meter maintains a count of the number of individual names purchased. MarketPlace comes with the user's choice of an initial 5,000 names from the master database, with more names available for an additional charge.

Once the lists are purchased, users can reuse them as often as they want for personal use, an advantage over traditional rented mailing lists. Users can also output lists and analysis reports to any software package supported on the Macintosh, including lead-tracking software, relational database software, mapping software, label printers, spreadsheets, or word processing packages. Information can also be exported to IBM-compatible software programs through an Apple Superdrive or other data-transport method.

MarketPlace includes demonstration versions of three compatible software products: GeoQuery, intelligent mapping software; C A T, contact management software; and MacEnvelope Plus, a customized envelope and label printing package.

MarketPlace also incorporates a number of standard report formats, including individual customer/prospect records, a prospect-tracking report, contact forms, and a telemarketing listing for businesses, as well as the ability to develop customized reports. MarketPlace is compatible with a variety of standard label formats, and supports multiple fonts for laser printers.

Pricing, Availability, and Distribution

Lotus MarketPlace: Business is available through Lotus-authorized dealers at a suggested retail price of $695, which includes the software, sample data, a data order form, documentation, and the purchase of the first 5,000 names of choice from the compact disc. After returning the signed data order form to Lotus, the user is sent the most current data disc by overnight courier, ensuring timely receipt of the most up-to-date information available.

MarketPlace data will be updated quarterly. Users have the option to convert to an annual subscription with four additional quarterly updates ($150 annually) or to replenish the meter with more names for use with the current disc ($400 for 5,000 additional names).

System requirements for MarketPlace include an Apple Macintosh computer with a hard drive; 4 MB of RAM; Hypercard; and an AppleCD SC drive or 100 percent compatible.

The MarketPlace product line also includes Lotus MarketPlace: Households, a suite of 11 databases covering demographic and lifestyle data on 120 million consumers in 80 million U.S. households. The data is supplied by Equifax Marketing Decision Systems, one of the nation's leading providers of consumer-based marketing information. Lotus MarketPlace: Households will be available beginning in early 1991.

Lotus Development Corp. is the leading developer of applications software for personal computers and information services delivered on compact disc, and a worldwide supplier of applications software for workstation, minicomputer, and mainframe computing environments.

WEST BEND, WIS. (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Gehl Co., a leading niche capital goods manufacturer of agricultural and light industrial/construction equipment distributed worldwide, has finalized the purchase of 25 acres of land in Lebanon, Pa., and secured financing for a new agricultural equipment manufacturing facility.

The company expects to break ground for the facility mid-November, pending the issuance of a variety of permits, and complete the project in the spring of 1991. The proposed facility would contain approximately 170,000 square feet, compared to the 15,000 square-foot facility it currently leases in Myerstown, Pa. Gehl Co. anticipates that the new plant will generate at least 140 new jobs in addition to retaining the Myerstown workforce of 50 people.

The project will be financed with $8.4 million in private placement industrial development bonds issued by the Pennsylvania Economic Development Financing Authority and underwritten by Blunt Ellis & Loewi. The bonds have a 9 percent interest rate and a final maturity of 20 years with repayments commencing in the year 2005.

It will also incorporate other concepts that are part of Gehl Co.'s strategy to produce globally competitive, quality products to meet customers' needs. These concepts include the multiple skill development of people, cellular manufacturing (where one or more workers perform a variety of tasks at a work center that contains several machines), and employee accountability for quality.

Gehl Co. (NASDAQ:GEHL) produces a broad line of niche capital goods equipment used worldwide in the agricultural and light industrial and construction industries. Founded in 1859, the company is headquartered in West Bend, with manufacturing facilities in West Bend; Yankton and Madison, S.D.; and Myerstown, Pa.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Inspiration Resources Corp. (ticker symbol:IRC) Monday announced it has purchased Concrete, Inc. and El Rancho Rock & Sand Inc. (''El Rancho'') two affiliated, privately held companies based in Stockton, Calif. for an undisclosed price.

Revenues for both operations totaled about $9.0 million in 1989.

Concrete Inc. is a major supplier of ready-mix concrete to commercial, industrial and residential projects in San Joaquin County, one of the fastest growing counties in the United States. El Rancho provides most of Concrete's sand and gravel and supplies local construction companies with road base materials from its 480-acre quarry.

IRC Chairman Reuben F. Richards said the addition of the two companies ''will provide IRC with another anchor position in construction materials to supplement our initial acquisition of two affiliated companies in Oregon earlier this year.''

He added that IRC plans to make additional acquisitions of construction materials producers that are based in the western United States and currently hold strong market positions.

Inspiration Resources Corp., which had 1989 revenues of $1.4 billion, is a diversified natural resources company that provides products and services for agriculture, mines base and precious metals and coal, produces construction materials, and leases equipment.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - The Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) has awarded Brush Wellman Inc. (NYSE:BW) a $26 million contract for 91,000 pounds of vacuum hot pressed beryllium billets to be delivered to the Strategic Materials Stockpile over the next two years.

The billets will be produced from a portion of the beryl ore which is currently in the DLA stockpile. Brush Wellman will refine this ore at their Delta, Utah extraction plant. Metallurgical processing and billet fabrication and testing will be carried out at Brush Wellman's beryllium plant at Elmore, Ohio.

U.S. Representative Paul Gillmor (R-Ohio) stated, ''This contract is an important part of our country's national defense. By upgrading a portion of the beryl ore currently in stockpile to a more readily available form of metallic beryllium, we will shorten the response time and reduce the risk of supply interruptions of this strategic material in the event of a national emergency.''

Brush Wellman will begin to supply material through this contract by early 1991. Shipments are scheduled to continue through 1992. The contract allows the option for an additional 43,000 pounds of beryllium to be supplied in 1993 for approximately $13 million.

Brush Wellman Inc., with headquarters in Cleveland, is a manufacturer of engineered materials. The company and its subsidiaries supply worldwide markets with beryllium, beryllium alloys, beryllia ceramic, precious metal products, and specialty metal systems.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Enzo Biochem Inc. (AMEX: ENZ) Monday announced that it had been awarded a grant from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases to study the acute infection process of the virus causing AIDS, the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), and to develop a genetic way to disrupt this process.

Under this Phase I Small Business Innovative Research (SBIR) grand Enzo scientists will try to inhibit the acute HIV infection in lymphoid cells by inserting genes to produce antisense nucleic acid repressors against the virus. Antisense nucleic acids exactly complement and bind to target nucleic acids, repressing their function.

Scientists and Enzo Therapeutics Inc., a wholly owned Enzo subsidiary, will conduct this research. Enzo Therapeutics was formed to explore therapeutic applications of Enzo's nucleic acid and antisense technologies. The company has an exclusive license to antisense genetic technology developed by Dr. Masayori Inouye at the State University of New York.

Dr. Christine Brakel, director of research and development for Enzo Therapeutics explained, ''This is a very preliminary step toward the development of a gene therapy for AIDS. Effective HIV antisense genes introduced into blood stem cells of AIDS patients might control the infection and allow for the regeneration of healthy immune cells in the patient. Key to this work is the use of a highly sensitive test for HIV developed by Enzo Diagnostics. This test will help Enzo Therapeutics' researchers pinpoint the action of HIV nucleic acids in human cells during various stages of HIV infection.''

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Duratek Corp. (NASDAQ:DRTK), a subsidiary of National Patent Development Corp. (ASE, PSE:NPD) has been awarded a contract extension by Westinghouse Materials Co. of Ohio (WMCO) for the operation of a demonstration unit for advanced wastewater treatment technologies at the Feed Materials Production Center (FMPC) at Fernald, Ohio.

FMPC, a Department of Energy facility, formerly processed uranium and produced uranium metals for defense purposes.

The 10gpm demonstration unit will be located onsite at FMPC and will perform chemical treatment, filtration, ion exchange and reverse osmosis processes on FMPC wastewaters. The treatment process separates the radioactive and hazardous contaminants. It also reduces the volume of radioactive and hazardous wastes that must be disposed of, thus minimizing overall disposal costs.

Duratek recently completed the first phase of this project, which included bench-scale evaluations of Durasil (Duratek's proprietary ion-specific media), non-proprietary ion exchange media and various waste treatment technologies (both proprietary and non-proprietary) for the treatment of FMPC waste streams.

The major emphases was on ion exchange and reverse osmosis. Duratek successfully removed radionuclides and chromium from the waste waters and reduced the total dissolved solids. Duratek interpreted the data and made recommendations to WMCO as to the optimum treatment methods. The demonstration unit was designed on the basis of those recommendations.

Duratek provides analytical testing and consulting in the areas of nuclear waste management and process optimization to Department of Energy facilities.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Koger Equity Inc. (AMEX:KE) announced occupancy levels of 96 percent in its portfolio of buildings, producing annualized rents of approximately $34 million.

The company further announced that during this quarter, Koger Equity will attain equity REIT classification with over 75 percent of its assets invested in property. This is considered the highest classification of Real Estate Investment Trusts.

Recognizing the slowing of the economy and the special problems of the real estate and financial world, the board of directors declared a dividend of $.325 per share, payable Dec. 28, to shareholders of record Nov. 30.

There has been no decline in the cash flow of Koger Equity. This is a reduction in the payout. The previously declared dividend of 45 cents per share will be paid Oct. 23.

Undistributed cash flow will be used by the company for improvements to buildings, debt reduction, and repurchase of shares. The board believes such internal financing will add to growth and profitability.

In other action, the board of directors of Koger Equity Monday approved a Shareholder Rights Plan to protect the shareholders in the event of a takeover.

The company announced that it does not know of any present efforts to acquire control, but there has been recent pressure from large trading volume.

Under the terms of the Plan (details of which are being filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission), the rights which are to be distributed to shareholders of record on Oct. 11, trade together with Koger Equity common stock and are not exercisable until the happening of certain events, including acquisition of, or commencement of a tender offer for, 15 percent or more of the company's common stock.

In such event, each right entitles its holder (other than the acquiring person or bidder) to acquire additional shares of Koger Equity common stock at a 50 percent discount from the market price. The rights are redeemable under circumstances as specified in the Plan.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Ira Koger, chairman, Monday announced that Koger Properties (NYSE:KOG) has increased occupancy of total properties owned and managed to 93 percent as of Sept. 30, up from 90 percent March 31.

Koger said annualized gross rents would stand at $140 million for the system by year end and that current leasing activity is setting records. Net gains in leased space for the six months ended Sept. 30 were 600,000 square feet, and average effective rents were rising.

Koger Properties will pay on Oct. 23 a 70 cents dividend, previously declared. The board declared a 25 cents quarterly dividend payable Jan. 22, 1991, to shareholders of record at Dec. 28, 1990. There has been no decline in the cash flow of Koger Properties.

This is a reduction in the payout. Undistributed cash flow will be directed into internal financing, debt reduction, and the repurchase of the company's shares under a previously approved plan. The new 25 cents dividend will be 100 percent free of current tax as return of capital.

The company believes this action will strengthen the balance sheet and support new growth in the value of the company.

In additional action, the board directed management to immediately take necessary steps to implement an Employees Stock Ownership Plan (ESOP) for Koger Properties. Management believes such a plan would contribute to stability and furnish substantial incentives to personnel.

Finally, the board of Koger Properties approved a Shareholder Rights Plan to defend against any takeover action.

The company does not know at this time of any planned offer, tender, or takeover, but the Plan will provide for protection of shareholders in the event of an attempted acquisition of Koger Properties on terms that would deny shareholders the full value of their investment.

Under the terms of the Plan (details of which are being filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission), the rights which are to be distributed to shareholders of record on Oct. 11, trade together with Koger Properties common stock and are not exercisable until the happening of certain events, including acquisition of, or commencement of a tender offer for, 15 percent or more of the company's common stock.

NEW CANAAN, CT (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Smith Corona Corp. (NYSE:SCO) announced Monday that the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in Washington, D.C. had affirmed a trial court decision which finds that Japanese portable typewriters with text memories are covered by an existing antidumping order.

''We have been waiting for more than four years for recognition of the self-evident fact that addition of a memory chip or calculator to a portable typewriter doesn't change the machine from being portable,'' said G. Lee Thompson, chairman and CEO of Smith Corona.

''We are confident that, at last, our government will start to administer the antidumping law correctly to prevent further serious harm to our employees in our Cortland, New York facility and to our shareholders,'' he added.

''Our Japanese competitors have been given a four year free ride that they weren't entitled to under the law. Four years is far too long,'' Thompson continued. ''Our government must start to expeditiously examine the extent to which the very aggressive pricing practices of our Japanese competitors are unfair under the law and neutralize such practices.''

''We remain strongly confident that our company and other American manufacturers can successfully compete under conditions of fair competition with any other company in the world. Smith Corona has suffered substantial damage and experienced layoffs at its Cortland facility in the past year. I urge the United States to act promptly to determine the facts on imports now clearly identified as covered by the order,'' Thompson concluded.

Smith Corona, based in New Canaan, is the world's largest manufacturer of portable electronic typewriters and personal word processors. The company also markets office supplies, forms and customized printed products. Smith Corona will market personal computers in early 1991.

DALLAS (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - SRX, the Dallas-based company which designs and manufactures premium telecommunications switching equipment and peripherals, Monday announced that Texas Instruments Inc. has been selected to provide turnkey manufacturing for all SRX products.

To date, T.I. had been responsible only for the production of SRX high-volume boards. The announcement was made by Jim Steenbergen, SRX president and CEO.

''After careful review of all qualified candidates, we have chosen Texas Instruments as our turnkey manufacturer,'' Steenbergen said. ''T.I. will now produce all of our equipment to SRX specifications, including the new VisionPhone, which was released in May 1990.'' According to Steenbergen, turnkey manufacturing offers strategic advantages for privately-held SRX.

''Regular, rapid shipments of high-volume product will allow us to realize a significant reduction in carrying costs and inventory levels. This improved cash flow, along with reduced overhead expense and increased inventory savings enables us to focus our resources on engineering development and product support,'' explained Steenbergen.

As a result of continuing high-quality emphasis, SRX out-of-box failures are reported at an industry-leading 0.1 percent to 0.2 percent; mean time between failure for system outage averages 11.1 years. In their search for a turnkey manaufacturer, SRX officials sought a company with a strong track record, telecommunications experience and, most importantly, a commitment to upholding SRX standards of quality.

''Texas Instruments corporate philosophy closely mirrors our own, and we were impressed by that,'' Steenbergen continued. ''We look forward to a mutually prosperous relationship.''

Founded in 1983, SRX provides premium telecommunications switching equipment including patented voice and data switching technology to end users worldwide.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - James Mongiello, 48, has been promoted to president of Larse Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Axel Johnson Inc.

Mongiello joined Larse in 1985 as vice president of sales, after working for General Datacom, Timeplex, and Doelz Networks. He was promoted to vice president of sales and marketing in 1988 and to executive vice president earlier this year. Mongiello has been instrumental in establishing Larse as a leader in intelligent high speed data communications products.

Mongiello succeeds Melvin E. Perkins, a former AT&T executive who joined Larse in 1988 with the express assignment of expanding the company and grooming a successor.

Perkins will continue as chief executive officer until his planned retirement in December, according to Paul E. Graf, president of Axel Johnson. ''We are deeply indebted to Mel Perkins for his dedication and hard work at Larse,'' said Graf. ''He has fully succeeded in every aspect of his assignment.''

Larse, headquartered in Santa Clara, Calif., designs and manufactures telecommunications network equipment and systems.

Axel Johnson, headquartered in New York, is a privately held company which operates businesses focused on the telecommunications, environmental, metals, industrial, and energy and materials handling markets. With plants and offices throughout the United States and Canada, Axel Johnson had revenues of more than $700 million in 1989.

LAS VEGAS, NE (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - GWB Technology and NCR Corp. (NYSE:NCR) announced an alliance to market Anthem, the first in-house data processing system to run on a microcomputer-based local area network.

The alliance was announced here Monday at the Microbanker Expo trade show.

The market potential for the GWB Technology and NCR marketing alliance is estimated at approximately $40.6 million over the next three years, according to NCR.

Under the terms of the joint agreement, GWB Technology will market the Anthem banking system utilizing the NCR System 3000 computers and WaveLAN wireless local area network marketed by NCR under a cooperative marketing arrangement as the platform and delivery system.

The NCR System 3000 is a broad range of fully compatible, scalable, general-purpose computer systems spanning a power range from 7.5 MIPS to more than 100,000 MIPS. WaveLAN, a high-speed, wireless local area network interface card, eliminates the need for wiring to connect personal computers.

GWB Technology will focus on software development, customer support and installation of its Anthem system. The fully integrated Anthem package supports all areas of bank accounting including demand accounts, savings and time deposits, loans, a fully integrated general ledger, a customer information file and executive reporting; and is designed to run on a microprocessor-based local area network.

NCR, in turn, is able to immediately provide potential users with a data processing system sophisticated enough to take full advantage of their new parallel processing platforms.

The Anthem system implemented on the NCR hardware will allow community banks currently utilizing service bureaus to move all data processing operations in-house, cutting DP costs, improving service quality and advancing product flexibility to new levels.

Institutions currently running minicomputer systems will find this alternative extremely attractive as it lowers maintenance costs and improves performance. Many of these institutions will be able to cost justify the implementation of this new concept in one or two years.

NCR, based in Dayton, Ohio, develops, manufactures, markets, installs and services business information processing systems for worldwide markets.

BENTONVILLE, ARK. (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Wal-Mart Stores Inc. (NYSE PSE:WMT) Monday announced that it has reached an agreement in principle for the acquisition of McLane Company Inc.

Shareholders of McLane Company Inc. will be offered the option of receiving cash or shares of Wal-Mart Stores Inc. common stock.

At Sept. 30 Wal-Mart Stores Inc. had 1,470 Wal-Mart stores (including five Supercenter stores), 136 Sam's Clubs and four Hypermart USA units.

McLane Company Inc. is a recognized leader in the specialized distribution industry, serving more than 26,000 stores throughout the United States. McLane supplies its retail customers with grocery and non-grocery products, including perishable, non-perishable and general merchandise items.

McLane employs approximately 4,300 employees in its 14 distribution centers located in 11 states. McLane had total net sales of over $2.6 billion for the year ended Jan. 26, 1990.

David Glass, president and chief executive officer of Wal-Mart, stated: ''The acquisition of McLane Company will provide a solid specialized distribution network complimenting our existing capacities, as well as offer many opportunities for growth. McLane Company will operate autonomously as a subsidiary of Wal-Mart.''

Drayton McLane Jr., president and chief executive officer of McLane Company, stated, ''This merger with Wal-Mart represents a tremendous opportunity for the shareholders and employees of McLane Company and will permit McLane Company to continue its long-term strategy of growth in the grocery and retail distribution industry.''

Mr. McLane will remain president and chief executive officer of McLane and will be named a vice chairman of Wal-Mart as well as join its board of directors.

The transaction is subject to the negotiation and execution of a definitive agreement between the parties and the approval of McLane's shareholders and certain regulatory agencies.

Wal-Mart operates in a 32-state area and its securities are listed on the New York and Pacific stock exchanges.

BLUE BELL, PA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Unisys Corp. Monday announced a formal comprehensive software architecture that will enable integration of both Unisys systems and those of other vendors--from PCs and workstations to mainframes--into the transparent information networks that are expected to dominate enterprise computing by the mid-1990s.

The company also introduced a series of architecture-compliant hardware and software products and several strategic product partnerships. They expand a base of more than 150 products currently in use that form the basis for the architecture. Unisys said it will introduce a steady stream of products this year and next as part of the architecture initiative that will allow users to build what Unisys calls an Integrated Information Environment.

James A. Unruh, Unisys president and CEO, said at a New York press conference Monday that the architecture and Integrated Information Environment program ''is not a new strategy but rather the most important milestone in a strategy put in place following the 1986 merger of Sperry and Burroughs. It uses open standards to bring together a range of diverse products.

''Elements of this architectural blueprint have already been proven in day-to-day operation at customer sites worldwide. The formal release of architecture specifications means we can significantly accelerate creation of the Unisys way of computing for the 1990s.''

Unruh said the Unisys software architecture strategy to make useful information readily available to the user, no matter where it is or on what equipment, is ''significantly differentiated'' from directions announced by other vendors.

''An important benefit to Unisys of the architecture, Unruh said, is that ''it provides a common superstructure that sits on top of our hardware platforms, bringing greater commonality to our open and proprietary product lines.

''It also puts us in the marketplace mainstream in that we are better positioned to offer non-Unisys users a total solutions package that they know will be fully interoperable with their existing computing environment.''

LUBBOCK, TX (OCT 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Furr's/Bishop's Cafeterias L.P. (NYSE:CAF) announced Monday that a purported class action lawsuit had been filed in the Delaware Court of Chancery against Cavalcade & Co. Inc. and Michael J. Levenson, the managing general partner, and the special general partner, respectively, of Furr's/Bishop's in connection with Furr's/Bishop's proposal to convert to corporate form by merging with a subsidiary of a new corporate holding company.

The plaintiffs allege, among other things, that the General Partners of Furr's/Bishop's have breached their fiduciary duties by proposing the merger at terms which the plaintiffs consider unfair to public holders of Furr's/Bishop's Preference Units.

The lawsuit seeks, among other things, to enjoin the consummation of the merger and damages including attorneys' fees and expenses.

Furr's/Bishop's believes that the plaintiffs' claims are without merit and the general partners intend to defend vigorously against the action.

DELRAY BEACH, FL (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Effective Oct. 1, Hygolet Brill Inc., a Florida corporation, was merged with and into Teal Venture Corp., a Nevada corporation.

In connection with the merger, Teal Venture Corp. (as the surviving corporation) changed its name to Brill Hygienic Products Inc. to better reflect the expanded nature of the company's business. In this regard, the company has recently begun marketing Fort Howard toilet paper and ancillary bathroom products such as paper towels and soaps.

These products are in addition and complement the existing patented Hygolet toilet seat marketed and distributed by the company. In connection with this merger, Brill Hygienic Products Inc. effected a 30 for 1 reverse stock split which reduced the total number of authorized shares of common stock from 100 million to 3,233,333.

Pursuant to the terms of the merger, shareholders of Hygolet shall be distributed pro rata, 3 million shares of Brill Hygienic Products Inc., and will own in the aggregate approximately 90 percent of the issued and outstanding stock of Brill Hygienic Products Inc. as the surviving corporation.

Due to the addition of the ancillary bathroom hygienic products offered by the company, the company anticipates that it will be able to increase its revenues from operations.

EAST HARTFORD, CT (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - In a massive deal involving America West Airlines, Airbus Industrie, International Aero Engines, Guinness Peat Aviation and Kawasaki Enterprises, the Phoenix based airline announced an order for 118 A320 airliners, all to be powered by the IAE V2500 turbofan.

The America West order covers 74 aircraft on firm order and a further 44 being taken as options. The deal takes advantage of 26 previously announced A320s already available from GPA, enabling America West to commence its A320 operation early in 1991.

The V2500 engines to power the aircraft and the necessary spare engines are worth in excess of $1 billion in new business to the IAE consortium.

Don Monteath, senior V.P. Operations at America West, said, ''The V2500 engines offer all the things than an airline of the 1990s expects from an engine-low fuelburn, excellent reliability and low cost of operation.

''But in addition, the V2500 is the cleanest and quietest engine in its class. These environmental factors, particularly noise, are already important in the areas in which America West operates and we expect them to become more so as we move toward the year 2000.''

Nick Tomassetti, president and CEO of International Aero Engines, commented, ''We are obviously very pleased to announce this order and to be a part of the dynamic expansion plans of America West's future.

''Over six years ago we promised airlines that the V2500 engine would be the natural choice for the 110-180 seat market, and the America West decision goes to prove that we kept our promise.

''In the competitive A320/A321 engine market our engine has won two thirds of the business since the beginning of 1989, the year we entered service. America West is IAE's 20th customer, bringing the total V2500 orderbook to over 1600 engines to power 648 aircraft, worth well over $7.5 billion.

In addition to the A320, the V2500 is also available on the A321 and MD-90 family of aircraft.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Thomas O. Ryder, president of American Express Publishing Corp., Monday announced the appointment of Ron B. Prince as Group Publisher, City Magazine.

American Express publishes four city magazines, New York Woman, L.A. Style, D. Magazine (in Dallas) and Atlanta.

In a related move, Ryder announced the formation of City Magazine Network, an advertising sales representation group that will handle national accounts for American Express Publishing's city magazines. Ryder said City Magazine Network ultimately will represent publications not owned by American Express.

Ryder said, ''Our successes at American Express Publishing have been built upon highly defined marketing plans and imaginative implementation of those plans. No individual has been more instrumental to that planning process at American Express Publishing than Ron Prince. His brand of directional leadership will help us achieve a competitive distiction for our city magazines.''

Prince, 33, has been director of marketing for American Express Publishing Corp. He joined American Express Publishing in 1984 as promotion manager of Food & Wine Magazine. He was named marketing director in 1986 and associate publisher in 1988. Later that year, he was appointed vice president, corporate advertising/marketing. Prince is credited with establishing the company's group advertising program, GAINPlan. He also initiated the marketing plan for the relaunch of Departures, the magazine for American Express Platinum Card members. Prince is a transplanted Washingtonian who holds a B.A. in English from the University of Maryland.

Prince said, ''It's particularly exciting to focus fully on four magazines that succeed by being as vital, exuberant and distinct as the markets they serve. For advertisers, these are retail-focused magazines. They are unsurpassed in their ability to reach affluent readers who live in driving distance of key retailers in key markets. That's a powerful notion, and we're making it even more attractive with coordinated representation, through our new City Magazine network, and with a network discount.''

The new City Magazine Network rep group will open offices on Nov. 1, in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Atlanta and Dallas. It will be staffed by sales professionals who previously sold to national advertisers for New York Women or L.A. Style alone. Local staffs at each title will be unaffected by this move.

PISCATAWAY, NJ (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Unitronix Corp. (NASDAQ:UTRX) Monday announced financial results for the company's fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

Consolidated revenues from continuing operations for fiscal 1990 were $11,203,000, an increase of 3.7 percent over revenues of $10.8 million for fiscal 1989.

The company's consolidated net loss from continuing operations was $239,000, or 11 cents per share, compared to a loss from continuing operations of $102,000, or 4 cents per share for the same period a year ago. There were 13 percent fewer shares outstanding in the fiscal 1990 period.

The company reported an additional loss from discontinued operations of $397,000, or 19 cents per share from the computer distribution segment, which became a discontinued business on May 15, 1990, and for which an additional year end reserve was provided in the amount of $846,000, or 40 cents per share.

The total loss for the year amounted to $1,482,000, or 70 cents per share, as compared to a loss of $118,000, or 5 cents per share for the fiscal 1989 period.

The company also stated that its president and chief executive officer, Frank Zimmer, left his position effective Sept. 24, 1990, and that he is succeeded by David Lilly. Lilly was formerly a senior vice president, responsible for sales, marketing and development of Unitronix' turnkey systems operation. Zimmer will continue to assist the company in affecting an orderly transition and remain as chairman of the board of directors.

In making the announcement, Zimmer, 50, said that he had attained the goals he set since founding the company in 1975 adding, ''With the divestiture of the computer distribution business nearly complete, Unitronix is now focused as a computer software company and is poised for greater growth. David Lilly has been with the PRAXA product since the early development years before Unitronix acquired the rights to PRAXA in 1986. He has been instrumental in bringing the product to its current level of sophistication, and growing the installed base to approximately 250 customers at over 450 sites, both in the U.S. and Europe.''

TAMPA, FL (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Eastern Environmental Services Inc. (NASDAQ:EESI) Monday announced the signing of five preliminary agreements to acquire existing landfills in New York, South Carolina, Michigan, North Carolina, and Georgia.

The Georgia site includes a waste hauling company. Combined permitted capacity for all sites exceeds 10 million cubic yards and all sites have acreage available for expansion. The company owns several landfills and waste hauling operations serving a 12 state area.

Acquisition of some of these sites could occur within 30 days while others may require four-six months to complete environmental audits, permit transfers and other due diligence items. Company officials emphasize that these agreements are preliminary in nature and that there is no guarantee that EESI will acquire the sites.

EESI's strategy is to continue the expansion of its landfill, waste collection and asbestos waste hauling operations by acquiring additional solid waste landfills, particularly those permitted to accept special and industrial waste.

Increased waste volumes, more stringent governmental regulations and adverse public opinion have resulted in sharply escalating disposal fees, significantly fewer landfills and a decreasing number of newly permitted facilities. With rapidly increasing regulatory and financial burdens, many small private landfills will close or be sold.

The company plans to acquire under-utilized landfills in rural areas with the potential to accept substantial amounts of special waste and asbestos as well as local municipal solid waste (''MSW''). EESI expects that some of these sites will have the potential to become regional MSW facilities serving contiguous rural counties.

Sites will be supplied with waste from long distance special waste haulers, local waste collection operations, and the company's own hauling and collection operations.

ORLANDO, FL (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Gencor Industries Inc. (NASDAQ:GCOR) announces earnings of $585,000, or 37 cents per share, for the six months ended June 30, 1990, as compared with $340,000, or 21 cents per share, for the like period in 1989.

Revenues declined from $35,440,000 to $31,239,000 for the six month period in 1990 vs. the like period in 1989.

E.J. Elliott, Gencor's chairman and president, stated that the improved earnings are largely the result of an aggressive effort to reduce costs in all areas of operations. ''The 1990 results reflect the reduced costs from the consolidation and restructuring we accomplished in 1989, as well as reduced costs of the ongoing patent litigation,'' Elliott said.

Sales in the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $12,264,000, down from $17,040,000 in the three months ended June 30, 1989. The decline in sales for 1990 vs. the comparable period of 1989 reflect the economic downturn and softening of the market since the beginning of the year which is anticipated to continue for the balance of the year.

Gencor also restated the results of the first quarter of 1990 due to problems associated with its computer system conversion. These problems resulted in the understatement of earnings for the first quarter of this year.

Earnings for the first quarter of 1990, as restated, amounted to $984,000 or 62 cents per share, up from $244,000 or 15 cents per share originally reported. The company reports progress with the implementation of the computer system and has taken several steps to insure that such errors do not recur.

Gencor Industries is based in Orlando, Fla, where it has major manufacturing facilities and its headquarter offices. Other substantial manufacturing facilities are maintained in Iowa, Ohio and England.

Products include thermal fluid heat systems, combustion systems, hot mix asphalt production plants, electronic process automation systems, soil remediation units, and other related construction machinery products.

PASADENA, CA (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Loral Electro-Optical Systems, a unit of Loral Corp., has received a $51.5 million contract from the U.S. Army Project Manager for Training Devices, Orlando, Fla., to produce an advanced air and ground engagement system known as Ages II.

Ages II is a MILES-based state-of-the-art simulation system that will train air and ground forces with upgraded capabilities in the three-dimensional battlefield. Ages II provides accurate infrared laser ranging and replicates aircraft vulnerability with high fidelity. It also will accurately measure simulated weapons effects from the 30mm gun and the Hellfire missile.

Under the 30-month contract, Loral will produce up to 900 systems for use on OH-58D, AHIP, Apache, UH-60A Blackhawk and CH-47D Chinook helicopters at Army training sites around the world. Ages II also includes a Hellfire ground support system, the MILES equivalent to a ground vehicle laser designator and rangefinder.

The company expects to begin deliveries in April 1992.

MILES, or multiple integrated laser engagement system, simulates combat using eye-safe infrared laser transmitters and detectors attached to soldiers, weapons, vehicles and aircraft. The system is used worldwide by the U.S. Army Army Reserve, National Guard, Marines and Air Force.

ISELIN, NJ (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - The Siemens Medical Systems Inc., headquartered in Iselin, will build a new diagnostic medical equipment training center at MacGregor Park in Cary, N.C.

The company will invest approximately $10 million to build a 70,000 sq. ft. building where each 2,000 people will undergo close to 250,000 hours of training on some of the world's most sophisticated healthcare equipment. Training will be provided by thirty-five full time instructors.

''Siemens is a world leader in electronics and medical instruments and their presence in Cary and the Research Triangle area will enhance the region's status as a national center for excellence in medical technology,'' said Secretary Jame T. Broyhill of the North Carolina Department of Economic and Community Development.

Robert J. MacKinnon, president, Siemens Medical Systems, said ''Our new training center will instruct health care personnel from across the nation and from other countries. The Research Triangle area is uniquely suited to meet Siemens' needs.

''National air travel connections are good, and the research and development climate provided by the Research Triangle Park and the area's universities is excellent. Our company will continue to work closely with the state's top quality medical schools and area hospitals to enhance local medical care and provide valuable technical feedback for new product development. Lastly, the region's high quality-of-life and reasonable costs will assist in the recruitment and retention of personnel.''

Seimens Medical Systems sells and services a broad range of non-invasive diagnostic equipment. Training will span this range of equipment which includes: computed tomography and magnetic resonance imaging systems, surgical microscopes, nuclear medicine imaging systems, breast radiography, angiography imaging systems, cardiac catherterization labs, lithotripsy systems, and ultrasound imaging systems.

Dewberry & Davis of Raleigh, N.C., is providing complete architectural, engineering and interior architectural services for the new training center. In keeping wth Siemens' progressive approach to the development of highly-specialized medical equipment, the architects will employ a modern design with a deliberate sensitivity to functional activity within the building and the wooded, hilltop setting.

The four-story, 70,000 sq. ft. building will feature continuous bands of tinted glass around its perimeter. To portray the cutting edge technology of Siemens' medical equipment development and foster a strong learning environment, the design will employ clean, modern lines and sleek, high-tech surfaces.

The building's floorplan is shaped like a rectangle rounded at one end. Inside, classrooms and offices will be arranged around a four-story atrium-the building's focal point. A courtyard on the first floor will serve as a gathering area for both students and staff.

Siemens Medical Systems employs over 7,000 people at more than 128 locations in the United States and has annual sales approaching $1.4 billion.

Siemens currently employs over 1,500 workers in North Carolina, with an annual payroll in excess of $35 million. There are four manufacturing operations: Siecor, producing fiber optic cable in Hickory; Pelton & Crane, producing dental equipment in Charlotte; Siemens Energy and Automation producing low and medium voltage switchgear in Raleigh; and also producing residential circuit protection equipment in Wilmington.

Siemens also has two research and development laboratories, a fiber optics center in Hickory and a central technology lab in Charlotte. In addition Siemens has numerous sales and service offices throughout North Carolina.

BASKING RIDGE, NJ (OCT. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T has doubled its commitment to customers on the telecommunications industry's first and only 800 Assurance Policy by cutting restoral time from one hour to 30 minutes.

The AT&T 800 Assurance Policy is a standard feature offered without charge to existing customers of interstate domestic AT&T 800 Service; AT&T 800 READYLINE (R) Service; AT&T 800 MasterLine (SM) Service and AT&T MEGACOM (R) 800 Service.

The AT&T 800 Assurance Policy consists of two parts:

Guaranteed Call Completion -- If customers experience a complete disruption of 800 service caused by any network, premises equipment or access problems, within 30 minutes --instead of the original policy's one hour commitment -- AT&T will implement, at the customer's choosing, one of the following options until service is restored:

(1) Provide temporary 800 READYLINE Service for routing of calls to any working telephone line, on or off the customer's premises. (2) Route 800 calls to a customized announcement. (3) Route the calls to one of four AT&T 800 services to which the customer subscribes--domestic AT&T 800 Service, 800 READYLINE Service, AT&T 800 MasterLine Service and MEGACOM 800 Service -- either on or off the customer's premises.

All routing will be free of charge if the problem is in the AT&T network or in AT&T-provided end-to-end access. Normal routing, installation and usage charges for completed calls will apply if the problems are caused by premises equipment or customer-provided access.

Moreover, in the unlikely event calls are not routed in 30 minutes, AT&T will credit the customer's account in the amount of one month's service charge.

No-Miss Installation Guarantee -- If AT&T fails to install 800 services within the standard installation interval for domestic AT&T 800 services, excluding Basic 800 intrastate service, the company will offer the customer the choice of one of the following options:

(1) Installation charges will be waived for the service ordered. (2) Temporary AT&T 800 READYLINE Service will be provided at no charge. (3) AT&T 800 calls will be routed to an announcement customized with company name and telephone number. (4) Calls will be routed to one of four AT&T 800 services to which the customer subscribes: domestic AT&T 800 Service, 800 READYLINE Service, AT&T 800 MasterLine Service and MEGACOM 800 Service.

The tariff for the improved AT&T 800 Assurance Policy was filed with the Federal Communications Commission and is expected to become effective November 1.

ATLANTIC CITY (OCT. 1) BUSINESS WIRE - Resorts International Inc. and its subsidiaries announced Monday that the initial distribution of new securities under its plan of reorganization has occurred and that trading of the securities has commenced on the American Stock Exchange.

Trading on a ''when-issued'' basis had previously begun on Sept. 17. Initial distibutions of new securities according to the company's plan of reorganization commenced today by the company's exchange agent, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

Under the reorganization plan, all previously outstanding notes and debentures of Resorts and its subsidiaries are being exchanged pursuant to the plan for new securities as follows: For each $1,000 principal amount of:
Security-holders will receive: 10 percent RII Debentures due 1998
$185.98 principal amount of

Series B Notes, 20.42 shares of Resorts' newly issued common stock, and 13.53 units of beneficial interest in the Litigation Trust.

10 percent RII Debentures due 1999 $202.16 principal amount of Series B Notes, 22.20 of shares of Resorts's newly issued common stock, and 14.70 units of beneficial interest in the Litigation Trust.

11 3/8 percent RII Debentures due 2013 $210.24 principal amount of

Series B Notes, 23.09 of shares of Resorts' newly issued common stock, and 15.29 units of beneficial interest in the Litigation Trust.

16 5/8 percent RIFI Debentures due 2004 $294.59 principal amount of

Series B Notes, 32.35 of shares of Resorts' newly issued common stock, and 21.42 units of beneficial interest in the Litigation Trust.

13 1/2 percent GRI Notes due 1995 $592.50 principal amount of Series A Notes and $332.85 principal amount of Showboat Notes.

13 7/8 percent GRI Notes due 1998 $567.19 principal amount of

Series A Notes and $318.63 principal amount of Showboat

Notes.

Certificates for interests in the Litigation Trust have not been issued and will not be distributed by the Litigation Trust until and unless any necessary regulatory approvals are obtained. Pending any such distribution, interests in the Litigation Trust will be evidenced in records maintained under the direction of the Trustee under the Litigation Trust, Kenneth Feinberg.

The company has no further information regarding the status of the Litigation Trust and any requests for further information should be directed to the Trustee.

Distribution of shares of common stock to former holders of GRI Notes and distribution of cash to former holders of RIFI Debentures respectively in exchange for releases tendered by them under the plan is expected to commence within several weeks following verification of the parties tendering such releases.

Holders of debt securities of Resorts and its subsidiaries have received forms of transmittal letters for the exchange of old securities for new securities. Those who have not yet received materials relating to the exchange should contact Manufacturers Hanover Trust at Reorganization Department, P.O. Box 1916, GPO Station, New York, New York 10116 or Georgeson & Co. Inc. (Information Agent) at Wall Street Plaza, New York, New York 10005.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) COMTEX - The House passed a stock market reform bill last Friday afternoon which gives the Securities and Exchange Commission powers to shut down trading in times of market emergencies and suspend program trading during periods of extreme market volatility.

Program trading refers to a computer-based method of buying or selling a group of stocks, in which traders move quickly between baskets of stocks and futures contracts. Futures contracts represent bets on the future prices of a basket of the same stocks.

Traders attempt to profit by exploiting small differences between the price of stocks and futures contracts and critics maintain this practice contributed to the Oct. 1987 stock market crash when the Dow Jones industrial average plunged 508 points and the 1989 Oct. crash when the Dow fell 190 points.

The bill also requires large trader reporting, allows the SEC to assess the financial stability of broker-dealer parent firms and their affiliates, and directs the SEC to establish a national system for coordinated clearance and settlement of stocks, options and futures contracts between the SEC and Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

The legislation gives the SEC authority to halt stock exchange trading in a market emergency, provided the action is not opposed by the president. Currently, only the president can halt trading of the overall market.

In a statement released by his office, Rep. Edward Markey (D-Mass.), who wrote the legislation along with New Jersey Republican Matthew Rinaldo, said, "We are giving the SEC the tools to protect the securities markets from trading strategies that threaten fair and orderly markets. As a result of Friday's bill, the SEC will be given enforcement tools to not only control manipulative trading strategies but to curb legitimate trading strategies that nonetheless result in extraordinary volatility."

The Market Reform Act of 1990, which was passed by the Senate early last week and now awaits the president's signature to become law, also requires the Federal Reserve Board, Treasury, CFTC and SEC to report annually to Congress on their efforts to coordinate their regulatory activities.

For the previous two fiscal years, audits performed by those former auditors contained no adverse opinion or disclaimer of opinion nor were they modified as to uncertainty, audit scope, or accounting principles.

In other news, the company reported on Sept. 27, 1990 that Community will continue its stock repurchase program for another six-month period, beginning Oct. 1, 1990.

Under the program, Community stated, it will repurchase in the open market up to five percent of its outstanding stock.

Community has 634,372 shares of common stock outstanding.

BY MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) COMTEX - The House passed two pieces of legislation today which provides the Securities and Exchange Commission added enforcement powers in the areas of penny stock abuse and other securities frauds.

On a unanimous voice vote, the House passed the Securities Enforcement Remedies and Penny Stock Reform Act of 1990 and the International Enforcement Cooperation Act of 1990.

A key section of the former deals with penny stocks, which are low priced securities that trade in the over-the-counter market but are not listed on NASDAQ.

The bill urges the SEC to facilitate at the earliest possible time the development of the National Association of Securities Dealers' OTC Bulletin Board into a fully implemented automated quotation system for all penny stocks. It also expands the SEC's authority to expel crooked promoters and consultants from the securities business and increases disclosure to penny stock customers.

In addition, the bill requires the SEC to adopt rules to address the problem of fraud associated with blank check offerings, in which the issuer discloses no specific business purpose or identifies an intent to engage in unspecified mergers or acquisitions.

The legislation requires timely disclosure of intended business plans prior to effective registration of a blank check offering and allows investors to get their money back if they disapprove of the issuer's business proposal.

Americans lost an estimated $2 billion in 1987 and 1988 as a result of fraud and abuse in the penny stock market, according to a study conducted last year by the North American Securities Administrators Association.

To further combat securities fraud, the bill expands the SEC's authority to levy new civil penalties by imposing monetary damages against violators of federal securities laws. The SEC currently may only issue fines or other civil penalties for insider trading cases.

The bill now awaits the signing of President Bush to be enacted into law.

The second securities bill passed today would allow the SEC to cooperate with foreign governments concerning securities law violations, improve the flow of information between shareholders and share issuers with respect to proxy materials and information statements, and provide the SEC specific funding levels for fiscal years 1990 and 1991.

The bill is expected to go to House-Senate conference to resolve differences between the versions passed by the respective chambers.

GROUP LED BY CAPITALCORP INC OWNS 7,784,727 SHARES (89.07%) OF UNITED SECURITY FINANCIAL CORP IL (TICKER: UNSE).

ANNOUNCEMENT:

As of Sept. 20, 1990, Capitalcorp was unable to make the required payment of outstanding principal and interest on a loan. The lenders under the loan agreement continue to refuse to extend the maturity further. Capitalcorp is in default and therefore, is critically in need of cash. In addition, certain holders of Capitalcorp.'s 7.5 percent debentures due 2011 requested that Capitalcorp convert the debentures, which it failed to do. As a result, Capitalcorp is now in default on the debentures. As a result, Capitalcorp is now considering various liquidation alternatives and through its control of the board of UNSE, has caused UNSE to commence investigating the possibility of selling UNSE's wholly-owned subsidiary, Middle Atlantic Life Insurance Co., as a means of raising cash. On April 17, 1990, Beverly Z. Hoffmann was appointed to the board of UNSE upon the resignation of James R. McNiel. On June 11, 1990, the shareholders of UNSE elected William D. Ambrose, Patricia Howe Ellison, Beverly Z. Hoffmann, Lorraine O. Legg and Ronald D. Schaefer as directors of UNSE to serve until the next annual meeting or until their successors are elected and qualified. On May 11, 1990, UNSE paid a dividend of $4,000,000 to its shareholders of record as of the close of business on May 4, 1990.

GROUP LED BY CORPORATE INVESTMENT CO OF WEST CHESTER, PA OWNS 2,699,969 SHARES (10.50%) OF NORTH AMERICAN VENTURES INC (TICKER: NAVI) OF HARTFORD, CT.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

On Sept. 18, 1990, Corporate Investment Co. met to discuss their concerns with respect to the management, prospects and direction of North American Ventures Inc. and it was the general consensus of the persons attending the meeting that existing management of North American Ventures Inc. was not responsive to its shareholders and was not actively seeking to maximize the value of the shareholders investment in the shares. As a result of such discussion, those persons formed a group, called ''Concerned Shareholders of NAVI'' which would act together in recommending certain actions to the management designed to enhance shareholder value, and maximize the investment of all of the shareholders of the issuer. On Sept. 22, 1990, William Dyesso was informed of the events of the meeting and he agreed to join Concerned Shareholders group.

PARIS (OCT. 1) - Sixty-two percent of French citizens believe that a unified Germany will dominate the European Economic Community (EEC), according to a poll carried out in both France and Germany, and published Monday in the daily Le Figaro.

In contrast, 57 percent of West Germans surveyed said that that German domination of the EEC was "unlikely."

Twenty-seven percent of French respondents said that they were "worried" by German reunification, while 37 percent were "pleased" and 32 percent were indifferent.

Fifty-six percent of West Germans said that they were "confident" about the coming of a single European market in 1993, while 57 percent of the French surveyed said that they wore "worried."

A majority of respondents from both countries supported a pull-out of French and other foreign military forces from West Germany (55 percent of French and 67 percent of West Germans).

Most French respondents characterized Germans as "disciplined," "hard working" and "efficient," while West Germans regarded the French as "nationalist," "peaceful" and "friendly."

SYDNEY (OCT. 1) - Patrick White, winner of the 1973 Nobel Prize for Literature and widely regarded as the greatest writer Australia has produced, died at his home here Sunday, aged 78.

The Australian Broadcasting Corp. said that Mr. White, a semi-recluse in his later years, had been ill for several weeks, but it did not specify the cause of his death.

In a tribute, the Sydney Morning Herald wrote: "Patrick White remains the greatest Australian writer to date by far" - a view endorsed by Booker Prize winner Thomas Keneally, who described White on Monday as a "literary giant".

Although he was "austere", White "transcended just about all of Australian writing and will always be read as a great writer of the modernist movement," Mr. Keneally added.

In a front-page headline which belied his reputation as remote and misanthropic, the Herald also described White as "a stirrer".

It recalled his opposition to censorship and to Australia's involvement in the Vietnam War.

It pointed to his concern for Aboriginal land rights, which prompted him to refuse to participate in the Bicentennial celebrations of 1988, and to his conversion to the republican cause after the Queen's representative, Governor-General Sir John Kerr, sacked Labor Prime Minister Gough Whitlam in 1975.

Patrick Victor Martindale White, the son of wealthy Australian farmers, was born in London on May 28, 1912.

After an unhappy schooling in Sydney and at Cheltenham College, England, he entered King's College, Cambridge, to study languages, later joining the Royal Air Force as an intelligence officer.

While serving in the Middle East in World War II, White met the Greek poet Manoly Lascaris, who returned to Australia with him in 1948 and became his life's companion.

White already had two successful novels - "Happy Valley", which won the Australian Literature Society's gold medal after it was published in 1939, and "The Living and The Dead" (1941).

He now retired to devote himself to literature at Castle Hill, a suburb of Sydney renamed Sarsaparilla in a merciless string of novels and short stories attacking what White saw as the philistinism and materialism of Australia in the 1950's.

International recognition came after the publication in 1955 of "The Tree of Man," a story of Australian pioneers which has the heroic dimensions of a work by Tolstoy and a Biblical plainness of expression.

BANGKOK (OCT. 1) - Two finance firms from Japan and Singapore have set up special funds to shore up the ailing Securities Exchange of Thailand (SET), which has been hard-hit by the Gulf crisis, an SET spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said the Bank of Thailand, the central bank, had given permission to Japan-based Nomura Securities and Singapore-based C.S. First Boston to set up funds of 150 million and 75 million dollars respectively.

A Thai firm was also given permission to underwrite another fund of 1.2 billion baht (48 million dollars), dubbed the Suk Anant fund, the spokesman said.

The moves followed the creation of the emergency Ruam Pattana II fund by 35 Thai brokers in late August to inject funds into the market, which plunged 39.1 percent after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait August 2.

The spokesman said the Ruam Pattana fund of five billion baht (200 million dollars) could also be increased if it runs low, adding that some three billion baht (120 million dollars) still remained in the fund.

Meanwhile, a central bank official said the bank had approved the applications of 30 of 94 firms eligible to comply with a central bank move in late August to increase their investment in the market.

The firms' stock investment portfolios had been limited to 60 percent of their capital, but the allowable investment was raised to 100 percent on August 27, the official said.

The firms would invest a total of 9.85 billion baht (394 million dollars), he said, adding that the applications of the remaining 64 firms were being considered.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 1) - The opposition plunged India's parliament into mayhem Monday, calling on Premier Vishwanath Pratap Singh to resign for refusing to reverse a caste-based job quota policy despite widespread protests that have left more than 60 dead.

One senior opposition leader from the Congress (I) party announced from the floor of the house that he was launching a fast until death to persuade the premier to reconsider, while MP and veteran film actress Jamuna (eds: one name) ran weeping into the front rows crying that children were being shot and burned.

Mr. Vasant Sathe said he would start his fast Monday morning because the caste-based quota decision announced by Mr. V.P. Singh threatened to "plunge the country into an anti-secular, casteist and communal holocaust."

In a letter to house speaker Rabi Ray, Mr. Sathe accused the minority government of "insensitivity" to the "supreme self sacrifice" made by the youth of the country.

Ms. Yamuna was led weeping back to her seat by party colleagues, witnesses said.

At least 15 people, most of them young students, have committed suicide by burning or swallowing poison to protest the quotas which give 49.5 percent of government and public sector jobs to the country's lower castes.

At least 60 more have attempted suicide, and another 50 have died in police shootings.

The students and much of the urban middle class in north India who support them argue that the quotas make a mockery of merit and reinforce rather than help eliminate casteism.

In the upper house or Raja Sabha, the Congress (I) also took the offensive, calling for the prime minister's resignation, and charging him with introducing the job quotas for political reasons.

Delhi police meanwhile reported that a 27-year-old man set himself alight at a bus terminal in northwest Delhi early Monday.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) said Praveen Jain, a shopkeeper, had been admitted to the Jayaprakash Narain hospital where his decision was described as critical.

KUALA LUMPUR (OCT. 1) - Malaysia's mighty stuntman R. Letchemanaah, cheered on by spectators, Monday pulled a Boeing 737-200 aircraft with his hair in an unusual feat at Subang airport.

The 40-year-old stuntman pulled the 28-ton Malaysian Airlines aircraft, loaded with another 6,000 kilograms of fuel, a distance of 16.85 metres.

About 500 people watched him perform the feat which was televised live.

Letchemanaah hopes his 10-minute stunt using his long, curly hair to tow the aircraft will earn him a place in world record books.

"It's not a trick. All I do is to use my powers of concentration," said Letchemanaah, an employee of the Rubber Research Institute of Malaysia.

"As part of preparations, I had to go on a vegetarian diet for two weeks," he said, adding that one of his earlier achievements was when he pulled a bus with 27 passengers on board, also with his hair.

KUALA LUMPUR (OCT. 1) - Low-cost producers in Indonesia, Thailand, Papua New Guinea and some African countries are threatening Malaysia's palm oil industry which is plagued by a labor shortage, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

Malaysia's relatively high wages are blunting its competitiveness with other producing countries that do not face a labor shortage, the English-language Business Times quoted Abdul Halim Hassan, director-general of the Palm Oil Research Institute of Malaysia, as saying.

Mr. Halim said the competition is also able to capitalize fairly quickly on breakthroughs achieved by the Malaysian palm oil industry. "So the threat is very real indeed," he said.

He added, however, that if Malaysia consolidated its plantings, improved its efficiency and upgraded the quality of its exports, it would maintain its market dominance for many years to come.

Malaysia, which produced six million tonnes of palm oil last year, accounts for about 60 percent of world production.

TAIPEI (OCT. 1) - Taiwan's unemployment rate rose to 2.1 percent in August, the highest in 2-12 years, officials said Monday.

The August jobless population of 181,000 compared with 166,000 a month earlier when the unemployment rate was 1.96 percent, Council for Planning and Development officials said.

The highest unemployment rate, 2.37 percent, was posted in February 1987, the officials added.

They said the two percent jobless level was due to sluggish domestic business activities and was "bearable" compared with the five percent in industralized nations such as the United States and West Germany and the 2.5 percent in Japan and South Korea this year.

Although unemployment was on the rise, the construction, manufacturing and textile sectors were suffering labor shortages. Job hunters were increasingly unwilling to take blue-collar work with rises in income and education levels.

To cushion a labor shortage seriously affecting major government construction projects, the cabinet further eased restrictions on the hiring of foreign workers on Thursday.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) - U.S. President George Bush and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari expressed a common desire to see a bilateral free-trade accord signed by 1992, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs Bernard Aronson said.

The two presidents, who met in New York Sunday while attending the United Nations World Summit for Children, also agreed to open talks with Canada on the possibility of a three-way free-trade arrangement.

The United States and Canada have already signed such an accord, and Mr. Bush notified Congress last week that he planned to negotiate a similar agreement with the United States' southern neighbor.

Congress now has two months to state any opposition.

"I think both presidents want to move this along as rapidly as possible and I think both presidents would be more than pleased to see this concluded and submitted for ratification and ratified in 1992," said Mr. Aronson.

Mexico and the United States have already opened consultations, and formal negotiations should begin next May or June, calling the 1992 target date a "realistic timetable".

Mr. Salinas said Mexico had a "very positive" attitude towards the talks.

On other issues, the Mexican president expressed his concern over what he called the "havoc" in the world oil market because of the current Gulf crisis.

Though Mexico is an oil-producing country, he expressed hope that oil prices would drop then stabilize to avoid problems for developing countries, notably in Central America, according to Mr. Aronson.

Ankara (OCT. 1) - The prices of oil products underwent the fourth price hike Monday since the start of the Gulf crisis on August 2, the average two-month rise being 70 percent.

With the latest hike of 5 to 15 percent, the price of one litre of normal-octane gasoline went up to 85 U.S. cents.

Officials of the the country's state-owned oil distribution concern defended the rises as inevitable, arguing that the price of a barrel of crude oil had gone up by 122 percent to 40 dollars since the start of the crisis.

TOKYO (OCT. 1) - Victor Co. of Japan, Ltd. (JVC) and Victor Musical Industries, Inc. said Monday they have reached basic agreement with the MCA Music Entertainment Group of the United States to form a new record company.

The new company, whose shares are to be equally shared between the two Victor firms and the MCA group, will have the exclusive right to market and promote MCA, Geffen and GRP records of the MCA group in Japan.

It will also sign and train Japanese artists when it goes into business next year.

A JVC official said the company would disclose further details upon reaching final agreement with the U.S. group.

The MCA Music Entertainment is a unit of MCA, Inc., a giant U.S. entertainment firm.

Victor Musical Industries is a wholly owned subsidiary of JVC.

JVC is a subsidiary of Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. Ltd., one of the world's top consumer electronics manufacturers, now rumored to be negotiating with MCA, Inc. on a possible buyout.

TOKYO (OCT. 1) - Japan's foreign exchange reserves totaled 75.323 billion dollars at the end of September, up eight million dollars from 75.315 billion a month earlier, the Foreign Ministry said Monday.

This was the fifth straight monthly increase, but the margin of the rise was the smallest since May 1984, ministry officials said.

The reserves comprise convertible currencies, gold and special drawing rights (SDR's) at the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

Bangkok (OCT. 1) - Kuwait Petroleum International, the world's twelfth largest oil company with an extensive network of gas stations in Europe, is operating normally despite the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, a Kpi executive said here Monday.

''Over the last seven weeks, we have taken stock of our position with regard to cash flow and cash balances, and I am pleased to report that Kuwait Petroleum Corporation and Kpi are in a very sound cash position, and we are confident that we can continue busiess as usual,'' Kpi executive Michael Bain said at a press conference.

Kpi opened its first gas station in Thailand on August 14, and has plans for at least five stations in Thailand by the end of the year.

In an effort to dispel doubts about Kpi's future in light of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2, Bain argued that the company had already secured an oil supply arrangement with Saudi Arabia.

''Kpi's cash position is strengthened by several million barrels of oil which left Kuwait in tankers before the invasion,'' said Bain, who heads Kpi's unit in Thailand, Kuwait Oil Thailand Ltd.

''The cash inflow is estimated to be worth about 350 million dollars,'' said Bain.

Kpi operates refineries in Holland, Denmark and Italy, and some 6,500 gas stations in nine European countries.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA (OCT. 1) - Weeks Petroleum, a 96 percent-owned subsidiary of Bell Resources, has reported a provisional net loss of 616.60 million dollars (508.7 million U.S.) for the year ending June 30.

In a statement dated September 28 and issued here Monday, Weeks Petroleum said it expected the result to improve after its parent company completed its joint venture purchase of Bond Brewing Holdings.

Weeks Petroleum assistant secretary Bruce MacPherson said that the stock exchange had refused to allow the firm to extend its reporting deadline from September 30 until October 15, although Bell Resources expected to complete its purchase on Tuesday.

Weeks Petroleum's losses included abnormal losses totalling 793.70 million dollars (654.81 million U.S.).

Weeks Petroleum directors said the reported loss was due to significant provisions made against debts due to the company.

"In the opinion of the directors, the results are likely to improve through reassessment of asset values on completion of the brewing deal," Mr. MacPherson's statement said.

Bell Resources, a 58 percent-owned subsidiary of the troubled Bond Corp Holdings, offered 1.2 billion dollars (960 million U.S.) last year as a deposit for the breweries, more than 795 million (630 million U.S.) of it from Weeks Petroleum.

Weeks Petroleum's preliminary loss compared with a 234 million U.S. dollar profit last year.

The statement said the directors had provisioned 415 million U.S. dollars against doubtful debts for an unnamed related company, 98 million U.S. dollars for doubtful debts for an unnamed former related company and 142 million U.S. dollars for bad debts for another unnamed related company.

Directors did not declare dividends.

MOSCOW (OCT. 1) - The Russian Federation has decided to delay by a month the start of its implementation of the "500-Day" plan to replace socialism by capitalism in the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, the unofficial news agency Interfax reported Monday.

The agency quoted Gennadi Filshin, the deputy prime minister of Russia, as saying the delay was caused by the Soviet parliament's failure to merge two contrasting plans to turn the Soviet economy into a market economy.

Russia had planned to start implementing the 500-Day plan from October 1. This date has now been pushed back to November 1.

Russia had chosen the more ambitious of the two plans, also known as the Shatalin Plan, but the Soviet parliament has not ruled out incorporating elements from the Ryzhkov Plan as it tries to draft a compromise plan.

The Shatalin plan was drafted by a committee led by the economist Stanislaw Shatalin, by Russian President Boris Yeltsin and by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The other plan was drafted by a team led by Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov. Mr. Gorbachev expressed a preference for the first plan, but in view of Mr. Ryzhkov's threat to resign if his plan was discarded, Mr. Gorbachev has sought to combine the two plans.

ALGIERS (OCT. 1) - OPEC chairman Sadek Boussena has come out in support of destocking strategic oil reserves held by member states of the International Energy Agency (IEA) to ease current shortages caused by the Gulf conflict.

Mr. Boussena, who is also Algeria's energy and industry minister, said on television here late Sunday that the main IEA consumer states "should resort to their strategic reserves", particularly with the approach of winter.

He said the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) had already done all it could to limit excessive oil price increases by deciding, a month ago, to produce at maximum capacity.

The Gulf crisis has already propelled oil prices above a nominal 40 dollars a barrel against 15 or 16 dollars in June. The OPEC chairman warned against a new rise in oil prices when demand goes up this winter.

He estimated the demand for OPEC crude for the fourth quarter of 1990 at 23.5 million barrels per day, while the "maximum offer" of OPEC countries -- outside of Iraq and Kuwait -- would not be more than 22.5 million barrels.

Earlier Sunday, Mr. Boussena said that the U.S. decision to release five million tons of oil from strategic reserves -- less than a half-day's consumption in the United States -- would have little effect on the oil market.

He also pointed to considerable technical problems involved in running down the oil stocks of member countries of the IEA, asking "what criteria would one use to reach a desirable level of stocks".

Mr. Boussena also suggested Sunday that oil producers, both in and out of OPEC should unite with consumers to stabilize oil prices when they return to normal after the Gulf crisis is over.

He said it was "not a matter of fixing a price. The market should be given free play. But it is not in the interests of either producers or consumers to allow oil prices to move erratically," he said.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 1) - Winnie Mandela has won a considerable but controversial victory by being elected to a senior position in South Africa's African National Congress, an ANC spokesman said here Monday.

Mrs. Mandela was elected Sunday to the regional executive committee of the black nationalist organisation at an ANC regional congress in Johannesburg's black township of Alexandra at the weekend.

The spokesman said this appointment gave her an important political boost following her indictment last week on charges of kidnapping and assault, which involved the murder of a black adolescent activist in 1989.

But Mrs. Mandela's appointment to the regional executive of the ANC for the important Johannesburg-Pretoria-Vereeniging area, the country's industrial heartland, added to an ongoing controversy within the ANC about her status.

Rank-and-file ANC members and social workers had already objected to her appointment in July to the head of the ANC's welfare department.

They levelled accusations of nepotism since her husband, Nelson Mandela, is deputy president of the ANC.

This appointment sparked a fiery debate at the ANC's weekend meeting, where sources said numerous delegates called for her to be stripped of her leadership positions.

LONDON (OCT. 1) - A further rates slide took place in the international shipping market this past week.

The absence of Soviet charterers weighed particularly heavily on the grains sector, shipbrokers said.

The Baltic International Freight Futures Exchange (BIFFEX)'s Baltic Freight Index (BFI) fell 13 points on the week to end at 1,169 points -- some 250 points adrift from its position 12 months ago.

Traders reduced their nominal quotations on the main North American grain routes, citing the lack of hope for the return of Soviet charterers to the market.

The nominal rate for U.S. Gulf to Europe trades was cut to 11.075 dollars per tonne from 11.25 at the end of the previous week, and the U.S. Gulf to Japan rate was cut to 19.758 dollars from 19.91.

Among physical fixings a 52,000-ton grain carrier was paid 19.85 dollars per ton on the U.S. Gulf to Japan grain route, against 20 dollars the previous week.

Depression was not limited to the grain sector. Coal carriers saw their nominal rates cut from 6.070 dollars per ton to 6.008 for U.S. East Coast to Northern Europe. The fall followed the fixing of a 90,000-tonner on the route at 5.25 dollars per tonne, down from six dollars recorded two weeks earlier.

Among sugar movements a 14,000-tonner accepted 18.40 dollars per tonne for an Australia to Japan voyage against 19 dollars in mid-September.

The timecharter sector continued its slide. Nominal rates on return trips between Europe and the U.S. Gulf fell to 6,866.667 dollars per day, against 7,130 dollars per day at the end of the previous week.

HAMBURG, WEST GERMANY (OCT. 1) - West Germany's governing political party, the Christian-Democrats, Monday opened a two-day conference to fuse with its East German branch.

"This is an historic day for our party," said West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, head of the West German Christian Democratic Union (CDU) since 1973 and set to be chosen by the 1,000 East and West German CDU delegates as chairman of the new, unified party.

Mr. Kohl, 60, was the only candidate for the job.

"The vision of a united Germany, which we have never lost sight of, has now become a reality," Mr. Kohl said. German unification is set for Wednesday.

Mr. Kohl thanked Lothar de Maiziere, East German prime minister and president of East Germany's CDU, for leading his country "under extremely difficult conditions and under terrible pyschological pressure."

Mr. Maiziere was expected to be elected vice-president of the unified CDU, a job specially created for him.

The conference opened Monday morning with a short meeting of the West German CDU which modified its statutes in less than an hour to allow for unification.

Later, CDU members from the six East Berlin regional federations and the five East German states were due to join their West German colleagues for the first German CDU conference.

Unlike West Germany's main opposition party, the Social-Democrats, the CDU was created after the war and has therefore never been unified.

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND (OCT. 1) - A picturesque golf course owned by Americans who want to sell it to Japanese is turning into an embarrassing racial issue in the runup to New Zealand's October 27 elections.

The cabinet Monday deferred making a decision on Land Minister Peter Tapsell's unilateral Saturday veto forbidding the sale to Japan Golf Systems Ltd. of the 146 hectare (360 acre) Wairakei golf course, 350 kilometres (217 miles) south of here.

Prime Minister Mike Moore said in a statement it was understood a further proposal was on the way from the company.

He stressed that New Zealand "encourages foreign investment," saying it created jobs and growth.

However acknowleding the issue was a potential minefield, he added, "But there are parts of New Zealand that cannot be for sale."

Paradoxically it was the government itself which sold Wairakei to U.S.-owned Southern Pacific Hotels earlier this year.

Until the row blew up, Wairakei did not appear to have any particular significance. With its beautiful green, a nearby hotel and its location midway between Auckland and Wellington, it was simply known as a good and cheap place for a round of golf.

SINGAPORE (OCT. 1) - Singapore Telecom and Singapore International Airlines (Sia) must exploit the opportunities arising from the creation of a single European Community market in 1992, a European economist said Monday.

Dr. Jacques Pelkmans, a Senior Research Fellow at the Centre for European Policy Studies in Brussels, said the emerging E.C. telecommunications market, which was previously regulated, will be "huge and will become even bigger".

Pelkmans told reporters that Singapore Telecom, having done an excellent job here, "will be able to export to Europe its equipment and services".

The creation of the Single Market also means the possibility of Sia gaining greater access to European cities, with the liberalisation of the E.C. air transport industry after 1992.

On the prospects of Eastern Europe, Pelkmans said "there is a potential market for consumer goods such as compact discs, leather and sports equipment, and industrial products like footwear and pharmaceuticals".

But he warned Singapore companies "not to be too hasty in going into Eastern Europe because of the institutional backwardness there and lack of economic and political safeguards there".

CAPE TOWN (OCT. 1) - Broad divisions within Nelson Mandela's African National Congress manifested themselves at the weekend when the ANC held its first two regional congresses in the country in 30 years, ANC sources said.

In the Western Cape region, the main bone of contention was whether individuals should be allowed to hold leadership positions in both the ANC and its main ally, the South African Communist Party (SACP), the sources said.

But in the Pretoria-Witwatersrand-Vereenigin g (PWV) industrial region, which includes Johannesburg, heated exchanges took place on the question of the ANC's ongoing talks with the government.

A powerful faction wanted the ANC to break off the talks until the government had ended the violence currently ravaging black townships near Johannesburg, the sources told Agence France-Presse.

Fiery debate at a hall in Alexandra black township outside Johannesburg saw the congress eventully decide to refer all issues back to local branches for reconsideration.

Among other issues to be debated by the branches is a whether to back the NEC's August 6 announcement that it was suspending the ANC's 29-year armed struggle against the Pretoria government.

A related matter is the NEC's response to recent violence and government "Iron Fist" steps to end it.

Close on 800 people have being killed in pitched battles since August 13 in black townships surrounding Johannesburg between ANC-backed township residents and Zulu migrants loyal to Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party.

Mr. Mandela has sharply criticised the government's steps to curb the bloodletting, including curfews and the fitting of light machine-guns to police vehicles, as designed to protect the security forces and not residents.

And young ANC "comrades", who have been at the forefront of many of the clashes, have called on the organization to supply them with arms and to mobilise its army, Umkhonto we Sizwe, into defence units.

But sources said the issue likely to cause the most heated debate when PWV delegates meet again on October 27 and 28 is a growing clamour from rank-and-file members for the removal of Mr. Mandela's controversial wife Winnie from the post of head of the ANC's welfare department.

Mrs. Mandela, who is a qualified social worker but who has not practised her profession for years, was appointed by the ANC leadership to the post in July, a move which angered ANC social workers and led to accusations of nepotism.

An Attorney General decision on September 17 to prosecute her in connection with the kidnapping and assault of murdered child activist Stompie Moeketsi Seipei has added to fears that the integrity of the profession will be harmed.

At Bellville near here, meanwhile, a looming split between the ANC and the SACP in the Western Cape region was averted at a two-day congress when senior SACP official Cheryl Carolus pulled out of the leadership battle.

After long-time ANC activist Christmas Tinto eventually emerged as ANC president for the region, the congress passed a resolution reaffirming "the fighting alliance between the ANC and the SACP".

The two organisations, which have together formed the backbone of the struggle against the white minority Pretoria government's race policies, were legalised in February after bans lasting 30 years for the ANC and 40 years for the SACP.

Nine key SACP officials, including general secretary Joe Slovo, hold posts on the ANC's National Executive Committee (NEC) and Mr. Mandela, ANC Deputy President, has repeatedly stressed the close ties between the two movements.

Less controversial measures, adopted by the Western Cape delegates and likely to be endorsed those in the PWV, include the establishment of an ANC radio station and newspaper inside the country, and a decision to back conservation of the environment as national ANC policy.

The Western Cape congress also resolved to launch a campaign against the violence it said the government and "third forces" were unleashing.

Mr. Mandela, who claims that "death squads" comprising rightwingers and members of the security forces are orchestrating the violence, has asked the government for an urgent "summit" on the issue with the ANC this week.

The campaign would involve setting up "defense committees" and would culminate in a mass march and rally in Cape Town on November 4, the Western Cape congress resolution said.

Tel Aviv (OCT. 1) - A military court Monday found four soldiers guilty of causing grievous bodily harm to two Palestinians at the start of the intifada in October 1987.

Military observers said the ruling could have dire consequences for senior army officers and former defence minister Itzhak Rabin who were implicated in giving what the court termed ''willfully illegal orders''.

In an 80-page verdict the Southen District Military court found the soldiers had beaten two Palestinians in Gaza's El Bureij refugee camp in the first weeks of the intifada, one of whom later died.

The court said the four defendants, including a major and lieutenant, had complied with or issued clearly illegal orders and they now face maximum sentences of 20 years, if their planned appeal is rejected. The sentence is due to be handed down on October 24.

Evidence given during the protracted trial implicated senior military officers and Rabin in the orders to beat Palestinians as punishment for participating in disturbances, and the guilty verdict immediately led for calls for their prosecution.

Left-wing lawmakers Yossi Sarid and Dedi Zucker of the Citizen's Rights Movement called on the army's advocate general Brigadier Amnon Strasnov to open investigations against the senior figures, while Ya'ir Tsaban of the socialist Mapam faction told Israel Radio that the verdict ''opened a pandora's box'' which would implicate the army's top officers until the truth was revealed.

COLOMBO (OCT. 1) - A fresh wave of violence in eastern Sri Lanka left at least 14 people dead including nine civilians, as Colombo lifted a curfew in the rebel stronghold of northern Jaffna, officials said Monday.

Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) rebels killed nine Sinhalese villagers early Monday in eastern Ampara district, a military spokesman here said, adding that government troops shot dead five guerrillas in the region.

Heavily armed rebels raided the Sinhalese village of Peruwalatalawa and killed six men, two women and a child, the spokesman said. Three others were admitted to hospital.

An official said the LTTE split into two groups to enable one gang to fight off the homeguards - Colombo-armed and trained villagers - while the other carried out the attack.

Colombo has charged the Tigers with killing hundreds of Sinhalese civilians since 1983 when a separatist campaign by activists within the minority Tamil community developed into bloody ethnic violence.

The Sinhalese, who constitute more than 70 percent of Sri Lanka's 16 million population, are in the minority in the northeast where one third of the island's one million Moslems also live.

Teheran (OCT. 1) - The Teheran newspaper Jomhoori Islami said Monday the death threat against Indian-born British author Salman Rushdie is unchanged despite the normalisation of relations between England and Iran.

The paper stressed that Iran has not retracted a single move, but that London had been forced to back down having recognised that it was isolated.

''The Britons must appreciate the real value of this opportunity,'' the paper commented. It was now up to Britain to demonstrate that it sincerely wanted a better relationship with Iran.

The late Iranian religious leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, sentenced Rushdie to death in Februry 1989 for his novel The Satanic Verses which many Moslems considered to be blasphemous. Rushdie has been in hiding since.

BRUSSELS (OCT. 1) - The European Economic Community on Monday accused Washington of dragging its feet in international negotiations on liberalising air and sea transport.

European Commission vice-president Frans Andriessen pointed out that it was the United States which had called for a liberalisation of international trade in services from the start of the current General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) talks in 1986.

"You can judge our surprise, therefore, to be told at this late stage by the U.S. representatives that some services sectors may have to be excluded from the toughest disciplines of most favoured nations and national treatment," Mr. Andriessen said in speech to be given in New York, a text of which was released here.

The clause on most favoured nation status implies that an advantage offered one country must be offered to all others, while that of national treatment says that EEC companies, for example, would receive the same treatment in the United States as their U.S. competitors.

Mr. Andriessen, who heads the EEC delegation in the Uruguay Round of GATT talks, due to end in December, also urged in his speech to the U.S. Council for International Business that Washington make more effort to open its markets.

He called for measures similar to those to be taken by the EEC in telecommunications, public contracts and standards.

BEIJING (OCT. 1) - Premier Li Peng, pegged by many as the fall guy for the Beijing massacre and for China's economic stagnation, has defied the odds and his critics to survive at the top.

Strangely, the man held largely responsible for his country's international isolation because of his role in the June 1989 crackdown now appears to be one of the main beneficiaries of Beijing's return to respectability.

China has gained much by its support for U.N. resolutions against Iraq and by its conciliatory gestures towards a settlement to the Cambodian conflict.

As top leader Deng Xiaoping fades from power at the age of 86, the 62-year-old Mr. Li is emerging as a key figure in a triumvirate joining him with President Yang Shangkun and Communist Party General Secretary Jiang Zemin.

The authorities continue to portray Mr. Jiang, an apparatchik largely devoid of charisma, as the core of the leadership, but conflicting stances taken by various officials attest to a continuing power struggle.

"In a democracy, Mr. Li would find himself in an untenable position because he is extremely unpopular," a Western diplomat said.

But his presence in the leadership is directly linked with the Beijing regime's survival. He is still assured, at least for now, of support from the communist old guard that is convinced of socialism's supremacy.

With memories still fresh of pro-democracy protestors calling for Mr. Li's resignation last year, his benefactors are still eager to make sure the premier is not ridiculed, as a recent slip-up revealed.

At the Asian Games opening here September 22, millions of Chinese television viewers saw an embarrassed Mr. Li caught on camera without his own "Pan Pan," the Games panda mascot, unlike the other leaders in the official grandstand.

Two days later, the media in a country where symbols often carry more weight than words found it necessary to explain why Mr. Li was caught without his own Pan Pan.

Mr. Li was not forgotten when the stuffed mascots were being passed out, the media said, he simply gave his panda to someone else.

LONDON (OCT. 1) - British retail sales fell two percent in August from the July level, the Central Statistical Office said Monday, revising an initial estimate of a 1.6 percent fall.

The revised figure gave a year on year rise of only 0.1 percent, against an initial estimate of a 0.4 percent increase.

The stagnation in retail sales under the weight of interest rates at 15 per cent which have been in place for almost a year have reined in a trend of rapidly-rising consumer spending.

Retail sales rose six percent in volume terms in 1986, 6.2 percent in 1987, 5.4 percent in 1988 and only two percent last year.

But the retail sales figures take into account only about a third of household spending and do not include money spent on buying cars or on services.

According to other official figures released Monday, consumer credit issued in August stood at 3.7 billion pounds (6.98 billion dollars), against 3.9 billion (7.35 billion dollars) in July.

PARIS (OCT. 1) - OPEC oil production rose 2.5 million barrels a day in September over the August level to 22.4 million barrels a day, virtually its level before the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti production to the market, a specialist review said Monday.

The 22.4 million bd output was close to the 22.5 million bd production ceiling set by the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2 sparked international sanctions, depriving the market of some four million barrels a day.

The estimates in the specialist review Petrostrategies published in Paris were higher than September figures from the International Energy Agency (IEA), which put OPEC output at 22 million bd, against 19.9 million in August.

"Some countries are doing better than was expected a few weeks ago," Petrostrategies said.

It cited notably Nigeria whose production had risen from 1.8 million bd to 1.95 million and could hit two million in the final quarter of the year,

Iran with production up to 3.4 million bd in September from 2.9 million in July and the United Arab Emirates, above two million bd and capable of going higher.

Saudi Arabia's current 7.5 million bd could rise to 7.7 million in the fourth quarter, Petrostrategies said.

OPEC production could be between 22.2 and 22.8 million bd in October-December, it added.

PRAGUE (OCT.1) - Czechoslovakia will shortly establish diplomatic relations with Saudi Arabia, President Vaclav Havel said Monday.

Mr. Havel also said he had invited the Emir of Kuwait Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah to visit Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Havel, speaking to journalists, said he had agreed to establish diplomatic ties with Saudi Arabia during a meeting with Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal at the United Nations' World Summit for Children in New York where he also met the exiled Kuwaiti leader.

Sheikh Jaber has been in exile since the Iraqi invasion of his country on August 2.

"This diplomatic move is important for our country for obvious reasons," said President Havel alluding to his country's oil supply problems.

President Havel recently announced that Czechoslovakia was ready to send 170 chemical warfare specialists to back the international troop deployment in Saudi Arabia.

LONDON (OCT. 1) - Brent North Sea crude prices slipped back in London on Monday on profit-taking in the wake of last week's rise to their highest levels in 10 years as a result of the Gulf crisis, dealers said.

Brent for November delivery was quoted at 38.75 dollars a barrel in early afternoon trading, against 39.45 dollars at Friday's close.

Signs that the United States and the International Energy Agency (IEA) were ready to take compensatory measures if an oil shortage materialised had probably contributed to the fall, said Simon Irwin of Kleinwort Benson.

U.S. President George Bush said last week that he would release five million barrels of U.S.-held strategic stocks in an exercise aimed mainly at ensuring that the mechanism for releasing such stocks worked well.

The IEA meanwhile urged its members at a meeting last week to be ready to draw on their stocks if supplies fell short.

A slight easing of fears on developments in the Gulf crisis after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called for dialogue to seek a realistic and equitable solution was also a contributory factor in the easing of Brent prices.

LAGOS (OCT. 1) - Hundreds of prisoners are to be freed in Nigeria to mark the 30th anniversary of the country's independence from British rule on October 1, 1960, the authorities have announced.

The military governor of Lagos state, Colonel Raji Rasaki, has already set free 244 prisoners, the local press said here Monday.

The government of Oyo state has announced it is to free another 67 convicts, and the remaining 19 states in Nigeria are expected to follow suit, the press reports said.

But the federal government of General Ibrahim Babangida is keeping the independence celebrations low-key.

The general said in a radio and television address Monday: "We have a long way to go to rid our land of poverty, inequality, ethnicity and bigotry."

The official newspaper New Nigerian took a similar tone in a front-page editorial. "Thirty years after throwing off the yoke of British imperialism, there is little to celebrate," it said.

The newspaper went on: "The fact that the country is still an indivisible territorial entity is remarkable judging from the grim trials and travails of nationhood ... civil war, communal riots, religious intolerance, coups."

But the New Nigerian added that this achievement paled into insignificance compared to the "ethnicity, religious intolerance, bureaucratic graft, all orchestrated by a self-serving elite" that had characterised the last 30 years.

BUDAPEST (OCT. 1) - A second round of municipal elections will have to be organised in Hungary's major cities because the turnout in Sunday's vote failed to reach the required 40 percent minimum.

There will be no minimum turnout requirement in the second round likely to be held in mid-October.

In most of the country's 2,930 cities of less than 10,000 residents, however, turnout was high enough at an average 47 percent for the election to be valid so no second round will be necessary. In these cities, independent candidates gained 80 percent of the vote.

Political commentators said the result was a double failure for Prime Minister Jozsef Antall's Democratic Forum which failed to mobilise the electorate behind its privatization policies and lost ground to the SZDSZ, the alliance of free democrats.

The SZDSZ won some 17 percent of the vote against the 15 percent won by the Democratic Forum, according to early returns.

In Budapest, where a turnout of just 37.4 percent invalidated the election, the SZDSZ won 31.43 percent ahead of Democratic Forum's 24.85 percent and the Young Democrats 17.67 percent.

Observers said the low turnout pointed to Hungarians' boredom with politics and their irritation at the country's continuing high rate of inflation. Although turnout was massive in the nation's first free elections last March which toppled the communist party, most Hungarians have not seen any improvement in their living conditions since then.

For many, life is more expensive -- a new round of price increases for basic necessities was introduced Monday -- and their wages have not risen.

An SZDSZ spokesman, philosopher Jan Kis, called on "all political parties to reflect on the lessons of this election, the repercussions of which could jeopardize the legitimacy of our democratic instutions."

Mr. Kis said that in small towns "the choice was more personal and the stakes much higher."

A Democratic Forum leader, Sandor Lezsak, stressed the problems faced by Hungary's "infant democracy" explaining that Hungarians who lived under an authoritarian regime for 40 years did not yet know what local government was about.

COPENHAGEN (OCT 1) - The Danish budget for 1991 will show almost double the originally-forecast deficit as a result of the Gulf crisis and international economic stagnation, the finance ministry said here Monday.

The 1991 deficit will be between 12 billion and 15 billion kroner (two billion to 2.5 billion dollars) higher than the 16.1 billion kroner (2.7 billion dollars) forecast before the Gulf crisis began to bite.

The new forecast sets the deficit at between 28 billion and 31 billion kroner (4.6 billion and 5.1 billion dollars), but the ministry warned it could be as high as 38 billion kroner (6.3 billion dollars) if proposed savings of 7.7 billion kroner are not achieved.

The budget is expected to show a deficit of between 22 billion and 24 billion kroner (3.6 billion and four billion dollars) this year.

Finance Minister Henning Dyremose was quoted however as saying in an interview published Monday that the deficit "should not blind us and prevent us from realising that the Danish economy is healthy and on the right track."

Calling for tight control of public spending, Mr. Dyremose said that the government "would energetically pursue moves to restore the health of the public sector" through redundancies and early retirement even at a time of increasing unemployment.

The national statistics institute said Monday that the level of unemployment had risen to 9.9 percent in August against 9.7 percent in July and 9.4 per cent in August last year, according to seasonally-adjusted figures.

Prime Minister Poul Schluter has threatened to call an early election if parliament votes even a small increase in public spending when it votes on the budget in December.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) - America West Airlines announced Monday it had signed contracts for the acquisition of up to 118 Airbus A320s, a deal potentially worth more than two billion dollars.

The U.S. carrier said in a statement it had arranged for firm orders to be placed for 48 of the fuel-efficient, European-built aircraft, with options for another 44.

Besides America West, parties to the transaction include Airbus Industries, Guiness Peat Aviation (GPA), Kawasaki Enterprises amd International Aero Engines (IAE).

All of the A320s will be equipped with IAE V2500 engines, and seat 148 passengers.

America West plans to have A320s in service by January 1991 and to have 16 of them in the air by the middle of next year, all of them leased from GPA, an aircraft leasing company based in Ireland.

An additional ten aircraft will be leased from a GPA affiliate.

Kawasaki will act as financial lessor for 24 of the A320s on firm order, to be delivered between 1992 and 1996.

Delivery of the remaining A320s will be begin in 1996.

LONDON (OCT. 1) - Copper prices were on a downward path here Monday, on concern at the extent of the coming slowdown in world economic activity, traders said.

Three months' copper was quoted at 1,432 pounds per ton in after hours kerb trading, unchanged from afternoon ring deals and against 1,462 on Friday.

Sterling's strength against a weaker dollar contributed to the gain for the pound-quoted metal.

Lead, also quoted in sterling, fell to 417 pounds per ton on the kerb against 416 on the ring and 424 on Friday.

Nickel weakened, quoting at 9,550 dollars per ton on the kerb against 9,480 on the ring and 9,775 on Friday, but aluminium held relatively steady, quoting at 1,830 dollars per ton on the kerb against 1,828 on the ring and 1,825 on Friday.

LUSAKA (OCT 1) - Zambian pro-democracy activists, campaigning for the right to form a political party, on Monday accused police of bias for refusing to issue them permits to hold political meetings.

Vernon Mwaanga, spokesman for the Movement for Multi-Party Democracy (MMD), warned of civil disobedience if their campaign continued to be frustrated.

Earlier this month, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda announced that multi-party elections would be held next year in this hitherto one-party state.

But Mr. Mwaanga said the authorities were preventing opposition groupings from holding meetings to organise for the elections.

He told journalists that a MMD meeting at the weekend had to be moved to another venue because of police pressure, and that police had refused permits for meetings to local committees in several parts of the country.

Under Zambia's state of emergency, meetings of more than five people require police permission.

"The police are acting on the instruction of UNIP (the ruling United National Independence Party of Mr. Kaunda). We condemn this reversal of the move towards democracy," he said.

If this continued, he said, "our people will feel frustrated and it will be very difficult for us to prevent them from embarking on a course of civil disobedience."

The MMD is due to hold a convention this weekend at Lusaka's Mulungushi conference hall to discuss forming a party. But Mr. Mwaanga said UNIP party officials had urged the hall's management to cancel the venue.

He added that his movement would demand the formation of an interim government to supervise the forthcoming elections. "We do not trust the UNIP government to oversee free and fair elections," he said.

MOSCOW (OCT. 1) - The Russian Federation, the largest Soviet republic, has decided to delay the implementation of its radical reforms to introduce a market economy, faced with confusion on the issue in the Soviet parliament, it was reported here Monday.

The Federation had said that its "500-day" plan to move from a planned to a market economy would begin October 1.

But the republic's deputy prime minister Gennadi Filchin told the unofficial news agency Interfax on Monday that the Russian Federation parliament had been "forced" to delay the programme until November 1.

Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin and his advisers have apparently stepped down in the face of the problems they would face if they pushed ahead with the republic's reforms while at national level the picture remains confused, with the Soviet parliament having failed to reach agreement.

As disagreement over whether to adopt more radical reforms supported by President Mikhail Gorbachev or a more moderate programme put forward by the governmnt of Nikolai Ryzhkov continued last week, the Soviet parliament gave Mr. Gorbachev decree-making powers to push ahead with reforms.

But parliament has also been asked to come up with a compromise formula combining elements of the radical plan and the government proposal.

If the Russian Federation had gone ahead with its reforms from Monday as originally planned, an area which has two thirds of the country's resources, companies and population would have been operating out of step with the national government on such basic economic matters as pricing, privatisation of companies and of land, and the tax system.

The federation parliament has not formally voted on the postponement, but will do so this week, spokesman Mikhail Poltoranin said.

The republic's prime minister, Ivan Silayev, will put to deputies on Saturday a series of measures aimed at stabilising the economy and a law on property is in preparation, the official TASS news agency said Monday.

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (OCT. 1) - The Philippine military stepped up security Monday around two U.S. military bases in response to a strike by 22,000 Filipino civilian workers, official sources said.

U.S. military spokesmen said Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base were operating normally, even though one American serviceman had been attacked by strikers Saturday.

At Subic Naval Base west of here, violence erupted less than two hours after the strike began late Saturday when a group of strikers attacked an off-duty American serviceman who had jeered at the pickets, witnesses said.

The unidentified soldier was rushed to the base hospital with a bloodied face, they added.

Philippine military officials said uniformed security men and intelligence operatives had been deployed in all picket sites to stop any attempt by communist insurgents to infiltrate the strikers' ranks and instigate violence.

Communist insurgents, who oppose the presence of U.S. bases in this country, have threatened to mount attacks against the bases in the past. They have killed eight U.S. military personnel since 1987 and bombed a U.S. radio transmitting tower near Clark last month.

The military also said two platoons of troops had been dispatched to Clark to augment existing joint U.S.-Philippine patrols of the base perimeter.

"Hopefully the strike will be short, but all U.S. facilities have contingency plans and all missions will continue to be carried out," Lieutenant Commander Kevin McCrea, spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, said.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (OCT 1) - A Soviet nuclear bomb has remained in its underground shaft for nearly a year after a test was postponed four times, the environmental movement Greenpeace claimed in a statement here Monday.

One of its protest ships, Greenpeace, is in the Soviet port of Arkangelsk before sailing Tuesday for the nuclear test site at the Arctic island of Novaya Zemlya.

Greenpeace New Zealand, in a statement quoting protest coordinator Steve Shallhorn aboard Greenpeace, said the weapon has been in an underground shaft since December 1989.

"Tests originally scheduled for December 1989, March 1990, May 1990 and September 1990 were all cancelled for a variety of political reasons, including the Washington and Helsinki summit meetings," the statement said.

"There is a nuclear explosion just waiting to happen out there," it quoted Mr. Shallhorn as saying. "Now our ship will be sailing to Novaya Zemlya in the hope of stopping nuclear testing forever."

Greenpeace said test devices are transported by plane to the island's airport at Belushya.

"When a test is imminent, two civilian vessels operated by the Arkangelsk Shipping Company leave port and sail to Novaya Zemlya," the statement said.

"The two ships, Bukowina and Tartaria, are prepared to evacuate the base personnel in the event of a release of radioactivity."

Until 1989 Soviet tests were held at Semipalatinsk in Kazakhstan, although local opposition prompted the government to close the site by 1993, it said.

PARIS (OCT 1) - French auto maker Renault warned Monday that it was expecting this year's results to be much poorer than those of 1989, when it made a net consolidated profit of 9.29 billion francs (1.75 billion dollars).

Renault president Raymond Levy would not give detailed figures but said that profit would be down by "more than eight percent" and "no doubt comparable with that of Volkswagen."

The West German auto maker said last month that its profit fell 16.5 per- cent in the first half of this year over the same period of 1989.

Mr. Levy said the French group's poor performance came from problems specifically linked to Renault, saying it was facing difficulties in Spain, Colombia and Argentina.

He also cited Renault's goods vehicles division's bid to acquire 100 per cent of its U.S. subsidiary Mack Trucks -- which Renault said Monday had succeeded - and the fall of the truck market in the United States and Europe.

The new Renault Clio car had also involved heavy investment, and the market for the Renault 5 had suffered as many customers had preferred not to buy the latter, waiting instead for the new model to come onto the market.

The company was expecting the auto market to shrink by between three and five percent next year "but the future does not worry me," Mr. Levy said.

NAIROBI (OCT 1) - A former Kenyan information minister Monday blasted a group of British MPs for saying they saw no evidence of political turbulence on a recent visit to Kenya, charging they had been "led by the nose."

Ramoki Achieng Oneko, in a letter to five Labour MPs who came here last month, said: "The Kenyan people were amazed at your statements which in effect alleged that Kenya is a peaceful place and that there is no tension because you did not see roadblocks or troops on the streets."

Anti-government riots erupted here in July after opposition figures who had led calls for multi-party democracy in one-party Kenya were detained without trial. At least 22 people were killed.

Mr. Oneko told the MPs that they had been brought here "for a propaganda campaign and tour," and had been "dishonourably led by the nose on a fact-finding mission."

One of the MPs, Frank Haynes, was quoted in press reports here as saying on his return to London that "the situation as we saw it, admittedly from a government perspective, belied many of the stories we had read in the foreign news media."

Mr. Oneko, however, said: "The present situation in Kenya is that there is no accountability in government and therefore no democracy." The MPs had been misled into thinking Kenya was calm because the opposition "has always strived for peaceful change," he said.

He said he was writing to the MPs "as a prisoner of conscience having spent one quarter of my lifetime in gaol without trial."

He was first detained in 1969 after resigning his cabinet post to join former vice-president Oginga Odinga's opposition Kenya People's Union, which was later banned.

"I am still a prisoner of conscience because I am still a victim of injustice and political oppression," he said.

President Daniel arap Moi's government, he said, was guilty of "corruption, violation of human rights, rigging of elections and general political and economic mismanagement."

JOHANNESBURG (OCT 1) - "Unreasonable demands" by the Justice Department are delaying the return to South Africa of up to 30,000 exiled members of Nelson Mandela's African National Congress, a senior ANC source said Monday.

Under the August 6 Pretoria Minute accord between the white minority government and the black nationalist ANC, exiles scattered across Africa are from October 1 to be granted special indemnity from prosecution for previous crimes against the state -- including leaving the country illegally.

On Sunday, Mr. Mandela told a press conference at his home in Soweto that he did not expect exiles to start returning in large numbers.

"The government does expect to be supplied with certain information on each exile (to enable) it to make a decision on that exile," he said.

But the source told Agence France-Presse that the "certain information" referred to by Mr. Mandela is in fact the subject of heated talks between an ANC working group and the Justice Department.

He said the department appeared to be deliberately ignoring a clause in the Minute which allows indemnity to be dealt with "in categories of people and not on an individual basis".

"It is demanding that each exile complete a form which requires detailed information as to the exile's past, in which unit of the ANC he or she was trained and what he or she did before leaving the country," the source said.

"The ANC cannot allow that details relating to our organisation be divulged in such depth."

From 1960 when it was banned until February 2 this year when President Frederik de Klerk lifted the ban, the ANC operated in exile -- mainly from Zambia and other sympathetic neighbouring African states.

In this time, thousands of mainly-young black South Africans fled South Africa to join the organisation, many to be trained as guerrillas in the ANC's army, Umkhonto we Sizwe.

But, the source said, the Justice Department had yet to approve the return of a single person on a list of 3,000 names submitted to it by the ANC two weeks ago.

"The exiles are impatient to return. They just want to come home," he said.

AMMAN (OCT 1) - Jordan banned trucks (lorries) bound for Saudi Arabia and other Gulf countries from crossing its territory from Monday in retaliation for harassment of Jordanian truckers (lorry drivers) at the Saudi border, authoritative sources said.

The Jordanian decision affects all heavy-duty trucks (lorries) transporting goods for Saudi Arabia and the Gulf states from Turkey by way of Syria, the sources said.

Jordan is on the route for the transshipment of goods from Europe to Saudi Arabia.

It is Amman's first move against Saudi Arabia which decided on September 19 to halt oil deliveries to Jordan and later expelled the Jordanian military attache and asked for a reduction of the Jordanian embassy staff in Riyadh.

Jordan responded by recalling its ambassador.

Amman has been subjected to punitive measures by Riyadh for its support of Baghdad in the wake of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The transport industry has been the most adversely affected by the Saudi measures.

On Sunday, authorities turned back at the border with Saudi Arabia 25 Jordanian refrigerated trucks (lorries) carrying mostly vegetables to the Gulf.

The heavy-duty haulage workers association said that only 10 per cent of the 1,000-truck (lorry) national fleet which served Saudi Arabia and the other Gulf states have been allowed to cross the border since the start of the Gulf crisis.

NEW YORK (OCT 1) - Foreign Minister David Levy renewed Monday Israel's offer to negotiate directly with the Arabs, but said his country would not pay the price for a settlement of the Gulf crisis.

''The free world should know that Israel will not sacrifice its security as the price of United Nations decisions aimed at safeguarding their economic well-being and freedom,'' he told the U.N. General Assembly.

There have been various proposals in recent weeks, from Iraq and from would-be mediators, to settle the Arab-Israeli dispute, the crisis in the Gulf and other regional conflicts as a package.

Israel was prepared to negotiate without pre-conditions, even if a complete and immediate settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict was impossible. ''We call upon the Arab states to embark upon the road leading to peace and to advance towards it step by step,'' Levy said. However he reiterated the Israel would not negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo). Levy said the Plo practised ''terror'' against Israeli civilians and even Palestinians.

The minister warned Iraq not to carry out its thretesfnrafcrmdtn were to launch such an assault, Israel's response would be ''harsh and painful''.

That did not take away the responsibility of the international community to take ''concerted measures, under the leadership of the United States, to quell this malignant regime which is spreading in the body of humanity'', Levy said.

He charged that both the West and the communist world had built Iraq up in the past. Israel had been guided ''by a farsighted political outlook'' when it sent warplanes nine years ago to destroy an Iraqi nuclear reactor thought to be part of a bomb-making plan.

LAGOS (OCT 1) - Prince Johnson, Liberia's self-proclaimed president and leader of one of two rival rebel armies, has taken over Monrovia's only five-star hotel after murdering the manager, the Nigerian news agency NAN reported on Monday.

Until then, the hotel had been left unscathed through several months of bloody fighting between forces of the late president Samuel Doe and rebel forces.

Prince Johnson, who proclaimed himself president after his forces captured and killed president Doe on September 9, burst into Hotel African a few days ago and shot dead several members of the staff without more ado, NAN said.

He then named a new manager in the person of his girlfriend Julie and downgraded the incumbent manager Michael Doe (no relation to the ex-president) to be her assistant, NAN said.

Johnson then turned his attention to the hotel safe after being assured by Julie that it contained 2.5 million dollars. However on finding only 500 dollars inside, Johnson took the manager up to the fourth floor where he shot him with a burst of machine-gun fire and threw the body out of the window, NAN said.

Prince Johnson heads a breakaway faction of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia whose leader Charles Taylor launched the nine-month-old civil war against the Doe regime.

NEW YORK (OCT 1) - In a final step to German unity, Soviet, U.S., British and French foreign ministers signed a document here Monday renouncing the last remnants of their authority over the two Germanys.

First to sign the agreement was the education minister of East Germany, Hans Joachim Meyer. With less than 30 hours to go before East Germany ceases to exist, the formerly communist nation has no foreign minister any more.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd, French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas and West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher then signed and toasted in sparkling wine.

The New York document applies de-facto parts of the treaty of German unity signed last month in Moscow ending the special powers enjoyed by the victors of World War Two.

The declaration suspending the application of Four-Power rights and responsibilities takes immediate effect while the Moscow treaty does not become legally binding until it has been ratified some time next year by the parliaments of a united Germany and the four powers.

East Germany is to become part of the Federal Republic of Germany as of Wednesday this week, with Genscher foreign minister of all Germany. The last East German foreign minister resigned in a cabinet quarrel and was never replaced.

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, California (OCT 1) - The retired U.S. Air Force general who gave the orders to drop atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki died Monday at the age of 83.

Curtis LeMay, who directed the air attack on Japan at the end of World War II, said later be believed the atomic bombs had not been necessary to force Japan's surrender.

He died of a heart attack at the 22nd Strategic Hospital at March Air Force Base, said Sergeant Steve Mahnke.

"We felt that our incendiary bombings had been so successful that Japan would collapse before we invaded," he said in 1985.

WASHINGTON (OCT 1) - The White House is urging Congress to temporarily lift a requirement that Pakistan forgo developing nuclear weapons as a condition for receiving U.S. aid, sources said Monday.

The White House hopes Pakistani elections slated for October 24 will usher in a new government that will curb or roll back Pakistan's nuclear weapons program, said administration and congressional sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

But legislators in the House of Representatives, including foreign aid subcommittee chairman David Obey, a Wisconsin Democrat, were cool to the request.

U.S. aid to Pakistan that last year totalled 580 million dollars technically ended Monday, the beginning of the 1991 fiscal year, because Mr. Bush had not certified that Pakistan does not possess a nuclear bomb.

Legislative sources with access to top Pakistani officials said there were fears that Pakistan had produced enriched uranium that could be used for a bomb -- the point that many consider the tripwire for ending aid to Pakistan.

The waiver would mean "we are, in effect, announcing to the world that Pakistan has nuclear weapons, and we just don't care," said Leonard Spector, a weapons proliferation anaylyst at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The White House is looking for a six-month to year-long waiver, according to one official, and hopes to raise the issue as part of the Senate's foreign aid bill on Tuesday, or failing that, as part of another bill.

The administration hopes the hiatus would allow the United States time to "set up a dialoge with the new government," an administration official said.

The government of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto was dissolved by the country's president on August 6 amid charges of corruption, ending her 20-month rule.

NEW YORK (OCT 1) - A ministerial meeting of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE) opened here Monday with U.S. President George Bush calling for the creation of "a new transatlantic partnership."

This meeting is setting the stage for a November CSCE summit in Paris designed to set the strategic foundations for a new Europe.

"Our challenge now is to keep pace with the tremendous political transformations that have changed the face of Europe -- to create a CSCE that can consolidate these great gains for freedom and bring East and West together " Mr. Bush said as he opened the conference.

Representatives from 35 countries -- all of Europe except Albania, plus the United States and Canada -- are considering an array of proposals aimed at strengthening and institutionalizing the CSCE.

Mr. Bush supported recommendations calling for a center for the prevention of conflict to reduce the risk of war by accident or miscalculation, a permanent secretariat, and creating an elections office and a parliament.

He urged the negotiators to redouble their efforts to reach an agreement to reduce conventional forces in Europe (CFE) and have it ready for signing for the November 19-21 CSCE summit in Paris.

Soviet Foreign Mininster Eduard Shevardnadze meanwhile told reporters after a meeting with Mr. Bush that he was optimistic about prospects for a strategic arms limitation treaty (START).

"It is my feeling that some of the major START issues will be resolved even while I'm here in New York," said Mr. Shevardnadze.

OTTAWA (OCT. 2) - The Canadian Government introduced a bill in the House of Commons Monday to privatize Petro-Canada, Canada's second-biggest petroleum firm.

Regulatory Affairs Minister of State John McDermid said a first offering of 15 per cent of the firm's shares would go on the market, but probably not till next year.

The bill would ensure that 75 percent of the shares are held by Canadians, and that no individual could hold more than 10 percent of the shares.

Petro-Canada, which had a turnover last year of 6.8 billion dollars (5.88 billion U.S.) was created in 1975 after the first oil crisis to increase Canada's participation in an industry largely dominated by U.S. firms.

It ranks between Imperial Oil, the biggest petroleum firm here, and Shell Canada.

The Progressive Conservative Party of Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has privatized 18 state firms since 1984, including Air Canada.

LONDON (OCT. 2) - The board of directors of Polly Peck International admitted on Monday that the British conglomerate was suffering from liquidity problems, in the first statement released by the group since trading in its shares was suspended on the London Stock Exchange on September 20.

The board nonetheless declared itself certain that the group's growth prospects would be fully reestablished once the cash-flow problems were resolved.

The sixteen page statement, which a Polly Peck spokesman said had been accepted by the Stock Exchange, said that the board "is not aware of any business reason for the collapse of the share price of the company."

The statement also denied allegations that group chairman and chief executive Asil Nadir, a Turkish Cypriot-born businessman, had been involved in irregularities related to stock market transactions.

"The board is aware that many rumours circulated in the market during the course of the morning of September 20, ranging from a claim that Mr. Nadir had been assassinated to a suggestion that the company had lost a substantial amount of money in Turkish bonds, which was also untrue."

The board said that it was providing fraud investigators with information and documentation.

The board also said that no link existed between Polly Peck and South Audley Management, a company which administers the Nadir family interests and which has recently been the subject of an investigation by the Serious Fraud Office.

Earlier Monday, the Financial Times reported that Polly Peck was looking for a rescue package from Turkish banks to save it from a liquidity crisis.

Seoul (OCT. 1) EFE - South Korean President Roh Tae Woo Monday said the establishment of full diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union signaled the beginning of the end of his country's cold war with North Korea.

"North Korea has come to the end of its isolationist policies, and it will not be able to resist the wave of change" taking place in the communist world, Roh said at an Armed Forces Day ceremony.

The foreign ministers of the Soviet Union and South Korea, Eduard Shevardnadze and Choi Ho-joong, announced Sunday at the United Nations that the two countries would cement their relations with the exchange of ambassadors next January.

The move was seen as a major blow for communist North Korea, which has opposed Moscow's move towards a rapprochement with Seoul.

Korea was divided at the end of World War II with Soviet forces occupying the north and U.S. forces in the south, and Moscow supported North Korea in the 1950-53 war with U.S.-backed South Korea.

The Soviet Union and South Korea began working towards normalizing relations last June when Roh met with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and agreed to set up economic ties.

The Soviet Union has sought to improve relations with South Korea in order to open up bilateral trade and economic cooperation to help revive the battered Soviet economy.

North Korean President Kim Il Sung, who had counted on Moscow and Beijing as being his main allies, felt threatened by the move and repeatedly expressed his irritation at the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, trade links between South Korea and China have been increasing daily and there were rumors that in October the two countries might open commercial offices that would also act as consulates.

"Inter-Korean relations are about to reach a moment of change," Roh, who appeared to be satisfied at the results of his foreign policies, said Monday.

But he added that the South Korean Army had to remain on alert as +conflict and tension continue to cause problems for relations between Korea's divided parts+.

"We are doing everything possible to encourage North Korea to move towards an open world and go down the road of dialogue, exchange and cooperation," Roh said.

In mid October the two Korea's foreign ministers are due to meet for the second time in two months, following years of non-existent bilateral relations and broken communication.

The talks are being considered a milestone in reunification efforts.

Beirut (OCT. 1) EFE - Lebanese Defense Minister Albert Mansur vowed Monday to step up a blockade against rebel Gen. Michel Aoun to force him to end his rebellion.

Mansur said the blockade was "the least-harmful measure for the population, because unlike bombardment it doesn't cause bloodshed".

President Elias Hrawi's government imposed the blockade Friday on the Aoun-controlled enclave of Christian East Beirut in a bid to starve the rebels into surrendering.

Government troops have cut off all traffic going into the enclave, except vehicles belonging to the Red Cross, diplomats, or parliamentarians.

On Sunday, some 15,000 Aoun supporters demonstrated in front of the Baabda Presidential Palace, where the general is quartered, to protest the blockade.

The measure has caused an acute shortage of fuel supplies and drastic food price increases in East Beirut, as well as heavy emigration from the enclave.

SAO PAULO (OCT. 1) EFE - Unidentified attackers shot dead a candidate for the Sao Paulo state legislature, the second person to die by gunfire in the campaign for this week's legislative elections, Brazilian police said Monday.

Francisco Cassiano Silva, 38, a candidate of the conservative Progressive Republican Party, was killed Sunday as he entered his office.

His bodyguard, who was wounded in an arm, said the candidate had received death threats by telephone last week.

Cassiano Silva had campaigned as the "people's whip in the Legislative Assembly" and had backed rightist candidate Paulo Maluf for governor of Sao Paulo state.

On Saturday, one person was killed when an unidentified gunman fired indiscrimately at a rally for Sen. Mario Covas, candidate for governor of Sao Paulo for the Brazilian Social Democratic Party.

Elections are scheduled for Wednesday to choose the deputies to the National Congress, a third of the 72-member Senate, and governors and legislatures of Brazil's 26 states.

MEXICO CITY (OCT. 1) EFE - Two small children were killed when a huge swarm of African "killer" bees invaded a playground in the southern Mexican state of Veracruz at the weekend, news reports said Monday.

They said two small boys, aged four and seven, were killed in the town of Tesonapa, where barnyard animals were also stung to death by the million-strong horde.

It was the first fatal bee attack reported since July, when the bodies of a rider and his horse were found in the nearby state of Guerrero. Each had been stung over a thousand times.

Authorities in the Pacific beach resort city of Acapulco, which is also located in Guerrero state, have begun an extensive spraying program to prevent the swarms from forming.

The aggressive, hard-to-kill African insects have been migrating slowly northward since they were introduced to Brazil in the mid-1970s in an attempt to cross-breed them with native insect varieties.

CAIRO, (OCT. 1) XINHUA - OMAN HAS DECIDED TO BOOST ITS OIL PRODUCTION BY A 6 PERCENT INCREASE TO HELP CURB OIL PRICE SHOT-UP, REPORTS REACHING HERE FROM MUSCAT SAID TODAY.

ACCORDING TO AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY AN OMANI PETROLEUM AND MINERALS MINISTRY SPOKESMAN SUNDAY, OMAN HAS PLANNED TO GRADUALLY RAISE ITS OIL OUTPUT FROM 660,000 BARRELS A DAY TO 700,000 BARRELS A DAY OVER THE NEXT THREE MONTHS.

THE SPOKESMAN WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THAT THE MOVE WAS CONSIDERED SEVERAL MONTHS AGO AND HIS COUNTRY INTENDED TO GO AHEAD WITH IT BY THE END OF THIS YEAR.

OMAN IS NOT A MEMBER STATE OF THE ORGANIZATION OF THE PETROLEUM EXPORTING COUNTRIES. IT HAS RESTRICTED ITS OIL OUTPUT SINCE THE OPEC'S JULY FULL MEETING SOLICITED HELP FROM BOTH ITS MEMBER AND NON-MEMBER COUNTRIES TO STABILIZE OIL PRICES OF 21 U.S. DOLLARS A BARREL.

AS THE GULF CRISIS TRIGGERED BY IRAQI AUGUST 2 INVASION OF KUWAIT HAS ELIMINATED FROM THE MARKET 4 MILLION BARRELS A DAY THAT USED TO BE PRODUCED BY IRAQ AND KUWAIT, OIL PRICES HAVE SHOT UP AND ARE NOW IN THE RANGE OF 40 DOLLARS A BARREL FOR SOME GRADES OF CRUDE OIL, THE HIGEST OVER THE PAST 10 YEARS.

OMAN HAS EXPRESSED A HOPE TO SEE OIL PRICES STABALIZE AT A LEVEL OF AROUND 25 DOLLARS A BARREL, WHICH WILL BE EQUITABLE TO BOTH PRODUCERS AND CONSUMERS.

ISLAMABAD (OCT. 1) XINHUA - PAKISTAN WILL RECEIVE A SUPPLEMENTARY AID OF ABOUT ONE BILLION U.S. DOLLARS THIS YEAR FROM TWO WORLD FINANCIAL BODIES AND THE GULF CRISIS FINANCIAL COORDINATION GROUP (GCFCG) TO OVERCOME THE FINANCIAL CRISIS THE COUNTRY IS FACING BECAUSE OF THE GULF CRISIS.

THIS WAS DISCLOSED HERE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON BY PAKISTANI FINANCE MINISTER SARTAJ AZIZ AFTER HIS RETURN FROM A MEETING WITH THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND (IMF) AND THE WORLD BANK OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON LAST WEEK, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL SOURCES HERE TODAY.

THE MINISTER WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THAT HIS MEETING WITH THE TWO FINANCIAL BODIES WAS POSITIVE. HE CATEGORICALLY DENIED REPORTS THAT BOTH IMF AND WORLD BANK HAVE DECIDED NOT TO INCREASE AID TO PAKISTAN.

OUT OF THE ONE BILLION DOLLARS, HE NOTED, HALF WILL BE GIVEN BY IMF AND WORLD BANK AND HALF WILL BE OFFERED BY GCFCG WHICH WAS SET UP BY THE UNITED STATES AFTER THE IRAQI OCCUPATION OF KUWAIT.

THE GCFCG, HE ADDED, HAS RECEIVED 23 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS GIVEN BY SAUDI ARABIA, KUWAIT, JAPAN, GERMANY AND THE EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY.

OUT OF THIS 23 BILLION DOLLARS, ABOUT 12 BILLION DOLLARS WILL GO TO THE UNITED STATES AND THE REST WILL BE DISTRIBUTED AMONG THE 10 WORST-AFFECTED COUNTRIES, WHICH ARE EGYPT, JORDAN, TURKEY, PAKISTAN, BANGLADESH, INDIA, SRI LANKA, THE PHILIPPINES, MOROCCO AND SUDAN, THE SOURCES SAID.

DHAKA (OCT. 1) XINHUA - THE VOLUME OF EXPORTS IN AUGUST FELL BY ABOUT 21 PERCENT AGAINST THAT IN JULY, MAINLY DUE TO THE ABNORMAL SITUATION IN THE MIDDLE EAST AFTER THE IRAQI OCCUPATION OF KUWAIT ON AUGUST 2.

THE EXPORTS OF SHRIMP, FROZEN FOOD, LEATHER AND JUTE GOODS WAS LESS IN QUANTITY IN AUGUST THAN IN JULY, THE FIRST MONTH OF THIS FISCAL YEAR, OFFICIALS WERE QUOTED TODAY AS SAYING.

OFFICIAL RECORDS SHOW THAT BANGLADESH EXPORTED GOODS WORTH 162.85 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN JULY THIS YEAR, BUT IT CAME DOWN TO 129.13 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN AUGUST, SHOWING A DECREASE BY ABOUT 21 PERCENT.

BUT THE OVERALL EXPORT PERFORMANCE DURING THE FIRST TWO MONTHS OF THIS FISCAL YEAR (291.98 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IS SATISFACTORY AS THE EXPORT DURING THE PERIOD EXCEEDED THE AVERAGE TARGET (289 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) BY 1 PERCENT (2.98 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS).

THE EXPORT TARGET FOR THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR HAS BEEN FIXED AT 1,704 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS.

DURING THE CORRESPONDING PERIOD LAST YEAR, THE EXPORT EARNING WAS 263.50 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS, 28.48 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS OR 10.81 PERCENT LESS THAN THE EARNING IN JULY AND AUGUST OF THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS TAKEN SOME MEASURES TO ENSURE THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THAT TARGET, INCLUDING EFFORTS TO EXPAND MARKETS AND INCREASE EXPORTS TO MIDDLE EAST COUNTRIES OTHER THAN IRAQ AND KUWAIT, ARRANGEMENTS TO EXPORT SUCH GOODS AS HAVE BEEN ON DEMAND DUE TO THE GULF CRISIS AND EFFORTS TO FIND ALTERNATIVE MARKETS IN EEC AND OTHER COUNTRIES.

TOKYO (OCT. 1) KYODO - STRONG WITHHOLDING AND CORPORATE TAX REVENUE GROWTH PUSHED NATIONAL TAX REVENUES UP 22.6 PERCENT IN AUGUST FROM A YEAR EARLIER, TOTALING 4,614,762 MILLION YEN, THE FINANCE MINISTRY SAID MONDAY.

THE AUGUST TAX REVENUES BROUGHT CUMULATIVE REVENUES SINCE APRIL, THE FIRST MONTH OF FISCAL 1990, TO 15,277,284 MILLION YEN, A 22.2 PERCENT INCREASE OVER THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR, MINISTRY OFFICIALS SAID.

THE BRISK REVENUE GROWTH CAME AS WITHHOLDING TAX REVENUES JUMPED 21.3 PERCENT TO 1,960,254 MILLION YEN IN A RISE BOOSTED BY PAYMENTS OF INCOME TAXES ON SUMMER BONUSES AND PAYMENTS OF TAXES ON INTEREST ON BANK DEPOSITS AND FIXED-INCOME DEBENTURES, THEY SAID.

THE STRONG GAIN IN WITHHOLDING TAX REVENUES BROUGHT OVERALL INCOME TAX REVENUES UP 20.5 PERCENT TO 2,026,770 MILLION YEN.

GROWTH WAS ALSO CHOPPY IN CORPORATE TAX REVENUES, WHICH SWELLED 10.5 PERCENT TO 1,267,827 MILLION YEN DUE TO TAXES PAID BY TOYOTA MOTOR CORP., WHICH REPORTED RECORD EARNINGS IN THE FISCAL YEAR ENDED ON JUNE 30.

TOYOTA'S TAX PAYMENTS REPRESENTED ROUGHLY TWO-THIRDS OF THE TOTAL CORPORATE TAXES PAID DURING THE MONTH, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIALS.

DESPITE THE STRONG TAX REVENUE GROWTH, A MINISTRY OFFICIAL WARNED THAT REVENUE GROWTH WOULD SLOW IN COMING MONTHS AS THE NEGATIVE EFFECTS OF THE PLUNGE IN STOCK PRICES AND THE SURGE IN OIL PRICES HIT THE ECONOMY.

"THINGS WERE GOOD UNTIL AUGUST," THE OFFICIAL SAID. "SINCE SEPTEMBER, WE'LL SEE THE BAD EFFECTS OF STOCK AND OIL PRICES."

TOKYO (OCT. 1) KYODO - SALES OF CARS, TRUCKS, AND BUSES IN JAPAN INCHED UP 0.3 PERCENT IN SEPTEMBER FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO 503,977 VEHICLES, A RECORD HIGH FOR THE MONTH, THE JAPAN AUTOMOBILE DEALERS' ASSOCIATION SAID MONDAY.

HOWEVER, SALES GROWTH, WHICH AVERAGED 12.0 PERCENT FROM JANUARY THROUGH AUGUST WAS THE LOWEST SINCE FEBRUARY OF LAST YEAR, WHEN SALES FELL 2.3 PERCENT ON AN ANNUAL BASIS.

A NUMBER OF DOMESTIC AUTOMAKERS STRESSED THAT DEMAND WAS NOT ON THE DECLINE AND THAT THE SLACKENED GROWTH WAS DUE IN PART TO SPECIAL FACTORS. THIS SEPTEMBER, FOR EXAMPLE, HAD 1.5 FEWER BUSINESS DAYS THAN SEPTEMBER LAST YEAR.

BUT AN EXECUTIVE AT A MEDIUM-SIZED AUTOMAKER SAID, "IT WAS HIGHLY UNLIKELY THAT THE SHARP UPTREND IN AUTO SALES WOULD CONTINUE," GIVEN THE PLUNGE IN TOKYO STOCK PRICES AND SKYROCKETING INTEREST RATES.

THE ROBUST RISE IN SALES HAS BEGUN TO SHOW SIGNS OF DECAY, A CLEAR INDICATION THAT AUTUMN HAS BEGUN TO SET IN WITHIN THE AUTO INDUSTRY, INDUSTRY SOURCES SAID.

CAR SALES SAGGED 2.4 PERCENT IN SEPTEMBER TO 350,928 VEHICLES. OF THIS TOTAL, CARS ABOVE 2000 CC ENGINE DISPLACEMENT JUMPED 38.2 PERCENT TO 46,167 VEHICLES. HOWEVER, SALES OF SMALLER CARS WITH 651-2000 CC ENGINE SIZE, WHICH ACCOUNT FOR OVER HALF THE MARKET, FELL 6.5 PERCENT TO 304,761 VEHICLES, A MAJOR REASON FOR THE ANEMIC GROWTH IN OVERALL VEHICLE SALES.

SALES OF TRUCKS INCREASED 7.2 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO 150,975 VEHICLES AND BUSES 3.0 PERCENT TO 2,074.

SALES BY TOYOTA MOTOR CORP., JAPAN'S LARGEST AUTOMAKER, DIPPED 1.6 PERCENT TO 192,816 VEHICLES. HONDA MOTOR CO., ISUZU MOTORS LTD., AND DAIHATSU MOTOR CO. ALSO POSTED YEAR-ON-YEAR DROPS IN SALES.

NISSAN, THE COUNTRY'S NO. 2 AUTOMAKER, EDGED UP 1.3 PERCENT. SALES BY MAZDA MOTOR CORP. AND MITSUBISHI MOTORS CORP. ROSE 6.8 PERCENT AND 6.1 PERCENT, RESPECTIVELY.

FROM THE BULLS:

"We are at a time when you shouldn't only have your shopping list out, you should be buying," says MICHAEL SCHONBERG, chief investment strategist for CHASE INVESTORS MANAGEMENT CORP. (WSJ, 10/1)

"At 2400 the market has discounted every reasonable bearish possibility," says the "Callard Report," where editor DAVID KLINEMAN sees a fairly valued Dow at 2912. "[A] market which reflects every worst case possibility is probably at or near a major bottom." Recommended stocks include: RIGHT MANAGEMENT CONSULTANTS and TOYS R US. (CNBC "World Business", 10/1)

The market just "ran out of selling," says THOMAS GALLAGHER, chief equity trader at OPPENHEIMER. "As it's picked up some steam ... there seems to be a lot of institutional interest, a lot of people putting money to work. I think people feel that, at least for the short term ... the market has seen the worst levels." (CNN "Moneyline", 9/28)

FROM THE BEARS:

"I don't think we've found the bottom yet," says GAIL DUDAK of S.G. WARBURG. "I think there's a good chance we'll get much closer to 2000 [on the Dow] before it's over." ("Wall Street Week", 9/28)

"We are getting into stage three of the bear market in stocks," says ANTHONY BOECKH, head of the "Bank Credit Analyst." "And when you get into the liquidation stage, God only knows where prices can go. The last time we got into a real liquidation bear market was in '74 and those last six months were pretty vicious. I don't see the Fed being able to ease until we get the kind of financial crisis that will set off that selling panic." ("Barron's", 10/1)

"I don't know a single successful investor I've spoken with who is not concerned that we're in a bear market," says MICHAEL HOLLAND, who runs SALOMON ASSET MANAGEMENT. "Everybody's paralyzed," says JOHN LeFRERE of DELTA CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. (WSJ, 10/1)

"You don't buy stocks in a bear market," says JOSEPH GRANVILLE of the "Granville Market Letter." "You sell. going to flatten everything in its path. "It's like Chinese water torture," says PETER ELIADES of "Market Cycles." "Investors should be out of the market." ("USA Today", 10/1)

STOCK MARKET:

The budget compromise could give stocks an intraday 100 point bounce, says EUGENE PERONI of JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT, but he cautions: "It's going to take weeks, if not months to decisively reverse the trend." Peroni believes the market is close to finding its bottom somewhere in the 2300-2400 area. "It's going to take some time here." Peroni says stocks need to rebuild their base before assaulting resistance at 2600: "We have a lot of breakdowns in these stocks that have to be technically resolved." If the market rallies today, it won't close on it's highs, predicts Peroni. (FNN "World Business Update", 10/1)

"It's a reasonably constructed budget package in a tough political environment " says ERNEST MYSOGLAND of GINTEL EQUITY MANAGEMENT. "It's going to help the stock and bond markets." However, HUGH JOHNSON of FIRST ALBANY CORP., says, "What we've seen with this package has already been discounted by the markets. ("USA Today", 10/1)

"I think we're very close to a short-term low simply because of the emotion," says PHILIP ROTH of DEAN WITTER. "We've had the oil price scare with soaring prices this week, we've had worries about the banking system and we've had a lot of selling associated with both of those phenomenon so I think you can't keep people at such a fever pitch too long." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/28)

If war does break out, "the initial effect is the market will go down 200 points," predicts ARNOLD MOSKOWITZ of COUNTY NATWEST SECURITIES. "But the market is in the process of discounting that." (CNN "Moneyline", 9/28)

"To buy in this market you have to have confidence that you are buying a good quality stock at a good historical value," says GERALDINE WEISS of INVESTMENT QUALITY TRENDS. "It's painful to buy right now, but you've got to take a long-term posture," says LARRY BERGLUND of PENNSYLVANIA INVESTMENT ADVISORS. "Pick out the stocks you want to own for a long time," advises RICHARD HOWARD manager of the T. ROWE PRICE capital appreciation fund. "Don't commit fast, but gradually buy them." "All companies are suffering no matter how different their fundamentals," says BARBARA JENKINS of KENWOOD GROUP. "This is the time to dig in and find those differences." ("USA Today", 10/1)

STEVEN SHOBIN of MERRILL LYNCH agrees that there are "the makings of a short-term bottom" in the market now. "We've oversold. We have a lot of skepticism. The bond market is stabilizing." He notes that there have been eight prior quarters that were down 10 percent or more on the Dow since 1946 and "in seven out of eight cases the subsequent quarter was up and in all cases there was a significant trading rally sometime in the quarter subsequent to the big down quarter. So I think precedent suggests, in addition to the explicit technical numbers, that we're close to a bottom and we're preparing for a trading rally. ... Basically, I'm looking for three or four weeks of base and then a rally up to 2600 and then a resumption of the bear market." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/28)

"Now we're in the process where we can get a nice little rebound here in the market," says RONALD HILL of BROWN BROTHERS HARRIMAN. "We think the bond market tends to hold and that the stocks can rebound. ... If it's just a bounce maybe we're looking at a 5% or 7% kind of a move." But he says if bonds move through 8 1/2% "then perhaps we can have a reasonable rally. If we cannot, then probably stocks turn back and go back down again." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/28)

"I think you can be courageous in the short-term although I think long-term the bottom may be 2150," says BILL WATERS. "But in the near term we could have a bounce from here, a little bit of a near-term rally." He sees 2600 or 2650 as a possibility. ("Wall Street Week", 9/28)

"If people didn't realize it before, higher oil prices [in the third quarter] made many people realize that there is a recession on the way," says ROBERT SALOMON, director of stock research at SALOMON BROTHERS. "And interest rates have not fallen as you would expect in a period of economic weakness." (NYT, 10/1)

"I don't think we have seen the market lows but I do think it's important to put in perspective that this Middle Eastern situation will hopefully be resolved," says MARY FARRELL. "This is not a disaster for the American economy. It is handleable. And secondly the recession that we believe is coming up in the third quarter and fourth quarter is also a containable problem. So investors have to look beyond that, remembering there's a few wild cards out like the Middle East and the financial service industry, but it can get better." She sees a very soft recession, but followed by a soft recovery. ("Wall Street Week", 9/28)

#90274m0002 10/01/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT 1) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The dollar will yield considerable ground to the yen this month, according to the average of estimates by 10 economists and traders surveyed by "Dow Jones International News Service." It is predicted to trade at 135.55 yen by the end of the month and at 132.18 yen by the year end. It was quoted late Friday at 138.45 yen. (WSJ, 10/1)

The Fed will lower interest rates initially by 1/4 percent and wait to see whether Congress ratifies the budget agreement, says CITIBANK'S PAUL CHERTKOW in London this morning. "But assuming they do that by the 19th of October, then I think we're on the way to 7.5% three-month money by year-end and possibly down as low as 7%." (CNN "Business Day", 10/1)

"Other things being equal -- ignoring for the moment the rising oil prices, the banking system's weakness and the sluggish economy -- then the agreement to cut the budget deficit should lower interest rates and eventually make stock prices rise," says ED YARDENI, chief economist at PRUDENTIAL BACHE. (NYT, 10/1)

"Bond investors [Friday] were looking beyond the near- term effects of the oil price rise and the inflationary effects associated with that, to the fact that the economy in this country, and perhaps around the world, will be slowing down significantly," says S.G. WARBURG managing director LAWRENCE LEUZZI. "This will eventually lead to lower interest rates across the board." (CNN "Moneyline", 9/28)

"We're telling people to stay in cash or in very short- maturity bonds over the next few months," says GEORGE MAGNUS, director of international bond research at S.G. WARBURG. He says longer-term bonds "eventually will be good buys, but right now, there isn't any rush." DONALD FINE, chief market analyst at CHASE MANHATTAN BANK, says, "The best bet right now is to buy shorter-dated maturities, which means two- to three-year notes." (WSJ, 10/1)

"This guy [Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan] is playing hardball," says NANCY LAZAR of C.J. LAWRENCE. He would rather be tough today than ease too soon. If he were to ease too soon, inflation in 1991 would be even higher, which would push interest rates higher and cause even more financial problems next year than now." (WSJ, 10/1)

"Bond yields in the weeks and months immediately ahead will remain hostage to the threatened destruction of the gulf oilfields in a hot war," says PHILIP BRAVERMAN, chief economist at DKB SECURITIES INC. "That threat, which continues to push oil prices up, is forcing Treasury bond yields toward 9.5% or even 10%. But once the threat of higher oil prices is removed or dissipated, interest rates will plunge in response to the deep domestic recession that has begun." (NYT, 10/1)

THE ECONOMY:

"We may have escaped a recession by a hair in the third quarter, but it's [going to begin] in the fourth," says SUNG WON SOHN, chief economist at NORWEST CORP. He was among nine of the 15 economists surveyed by "USA Today" who said the economy is in recession. "The real point is we're facing a year or more for virtually zero economic growth," says NORMAN ROBERTSON, chief economist at MELLON BANK. "I see all this happening and I just can't reject the notion that we are in a recession," says ROBERT BRUSCA, chief economist at NIKKO SECURITIES. He referred to rising oil prices, sagging consumer confidence, soaring inflation and contracted business spending plans. ("USA Today", 10/1)

The index of economic indicators has been "about flat for the last year, and the economy, indeed, has stagnated," says PETER ELLIS of THE BOSTON CO. "Our expectation is that the decline you see now will be followed by more decline and that will signal a recession in the economy." (CNN "Moneyline", 9/28)

CHARLES MAXWELL, senior energy strategist at C.J. LAWRENCE, sees a good chance that oil topped out at $39 a barrel last week. "The psychology today reflects whatever has been on CNN in the last few minutes," he says. "People are not thinking long-term and oil traders are not paid to think long-term. ... So, on a day-to-day basis, we say the price of oil can go almost anywhere. But, over a month and three months and six months, the uptrend is highly likely to be reversed. And we can probably make it through the winter with oil below $30 a barrel if hoarding or the weather don't get out of hand." ("Barron's" 10/1)

"The doubling in oil prices will work its way further into the inflation statistics," says IAN MacKINNON at the VANGUARD GROUP. "Gas prices have risen only a fraction of [the rise in] crude oil prices." ("USA Today", 10/1)

"We could be in the early stages of a fairly intensive period of private debt repudiation," says CHUCK CLOUGH, chief strategist at MERRILL LYNCH. "The surprise might be that we have a Treasury bond rally rather suddenly" as private defaults grow and "quality income streams [become] severely limited." JIM GRANT, editor of "Grant's Interest Rate Observer," notes that the plunging Japanese stock market is slashing bank capital in Tokyo. "If the marginal lender to the world was formerly a Japanese bank, it isn't now," he says. "The world's liquidity is at ebb tide." (NYT, 9/30)

IN WASHINGTON:

"Not only is the [budget] agreement just a starting point, but the disgraceful spectacle gave the nation a fiscal result that must still be hashed over in Congress," says DONALD STRASZHEIM, chief economist at MERRILL LYNCH. "We still don't have a national fiscal policy." (NYT, 10/1)

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - An estimated 1,500 low- and moderate-income

Pennsylvania home buyers may qualify for below-market home mortgage loans and reduced closing costs under an affordable housing initiative announced today by the Office of the State Treasurer of Pennsylvania.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) (NYSE: FNM) will invest $100 million in the mortgage loans originated under the new HomeStart program.

HomeStart will provide qualified borrowers with interest rates as much as three-quarters of 1 percent below market rate, as well as reduced closing costs.

Martin D. Levine, Fannie Mae's vice president for low- and moderate-income housing, said, "Fannie Mae was especially pleased to work with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to develop this unique program that will help open the door to home ownership for hundreds of Pennsylvanians."

Under the program, which is being administered for the Treasurer by the Pennsylvania Housing Finance Agency (PHFA), lenders throughout the commonwealth will originate mortgage loans for qualified low- and moderate-income home buyers. PHFA will exchange the mortgages for Fannie Mae Mortgage-Backed Securities (MBS) that will be purchased by the Office of the State Treasurer.

Commonwealth Mortgage Assurance Company (CMAC) is insuring the loans made under the program.

HomeStart was developed to help meet the needs of first-time home buyers with incomes below 150 percent of their area's median income; single-parent families with dependent children; and veterans who have not been served by programs sponsored by the Veterans Administration.

Under the HomeStart program, home buyers participating:

- Need only make down payments of 5 percent.

- May apply up to 33 percent of their incomes to mortgage payments, rather than the standard 28 percent.

- Do not need to have two months mortgage payments in reserve after closing, which otherwise is the standard practice.

Lenders participating in the program include Boulevard Mortgage Corporation, East Bay Mortgage Corporation, Mellon Bank, Meridian Bank, Philadelphia Mortgage Corporation, and United Security Mortgage Corporation.

Prospective Pennsylvania home buyers who would like to obtain more information about HomeStart may call toll-free 1-800-822-1174.

Fannie Mae, the USA's Housing Partner, is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company, and is the nation's largest investor in home mortgages.

REDWOOD CITY, CALIF. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The device used in a new medical procedure that treats coronary artery disease by scraping away and removing fatty tissue from blocked arteries without bypass surgery has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the team of physicians who invented the procedure announced today.

The FDA action means that the Simpson Coronary AtheroCath is now approved for general use in the treatment of coronary artery disease, which affects 5 million Americans. The device was invented by John B. Simpson, M.D., PhD., a cardiologist at Sequoia Hospital where the technique was pioneered. Used in a procedure called atherectomy, the AtheroCath clears blocked arteries to the heart by shaving and removing plaque build-up.

Atherectomy, using the Simpson Coronary AtheroCath, is a catheter- mediated technique which removes tissue blocking blood flow. One end of the catheter is composed of a metal tube, called the housing, with a window on one side and a balloon on the other. Enclosed within the housing is a cylindrical cutter which is controlled by the physician. The procedure is performed through a small incision in the groin area. Using flouoroscopic cameras to view the procedure, physicians place the housing in front of the plaque. Next, the balloon is inflated to hold the housing against the plaque, and then the motor is turned on, the cutter protrudes into the window opening and shaves off and collects the obstructing atheroma. The catheter can then be repositioned to remove other areas of plaque.

Unlike balloon angioplasty, atherectomy is directional and therefore can be directed to only treat the diseased side of the artery, leaving the normal vessel wall alone. Less plaque remains in the patient's artery after the procedure. As with angioplasty, the patient can usually go home the following day.

The Simpson Coronary AtheroCath was approved by the Cardiology Advisory Panel to the Food and Drug Administration, a government agency which protects the health of the nation against unpure and unsafe foods, drugs, medical devices and cosmetics.

To reach the approval stage for the FDA, the manufacturer of the AtheroCath, Devices for Vascular Intervention (DVI), had to collect safety and effectiveness data on the device. Twelve hospitals participated in extensive studies and tests. The Simpson Coronary AtheroCath was then subject to an extensive review by the FDA and received approval within six months. The Simpson Coronary AtheroCath follows in the footsteps of the Simpson Peripheral AtheroCath, which is used in leg arteries and received FDA approval in May of 1987.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated Rail Corp. (NYSE: CRR), Burlington Northern Railroad and The Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis (TRRA) have entered into an interline service agreement covering traffic exchanged between Conrail and Burlington Northern via TRRA in St. Louis.

The operating agreement becomes effective today. The agreement, believed to be the first of its kind in the railroad industry, contains specific performance standards for each railroad, details blocking arrangements, coordinates schedules and stipulates notification procedures in the event of schedule changes.

"The interline service agreement will result in the consistent and reliable exchange of traffic," said Donald A. Swanson, Conrail's senior vice president-Operations. "This agreement is an example of railroads working together to enhance service on interline movements and take traffic off the highways."

"In the freight-transportation market of today, it's imperative to provide effective service to our customers, regardless of the number of carriers involved in a particular movement. This agreement will help us provide the level of service customers require," said William E. Greenwood, Burlington Northern's chief operating officer.

"The smooth exchange of traffic and reduced transit times on interline moves will make rail transportation more attractive for shippers," said B.C. Davidson, TRRA's president.

In addition to scheduling and blocking arrangements, the agreement provides for the mutual resolution of operating concerns, enhancing the railroads' ability to respond to market opportunities.

TORONTO (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE- Campeau Corporation today reported its unaudited financial results for the six-month period ended July 31, 1990. To assist investors in gaining a better understanding of the financial performance and position of the corporation and its subsidiaries, the financial statements continue to show both consolidated and parent-company only results. All figures are stated in U.S. dollars.

Consolidated revenue for Campeau Corporation amounted to $4.45 billion in the six-month 1990 period compared with $4.49 billion in the first half of 1989. This includes revenue from department stores of $3.11 billion in first-half 1990, down from $3.2 billion a year earlier.

Ralphs Grocery Company's revenue rose 7.1 percent to $1.24 billion from the supermarket company's first-half 1989 revenue of $1.16 billion.

Real estate revenue declined to $96 million in the first half of 1990 from $119 million in 1989 reflecting the disposition of rental properties in Canada and the United States net of rent increases principally in Canada and a decline in land sales. Subsequent to the end of the second quarter, the corporation has completed the sale of additional land and properties in Canada for a total of about $40 million. Since the beginning of the 1990 year, total asset dispositions in Canada have amounted to more than $135 million.

Consolidated operating profit amounted to $234 million in the 1990 period compared with $425 million for the same six months of 1989. Operating profit from department stores declined to $142 million in the 1990 period compared with $265 million in 1989.

Ralphs' operating profit increased to $90 million in 1990 from $85 million in the six-month 1989 period. The 1990 amount is after the deduction of a non-cash charge of $7 million for Ralphs' equity appreciation rights benefits (none in 1989.)

Real estate operating profit declined to $2 million from $75 million in the 1989 period. This was most significantly attributable to a provision for a loss of $56 million taken in the second-quarter 1990 on the mixed-use development known as Boston Crossing.

The consolidated net loss from continuing operations for the first half of 1990 was $298 million compared with a loss in the 1989 period of $191 million. The 1990 loss includes gains on sale of assets of $47 million while the 1989 loss is after gains on sale of assets of $122 million. The 1990 net loss also includes $35 million in reorganization costs principally related to U.S. subsidiaries in reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. These include Allied Stores Corporation, Federated Department Stores, Inc., and Federated Stores, Inc. Ralphs Grocery Company did not file for relief under Chapter 11.

The 1990 loss also does not include $136 million of interest on unsecured debt of subsidiaries in reorganization under Chapter 11 and $24 million in dividends on Allied's preferred shares which in 1989 were reflected in minority interest.

The six-month loss from continuing operations is after the deduction of $94 million in non-cash charges including deferred income taxes, depreciation and amortization, and amortization of financing costs.

Under a plan announced in January 1983, the corporation stated its intention to withdraw from certain areas of real estate development and dispose of about $600 million in assets in an orderly manner over a period of years. The 1990 results include a second-quarter discontinued real estate asset provision of $23 million, net of income taxes, to reflect the remaining unsold assets at the lower of cost or net realizable value.

The parent company and its subsidiaries now have completed the disposition of substantially all of these discontinued real estate assets. The remaining unsold discontinued real estate assets at July 31, 1990, of $60 million, after taking into consideration the provision together with amounts receivable of $71 million, have been classified on the balance sheet as development properties, accounts receivable, and notes receivable.

Revenue for the parent company amounted to $81 million in the six- month 1990 period compared with $89 million a year earlier with the decline reflecting the sale of properties.

Before recognizing losses of subsidiaries and income taxes, continuing earnings amounted to $2 million in the first half of 1990, down from $13 million in the comparable 1989 period. The decline most significantly reflected increased financing costs of $27 million, partially offset by increased gains of $22 million on the sale of assets. The net loss from continuing operations for the first half of 1990 increased to $298 million from $191 million in the first half of 1989.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Barbers, Hairstyling for Men & Women, Inc., the Minneapolis-based franchisor of full-service hairstyling salons known as "City Looks(R)" and "Cost Cutters Family Hair Care Shops(R)" offering value-priced hair care services, announces the opening of its 500th salon.

Cost Cutters salons in Duarte, Calif., and Eagan, Minn., are the company's most recent salons to open on the same day this past month. Paul and Jinda Korprapun of Monrovia, Calif., operate the Duarte Cost Cutters franchise. Jim Gendreau and George Rory Walker, both of Edina, Minn., own the Eagan Cost Cutters salon. The 27-year-old, publicly held company now operates 86 City Looks and 414 Cost Cutters Family Hair Care Shops nationwide and in Canada. The Barbers is now the third largest hair care franchise company in the industry with system-wide sales of approximately $60 million.

The Cost Cutters division of The Barbers is experiencing exceptional growth.

Established in 1982, Cost Cutters is one of the nation's fastest growing value-priced hair salon chains with increases of almost 25 percent annually. A total of 460 Cost Cutters are currently in development throughout the United States with the majority set to open over the next five to seven years. New sales are currently being negotiated in New York, Illinois, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Alabama and Iowa. Prospects for new franchises are coming from the international markets of the United Kingdom, Taiwan, Japan and Moscow.

T7/8FT5/8 ers opened its first full-service hairstyling salon for men in 1963. In 1970, The Barbers pioneered the hair care franchising industry by expanding its services to women. In 1982, having dominated the upscale hair care franchise market, The Barbers launched Cost Cutters Family Hair Care Shops, offering value-priced hair care services on an a la carte basis. The company also carries its own private label hair care products and distributes beauty supplies to its franchise salons.

The common stock of The Barbers, Hairstyling for Men & Women, Inc. is traded on the local over-the-counter market in Minneapolis under the symbol Barber Hair.

DALLAS (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Commercial Metals Co. (NYSE: CMC), headquartered in Dallas, and Siskin Steel & Supply Co. Inc. of Chattanooga, finalized last Friday the purchase by Commercial Metals of substantially all the operating assets related to Siskin's scrap recycling operation.

In making the announcement Harry J. Heinkele, president of CMC's Secondary Metals Processing Division, said, "In addition to the original agreement, announced in early August and now concluded, we have agreed to purchase a nine-acre tract of river front property in Chattanooga owned but not currently being used by Siskin. CMC plans to eventually develop this property as a scrap metal shipping and receiving facility."

Heinkele earlier said the company plans to consolidate Siskin's scrap processing operation into CMC's current location at 400 East 20th in Chattanooga, as well as add new equipment already on order.

Siskin Steel will retain its multi-location steel service center chain which now serves seven states, an operation that grew out of its scrap recycling company founded over 90 years ago.

Commercial Metals Co. was founded 75 years ago as a scrap metal recycling company and has now grown into an organization consisting of three steel minimills, steel fabrication shops, a copper tube plant, over 30 scrap recycling sites and world-wide trading in various minerals, metals and semi-fabricated, nonferrous metal.

SPRING VALLEY, NY (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Par Pharmaceutical, Inc. (NYSE: PRX) reported today that preliminary voting results of its 1990 meeting of shareholders, held Friday, Sept. 28, indicate that Par's shareholders have approved all proposals put forth by management, and elected a new board of directors.

Par's new board has a majority of outside directors, including five who are new to Par's board. Joining the board as new directors are Andrew Maguire, chief executive officer of Appropriate Technology International, a not-for-profit development assistance corporation active in the dissemination of technologies appropriate to the needs and resources of the rural and urban poor in the Third World, and a former U.S. congressman from New Jersey; Edward G. Shufro, a partner in the investment advisory firm of Shufro, Rose & Ehrman; Melvin Van Woert, M.D., a professor of neurology and pharmacology at Mount Sinai School of Medicine and an attending physician at Mount Sinai and Yale-New Haven Hospitals; H. Spencer Matthews, a retired U.S. Navy admiral, a member of the president's advisory committee for George Washington University Graduate School of Business and a trustee of the U.S. Naval Academy Foundation; and Mark Auerbach, chief executive officer of Implant Technology Inc., a designer and manufacturer of artificial hips and knees developed by Tulane University, and a former investment banker. Par's new board consists of 11 directors, seven of whom are from outside the company. In addition, Diana L. Sloane, Par's vice president for regulatory affairs, has joined the board.

Kenneth I. Sawyer, president and chief executive officer of Par, said, "In restructuring the board in this fashion, we intend to send a message to the government agencies that regulate us, to the investment community, and to our market, and that message is that this company is not only willing, but eager, to place itself under the continuing close oversight of an outstanding group of outside professionals. I see this as a major step in Par's continuing drive to become self-regulating and to regain a position of leadership in our industry."

In addition to the election of the board, early tabulation indicates that Par's shareholders approved a number of proposals presented to the meeting, including a series of anti-takeover proposals designed to preserve and maximize shareholder value in the event of an unfriendly acquisition. Par said that the measures had not been proposed in response to any specific threat.

ATLANTA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Sedgwick James Inc. and Crawford & Co. (NYSE: CRDB) announced today that the previously announced acquisition of Sedgwick's FPE Group by Crawford & Co. has been completed.

Terms of the acquisition were not disclosed. The FPE Group, which specializes in risk control and fire protection engineering, is based in Lafayette, Calif. and also has offices in Napersville, Ill.; Plainsboro, N.J.; Springfield, Mo.; Torrance, Calif.; and Wichita, Kan. Revenue of the FPE Group for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, was approximately $4.5 million. Forrest L. Minix, chairman and chief executive officer of Crawford & Co., said that with this acquisition, Crawford & Co. now has 25 risk control offices with over 150 employees strategically located throughout the United States which will provide its clients with better professional risk control services.

Speaking for Sedgwick James, Quill O. Healey, president and chief operating officer, pointed out that the technical expertise of FPE will continue to be drawn upon as required by Sedgwick James clients. "We believe that it is in our client's best interest that in some instances certain highly technical, loss control specialties be purchased from independent firms. Thus, we look forward to an ongoing business relationship with FPE as part of Crawford & Company," he said.

Sedgwick James is part of the London-based Sedgwick Group, the world's third-largest provider of insurance broking and risk services. Crawford & Co. is a diversified service firm that provides claims management, risk management risk control and health care management services to insurance companies, corporations and self-insured entities.

GUILDERLAND, NY (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Intermagnetics General Corporation (NASDAQ: INMA) today announced a new agreement to supply Philips Medical Systems with Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) superconductive magnets over a five-year period. This agreement follows the successful delivery of a number of these IGC-developed magnets over the past two years. The internally shielded magnet (known as TM-5) is shorter and lighter than any magnet of comparable field strength and type available in the marketplace today. It therefore provides substantial installation and operational advantages to the medical institutions served by Philips, while providing the magnetic field uniformity required for producing high quality whole body images for medical diagnostic purposes.

Carl H. Rosner, chairman and president of IGC, commenting on the agreement, stated. "We have been supplying MRI magnets to Philips Medical Systems, a leading global supplier of medical diagnostic imaging and therapy equipment, for the past several years. With its successful introduction of the Gyroscan T-5 imaging system, which is based on the TM-5 magnet, Philips presently is IGC's largest customer. I am extremely pleased with the confidence that Philips has placed in IGC with this new, long-term agreement. The close working relationship between IGC and Philips has benefited both companies; IGC's TM-5 magnet is one of the key features that makes the Philips MRI system unique, and their success in the medical equipment marketplace has been a significant contributor to IGC's recent growth."

IGC is a leading manufacturer of superconducting wire and superconducting magnet systems, especially those used in MRI medical diagnostic imaging systems. The company also produces cryogenic equipment, permanent magnet systems and material separation devices.

WARWICK, RI (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Applied DNA Systems, Inc. (the company) (NASDAQ: ADNA) today announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, DNA Capital Funding (DNACF) has sold its interest in M.B. Television Leasing Inc. (MBTV) for the sum of $472,000.

DNACF has received partial payment of $170,000. During the next 60 days notes for an aggregate amount of $255,000 will become due and $75,000 which had been used as collateral to secure a bank loan for MBTV will be returned to the company. A final payment of $47,000 will be due on or before Dec. 31, 1993.

Applied DNA Systems, Inc. is primarily a biotechnology research and development company and with this transaction it has now completed its program to disengage from all non-biotechnology activities. The company's major scientific project is its in vitro chemosensitivity assay, known as the Fluorescent Cytoprint Assay (FCA), commercialized by its wholly owned subsidiary, Analytical Biosystems Corporation. (ABC).

The FCA is a patented in vitro assay which measures the effectiveness of certain chemotherapeutic drugs in destroying cancer cells. In July 1990, ABC granted an exclusive option to enter into sales agency agreement for the marketing of the FCA in the United States and Canada to Adria Laboratories, Division of Erbamont Inc., a leader in the North American oncology market.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The United Shareholders Association hailed today's proposal by Bear Stearns Companies (NYSE: BSC) to amend the company's certificate of incorporation with measures that will uphold and protect the rights of the company's shareholders.

The company announced that it is asking shareholders to ratify amendments that would prohibit greenmail, golden parachutes and poison pills unless these tactics are approved by shareholders. The company said it will also, on a voluntary basis, protect the confidentiality of all shareholder proxy votes.

"This is a major advance for shareholder rights," said USA Director Ralph V. Whitworth. "As far as we are aware, this is the first time that a major publicly owned company, listed on the New York Stock Exchange, has proposed a package of amendments specifically intended to guarantee that shareholders have a meaningful voice in corporate affairs. We commend the management of Bear Stearns for taking this important step."

With more than 64,000 members and 38 chapters nationwide, USA is a non-profit grassroots organization founded in 1986 to protect and enhance shareholder rights and increased management accountability to shareholders as key elements of a competitive American economy.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Eric V. Friedland, chairman of Fairbanks Gold Ltd. (FX), announced today that the company has signed two agreements with Teryl Resources Corp., (Vancouver: TRC) whereby the company and its joint venture partners will expand their present land holdings in the area of the Fort Knox Gold Property by approximately 50 percent.

Teryl has assigned its rights under a mining venture agreement with Nerco Exploration Company on 237 claims that border the southern boundary of the Fort Knox land holdings to the Fort Knox Venture (owned 51 percent by Fairbanks Gold Ltd. and 49 percent by its joint venture partners). The Fort Knox Venture can earn up to an 85 percent interest in the approximately 9,000 acre Nerco claims by assuming the work commitments and payments through March 1993 as described in Teryl's news release of Aug. 8, 1989 and by making certain additional payments to Teryl. Teryl can earn up to a 15 percent interest in the claims.

Under a similar agreement, Teryl has assigned its interest in the Stepovich claims, approximately one mile south of the Fort Knox deposit, to the Fort Knox Venture. The Fort Knox Venture can earn a 100 percent interest in the 280 acre Stepovich claims by assuming the work commitments and payments to July 1, 1995 as described in Teryl's news release of August 31, 1989 and by making certain additional payments to Teryl. Teryl can maintain a 10 percent Net Profits Interest in the claims.

The Fort Knox Venture believes that both the Nerco and Stepovich claims are highly prospective for the discovery of additional gold deposits. Drill targets have been identified and diamond core drilling will commence immediately.

DELAVAN, WS (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Ajay Sports Inc. ("Ajay") (NASDAQ: AJAY) announced today that on Sept. 25, 1990 the company filed Post-Effective Amendment No. 3 to its Registration Statement on Form S-18 with the Securities and Exchange Commission. The Amendment was filed to disclose that the company has entered into a definitive Letter of Intent to acquire a majority stock ownership interest in MGS Acquisitions Inc. ("MGSA"). MGSA which operates through its 100 percent wholly-owned subsidiary, MacGregor Sports Inc. ("MacGregor Sports"), is the sole successor to MacGregor Sporting Goods Inc. ("MacGregor"). In August 1989, MGSA acquired all of the assets of MacGregor, including rights to use the MacGregor trade name and a 25-1/2 percent interest in Riddellink Corp., pursuant to a petition in bankruptcy filed by MacGregor and an order approving such sale by the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of New Jersey.

The Letter of Intent calls for Ajay to provide a minimum of $1 million as a junior participant in MacGregor Sports' present asset based financing arrangements. These funds are to be secured by all of MacGregor Sports' assets, subordinated only to the interests of the present primary lender. It is anticipated that as a result of this transaction, Ajay will acquire a minimum of 60 percent of the MGSA common stock presently issued and outstanding. This equity ownership will consist of either newly issued shares or shares acquired from current holders in an exchange offer or a combination of the foregoing. Completion of the transaction is expressly contingent upon Ajay's evaluation of all claims by the unsecured creditors of MGSA, a final disposition of such claims by the Bankruptcy Court, assurances by MGSA that it can successfully discharge all of its obligations under its asset purchase agreement with the unsecured creditors of MacGregor and completion of the MGSA audited financial statements.

Following the resignation of Louis J. Conti as president and a director of the company, Joseph W. Hovorka formerly secretary and treasurer of the company, assumed the title and responsibilities of president and Robert R. Hebard assumed the title of secretary. Hovorka and Hebard will hold these positions until such time as the board of directors appoints a replacement for Conti.

As of Sept. 10, 1990, the company's board of directors approved a reduction in the exercise price of the Company's Warrants from $2 per share to $1 per share. Each Warrant entitles the holder thereof to purchase one share of the company's Common Stock at any time until Nov. 9, 1990, unless the exercise period is extended by the company in its sole discretion.

No Warrants may be exercised until such time as the Post-Effective Amendment to the Registration Statement has been declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

DALLAS (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Recognition Equipment Inc. (NYSE: REC) announced today that it has completed the planned sale of three of its operating units in Germany to an investment group that includes the existing management. Sales price for the operations was DM 25,149,000, or approximately $16 million. As part of the sales agreement and included in the sales price calculation, Recognition has been relieved of approximately DM 7 million of future obligations. DM 15.6 million of the payment has been made and the balance is due by Dec. 28.

With this transaction and the previously announced sale of operations in France, Belgium, the United Kingdom and Italy, Recognition has completed its major divestitures in Europe. J.P. Morgan acted as financial advisor to Recognition for these transactions. Additional domestic asset sales are expected.

The sale of the operations is part of a previously announced plan to divest assets not related to the company's focus on image processing products. Recognition's image hardware and software products allow digitized images of business documents, instead of the actual paper documents, to be processed. Recognition's image products can be used to process such documents as insurance claims, waybills and government forms.

The German operations included the sales and service of products manufactured by Recognition to customers in Germany and in a variety of other countries through distributor relationships. Recognition will conu?e to provide products to the newly independent entities under distributor agreements.

"By selling these European subsidiaries while retaining a distributor relationship with them, we have made significant progress in directing the focus of Recognition towards the development, sales and service of document image products," said Tom Hurley, co-chief executive officer of Recognition. "We believe the imaging market offers significant opportunities for Recognition on which our focus and cash reserves will allow us to capitalize."

Recognition, headquartered in Dallas and its wholly owned subsidiary, Plexus Software, Inc., manufacture, sell and service image and data capture hardware and software systems for customers throughout the world.

WEST GREENWICH, RI (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - GTECH Corporation announced that it has entered an agreement with Welch Allyn, Inc. for the supply of bar-code reading devices to the on-line lottery industry. Under this agreement, Welch Allyn will provide a variety of bar-code reading devices, including slot and wand readers, for use in GTECH- supplied lottery systems.

In announcing the agreement, GTEC Chief Operating Officer Robert A. Breakstone said, "We have extensively tested and benchmarked Welch Allyn's product line and compared it with other suppliers. In every significant area Welch Allyn products demonstrate the highest standards of performance and reliability."

Under the agreement, Welch Allyn and GTECH have the opportunity to jointly develop additional products for lottery data collection needs.

GTECH pioneered the use of bar-code reading devices as a method for on-line instant ticket validation by providing bar-code reading wands to the Atlantic Lottery Corporation. The use of bar-code readers continues to generate considerable interest in the industry due to the enhanced security, accountability and inventory control possible by on-line validation techniques.

GTECH Corporation designs, produces and implements computerized on- line networks, principally for government-sponsored or licensed lottery jurisdication. Typically, GTECH operates, supplies and/or otherwise services these networks after installation. Currently, GTECH has been selected to serve 41 on-line lottery and waging customers worldwide on five continents.

CHICAGO (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Dennis Bookshester, retail specialist and former chairman and chief executive officer of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., Retail Group, has been elected to the board of directors of Playboy Enterprises, Inc. (NYSE: PLA).

Bookshester joins Playboy's board with nearly 30 years of retail experience in all major areas of the industry, including department stores, specialty stores, discount stores and mail order. He is credited with the reorganization of the Chicago-based retailer Carson Pirie Scott & Co. During his tenure from 1984 to 1989, he led the renovation of 1.5 million square feet of store space, the development of innovative specialty store concepts, and administrative changes in management structure and computer technology that improved the department store's profitability. Successful departments he established included Corporate Level for career women, Level 6 for home products and specialty-store concepts for Metropolis and Arcadia. He also participated in the acquisition of County Seat Stores, which has since been sold to County Seat management.

Prior to joining Carson Pirie Scott in 1983, Bookshester held top executive positions at Associated Dry Goods Corp. He served as president of Caldor Inc. from 1982 to 1983 and president and then chairman and chief executive officer of the Sibley, Lindsey and Curr Division from 1978 to 1982.

Bookshester began his career at Federated Department Stores, Inc., in 1961, where he started as a sales clerk. He held positions of increasing responsibility, rising to senior vice president of merchandising at Burdine's, before leaving for Associated Dry Goods.

Currently he serves on the boards of the Northwestern Corp., which includes Northwestern Hospital, Midway Airlines, P.W. Investments and Platinum Technology. He is a trustee of the Latin School of Chicago and a member of the University of Chicago's Council for the Graduate School of Business, the World Business Council and United Cerebral Palsy.

Bookshester holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Alabama. He resides in Chicago, where Camelot Group, Ltd., his consultancy business, is based.

Bookshester joins five other directors standing for re-election at the company's stockholders' meeting on Nov. 7 in Chicago: Christie Hefner, chairman and chief executive officer of Playboy Enterprises, Inc.; Robert Kamerschen, chairman and chief executive officer, ADVO-System, Inc.; John R. Purcell, chairman and chief executive officer, Grenadier Associates Ltd.; Sol Rosenthal, partner, Buchalter, Nemer, Fields & Younger; and Richard S. LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Hughes Communications (HCI) has reached a long-term agreement with SkyPix Corp. for the lease of transponder capacity on two satellites, enabling SkyPix to start direct-to-home television broadcast service next year.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

SkyPix will lease 10 transponders on the SBS 6 Ku-band satellite scheduled to be launched Oct. 12. SBS 6 has 19 transponders, each with 41 watts of power, making it the highest-power new Ku-band satellite available until 1992.

The agreement also has a provision to allow SkyPix to migrate its service in early 1993 from SBS 6 to Galaxy IV, one of HCI's planned next-generation dual-payload C- and Ku-band satellites. SkyPix will lease 12 Ku-band transponders on Galaxy IV. That spacecraft, scheduled for launch in late 1992 will carry 24 50-watt Ku-band transponders and 24 16-watt C-band transponders.

SkyPix recently announced plans to provide consumers with a choice of 40 to 50 major Hollywood films at any time virtually on demand. In addition, SkyPix will offer news, sports, live events, music, original children's programming and a package of superstations from around the nation. SkyPix will use digital compression technology and feature small, lightweight antennas.

HCI, a subsidiary of Hughes Aircraft Co., owns and operates five C-band Galaxy/Westar satellites and the two Ku-band SBS 4 and 5 satellites. In addition, it owns and operates a worldwide network of UHF communications satellites for the U.S. Navy. Hughes Aircraft is a unit of GM Hughes Electronics.

ATLANTA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Southern Bell is now offering telephone bills in Braille for its Georgia customers.

Southern Bell is the first telephone operating company in the nation to provide this free service for its blind and visually impaired customers.

"We commend Southern Bell for taking this step," said Scott McCall of the Center for the Visually Impaired in Atlanta. "Receiving a Braille telephone bill will help visually impaired customers become more independent and afford them more privacy."

"We are very pleased to be able to provide this service to our blind and visually impaired customers," said Carl E. Swearingen, vice president, Southern Bell-Georgia operations. "There is a great desire among people with disabilities to become more independent, and we want to do everything we can to help bring that about."

Southern Bell customers who read Braille and would like to receive a copy of their bill in that form should call the Southern Bell Special Assistance Bureau at 404-780-2273.

Southern Bell will summarize customer bills and transmit the information by computer to Metrolina Association of the Blind in North Carolina. Metrolina, who will handle the printing of Braille bills for all of Southern Bell, will then convert the data into a shorthand-like language and print the bills in Braille.

Customers who request Braille bills will continue to receive regular bills.

Southern Bell Braille billing was trialed initially in North Carolina and will be offered in Florida and South Carolina later in the year.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Over 1,800 area schools have signed up to participate with Giant Food's 1990-91 "Apples for the Students" program, which is now entering its fourth week. Last year, at the conclusion of the 1989-90 Giant program, over 2,300 schools had participated in the project. According to Barry Scher, Giant's vice president of public affairs, "With so many schools thus far currently signed up for our 1990-91 'Apples for the Students' program, we believe that we will surpass last year's record of 2,300 participating schools." Schools have until March 2, 1991, to participate in the program, which will provide free Apple computers, printers and software equipment to area schools.

Through the "Apples for the Students" program, parents, students and friends of public, private and parochial schools, grades K-12, are encouraged to shop at Giant stores and retain their pink cash register receipt tapes. The participating schools accumulate the receipt tapes, and redeem them for a variety of free Apple computer systems, printers and educational software packages. The 1990-91 campaign began on Sept. 2, 1990, and will continue for 24 weeks, ending on March 2, 1991.

Giant's "Apples for the Students" program is the only supermarket receipt tape program in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia area that is administered under the auspices of, and supported by Apple Computer, Inc. Because of this, schools which participate in Giant's program are given the opportunity to redeem their receipt tapes for a full spectrum of Apple II and Macintosh products and peripherals.

Schools that desire additional information about Giant's "Apples for the Students" program should call 301-341-4162 or write to: Giant Food Inc., Apples for the Students, Dept. 753, P.O. Box 1804, Washington, D.C. 20013.

BOCA RATON, FL (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Computer Products, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CPRD) today authorized the purchase by Computer Products, Inc. from time to time in the open market of up to two million shares of the company's Common Stock, depending upon market price and other factors.

The authorization is subject to amending the provisions of the indenture governing the company's publicly traded 9 1/2 percent Convertible Subordinated Debentures due May 15, 1997 that prohibit the company from purchasing shares of its Common Stock. The company has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission preliminary consent solicitation materials relating to the required amendments to that indenture.

"The board's authorization for the buy-back was based upon its consideration of several factors that it deemed relevant, including what it considered to be a market price for the company's shares that doesn't reflect their intrinsic value, and the company's strong financial position," said John N. Lemasters, chairman, president, and chief executive officer of Computer Products, Inc.

Computer Products was founded in 1968 and now employs more than 1,800 persons worldwide. The company is organized into three businesses: Power Conversion, Measurement & Control, and Government Electronics.

Computer Products recorded 1989 sales of $120 million. The company is headquartered in Boca Raton, Fla., and has manufacturing facilities in Pompano Beach, Fla.; Boston; Fremont, Calif.; Boulder, Colo.; Hong Kong; and the Republic of Ireland. Its products are sold through a worldwide network of distributors and independent sales representatives, as well as directly to original equipment manufacturers.

O'Shea, president and chief executive officer of Bank One, Milford, and Jerry Kirby, chairman and chief executive officer of Citizens Federal of Dayton, announced today that Bank One has signed a letter of intent to purchase its 14 Citizens Federal offices with $410 million in deposits in the Cincinnati, Ohio area.

O'Shea said, "This announcement confirms Bank One's commitment to expand its presence in the Cincinnati market. In addition, Bank One will be provided a greater opportunity to increase the execution of the bank's retail delivery system in the overall Cincinnati market."

This agreement includes Citizens Federal offices in Amelia, Beechmont, Delhi, Fairfield, Forest Park, Maderia, Montgomery, Mount Lookout, North College Hill Northgate, Roselawn, Tri-County, Western Hills and downtown Cincinnati.

Kirby explained that the decision to sell the Cincinnati branch offices is the result of a new business plan which will place Citizens Federal in compliance with the all-new federal requirements. Kirby indicated, "We have adjusted our business plan to concentrate on growing our mortgage loan business through CitFed Mortgage, a wholly owned subsidiary of Citizens Federal, in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky."

Kirby also indicated, "We value the long-term deposit relationships with our Cincinnati customers and know Bank One will demonstrate the same quality of service our customers have experienced in past years."

The transaction is subject to approval by regulatory agencies. During the process, both Bank One and Citizens Federal customers will continue their business as usual. Upon completion of this transaction, customers will be communicated to directly on conducting business as a result of the combined operations.

Upon the consummation of the purchase, Bank One will operate approximately 30 banking locations throughout Hamilton, Clermont and Brown counties of Ohio, with total assets of nearly $810 million. In addition, Bank One intends to relocate its headquarters from Milford to Cincinnati.

Bank One, Milford, NA is an affiliate of Banc One Corporation (NYSE: ONE) which has assets of $27.9 billion and operates 52 affiliate banking organizations in Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, Texas and Wisconsin. LONG BEACH, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - A.G. Automotive Warehouses Inc. announced today the grand opening of its second Auto Giant automotive warehouse superstore in Phoenix, Ariz. The store opened on Friday, Sept. 28, 1990.

Robert J. McNulty, chairman, stated, "The opening of this Phoenix Auto Giant marks our second automotive warehouse in the Western United States market. We are confident that our warehouse format has the potential to revolutionize the automotive aftermarket industry by providing car care professionals and do-it-yourself consumers with deeply-discounted parts, accessories and service in a clean and lively one-stop shopping environment."

Frank Roberts, president and chief executive officer, said, "The response to the opening of our Phoenix Auto Giant has been overwhelming. Sales during our grand opening in Phoenix surpassed all expectations, and exceeded even the successful grand opening of our first superstore in San Bernardino, Calif." Roberts added, "With the successful openings of our first two Auto Giant parts and service warehouses, we are continuing to build a solid foundation for what we believe will become the dominant automotive aftermarket retail chain in the Western United States."

The company intends to open three additional Auto Giant warehouse stores in the next 60 days. The new stores will be located in Las Vegas, Nev.,

Sacramento and Fountain Valley, Calif.

Auto Giant offers a wide selection of quality, brand-name automotive products at discount prices to retail and wholesale customers. Auto Giant warehouses average approximately 50,000 to 75,000 square feet and offer approximately 17,000 items, including automotive accessories, batteries, maintenance and repair parts, sound systems, tires and custom wheels. HIGHLAND PARK, MI (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C) today said it is holding new model domestic car prices to a less than 1-percent increase, the lowest of any car company to announce 1991 firm prices.

The 0.9-percent increase is an average for all models across the board over comparably equipped 1990 models.

Chrysler said increased prices on some models reflect major improvements and equipment changes, while other models are being offered at significantly lower prices than in 1990.

"We are continuing Chrysler's aggressive pricing policy of the past several years to give our customers some of the best values in the market," said Chrysler Motors Chairman Bennett E. Bidwell.

Bidwell noted that Chrysler's prices have increased only 8.7 percent in the past five years. He said competitive domestic makes have increased 19.3 percent and imports have increased 37.2 percent over the same period. Inflation has increased 25.6 percent.

Chrysler also is offering the lowest-priced American cars, the new Plymouth Sundance and Dodge Shadow America models. The base two-door has a Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price of $7,699, which is almost $1,100 less than the 1990 base model Sundance/Shadow.

The price changes range from a $1,300 reduction in the MSRP for a Dodge Monaco to a $1,270 increase for a Chrysler Imperial luxury sedan. Most changes were more modest. A LeBaron GT coupe, for example, was reduced by $143 from 1990 while the popular Plymouth Acclaim increased $360.

Chrysler still is the only company to make air bags standard equipment on all U.S.-built cars. With continued emphasis on safety equipment, Chrysler also is offering anti-lock braking systems on 75 percent of its 1991 models, tops in the industry.

Chrysler said prices on its redesigned, re-engineered 1991 minivans will increase an average of 2 percent from comparably equipped 1990 models.

Prices on Jeep vehicles reflect an average decrease of 3.2 percent, based on substantial 50th anniversary discounts in popular trim and equipment packages ranging from $500 to $1,600 for most Cherokee models, and a $1,200 reduction on the Limited model from a comparably equipped 1990.

LOUISVILLE, KY (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Humana Inc. (NYSE: HUM), Michael Reese Health Plan Inc. and Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center have signed a letter of intent whereby Humana would acquire the Chicago-based health plan and hospital.

The agreement is subject to regulatory and other approvals. Terms were not disclosed.

Under the agreement, Humana would acquire the Michael Reese Health Plan, which has 240,000 members, and the 652-bed Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center.

"Humana is pleased to be able to expand its network of health plans and to affiliate with a high-quality hospital that has a distinguished history of service to Chicago and to worldwide medical progress," said Wayne T. Smith, executive vice president of Humana and president of the company's Health Care Division. "This acquisition is consistent with our successful strategy of vertical integration."

A "due diligence" review period is expected to last about 60 days. "At the end of this process, it is expected that the parties will sign a contract, finalizing the arrangement," said Robert Greenebaum, chairman of the Michael Reese Health Plan board of trustees.

Gordon Prussian, board chairman of the Michael Reese Hospital and Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, said, "The decision to enter into an agreement with Humana comes from the boards' strong commitment to continue providing quality health care to the residents of Chicago and the community for generations to come."

Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, one of the largest private academic medical centers in the United States, is a short-term, general medical and surgical hospital, providing a broad range of inpatient and outpatient services. Michael Reese Health Plan, founded in 1972, is a staff model HMO that provides comprehensive medical coverage to Chicago-area employer groups, individuals and Medicare beneficiaries.

Humana, based in Lousiville, Ky., owns and operates 84 hospitals and has approximately 1.2 million members in health plans for employer groups and Medicare enrollees.

The company operates one hospital in Illinois, the 356-bed Humana Hospital -- Hoffman Estates in suburban Chicago.

FRESNO, Calif. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Pacific Bancorporation, (NASDAQ: PABC) the bank holding company of Community First Bank, is no longer exploring merger partners due to current market conditions, President Henry Wheeler announced today.

The company announced in April that it had engaged the bank consulting firm of Alex Sheshunoff & Co. to review any potential merger opportunities. At that time, the company had been receiving informal inquiries about possible mergers but was not actively involved in merger talks. Wheeler stated that, following a comprehensive study of existing possibilities, it was determined that a merger would not be in the best interest of shareholders at this time.

Wheeler noted that growth through a merger remains an option when market conditions change. "It would certainly be an advantage to spread our administrative overhead over more branches. However, a merger would not be prudent at this time due to the current level of volatility and uncertainty in the market for bank stocks," he said. The company continues to use Sheshunoff as a consultant.

Pacific Bancorporation is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System symbol PABC. Bakersfield headquartered Community First Bank serves the San Joaquin Valley through 19 branches from Atwater to Taft.

BOSTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Eaton Vance Distributors, Inc., the principal underwriter of Eaton Vance Prime Rate Reserves, announced today that sales of the fund will be temporarily suspended, effective at the close of business on Friday, Oct. 19, 1990, to enable the fund to invest the assets raised since the fund was reopened for sales on July 30, 1990. Prime Rate Reserves has accepted net new investments of $320 million since reopening, and total fund assets are now $2.1 billion. Eaton Vance Prime Rate Reserves is a continuously offered, closed-end fund investing primarily in senior, fully secured floating-rate bank loan interests.

In announcing the temporary suspension of sales, fund President James B. Hawkes said that "the action was taken in order to prevent dilution of the fund's effective yield for existing shareholders from a too-rapid inflow of new money into the fund."

Prime Rate Reserves is designed to approximate the average published prime rate of leading U.S. banks. The fund's effective yield at Sept. 30 was 10.0 percent. According to Hawkes, "The October yield is expected to approximate that of the October prime rate."

Eaton Vance Distributors is a wholly owned subsidiary of Eaton Vance Corp. (NASDAQ: EAVN), investment advisor to 28 investment companies, to various institutions and individuals, with total assets under management of over $7 billion.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) delivered a record 40 MD-80 twin jets during the third quarter of the year, which ended Sunday.

The delivery mark is the highest achieved by the MD-80 program for a three-month period since 1980, when the short-to-medium-range aircraft was first delivered to customers. The previous record high was 38 deliveries in the fourth quarter of 1988. John Wolf, vice president and general manager of the MD-80/90 program said, "With this record, we also achieved our goal for the three-month period, and we are on target to reach our goal of 139 for the year." Wolf added, "Our last delivery in the quarter was to Iberia, and that aircraft shows the same high quality that every MD-80 coming off the line has shown for many years."

Wolf gave credit for the record number of deliveries to "a tremendous team effort by everyone in the MD-80 program, our suppliers and our customers, through the entire quarter."

At the end of the quarter, McDonnell Douglas had delivered 99 MD-80s for the year at its final assembly plant in Long Beach. The record for deliveries of MD-80s in a single year is 121 in 1988.

Two milestones were reached during the quarter by the company. In July, McDonnell Douglas delivered its 750th MD-80, and in September the 200th MD-80 was delivered to American Airlines, the most aircraft of one type being flown by a single operator.

The quiet, versatile, fuel-efficient MD-80 comes in five versions, offering different range capabilities to operators. All versions feature the passenger-preferred five-across seating configuration. In their 10 years of service, MD-80s have flown more than three billion miles and have carried more than 500 million passengers.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Multipress Division of Consolidated American Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: COAM) today announced the availability of automated small press systems incorporating Tech-Trak modular conveyor platforms with throughput rates up to 40 parts per minute. The system was displayed at Assembly Technology Expo, held at O'Hare Expo Center in Chicago.

Headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, Multipress is the largest U.S. manufacturer of small hydraulic "C" frame bench presses and other equipment, used in the automotive, appliance, electrical and food- processing industries.

The turnkey systems are designed to integrate forming, staking, riveting, swaging and assembly operations with automated part handling, loading/unloading, product testing, quality and statistical process control, robotics, vision inspection and other advanced technologies.

Developed by Wes-Tech Automation Systems of Buffalo Grove, Ill., the Tech-Trak family of conveyors is extremely versatile and flexible. It consists of single or double acetal chain conveyors supported by modular sections of straight, curved or merge and divide tracks, which can be configured in nearly infinite variety of combinations.

A variety of Tech-Trak pallets are available to fixture a wide range of parts. Each workstation is equipped with a stop module that senses, locates and locks the pallet in the precise work location.

Using a Tech-Trak-based Multipress system, a precision automotive component manufacturer has been able to achieve a cycle time of 1.7 seconds per part with an in-line arrangement of three Model MP-1.5 presses with a three lane pallet conveyor and bypass pallet shuttles. This and other system applications are described and illustrated in a new bulletin available on request. For copies of the new bulletin or other information contact D.J. DALLAS (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Peter C. Browning today became president and chief executive officer of Aancor Holdings Inc. and its wholly owned subsidiary, National Gypsum Co. As previously announced, Browning, formerly president of the company's Gold Bond Building Products division, was elected to replace John P. Hayes, who retired as chief executive officer, effective Sept. 30. Hayes, 69, retired after 43 years of service and will remain on the board of directors as chairman. Browning will also continue as president and chief executive officer of Gold Bond.

In a "State of the Company" meeting with employees, Browning responded to questions about the possible reasons for the decline in price of the company's publicly traded debt instruments. He said the decline reflects market concerns about the building and construction industry, the U.S. economy and the debt instruments of highly leveraged companies in general.

Browning cited the 38 percent decline in average gypsum wallboard prices over the last five years and the decrease in housing starts to their lowest level since the early 1980s as challenges affecting the company and the gypsum wallboard industry in general.

He said these conditions were being further aggravated by continued high interest rates fueled by increased inflationary concerns and undue restrictions on lending institutions which have resulted in tight credit for U.S. industry, especially for builders and contractors. He stated that Aancor as well as the other major competitors in the gypsum wallboard industry, faces the additional burden of being highly leveraged during the current downturn.

Browning noted that the company's worldwide design, engineering and construction subsidiary, The Austin Company, was enjoying record revenues and profits, thereby helping offset partially some of the adverse effects of these conditions.

"The current wallboard industry environment, coupled with a weakening general economy and declining consumer confidence make unlikely any significant improvement from present levels in the company's operating and financial results for the remainder of 1990 or the foreseeable future," said Browning.

He described for employees the company's strategy for meeting current challenges and positioning itself for future growth.

"Our primary financial objectives are to continue reducing debt, while retaining the necessary liquidity to meet operating needs and interest expense. We have already taken a number of actions to support these objectives, and we are currently working on a variety of others," he explained.

Browning said that since the first of 1989, the company has purchased some $136 million of its outstanding debt; generated some $100 million through various non-recurring actions, including asset sales; and put into place a $75 million accounts receivable facility that expires at the end of this month. He said that the company was actively pursuing new financial options for additional debt reductions and seeking to negotiate a new accounts receivable facility.

"Concurrently, we are pursuing our primary operating objectives of ensuring that we are the lowest-cost producer of gypsum wallboard and related products, and the supplier or contractor of choice, whether it involves gypsum-related products or design, engineering and construction services performed by The Austin Co., by meeting or exceeding the requirements of our customers and clients," Browning stated.

"To help accomplish these objectives, we have commenced a $23 million modernization project at our Pryor, Oklahoma, wallboard paper plant that will significantly increase cost-efficiency and capacity; work has recently been completed on an $8 million new wallboard drying kiln at our Shoals, Indiana, wallboard plant; and we have implemented ongoing quality management processes at every level of the company, Browning concluded.

ORLANDO, Fla. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Major Group, Inc. (NYSE: MJR), a Florida-based commercial real estate services company, reported revenues of $3,802,000 and a net loss of $3,527,000 or $.34 per share for the year ended June 30, 1990. Revenues for fiscal 1989 were $11,443,000 with net income of $54,306,000 arising from an extraordinary gain of $56,241,000 recognized as a result of the reorganization of the company effective June 1989. The loss from operations, before the reorganization gain was $1,935,000 or $1.74 per share.

The losses incurred in fiscal 1990 primarily represent anticipated start-up costs following the reorganization of the company, a provision of $553,000 for costs relating to the relocation of the company's corporate offices from Boca Raton, Fla. to Orlando, Fla. and a net provision of $2,048,000 for asset impairment relating to the current estimated net realizable value of retained properties and receivables to be repaid from the sale or refinancing of the debtors operating properties. The loss from operations, exclusive of these two provisions was $926,000.

During 1990, the company has focused its efforts on the development of new business opportunities. Initial emphasis has been directed to providing advisory services to Major Realty Corporation (NASDAQ: MAJR) and Stoneridge Resources, Inc. (NYSE: SRE). As announced earlier, the company entered into a management and advisory agreement with Major Realty on Sept. 1, 1990 to provide real estate advisory services, as well as day-to-day managerial and administrative services and personnel to Major Realty.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Subscribers to Congressional Quarterly's Washington Alert online database will have same-day access to federal agency funding, regulatory and meeting information through the Federal Register in October 1990.

"Adding the Federal Register to our growing menu of databases makes Washington Alert the most comprehensive online source of Congressional and federal news and analysis," said Neil Skene, CQ editor and publisher.

Skene said Washington Alert will deliver the full text of the Federal Register to its subscribers seven to 10 days in advance of those currently receiving a hard copy by mail. Also, he said announcements will be searchable by topic, public law, Code of Federal Regulation (CFR) title and part, sponsoring agency docket number, date of publication, dates of action, sections of the Federal Register, page numbers or Federal Register citation.

Skene also announced that Washington Alert will provide Federal Register daily abstracts written by CQ reporters a few hours before the full text is available. "These abstracts give our clients a head start identifying proposed federal action," he observed.

By placing this federal listing of grants, rules, meetings, legal notices and reports online, Skene says CQ has simplified a very tedious and complicated task. "Using Washington Alert, people will be able to easily identify any Federal Register document with ease," he noted.

CQ's Washington Alert is an online Congressional tracking service featuring Congressional Quarterly's proprietary information and the full text of committee reports, bills and resolutions, the Congressional Record, digests of bills and resolutions from the Library of Congress and the Reuter Transcript Report.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - San Francisco-based PLM International Inc. (AMEX: PLM) today announced that a registration statement for the company's newest limited partnership, PLM Equipment Growth Fund V, had been declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission as of Thursday, Sept. 27, 1990.

Sales of limited partnership interests in Equipment Growth Fund V began April 11, 1990, and over $57 million of funds currently held in escrow will now be available for the additional purchase of used transportation equipment for the partnership. Third quarter results will be lower than expected due primarily to the delay in releasing Equipment Growth Fund V escrowed funds and the purchase of additional equipment.

Robert N. Tidball, PLM International President and Chief Executive Officer, said, "The availability and investment of these funds and the renewed sales of Equipment Growth Fund V are expected to have a favorable impact on the company's fourth quarter results. PLM Equipment Growth Fund sales lead all equipment leasing syndication programs for 1990 year-to-date."

PLM Equipment Growth Fund V is a $200 million limited partnership formed to acquire, manage and lease a diversified portfolio of used transportation equipment, including aircraft, railcars, marine vessels, containers and trailers. PLM Financial Services Inc., a subsidiary of PLM International, is the General Partner for PLM Equipment Growth Fund V.

PLM International is an integrated equipment leasing company engaged in the leasing and management of transportation equipment and in operating leases domestically and internationally, and in the syndication of capital equipment leasing investments. The company operates and manages over $1.3 billion of transportation equipment and related assets for its account and various investment partnerships and third party accounts.

AMSTERDAM (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Computer Task Group Inc. (NYSE: TSK) (CTG), an international consulting, professional services and systems integration firm, today announced that it has acquired the Rendeck International Group of companies, a European supplier of consulting, professional services, training and mainframe systems software.

Under the terms of the acquisition, CTG will acquire 100 percent of the shares of Rendeck International. As part of the agreement, Rendeck International will operate at CTG's European division which will be headed by Rendeck's Founder and Chairman, Barry Mence. CTG's United Kingdom operation will become an integral part of the new division.

Founded in 1966, CTG is the largest publicly held firm in the U.S. commercial professional services sector. Worldwide, CTG has more than 4,000 employees and provides service through 65 offices in seven countries. In the U.S., CTG focuses on commercial and industrial markets, with 85 of the Fortune 100 as clients.

Founded in 1976, the Rendeck International Group of companies had revenues of $24 million in 1989 and consists of a Dutch holding company with wholly owned subsidiaries in the Netherlands, Belgium and the United Kingdom and a majority-owned subsidiary in Denmark serving Scandinavia. Rendeck has 360 employees in Europe.

In June 1989 the IBM Corporation made an equity investment in CTG, acquiring 15.3 percent of the firm. CTG's relationship with IBM brings a substantial opportunity for the combined companies in Europe. In helping IBM develop software products, CTG has gained a competitive edge in the market and can provide first-hand knowledge of these products from the unique perspective of a developer.

David N. Campbell, chairman and chief executive officer of CTG, said the acquisition of Rendeck is a major strategic move for CTG.

"The objective of CTG is to be a recognized worldwide leader in the application of technology on behalf of our clients. International opportunities in our industry are substantial," Campbell said.

"Our strategic planning process confirms that professional services, consulting and systems integration are the growth areas of the '90s. Rendeck is clearly well-established and positioned with the capabilities and strengths to capitalize on these three major areas of growth throughout Europe. This synergy will in turn allow CTG to become a more active player in the open market of 1992 and beyond, and to position ourselves as a major worldwide force in information services."

Computer Task Group (CTG) is listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol TSK. The Rendeck International Group of companies in publicly held but unlisted, with the majority of share held by Barry Mence.

CAMDEN, NJ (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Public Service Electric and Gas Company (PSE&G) put the spotlight or redevelopment opportunities in Camden today at the Harbor League Club as it launched a campaign to attract new business to this reborn city on the Delaware.

Speaking before an audience that included Deputy Commissioner Dennis Marco, Camden Mayor Aaron A. Thompson, and approximately 100 business and government officials, legislators, economic development professionals and developers with projects already driving Camden's revitalization, Stephen J. Kukan, PSE&G general manager-area development said, "Those firms with the imagination and foresight to be part of Camden's growth in its early stages will undoubtedly benefit the most from the new opportunities that exist today in the city."

According to Kukan, projects in Camden now total close to $1.5 billion. The $500-million waterfront development plan, which includes the construction of a $42-million aquarium, and the redevelopment of housing and the Central Business District, has initiated a surge of developer and investor interest in Camden.

The PSE&G Camden campaign includes a new full-color brochure -- "Camden: Preview of Coming Attractions," which depicts projects recently completed, under construction, or proposed, a detailed map of project sites, and information on available business incentives and persons to contact. In addition, PSE&G unveiled a new 15-minute videotape, "Camden: Primed for Growth," which was produced by Independent Video, Inc. The videotape highlights new developments in the city and includes comments from business leaders and Mayor Thompson.

Kukan presented the new Camden brochure and videotape to Mayor Thompson, noting that they will be useful in helping to project credible new business activity in the city, thereby serving as a catalyst to attract even greater levels of investment.

"The launching of PSE&G's city of Camden development program is a continuation of the urban initiatives campaign that we announced three years ago at Liberty State Park in Jersey City."

Two other urban centers, Trenton and Jersey City, will be showcased later this week as part of this effort. "Newark's redevelopment opportunities were previewed in April," Kukan said.

SAN DIEGO (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - A federal court jury of six people late last week awarded Brooktree Corp. approximately $26 million in damages as a result of patent and mask work infringements by Advanced Micro Devices (AMD) (NYSE: AMD). Additionally, the jury decided that AMD willfully infringed all three Brooktree patents, thus enabling the court in its discretion to increase the actual amount of the damages award.

Federal Judge William Enright has also issued an interlocutory injunction enjoining AMD from making, using or selling any infringing products. However, the court stayed the interlocutory injunction for 10 days to allow AMD an opportunity to attempt to obtain a stay of the injunction.

The products involved, designated as Bt451, Bt453, Bt458, Bt471 and Bt478 RAMDAC color palette chips, are used in graphics applications in engineering workstations and high resolution personal computers. Brooktree is a recognized leader in such graphics applications.

The award of damages by the jury and the grant of an interlocutory injunction by the court follow the jury's landmark verdict two weeks ago that AMD infringed three Brooktree patents as well as Brooktree's rights under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act. That verdict sets a major legal precedent, since it is believed to be the first court decision under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act since the Act became law in 1984. The Act was established to protect layout of circuits in semiconductor chips against unauthorized duplication, thus encouraging innovation, research and investment in the semiconductor industry.

Brooktree designs, manufactures and markets mixed-signal integrated circuits (IC) products for applications in computer graphics, electronic imaging and automatic test equipment (ATE). The company is headquartered in San Diego.

PORTLAND, OR (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - WTD Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: WTDI), announced today that it has reached an agreement in principle with its senior and working capital lenders that will improve the Company's cash position.

The agreement includes restructured principal payments and improved working capital borrowing arrangements, as well as relaxed financial covenants, which will bring the Company into compliance with its financing agreements.

"Our lenders have stated their support of our strategy to work our way through the cyclical downturn in our industry," said WTD president Bruce L. Engel.

"We are executing our plan to cut costs, selectively curtail operations, maximize cash flow, and we remain ready and able to respond to any movements in our resource or product markets that allow for improvement of bottom line results," said Engel.

"WTD has managed to maintain a strong ongoing position, despite the worst imbalance in log and lumber prices in recent years. We have also had to contend with repeated published rumors and speculations about our imminent demise, in many cases originated by short sellers of our stock and competitors. The support of our people and our lenders in the face of these operating conditions is gratifying," Engel added.

"As we said in May, we expected industry-wide production curtailments and decreases in log prices, reestablishing a more normal log and lumber price relationship. These developments are occurring. Lumber production has dropped more than 10 percent in July compared to a year ago and open market log prices have fallen sharply in many areas of Oregon and Washington since mid-August, with some regions experiencing double-digit percentage decreases," Engel continued.

"Our normal strategy of maintaining short log inventories at our mills is beginning to pay off as log prices continue to fall. Because we will not be caught with a large volume of high-cost log or timber commitments, we are better positioned than most lumber producers to take quick advantage of the changing log market," Engel stated.

"Recent log price declines are still not adequate to provide for general profitability, which we do not expect to occur until the first half of 1991," Engel said.

"We believe that the cyclical supply and demand problem will correct itself. We intend to emerge from today's adverse conditions a stronger and more prosperous company," Engel concluded.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Transcisco Tours Inc. a subsidiary of Transcisco Industries Inc., a San Francisco based company (AMEX: TNIA, TNIB), today announced that it has appointed Terry Carter to the Director of Sales position. Carter will orchestrate both group and individual sales efforts for the Sierra 49er Express, the new train service between the San Francisco Bay Area and Tahoe/Reno, which begins Dec. 7, 1990.

Carter will draw from fifteen years of experience and skills collected in the travel and tourism industry in his new position. Formerly the executive director of Aloha Pacific Cruises, senior vice president of American Hawaii Cruises and in sales and marketing positions with Sitmar Cruises and Delta Queen Steamboat, Terry understands the cruise experience.

"When you combine beautiful scenery, first-class comfort, attentive service, fine dining, popular destinations and good value, you'll capture the attention of the travel market," said Carter. "Those ingredients, which have made the cruise industry a $4-5 billion a year business, are also present in the Transcisco Tours rails excursions."

A California native, Carter knows the market, the product and the potential for success of the Sierra 49er Express rail tours. "There are very few travel markets which are more exciting, sophisticated and challenging than Northern California. Having watched the area grow, I also know that people are looking for alternatives to car travel on congested freeways. Our new rail tour packages answer that need."

Transcisco Industries has a railcar maintenance and retrofitting division, it owns 36 percent of PLM International, an AMEX-listed diversified equipment leasing company, and Transcisco owns 20 percent of SOVFINAMTRANS, a U.S.S.R. railcar leasing company that operates tank cars with Transcisco's Uni-Temp heating system. Transisco expects to diversify its exposure, both in equipment-types and geography, to proprietary transportation equipment, parts and operating businesses using its own unique technologies and its proven financing skills.

ORANGE, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Bergen Brunswig (AMEX: BBC) today reported sales and earnings growth for the year and the fourth fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990.

Net sales and other revenues for the year were $4.44 billion, an increase of 13 percent compared to $3.92 billion in fiscal 1989. Net earnings for the 1990 fiscal year of $66.1 million compared to $47.6 million, a 39 percent improvement over the prior year. The 1990 results include a $3.5 million extraordinary gain from early debt extinguishment equal to $.09 fully diluted per share. Including the extraordinary gain, fully diluted earnings per share of $1.84 were up 11 percent from the $1.66 in fiscal 1989.

For the fourth quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, net sales and other revenues of $1.12 billion were up 13 percent over the $998 million recorded in 1989. Net earnings of $14.5 million equal to $.41 per fully diluted share compare to $10.7 million and $.35 per share in the 1989 period, respective increases of 35 percent and 17 percent. The average number of fully diluted shares outstanding in the 1990 quarter of 40.6 million were 18 percent greater than the 34.3 million shares in 1989.

Commenting on the results, Robert E. Martini, president and chief executive officer, said, "Bergen Brunswig Drug Company continued the strong sales growth performance, posting a 15.6 percent gain in the fourth quarter and finishing the fiscal year with a gain of 15.3 percent. Although the gross profit margin rate was slightly below the prior year, the contribution from the increase in sales and effective operating expense controls produced a significant improvement in operating earnings.

"Commtron Corporation's 1990 sales of $554 million compare to $550 million in the year ended August 31, 1989. Net earnings for the year increased 17 percent to $9.2 million compared to $7.9 million in fiscal 1989. Contributing factors to the net earnings improvement were operating expense efficiencies and working capital management which generated a significant increase in interest income."

DES MOINES, IOWA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Commtron Corp. (AMEX: CMR) today reported net earnings growth for the fourth fiscal quarter and year ended Aug. 31, 1990. For the quarter, net earnings increased 14 percent to $2.0 million on sales of $119.4 million compared to $128.4 million last year. For the year, net earnings increased 17 percent to $9.2 million on sales of $554.1 million compared to $550.0 million last year. On a per share basis, net earnings for the quarter increased to $0.19 compared to $0.17, and for the year increased to $0.90 compared to $0.78.

For the quarter, home video sales were $97.7 million compared to $100.2 million as sales of new releases increased while sales of catalog product declined compared to a year ago when there was a wave of new store openings. Consumer electronics sales were $21.7 million compared to $28.2 million, reflecting the company's strategic decision to refocus efforts on its most profitable product categories and deemphasize those with less potential. For the year, home video sales increased to $451.9 million compared to $430.4 million due to increased sales of rental and sell through product. Consumer electronics sales were $102.2 million compared to $119.6 million a year ago.

Robert E. Martini, vice chairman and president, said, "We are pleased with the steady stream of excellent home video releases that flowed during the year and the operating expense efficiencies that accompanied a significantly higher unit volume. Also contributing to the 17 percent improvement in fiscal 1990 net earnings was a $2.4 million increase in interest income; lower bad debt expense; and cost reductions associated with the centralization of many inventory, shipping and warehousing functions."

STAMFORD, CT (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Vestron Inc. (NYSE: VV) today announced that the three largest holders of Vestron's subordinated debt have agreed in principle to accept a proposal made by LIVE Entertainment Inc. (NYSE: LVE) to acquire substantially all of Vestron's operating assets and liabilities in exchange for a package of LIVE equity securities.

Under LIVE's proposal, the holders of Vestron's $115 million of subordinated debt would receive LIVE convertible preferred stock with a liquidation value of $21 million, plus the unpaid cash interest payment due Sept. 1, 1990, and contingent rights representing the right to receive future payments in LIVE common stock or cash if net revenues realized by LIVE from the exploitation of Vestron's program rights exceed certain levels. Holders of Vestron's common stock would receive a small percentage of the contingent rights. The agreement with LIVE also provides for payment of all Vestron royalty obligations and trade creditors in full.

The agreement with LIVE requires a "consensual" pre-negotiated Chapter 11 filing and a confirmed plan of reorganization as a condition for completion of the transaction. The parties contemplate the Chapter 11 filing as soon as definitive agreements are signed by Vestron with LIVE and with certain holders of Vestron's subordinated debt.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Telematics International, Inc. (NASDAQ: TMAX), announced today that the revenue expectations of $17 to $20 million for the third quarter, ended Sept. 30, 1990, will not be met, and, consequently, the company expects to report a loss.

The expected shortfall is due primarily to recent softness in the intelligent networking marketplace. The company said that while its business in the United States is improving, both domestic and foreign sales have been impacted by delays in customers' capital spending, in part due to the economic volatility related to the Middle East situation.

William A. Hightower, president and chief executive officer of Telematics commented, "In view of the uncertainty regarding worldwide economic conditions Telematics will begin a series of actions designed to further increase productivity and reduce the company's overall spending by approximately 15 percent.

"Our efforts will be focused on continuing to reduce our overhead, streamline our business operations, and improve profitability. We are continuing to make significant investments in market coverage, the support of our customers and product development. Overall, our products continue to be well received by our customers and we remain confident about our future," added Hightower.

The company expects to report its third quarter results during the week of Oct. 22, 1990.

Founded in 1982, Telematics designs, manufactures and markets computer systems and software products designed specifically for voice and data communications applications and networks. The company's products include a full range of programmable packet switching systems, low-end protocol converters and switches, T1 multiplexers, and frame relay switches. JENKINTOWN, PA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors announced that Frank P. Felton 3rd, chairman and chief executive officer of Flagship Financial Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: FLGF), has elected to retire from these posts, effective today, and will retire as chief executive officer of Flagship's wholly owned subsidiary, First American Savings, effective Dec. 31, 1990.

Felton will remain chairman of the board of First American. In addition, Felton will retire from the board of directors of Brandywine Savings Bank, Flagship's wholly owned subsidiary, effective today.

The boards of directors of Flagship and First American have appointed John M. Mason, president and chief operating officer, to the position of chief executive officer of each company, concurrent with Felton's retirement from these positions. Additionally, Mason has been elected to Flagship's board for Felton's remaining term. These elections are subject to regulatory approval and Mason will continue to fulfill his current responsibilities.

Raymond W. McConnell, a member of Flagship's board of directors, will assume the position of chairman of the board of Flagship, effective today.

Commenting on these developments, McConnell stated, "Frank has devoted 27 years of exemplary service to the companies and his leadership has been the driving force behind First American's growth from a $35 million mutual savings and loan to the approximately $1 billion publicly traded multiple-thrift holding company that Flagship is today. Under Frank's steady guidance, Flagship's subsidiaries have become diversified financial service companies with two of the highest capital ratios in Pennsylvania."

Following up on these sentiments, Thomas L. Ashbridge III, a Flagship director said, "The combination of Frank's experience and vast industry knowledge, his reputation and high regard among his contemporaries, as well as his relationship with customers and the community have been the cornerstone of support for First American and Flagship."

According to Felton, "It has been my privilege and pleasure to work with many fine people over the years. Although this type of personal decision is always difficult, I am convinced that now is the proper time for a changing of the guard. I have every confidence in John Mason's ability to lead Flagship and First American into the future, in a manner consistent with the fundamental corporate goals that built both companies."

Mason joined First American in December 1987 as executive vice president and chief operating officer and was later elected to president. Upon the formation of Flagship Financial in June 1989, Mason was elected to president and chief operating officer of the holding company. At that time, Mason was also elected to the board of directors of Brandywine Savings.

Commenting on these announcements, Mason said, "I am deeply honored to have been chosen by both boards to follow in Frank's footsteps. Frank was clearly the force that guided First American and Flagship to their present enviable positions within the industry. I have learned a great deal from Frank and will work to apply that knowledge, along with my own experience and business background, to lead Flagship into the future."

Flagship Financial, which ranks among the 10 largest publicly traded thrifts in Pennsylvania, conducts business through its wholly owned subsidiaries First American Savings and Brandywine Savings Bank. First American currently operates 12 full-service and six "convenience" offices in Pennsylvania and New Jersey; its five New Jersey facilities are expected to be closed by year end. Brandywine Savings Bank operates nine full-service offices in Chester County, Pa. The common stock of Flagship Financial is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol FLGF.

PARSIPPANY, NJ (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Armco Inc. (NYSE: AS) today announced that it will pay its regular $.10 per share common stock dividend for the second quarter of 1990, which it conditionally declared on July 27, 1990, since it successfully completed its consent solicitation and offer to purchase its 13-/2 percent senior notes due 1994. The dividend will be payable Oct. 16 1990, to shareholders of record on Oct. 9, 1990.

Because a provision in the indenture relating to the 13-1/2 percent notes prevented payment of the common stock dividend, Armco needed the consent of holders of 50.1 percent of the $164 million of outstanding notes to amend the indenture to permit payment of the dividend.

In connection with the consent solicitation, Armco offered to pay a consent fee of $17.50 for each $1,000 principal amount of notes for which a consent was properly delivered, and to purchase up to 30 percent of the outstanding notes at a price of $1,070 plus accrued interest for each $1,000 principal amount of notes for which a consent was properly delivered.

As of the close of business on Sept. 28, 1990, consents representing $138,270,000 of principal amount of the notes, or 84 percent thereof, had been deposited. Of this amount, $88,305,000 of principal amount of the notes, or 54 percent of the amount outstanding, had been tendered and deposited. Since the amount of notes tendered and deposited exceeds 30 percent of the outstanding notes, the purchase of tendered notes will be prorated. The consent fee will be paid with respect to all notes validly tendered.

COSTA MESA, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - ICN Biomedicals, Inc. (AMEX: BIM), today announced record results for the fiscal third quarter and nine months ended Aug. 31, 1990.

Net sales for the third quarter increased 130 percent to a third quarter record $31.1 million compared to $13.5 million in the comparable quarter last year. Net income for the quarter rose to a record $2.8 million, up 47 percent from $1.9 million a year ago. Earnings per share gained 33 percent to 25 cents versus 18 cents last year. Last year's quarter included 1 cent per share from repurchase of debt.

Fiscal nine month results reflected record performance with net sales up 144 percent to $99.4 million versus $40.6 million in the comparable year-ago period. Net income for the fiscal nine months rose 70 percent to $7.5 million compared with $4.4 million a year ago. Earnings per share equalled 67 cents versus 41 cents. Last year's nine months included 4 cents per share from repurchase of debt.

The company has now reported seven consecutive quarterly improvements over the comparable prior-year quarters in its financial performance with each of the past three quarters sequentially stronger than the preceding quarter. The successful acquisition of Flow Laboratories in November 1989 contributed significantly to the company's sales and earnings growth trend exhibited in the third quarter and first nine month reported results. International sales represented 57 percent of the total in the nine month period while domestic revenues accounted for the remainder.

Commenting on the results, Fred Andrea, president and chief operating officer of ICN Biomedicals, stated, "The successful integration of Flow Laboratories into Biomedicals has yielded strong growth for the company in the first nine months."

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - American Health Properties Inc. (NYSE: AHE) announced today that it has entered into agreements to purchase upon completion two acute medical rehabilitation hospitals at a total investment of approximately $36.1 million.

The development of both facilities will be supervised by Continental Medical Systems Inc. (OTC: CONT) and operated by CONT upon completion. CONT has also provided certain guarantees related to the timely, on-budget completion of construction. The construction of the hospitals will be initially funded under construction loan agreements between the project developers and local banking institutions, supported by AHE's purchase commitment.

Pursuant to these agreements, a 60-bed rehabilitation hospital will be constructed in the Houston suburb of Clear Lake, Texas, at a total cost of approximately $10.9 million. At the same time, AHE announced that it has previously entered into an agreement providing for the purchase upon completion of a 110-bed rehabilitation hospital currently under construction in San Diego, Calif., for approximately $25.2 million. That hospital is being developed by Oliver MacMillan, a major San Diego-based developer, in conjunction with CONT, as a part of a large multi-use community development.

Both hospitals are expected to open in late 1991 and will be leased to CONT. The lease term of 10 years, with three additional 10-year renewal options, will commence upon completion of each hospital. Income to AHE will include purchase commitment fees, base rental plus percentage rental based upon the revenue growth of each facility.

"These investments reflect our continuing commitment to the development of high-quality rehabilitation hospitals located in strategically important markets," said Robert L. B. Diener, president and chief operating officer of the company.

ANAHEIM, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - As part of its continuing increase in station automation, KOTV, a CBS affiliate in Tulsa, Oka., has purchased an Odetics TCS2000 video cart machine with an XR-800 External VTR Controller. The TCS2000 is a computerized system that manages all aspects of video cart library inventory, and records and plays-to-air all forms of spots and programs in one self-contained unit.

Ranked No.1 in the Tulsa area for their 10:00 p.m. evening newscast, KOTV also serves 24 adjacent counties in the market. The station will use the Betacam-SP format TCS2000 Cart Machine to air all spots and some programs. The XR-800 external VTR controller will allow the station to record or playback spots and programs on external 1/2' and 1' C-format videotape machines under the computer control of the TCS2000 Cart Machine system.

According to Don Stafford, chief engineer for KOTV, the decision to upgrade its existing TCR100s to the Odetics cart machine was in part due to the success stories of its sister stations KXTV, Sacramento and WVEC, Norfolk. The Odetics team worked with each individual station to tailor the equipment configuration to fit their needs. "Our sister stations' successful track record with the TCS2000 speaks for itself -- couple that with the fact the TCS2000 fits our purposes better than other equipment we looked at, and it's easy to see that we made the logical choice."

KOTV is owned by A.H. Belo Corp., Broadcast division, headquartered in Dallas.

Celebrating its 21st year, Anaheim-based Odetics is a leading manufacturer of large library management cart systems playing directly to air throughout the world.

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - With today's introduction of the T5200C portable computer, Toshiba America Information Systems has matched the functionality of most desktop computer systems, while maintaining the advantages of portability.

The new T5200C, with its vivid color display, is perhaps the industry's most striking example of the high-end portable desktop computer, which Toshiba defines as a portable computer with an 80386 or 80386SX microprocessor, a high-resolution display, IBM-compatible expansion slots, and both fixed- and removable-disk drives for data storage. In short, these are machines that can substitute for desktop machines in all but particular, specialized applications.

"The day of the portable desktop computer has finally dawned in earnest," declared Tom Martin, vice president of marketing for Toshiba's Computer Systems Division. "In an era when windows and other graphical user interfaces have made ease of use an increasingly important factor in the personal computer industry, Toshiba's continued emphasis on the advantages of portable computing is proving to be right on the money."

In a study commissioned by Toshiba, Arthur D. Little Inc., the international management and technology consulting firm, tabulated the perceptions of both desktop users and portable users. According to the study, 98 percent of the users of portable computers "credit the flexibility and freedom their portables provide for gains in efficiency and effectiveness," -- gains rated by half of them as exceeding 25 percent.

The study also notes a tendency toward more thorough use of the computer's resources among portable users. For example 75 percent of all portable users make use of software productivity features, versus only 48 percent for users of desktop PCs. The study shows that portable computer users "integrate their systems more broadly in their work, using an average of 5.7 applications versus 3.8 for desktop users."

In conclusion, the study notes that "... it seems clear that portable PCs and higher productivity are linked."

CLEVELAND (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - BFGoodrich's (NYSE: GR) Geon Vinyl Division and General Polymers (GP) have signed a distribution agreement, which will make GP the distributor of Goodrich's Geon(R) vinyl custom injection molding compounds nationwide.

Under the terms of the contract, General Polymers will serve as a distributor for BFGoodrich Geon rigid and flexible vinyl custom injection molding compounds, which includes Goodrich's engineering grade Fiberloc(R) glass-fiber reinforced vinyl composite products. BFGoodrich Geon vinyl custom injection molding compounds are used in the production of a wide variety of products including computer and appliance housings, washer and dryer consoles, telecommunication and electrical apparatuses, fluid handling parts and other diverse applications.

"The agreement represents a huge step forward in the development of BFGoodrich's molding market," said Mike Miller, manager of distributor operations. "In addition to expanding its sales efforts, the business arrangement will improve Goodrich's service and support system for its molding customers.

"We're very excited about our new relationship with General Polymers and the potential for additional market penetration in the molding community," said Miller. "This agreement brings the leader in vinyl molding compounds and the leader in plastics distribution together for the mutual benefit of our customers."

"Our sales force is very eager to represent BFGoodrich Geon vinyl custom injection molding compounds, and all of us at General Polymers welcome the opportunity to distribute such a high quality material suited for a wide variety of applications," said Dave Skoczen, director of supplier relations. "Prior to this nationwide agreement, we distributed Geon vinyl in Illinois and Florida for two years and saw substantial growth in sales to our customers."

General Polymers, a division of Ashland Chemical, Inc., is the leading distributor of packaged thermoplastic resins to plastic processors in North America. GP operats 17 distribution centers in the continental United States.

MALVERN, PA. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Dr. Felix Zandman, chairman and chief executive officer of Vishay Intertechnology Inc. (NYSE: VSH) announced today that the board of directors has authorized the company to initiate immediately a stock repurchase program pursuant to which the company may purchase up to $5 million worth of its common stock.

At the close of business on Sept. 28, 1990, Vishay's common stock closed at $10-3/4. The company had 11,081,541 shares of common stock and 3,308,492 shares of Class B common stock outstanding as of Aug. 1, 1990.

Commenting on the stock purchase, Zandman stated: "We feel that the current price of our stock at approximately six times reported earnings for the previous four quarters does not adequately reflect Vishay's value. The company is confident in its prospects for continued profitability due to new product introductions and cost reductions provided by increased productivity, synergies, consolidations and debt paydown."

The stock purchases will be made in open-market transactions, subject to the availability of stock in accordance with the rules of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - CalMat Co. (NYSE: CZM) announced today a transaction in which Onoda California, Inc. ("Onoda"), an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Onoda Cement Co., Ltd. of Japan, acquired from CalMat all of the stock of California Portland Cement Co. ("CPC") in exchange for 5,834,070 shares of CalMat stock held by Onoda.

In the exchange, the CPC stock was initially valued at $310 million and the CalMat shares at $39.31 each. The CPC stock value was adjusted according to various factors provided for in the agreement, and by a payment, in the form of a $68 million cash dividend from CPC to CalMat, and by the assumption of $18 million in debt by CPC, which equalized the CPC stock value with that of the CalMat shares exchanged. The final transaction value is subject to post-closing audit and adjustment.

CalMat expects to provide pro forma financial statements reflecting this transaction in a Current Report on Form 8-K to be filed by Oct. 15, 1990.

The assets of CPC include three cement-manufacturing facilities located in California and Arizona, thirteen Los Angeles-area ready-mixed concrete plants, three cement transfer terminals and a 50-percent interest in a cement import terminal located in Los Angeles.

CalMat will continue its other business segments as one of the nation's largest suppliers of sand and gravel, asphalt and ready-mixed concrete, with 36 aggregates plants, 41 asphalt plants and 60 ready- mixed concrete plants. CalMat's properties division operates in support of the construction materials businesses with approximately 34,000 acres of property, including land held as aggregates reserves and land held for sale or being reclaimed.

ANAHEIM, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Distributed Logic Corp. (NASDAQ: DLOG)

announced today that it has engaged Global America Inc., a New York investment banking firm, to pursue a private placement of equity securities in order to provide additional financing for the company. In addition, Global America has informed the company that it intends to commence making a market in the company's common stock.

"This proposed offering is one element of our previously announced plan to raise working capital and reduce debt," said Glenn C. Salley, chairman and chief executive officer. "In addition, we will continue to pursue other avenues which, in conjunction with this offering, are intended to provide the working capital necessary to allow the company to execute its strategic plan to capitalize on the worldwide marketing channels that were acquired from the Plessey Company plc in a leveraged acquisition in 1987."

Although the terms of the financing have not been set, it is expected that the financing, if consummated, would involve the issuance of a substantial number of shares, principally to institutions in Europe, Salley indicated.

Headquartered in Anaheim, Distributed Logic is a leading supplier of peripheral and communications controllers, data storage subsystems and integrated computer systems for the Digital Equipment Corporation and Sun Microsystems Inc. marketplaces. PERTH, WESTERN AUSTRALIA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Bond Brewing Holdings Limited (BBH) today announced that the depositary has advised BBH that, as of midnight EDT, on Friday, Sept. 28, 1990, approximately 98 percent in principal amount outstanding of 12-5/8 percent extendible subordinated debentures of BBH had been tendered to the depositary pursuant to the tender offer by BBH's wholly-owned subsidiary, Dimola Pty. Ltd., to purchase up to 90 percent in principal amount outstanding of debentures. However, the depositary has been unable to confirm that the holders of such debentures have executed and delivered the agreement and release, and therefore BBH is unable to confirm that the minimum tender condition has been satisfied.

Accordingly, Dimola has extended the tender offer and the associated proration period until 4 p.m., EDT, on Monday, Oct. 1, 1990, to allow time for tendering debentureholders who have not done so to execute and deliver such agreement and release to the depositary. Tendering debentureholders who require assistance as to the execution and delivery of the agreement and release and proper tender procedures in general are urged to contact Hill & Knowlton, the information agent, or Bankers Trust Company, the depositary. Debentures tendered pursuant to the tender offer may be withdrawn at any time prior to the expiration of the tender offer, and if not sooner purchased by Dimola pursuant to the tender offer, at any time after midnight, EDT, on the third business day following the expiration date.

BBH indicated that, subject to the satisfaction of the other conditions to the tender offer, BBH intends to accept debentures for purchase following its confirmation that debentureholders have executed and delivered the requisite percentage of releases. In this connection, BBH also disclosed that the lenders under Dimola's tender offer facility have advised BBH that such lenders have drawn down or otherwise assembled funds which, subject to the satisfaction of the conditions to the tender offer, will be released to the depositary to finance the purchase of at least 90 percent in principal amount outstanding of debentures.

BBH also disclosed that it has funds available for deposit with the trustee in order to pay all amounts not already on deposit with the trustee in respect of accrued interest on the debentures for the six month periods ended Nov. 30, 1989 and May 31, 1990 on the date debentures are accepted for purchase, as provided in the tender offer. BBH also has been informed by the lenders that they are evaluating the possibility of financing the purchase of any and all debentures accepted for purchase pursuant to the tender offer.

OKLAHOMA CITY (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Hadson Corporation (NYSE: HAD) today announced that it will seek potential buyers for its power systems group, Hadson Power Systems, Inc. Hadson Power Systems is an independent developer and producer of electricity as well as a provider of engineering, construction and operations and maintenance services to the electric power industry.

J. Michael Adcock, president of Hadson, said: "It is anticipated that the sale of both of our defense subsidiaries will be closed within the near future. All of the proceeds from these sales will be used to repay long-term debt under our senior notes held by the Prudential Insurance Company of America and the company's revolving credit facility with Bank of America. The company's consolidated long-term debt outstanding after such repayment will be approximately $140 million.

"Given the size of the remaining debt, the amount of capital required for growth of the power systems group, and in order to better position the company in the natural gas marketing and transmission business, we have instructed our financial adviser, Goldman Sachs & Co., to investigate the market for the possible sale of our power systems group.

"Following a successful sale of the power systems group, the company will initiate steps to effect a business combination of undetermined form involving the company and Hadson Energy Resources Corporation, in which the company has a 49 percent common stock ownership interest.

"We believe after the above steps have been concluded, the company will have largely eliminated its long-term debt and will have structured itself to take full advantage of its position in the natural gas and energy products businesses."

HUNTINGDON VALLEY, PA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Healthcare Services Group Inc. (NASDAQ: HCSG) announced today that it has been notified by National Heritage Inc. (NYSE: NHR) that it intends, due to their significant corporate restructuring, to terminate, effective today, the agreements by which the company services 58 facilities that are either managed, leased, or controlled by National Heritage Inc. or an affiliate.

In addition, Quest Rescue Partners has notified the company of its intentions of canceling 18 facilities effective today.

These agreements represent facilities that were part of the company's acquisition in 1988 of American Services Co. The termination of these agreements will result in the return to the company of approximately 300,000 shares of its common stock.

The company's recent marketing efforts have resulted in obtaining during August and September 1990 service agreements with more than 102 new facilities. These new service agreements allow the company to immediately replace the revenues lost from the canceled facilities. The company said it expects to continue to show growth in both revenues and earnings during the third and fourth quarters of 1990.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - SAP America, Inc., a subsidiary of SAP AG one of West Germany's leading software developers, today announced a sales contract valued at $300,000 with PolyGram Records, Inc., one of the three largest record companies in the world. The contract calls for the implementation of SAP's R/2 System throughout PolyGram's U.S. operations. The R/2 System is an online, realtime application software system that handles a full range of business functions.

Specifically, PolyGram will install the R/2 System's financial (RF) and cost accounting (RK) modules which include general ledger, accounts payable and cost center accounting applications, slated to be operational in the U.S. by April 1991.

According to Gary Manganiello, PolyGram's director of systems and applications the contract came in response to a PolyGram IS directive to standardize the company's financial systems across all business units. PolyGram's European operations have been using the R/2 System for more than six years.

"As PolyGram continues to aggressively expand its operations, one of the central IS challenges has been managing the diverse financial systems of our worldwide business units," said Manganiello. "SAP's R/2 System provides us with a flexible, international standard solution. It is the only system that offers the international currency, language and reporting practice support our global enterprise requires."

SAP America, Inc., headquartered in suburban Philadelphia, markets and supports the R/2 System, a fully-integrated mainframe application software system designed to manage the information needs of large, multinational businesses. The R/2 System is comprised of 10 integrated modules covering the full range of business applications, from inventory control and production planning to cost accounting and order processing. ROCKVILLE, MD (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - GE Information Services (GEIS), owner and operator of one of the world's largest commercial teleprocessing networks, announced today the introduction of 9600 bps asynchronous dial-up network access in 40 cities.

This higher speed network access, with V.32 compatibility, will provide significantly improved response time. GEIS clients using full- screen interactive applications and file transfer applications will particularly benefit from this new feature.

When used in conjunction with any of the various async error-free protocols that GEIS offers, 9600 bps provides a fast and reliable link to the GEIS teleprocessing network. Additionally, network access at 9600 bps should result in shorter session times, which will enable GEIS clients to improve productivity and reduce costs.

Widespread acceptance of the V.32 standard provides GEIS clients with the freedom to choose from among a multitude of vendors in selecting the best modems for their own data processing equipment.

This new 9600 bps async dial-up network access augments GEIS' existing 300-2400 bps async dial-up service which is available in 517 U.S. cities -- the largest such deployment of any network-based services vendor. Many of these network node locations provide tri-speed modem service, offering GEIS clients the convenience of dialing a single telephone number for 300, 1200 or 2400 bps access to the GEIS network.

With this deployment, GEIS is now one of the two network-based services vendors offering the largest number of 9600 bps async access locations.

GEIS also announced that 9600 bps synchronous (both SNA/SDLC and BSC) dial-up network access is in field test, with expected commercialization slated for 1991. This service will augment GEIS' existing 2400-4800 bps sync dial-up service.

For further information about 9600 bps async dial-up access to the GEIS network, please call 1-800-433-3683.

DEARBORN, MI (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The following statement may be attributed to John P. King, Parts and Service Engineering Office manager, Ford Parts and Service Division:

Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) is notifying owners of approximately 1,200 1990 Taurus police cars of a safety recall to replace heavy-duty steel wheels that may be cracked and, if left unrepaired, may fracture.

All 1990 Taurus vehicles equipped with optional police packages are included. About five percent of the wheels are suspect, but all will be replaced in order to assure that the concern is completely handled. To date, Ford is aware of only one report of a cracked wheel and of no reports of accidents or injuries related to this condition.

Dealers will be asked to unmount the tires (including the spare) and remount them on other specified wheel rims. Police departments will be notified by mail and asked to return the vehicles to their dealers to have the work performed at no charge. All of the vehicles affected are located in the United States.

In a second action, Ford is providing owners of about 234,000 1986-87 Ranger and Bronco II vehicles with manual transmissions with extended warranty coverage on the shift-lever housing for six years or 60,000 miles, or for six months from the date of notification, whichever is greater.

In some cases, the housing may fracture during a hard shift into gear. If a fracture occurs, the transmission would remain in the last gear position selected. To correct this condition, dealers will install a revised shift lever and housing assembly.

In a third action, Ford Motor Company is asking owners of about 144,000 1989-90 Bronco and F-Series super cabs with tip-slide seats to return to dealerships to have a floor pan reinforcement installed underneath each of the front seats.

In a fourth action, Ford Motor Company is voluntarily recalling more than 228,000 1986 Thunderbird, Cougar, Mustang, Capri, LTD and Marquis vehicles equipped with 3.8-liter engines to assure acceptable emissions levels.

In-use vehicle emission testing conducted by the Environmental Protection Agency indicates that hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions levels are unacceptable.

GREEN BAY, WI (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Randolph W. Lenz, chairman of the board of Terex Corporation (NASDAQ: TERX), announced today that Terex's subsidiary, Fruehauf Trailer Corporation, has completed the successful refinancing of the remaining balance of $125 million of the increasing rate notes issued in connection with the Fruehauf Trailer acquisition in July, 1989.

Lenz commented, "The completion of this refinancing reflects the profitable performance of our Fruehauf Trailer business and will significantly reduce Fruehauf's interest costs and further improve profit potential."

Under the terms of the refinancing, Fruehauf's interest costs are reduced by approximately 400 basis points from the rate currently paid under the increasing rate notes. The refinancing of the notes is part of a restructuring of all Fruehauf debt, including an additional $5 million reduction in principal outstanding, bringing the total debt repaid since the acquisition in July of 1989 to $40 million. The new financing program involves a combination of long term and revolving credit facilities totalling $180,000,000. The new financing was arranged through a group of banks headed by IBJ Schroder Bank and Trust Company.

Lenz stated, "The refinancing, which we previously announced as an important objective for Fruehauf this year, is a significant step in our on going Fruehauf restructuring program. It was accomplished through the strong turnaround we have achieved at Fruehauf. The lower interest rates should provide greater profits for Fruehauf in the ensuing months. The overall financial structure of the transaction provides Fruehauf with greater flexibility and will allow Fruehauf to continue to build upon the initiatives already implemented to enhance the Fruehauf Trailer business and further strengthen its leadership position in the Trailer industry."

Terex Corporation's Fruehauf Trailers division is the world's leading manufacturer of truck trailers, making a wide range of van, refrigerated, platform, tank, dump trailer and other models. Terex's heavy equipment group -- which includes Terex Equipment Limited, Koehring Cranes & Excavators, Unit Rig, and Northwest Engineering -- designs, manufactures and markets heavy-duty off-highway, earthmoving, construction, and materials handling equipment for the mining, construction, logging and other industries.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Paul E. Lego, an electrical engineer and the chairman and chief executive officer of Westinghouse Electric Corp. (NYSE: WX), has been named honorary chairman of "National Engineers Week 1991 " an annual event designed to promote interest in engineering as a profession, the company said.

Sponsored by 15 professional engineering organizations and observed by universities and corporations across the nation, 1991's National Engineers Week will focus attention on engineering and the environment, organizers said.

During the weeklong observation Feb. 17-23, as many as 10,000 professional engineers are expected to visit seventh and eighth grade classrooms to encourage students to begin taking the mathematics and science courses they need to prepare them for careers as engineers.

Lego, an engineering graduate of the University of Pittsburgh who became Westinghouse's chief executive officer on July 1, said recent comparisons showing American 13-year-olds scoring lowest among industrialized nations in math and science skills point to a national concern as serious as any of the economic and environmental challenges we will face in the future.

"The combination of lower birth rates plus a sharp decline in the number of students pursuing mathematics and science is beginning to create a shortage in engineers at the very time demand for technical solutions to environmental and other challenges is growing," Lego said.

"Young Americans interested in helping preserve our national competitive edge and cleaning up and protecing the environment should consider careers in engineering. No other profession will make a greater contribution to these and other challenges we face in the 1990s."

A member of the executive committee of the Manufacturers' Alliance for Productivity and Innovation and the board of governors of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, Lego serves on the board of trustees of the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon University and the board of overseers of the New Jersey Institute of Technology.

He is also chairman of the board of visitors of the University of Pittsburgh's School of Engineering, serves as vice chairman of the U.S. Korea Business Council, is a member of the directorate for Science and Engineering Education of the National Science Foundation, and is active in Boy Scouts, job programs for the handicapped and United Way.

YORK, PA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Beginning today, Turkey Hill Minit Market customers won't have far to go to recycle their plastic milk, iced tea and water jugs thanks to a new in-store recycling program.

The program is being run in conjunction with Sonoco Graham, the world's largest manufacturer of high density polyethylene (HDPE) bottles and the industry leader in bottles-to-bottles plastic recycling.

"When we began bottling our milk and drinks in plastic jugs, we were concerned about the environmental implications," said John Cox, marketing manager for Turkey Hill Dairy. "We knew that plastic is recyclable but we also knew that we wanted to make recycling convenient for our customers."

Cox explained that some municipalities have included plastics in their curbside recycling program under the state's new mandatory recycling law.

"But," he said, "Turkey Hill wanted to take things a step further and make plastic recycling available for everyone in the region.

"We knew that if we could provide a convenient place to recycle, our customers would respond," Cox said. "And the most convenient place we could think of was right in the store where they buy their milk, drinks and bottled water in the first place."

Cox said that Turkey Hill started with an experimental recycling program in 17 stores in Lebanon County and the Hanover area. He was optimistic at the outset, but wanted to see if consumers would bring in their plastic to be recycled.

"We were overwhelmed with the response," Cox said. "Within 10 days, we had more than 4,000 bottles."

The success in those 17 stores led the company to expand the program to all 203 locations in 24 northeastern and southcentral Pennsylvania counties.

And, when you produce more than 2 billion bottles annually, that means you need an enormous amount of recycled plastic.

That new $5 million plant will process more than 20 million pounds of recycled plastic every year -- the equivalent of 150 million used bottles -- for use in making new bottles.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola Inc.'s (NYSE: MOT) Radio-Telephone Systems Group announced today that it has been selected by Perumtel, the Indonesian Post and Telecommunications Ministry's national telephone company, as the supplier of the countrywide cellular radio-telephone network.

The AMPS 800MHz system's initial coverage, estimated at over 30,000 subscribers, will include the metropolitan area of Jakarta and the city of Bandung in West Java, and the metropolitan area of Surabaya in East Java. The award's initial order for the two regions is expected to reach $30 million in value.

Perumtel, in cooperation with P.T.INTI, will operate the two systems in partnership with private investors, P.T. Elektrindo Nusantara in West Java and P.T. Centralindo Panca Sakti in East Java.

"We are pleased by Perumtel's decision and we look forward to introducing cellular telephony service in this key country of the Pacific Rim," said Bernard R. Smedley, senior vice president of Motorola, Inc. and general manager of the Radio-Telephone Systems Group. "In these times of immediate communications, it is important for the country's further economic development to install state-of-the-art, technologically advanced telecommunications," added Smedley.

Perumtel, in partnership with other private investors, intends to expand at a later date the cellular telephone service to the other seven major regions of the country and create a nationwide network. Indonesia's two-million-square-mile area has a population of 180 million.

Motorola is the world's leading designer, manufacturer and supplier of cellular systems, infrastructure equipment and subscriber products. It is also a leading provider of electronic equipment, systems, components and services for worldwide markets, including two-way radios, pagers, semiconductors, defense and aerospace electronics, automotive and industrial electronic equipment, computers, data communications, and information processing and handling equipment.

CORNING, NY (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, Ltd., (MHI) and Dresser-Rand Company (D-R) announced the formation of a joint venture, MHI Dresser-Rand, Ltd.

Effective Oct. 1, 1990, the corporation, headquartered in Tokyo and owned equally by MHI and D-R, will be responsible for the engineering, manufacture, sale and service of all Dresser-Rand centrifugal compressors, the Mitsubishi "MAC" centrifugal compressor and MHI compressor-drive steam turbines in the Asian-Pacific and Oceania areas, including India and China.

Dresser Industries, Inc., and Dresser-Rand (a partnership of Dresser Industries, Inc.(NYSE: DI), and Ingersoll-Rand Company (NYSE: IR)) and MHI have collectively had a technical and manufacturing association on centrifugal compressors since 1961. The new venture will bring together management, technical and sales expertise on a broad line of related compressor and steam turbine products of both MHI and D-R to better serve the increasingly complex needs of customers and to facilitate the design, engineering, application and supply of the venture's products.

Manufacturing of the venture's products will occur in the Hiroshima facilities of MHI and sales will primarily be effected by the dedicated sales force of Dresser-Rand.

H. Goroku, currently of MHI, and J. Willems, currently vice president of Dresser-Rand Japan, will have been appointed president and executive vice president, respectively, of the joint venture company.

In addition, MHI and Dresser-Rand announce that Dresser-Rand will offer the MAC as a part of its product selection in the areas of the world not handled by the new venture.

Dresser-Rand Company is headquartered in Corning, N.Y. The company is a supplier of compressors, gas turbines, steam turbines, motors and generators for energy and industry.

NORWALK, CT (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Leon C. Hirsch, chairman of United States Surgical Corporation (NYSE: USS), announced today that "the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has granted the company permission to market polypropylene and Dacron sutures under the 510(k) process. The FDA has now granted USSC permission to market six of the seven suture categories." The company expects reclassification and permission to market the remaining suture category, silk, in the near future.

USSC plans to enter the $1.2 billion suture segment of the wound closure market with a complete line of sutures during the first quarter of 1991.

Johnson & Johnson continues to challenge the FDA's suture rulings. Recently, the FDA denied both J&J's petition to reconsider reclassification of synthetic absorbable sutures and its request to stay the FDA's decision allowing USSC to market these sutures. J&J's latest action asks a federal court to overturn these FDA decisions.

Hirsch stated, "There is absolutely no valid scientific evidence to support Johnson & Johnson's arguments. We are flattered that they are so concerned about competing with us in the suture marketplace."

BRYN MAWR, Pa. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - NewsNet, the world's largest current-awareness database of industry newsletters and newswires, and Dun & Bradstreet Business Credit Services, the leading marketer of commercial-credit and business information in the U.S., recently announced an agreement through which NewsNet will provide its customers with online access to D&B business-information through an intelligent gateway.

Three types of D&B business reports will be provided online via the NewsNet gateway: the Business Information Report, the Payment Analysis Report, and the Family Tree (R) Service.

"By making D&B information directly available to NewsNet users, we are adding yet another option to meet the personal style and needs of an important segment of the business community," said Ron K. Glover, president of D&B Business Credit Services.

"For the businessperson who has only an occasional need for D&B information, the NewsNet option gives them the opportunity to make business decisions based on some of the same powerful data that other D&B customers regularly turn to," Glover said.

"The addition of the D&B gateway is an important one, and very exciting for our subscribers," said NewsNet President John H. Buhsmer. "It enables them to have access to products from a world leader in business information."

The Business Information Report, the most widely accepted information tool for commercial credit and risk-management in the U.S., is available on millions of U.S. companies, and may contain data such as payment information, financial information, background and history on a company, business background of principals, public filings, and other relevant data.

The Payment Analysis Report provides an objective, third-party perspective of a company's payment history and trends as reported to D&B. Payments are analyzed for up to a full two-year period for evaluation of trends. The Payment Analysis Report also includes information on how a company pays its creditors in comparison with other companies in the same industry.

Family Tree Service links divisions and branches of a company to their headquarters, and links subsidiaries to parent companies. This service allows users to view key information for an entire company in a single report.

The gateway between NewsNet and D&B is an "intelligent" gateway that allows users to take advantage of D&B's information using quick, easy- to-use NewsNet commands. The prompts in the gateway have been designed so that no prior experience with retrieving D&B information is necessary.

In the weeks prior to release, NewsNet conducted a beta test of the gateway among selected NewsNet subscribers. The result was overwhelmingly positive: the testers found the D&B/NewsNet interface intuitive and easy to use, even without documentation. Several testers remarked that access to D&B makes NewsNet even more valuable to them for business information purposes.

Dun & Bradstreet Business Credit Services is a division of the Dun & Bradstreet Corporation, the world's largest marketer of business information and related services with revenue of $4.3 billion in 1989.

The Credit Information Sales group of D&B Business Credit Services provides its customers with business information on more than 9 million U.S. companies through commercial credit reports, reference books, analytical data and other products and services that help customers determine and manage the risks and opportunities associated with doing business with other companies.

NewsNet delivers the full text of more than 400 business newsletters and 11 newswires in over 30 industries. NewsNet also offers gateway access to a number of special services, including Vu/Quote Stock and Commodity Quotes and the Official Airline Guides Electronic Edition.

NewsNet's information is accessible for full-text retrieval, keyword searching and through an exclusive electronic clipping service, NewsFlash (R), which monitors the newswires and newsletters, 24 hours per day, for keywords selected by the subscriber.

JERSEY CITY, NJ (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - First National Bank of Central Jersey was officially renamed National Westminster Bank NJ today, in ceremonies at Key First National Bank branch locations in Roselle, Somerville, Clinton and New Brunswick. All 32 First National Bank branches as well as 41 automated teller machine (ATMs) locations have received new signage, and customer records of First National Bank have been merged, enabling its customers to bank at any NatWest office in the state. The projects was successfully completed the weekend of Sept. 29.

"We've been looking forward to the day when our two banks would become one statewide operation," said L. Douglas O'Brien, president and chief executive of NatWest NJ. "And many people worked very hard to get this completed quickly so as to provide many service advantages to our First National customers." NatWest NJ operates in 18 of New Jersey's 21 counties.

In Somerville, at First National Bank's One West Main Street office, O'Brien and Howard Pettebone, former president of First National Bank who serves NatWest NJ as an executive vice president, were joined by local officials in unveiling the new signage.

First National Bank, which operates in Somerset, Middlesex, Hunterdon, Union and Mercer Counties, was acquired by National Westminster Bancorp on Aug. 18, 1989 and on that day became part of the NatWest NJ organization. A year earlier, in February 1988, NatWest entered New Jersey with its acquisition of First Jersey National Corporation, the fourth largest bank in the state. NatWest NJ today operates 136 branches and 198 ATMs.

The process of creating a central file started two years ago with the consolidation of the five banks that had comprised First Jersey National Corporation. With that first phase completed in 1989, the bank began the task of incorporating First National Bank into the systems.

Headquartered in Bridgewater, N.J., First National Bank history dates back to the 19th century and a number of bank beginnings in Central New Jersey, including First Clinton National Bank, founded in 1856; The Peoples National Bank of Central Jersey, which began in 1887; The First National Bank of Bound Brook, founded in 1888; and Second National Bank of Somerville, chartered in 1894.

National Westminster Bank NJ, headquartered in Jersey City, is a subsidiary of National Westminster Bancorp, which has $22 billion in assets and 260 offices in New York and New Jersey.

WAYNE, Pa. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Orthopedic Services, Inc. (NASDAQ: OSII) today announced that it has acquired two orthotic and prosthetic businesses, Custom Prosthetics of Arizona in Tucson, Ariz., and Newport Orthopedics in Newport Beach, Calif. OSI's western region now has 24 locations including 18 in the southern California area.

Custom Prosthetics is a well-established 10-year-old business founded by Joe Leal, C.P., a nationally respected O&P practitioner. The company has a strong prosthetics base which utilizes leading edge technology and technique. Leal will stay on with OSI to increase Custom Prosthetic's current referral base and to develop new areas of business. "By joining OSI, I will be able to expand the business in ways that were not feasible for an individual establishment. I think it's a win for Custom Prosthetics and a win for OSI," said Leal.

Newport Orthopedics is a 25-year old company headed by Ron Tosoonian, C.O. The company's strong market presence in Newport Beach opens new avenues for penetration of the coastal market and links up well with OSI's Santa Monica, Torrance and Laguna Hills facilities. OSI president, Jeffrey S. Levitt, commented, "Newport Orthopedics increases our long-term commitment to the Southern California healthcare community, an area that we feel has a fast growing demand for improved health care services."

"The company has made three acquisitions since the July initial public offering. With our very strong balance sheet and positive cash flow, we will continue to make strategic acquisitions to open new market areas as well as densify and expand our coverage in current markets. It is our goal to consolidate the O&P industry while continuing to increase productivity and adopt the latest technological advances in patient care at our existing facilities," continued Levitt.

Custom Prosthetics is located at 2307 East Broadway, Tucson, Ariz., and Newport Orthopedics is located at 359 North Newport Boulevard, Newport Beach, Calif.

Orthopedic rehabilitation is the fitting, design and fabrication of custom-made braces and support devices for the treatment of musculoskeletal conditions resulting from illness, injury or congenital abnormalities. Prosthetic rehabilitation is the fitting and fabrication of custom-made artificial limbs required by people who have suffered the loss of a limb from vascular disease, diabetes, cancer or traumatic injuries.

OSI is the largest provider of patient care services in the orthotic and prosthetic rehabilitation segment of the healthcare industry. OSI currently provides services through 56 patient care centers in 13 states.

Trading under ticker symbol "PSA," the common stock opened on 1,100 shares at 8.

In mid-September, Storage Properties declared a $.25 per share quarterly distribution guaranteed by the company's advisor and payable Oct. 15 to shareholders of record as of Sept. 28. Shareholders who acquired shares through June 30 will receive the $.25 per share, and shareholders who purchased shares in the public offering after June 30 will receive a prorated distribution. The cash distributions will be a 10 percent per annum non-compounded return on the $10 per share offering price through June 1993.

Storage Properties has invested primarily in non-recourse loans to its advisor PS Properties Advisors, Inc., an affiliate of Public Storage Inc. The loans are secured by first priority mortgages or deeds of trust on properties that are in operation or being developed as self- storage facilities. The company also entered into agreements for the right to acquire properties securing the loans during a specified period.

Storage Properties' principal investments are comprised of first mortgage convertible loans on five self-storage properties in Bedford Park, Ill.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Los Angeles; Brooklyn, N.Y., and Silver Spring, Md. The company recently acquired a leasehold interest in a self-storage facility in Hillside, N.J., through a joint venture.

ROCHESTER, NY (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Curtice Burns Foods (AMEX: CBI) and its companion organization, Pro-Fac Cooperative, announced today that they had acquired the Husman Snack Foods Division of the Frank Herschede Company of Cincinnati for an undisclosed amount of stock and cash.

The Husman Snack Foods Company, with sales of $15 million in their fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1990, is a producer and marketer of potato chips and other salty snack foods from a single manufacturing facility in Cincinnati. Over 93 percent of the company's sales are under its own proprietary brand name. Distribution to its Cincinnati, Dayton and Lexington, Ky., marketing areas is through 62 independent distributor store-door delivery routes. In Cincinnati, Husman is the leading marketer of potato chips while in its total marketing area, Husman is number two, outselling major national competitors.

David J. McDonald, president of Curtice Burns, said, "Husman, with its long standing history of solid earnings and market share strength, will be an important addition to the Curtice Burns Snack Foods Group. The synergies generated by this acquisition include increased potential for two Pro-Fac commodities, potatoes and popcorn, and expanded marketing opportunities for Curtice Burns La Restaurante tortilla chips and salsa and our Thunder Crunch brand of kettle-fried potato chips. I am pleased that Don Jaspers will continue as vice president/general manager of Husman's."

Rochester-based Curtice Burns foods consists of 10 autonomously managed divisions, 60 plants and warehouses and 7,000 employees located throughout the United States and Western Canada. The company is unique in the food industry with its strategic focus on regional brands and the development and processing of custom-packed foods for the retail grocery and food service industry.

ATLANTA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - COIN Inc., a metro Atlanta automotive computer company, tripled its size today when it finalized the purchase from Unisys of Convergent Dealership Group (CDG), and renamed the Hunt Valley, Md., company COIN Dealership Systems.

With the purchase of CDG, COIN, which in 1989 had 250 employees and revenues of $22 million, now has some 1,000 employees, revenues nearing the $100 million mark, and more than a dozen satellite offices across the country and in Europe.

Together, COIN and CDG have more than 9,000 customers in the United States, Great Britain, Puerto Rico and Canada.

"Our customers, both COIN's and CDG's, are vital to us and we want to make sure they get the best service and best systems possible," explained COIN President and CEO Mark Singleton.

"CDG's name change to COIN Dealership Systems is probably the only major change Convergent customers will see. Convergent customers will still be supported by Convergent's support group, and the Convergent line of computer systems and software programs will remain intact.

"And our current COIN Systems customers won't see any difference in their service, support or systems either. They'll still be supported out of our COIN Systems Norcross office by COIN Systems personnel," Singleton added.

"To ensure this continuity of service, we've formed COIN Inc., as a parent company with COIN Dealership Systems and COIN Systems Inc., both acting as independent subsidiaries serving their own customers," said Singleton. COIN Inc.'s headquarters will be in metro Atlanta in separate facilities from that of COIN Systems Inc. COIN Dealership Systems' main office will remain at Hunt Valley, Md., a Baltimore suburb.

"Our new organization is like a good marriage," explained Singleton. "We're united as one, but each partner has its own separate identity, needs and wants " explained Singleton.

In this case, being separate also means separate methods of marketing products. COIN Dealership Systems will sell its current family of computer products directly to the dealerships. COIN Systems will take the indirect marketing approach, concentrating specifically on selling its software to manufacturers and national distributors.

As president and CEO of COIN Inc., Singleton heads both subsidiaries. To help him direct operations of the individual companies, he named Jack Lassen, a longtime CDG executive, as president and general manager of COIN Dealership Systems, and John Hiemstra, formerly COIN Systems' vice president of corporate resources, as president and general manager of COIN Systems.

Singleton founded COIN Financial Systems in 1980 as a six-man, regional company specializing in systems for the auto dealers' finance and insurance departments. In late 1989, he renamed the company COIN Systems Inc., after completing a leveraged buy-out where he became the majority stockholder.

Under his direction, COIN has experienced phenomenal growth, recognized by INC. magazine as one of the nation's fastest-growing private companies and named Atlanta's fastest-growing company by the Atlanta Fast Tech 50 group.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Dalmo Victor Division of General Instrument Corporation's Defense Systems Group has been awarded a $45.4 million contract by the U.S. Army Communications and Electronics Command (CECOM) for 1,174 radar warning systems and associated support equipment. CECOM exercised the second multiyear option for the additional systems on Sept. 18, 1990. This increases the total number of systems that Dalmo Victor is to produce under the army multiyear contract to approximately 3,200 systems. Dalmo Victor has delivered approximately 1,500 systems to the army under this contract.

The AN/APR-39A(V)1 is especially designed for helicopters and other light aircraft operating at low level and nap-of-the-earth (NOE) mission environments; the APR-39A(V)1 is another set of eyes in the cockpit. The lightweight, digital radar warning system provides the pilot with clear audio warning and easy-to-understand threat symbols. It reduces crew workload by graphically displaying the threat environment and prioritizing the threat radar information.

The APR-39A(V)1 is now the U.S. Army standard threat warning system for helicopters and is being deployed on military helicopters throughout the world.

General Instrument is the industry leader in cable TV electronics, coaxial cable and satellite encryption systems. The company also manufactures defense electronics and wagering systems.

EGG HARBOR CITY, NJ (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Collective Federal Savings Bank has expanded its operations with the acquisition of Metropolitan Federal Savings and Loan Association, it was announced today by Thomas H. Hamilton, president and chief executive officer of Collective Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ: COFD).

Collective Bancorp is the parent holding company for Collective Federal. Metropolitan Federal, a $150 million thrift institution managed by the Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), is headquartered in Denville, N.J. Metropolitan Federal operated nine offices in Essex, Hudson, Morris, Monmouth, Middlesex and Ocean counties. Effective Saturday, Sept. 29, 1990, each of the offices were reopened as offices of Collective Federal.

In connection with the transaction, Collective Federal agreed to assume approximately $149 million in deposits and other liabilities and to purchase approximately $139 million in assets. Included among the assets acquired was $49 million in cash and securities, $82 million in 1-4 family residential mortgage loans, $4 million in consumer and commercial loans and $2 million in fixed assets. Collective Federal will also receive a cash payment of $13.5 million from the RTC.

Commenting on the acquisition, Hamilton noted, "This move further strengthens Collective's position in the attractive northern New Jersey market and provides the contiguous presence we were looking to achieve. As a result of this acquisition, we have effectively doubled our presence in the northern portion of the state without diluting the interests of our stockholders," Hamilton added.

Collective Federal, with assets of $2.5 billion, now operates a total of 53 full-service banking offices in 13 counties throughout New Jersey. The recently acquired Metropolitan Federal offices will become part of a Collective's Northern Division, under the direction of Robert D. Pierson, Northern Division president.

Collective Bancorp's common stock is traded on the NASDAQ National Market

System under the trading symbol COFD.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Bear Stearns Companies Inc. (NYSE: BSC) announced today that it is requesting shareholders to ratify amendments to the company's certificate of incorporation that would prohibit greenmail, golden parachutes and poison pills without shareholder approval. The firm previously has opted out of the Delaware anti-takeover statute.

Alan Greenberg, chairman and CEO of Bear Stearns, said, "The proposed amendment to our certificate of incorporation demonstrates our company's commitment to the principle of stockholder equality and democracy. Our board of directors believes that stockholders should have a significant voice in decisions relating to the ownership and control of the company."

Greenberg also emphasized that the amendments are not being proposed in response to any specific attempt or proposal to acquire the company, nor is the company aware of or inviting such proposals.

The Bear Stearns management is also undertaking this year, on a voluntary basis, to keep all shareholder voting confidential. Proxies and ballots will be tabulated by the firm's transfer agent, which will sign a confidentiality statement.

In addition, shareholders are being asked to approve a new deferred compensation plan for the company's 154 senior managing directors. Under the new deferred compensation plan, top officials of its broker- dealer subsidiary will be able to acquire shares of the holding company's common stock by deferring a portion of their cash compensation for at least five years.

The Bear Stearns Companies Inc. is a leading investment banking and brokerage firm headquartered in New York City. The company is engaged in corporate finance and mergers and acquisitions, institutional equities and fixed income sales and trading, individual investor services, asset management and correspondent clearing. Through its subsidiary, Custodial Trust Company, it is engaged in securities lending and custody services. The company has approximately 5,700 employees in 13 offices worldwide.

HERNDON, VA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - EDS has signed a new $60 million contract to continue manufacturing identification cards for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service's Alien Documentation Program.

Under the fixed-price contract, EDS will provide facilities management, data entry, automated data processing and identification card manufacturing services. This contract is for a one-year term with four one-year options.

EDS manufactures secure identification cards for aliens who have permanent resident status in the United States. Security of the cards is assured through the use of special paper and laminates as well as with the use of control numbers.

The contract also includes the production of specialized cards such as "border crosser" cards which allow residents of Mexico to visit and shop in the United States for short periods of time. Additionally, EDS will maintain and operate a central data base for inquiries on card application status and for updating information on previously issued cards.

Since 1982, over 7.7 million alien identification cards, nearly 1 million visas and a quarter of a million border crosser applications have been processed at the Immigration Card Facility near Dallas.

"The need for secure documentation in the world today provides a great technological challenge," said Bob McCashin, group executive for EDS' Federal Government Group. "This program contains the latest advances in technology to meet INS' stringent requirements."

"These cards are vital to the Alien Documentation Program," said Bill Dvoranchik, president of EDS' Government Services Division. "The production of the cards demonstrate EDS' ability to perform in a high-volume manufacturing environment while maintaining strict security requirements."

EDS has operations in 27 countries and is the leader in providing information technology services to customers around the world. Stock reflecting EDS' performance is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol GME. The company reported revenues of $5.5 billion in 1989.

DANBURY, CT (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Formation of a worldwide urethane additives business group was announced today by Union Carbide Chemicals and Plastics Company Inc. (UCC&P).

Union Carbide has been in the forefront of urethane additives development since the mid-1950's. Products and services are available for the manufacture of flexible, semiflexible and rigid urethane foams, as well as high resilience frothed and specialty foams and elastomers.

The new group -- located in UCC&P's Specialty Chemicals Division -- has a strong product and technology base involving silicone surfactants, amine catalysts and GEOLITE foam chemistry. The new group will expand the product and application focus of the business.

Joseph C. Soviero, president of the Specialty Chemicals Division, said: "Our global urethane additives business recognizes that the polyurethane industry is challenged by economic and chlorofluorocarbon/ VOC (volatile organic compounds) issues. Urethane additives' products and technology offer a tremendous opportunity to meet these challenges."

David N. Verner has been named business director of the urethane additives group. His 19-year career with Union Carbide has included managerial assignments in manufacturing, distribution, marketing and new business development.

Raymond J. Ricciardi, formerly business manager for polyols, has been appointed marketing and sales director. Ricciardi has been with Union Carbide since 1966 and has held numerous sales and marketing management positions.

Urethane additives has been organized to serve customers on a worldwide basis. Major world-class manufacturing facilities for silicone surfactants and amine catalysts are located in Sistersville and South Charleston, W.Va., and Antwerp Belgium. Smaller facilities are operated in Japan, Argentina, Brazil, United Kingdom, and Korea.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Turner Corporation (AMEX: TUR) announced today that Nicholas T. Makes has been elected vice president and director of business development for Turner Construction Company, effective Sept. 1. He reports to Thomas B. Gerlach, senior vice president, The Turner Corporation.

In his new position, Makes, a 14-year Turner veteran, has responsibility for the company's marketing and sales efforts. In addition, until Jan. 1, 1991, Makes will continue in his role as manager of Turner's Atlanta office.

"We are looking forward to applying Nick's insight and experience on a company-wide level," said Gerlach. "He has proven his ability at every level of the Turner organization. His new role is a continuation of that natural progression."

Makes joined Turner in 1976 in its Philadelphia office as an engineering assistant on the University of Pennsylvania Medical Education building. In 1979, he was assigned to the Special Projects Division where he managed four laboratory fit-out projects for the University of Pennsylvania and a renovation project for the Hospital of The University of Pennsylvania. Makes was promoted to superintendent in 1980 and managed the construction of the Radnor Corporation Sun Transport office building. In 1981, he assumed the position of business development engineer in the Philadelphia office and was promoted to manager of business development in 1982. Makes was assigned as manager of Philadelphia's Special Projects Division in 1986 where he worked until November 1987, when he was named manager of the Atlanta office.

Makes holds a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering and a master's degree in structural design, both from Cornell University.

Makes and his family currently reside in Dunwoody, Ga.

LUBBOCK, TX (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Furr's/Bishop's Cafeterias, L.P. (NYSE: CAF) announced today that a purported class action lawsuit had been filed in the Delaware Court of Chancery against Cavalcade & Co., Inc. and Michael J. Levenson, the managing general partner, and the special general partner, respectively, of Furr's/Bishop's in connection with Furr's/Bishop's proposal to convert to corporate form by merging with a subsidiary of a new corporate holding company.

The plaintiffs allege, among other things, that the general partners of Furr's/Bishop's have breached their fiduciary duties by proposing the merger at terms which the plaintiffs consider unfair to public holders of Furr's/Bishop's preference units.

The lawsuit seeks, among other things, to enjoin the consummation of the merger and damages including attorneys' fees and expenses.

Furr's/Bishop's believes that the plaintiffs' claims are without merit and the general partners intend to defend vigorously against the action.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae) (NYSE: SLM) today announced plans to resume the repurchase, on the market, of the corporation's voting and non-voting common shares and, potentially, to repurchase the corporation's equity warrants as well.

While Sallie Mae has repurchased approximately 22 million common shares since 1986, it has refrained from any such activity since last July, when it entered into negotiations with the Department of Education relative to the financial situation of HEAF, a guarantor under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. Since the department last week announced its plan to resolve the HEAF matter, Sallie Mae said it could now resume the buyback program.

As a part of that resolution plan and as announced last week, Sallie Mae will provide management services to HEAF in support of the winding down of its operations over the next three years.

In this regard, the corporation also announced that its board of directors has increased management's repurchase authority to 4 million common shares. (Of those 4 million shares, up to 1.4 million shares may be of the voting common stock). The board additionally authorized repurchase of the corporation's 9 million equity warrants.

At Sept. 30, there were issued and outstanding 97.2 million shares of Sallie Mae's common stock, including 12.3 million shares of voting common stock, which trades (SLMAJ) on the NASDAQ National Market System, and 84.8 million shares of non-voting common stock which trades (SLM) on the New York Stock Exchange. The 9 million equity warrants trade (SLMAW) NASDAQ.

Sallie Mae, a federally chartered, stockholder-owned (NYSE) corporation, is the major financial intermediary serving the education finance market. By buying insured student loans and providing other financial services to financial and educational institutions, Sallie Mae replenishes local supplies of student credit. The corporation owns nearly 30 percent of all guaranteed student loans outstanding today.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Bankers Trust Company (NYSE: BT) announced today that companies affiliated with the Sumitomo Bank Group will acquire full ownership of Sumigin Bankers Investment Management Co. Ltd. (SBIM). Terms of the sale were not disclosed.

SBIM, a joint venture formed in 1985, manages corporate funds and public and private pension funds, and is owned equally by Bankers Trust Company and by Sumitomo Bank Group companies.

"Bankers Trust values enormously the strong and close relationship we have with the Sumitomo Bank and its affiliated companies and we will continue to work closely with them," said H. Kent Atkins, executive vice president and head of the Investment Management Group of Bankers Trust Company. "At the same time, we have achieved the objectives that were set when SBIM was formed five years ago, and feel that it is now appropriate for us to concentrate our trust and investment management business in Japan Bankers Trust Company (JBT), and allow the Sumitomo Bank Group companies to pursue their own goals."

JBT, a wholly owned trust banking subsidiary of Bankers Trust Company, is the largest foreign trust bank in Japan, with assets in excess of $7 billion. Formed in 1985, it serves as both investment manager and trustee of corporate funds and public and private pension funds.

"Japan is one of the cornerstones of our business strategy," said Atkins. "As we continue to develop our global business, the success of JBT will provide a strong base on which to build in Japan."

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Grace Specialty Chemicals Co., the largest operating unit of W. R. Grace & Co. (NYSE: GRA), today announced that it will spend $10 million to convert one of the operations at its subsidiary's facilities in Valleyfield, Quebec to produce zeolite additives for use in fluid cracking catalysts. Fluid cracking catalysts are used by the petroleum industry to refine crude oil into gasoline.

Upon completion of this project, Grace will have substantially increased its manufacturing capacity for ultra stable zeolites. The conversion is expected to be completed in early 1992.

"The decision was made to convert this facility in Quebec rather than expand another location because of the speed with which we can undertake this move," according to Donald H. Kohnken, president of Grace Specialty Chemicals Co. In addition, Kohnken noted that this project can be accomplished at a significantly lower capital cost than other options. "This will help make capital available for other related projects," he added.

Grace's catalyst products are sold by its Davison Chemical Division, headquartered in Baltimore. The Valleyfield facility currently manufactures fluid cracking catalysts, specialty aluminas and zeolites used as detergent builders.

W. R. Grace & Co. is an international specialty chemical company with selected interests in energy, manufacturing and service businesses.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (NYCDEP) has awarded the joint venture of Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation and Hazen and Sawyer a contract to provide construction management services for eight sludge dewatering facilities.

The project is a major component of New York City's sludge management program which is based on a three-pronged strategy for cessation of New York City's ocean disposal of sewage sludge. The immediate plan consists of the construction of dewatering facilities at eight existing water pollution control plants to handle sludge generated at all 14 of the city's plants. The sludge dewatering facilities are to be located at the city's Wards Island, Hunts Point, 26th Ward, Jamaica, Bowery Bay, Oakwood Beach, Tallmans Island and Red Hook water pollution control plants. The dewatering equipment and supporting ancillary systems will be housed in pile supported block and brick buildings.

The intermediate plan involves the privatization of sludge management services. The long term plan requires the selection and implementation of beneficial use land-based schemes for utilization of sludge products.

The construction management services for the sludge dewatering program includes project management, resident engineering inspection and project operations services for the eight dewatering sites.

The joint venture is planning to use Stone & Webster's Construction Management Display System (COMANDS), an innovative 3D computer modeling program created for construction management application and designed to enhance operational efficiency on the project. The computer modeling will be used at each construction site for such tasks as scheduling, progress measurement and contract administration.

Construction of the dewatering facilities is scheduled for completion in 1992. The total construction cost for the project is estimated at $693 million.

Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation is a multidisciplinary firm that provides a full range of engineering, architecture, construction management and environmental services to government agencies and private industries. Its diverse areas of expertise include transportation, power, infrastructure rehabilitation, industrial processing and environmental compliance. The company is a subsidiary of Stone & Webster, Inc. (NYSE: SW) of New York.

Hazen and Swayer, P.C. has had a specialized practice in sanitary and environmental engineering since 1951. Headquartered in New York, the firm is totally owned by its professional employees. Hazen and Sawyer's practice includes water supply resource development and treatment, wastewater collection and treatment, solid and hazardous waste management and environmental projects.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Citicorp (NYSE: CCI) today announced the sale of its minority interest in the Diners Club franchise in Japan to the Fuji Bank Group and Japan Travel Bureau for approximately $60 million.

In recent years, Citicorp has been rebalancing its ownership of the Diners Club franchises around the world. Citicorp noted that this can mean either selling or buying an interest in a franchise, depending on local market conditions.

For example, Citicorp recently bought 100 percent ownership of Diners Club India, because it believes that franchise will prosper more rapidly under direct ownership. On the other hand, under the Fuji Bank Group and JTB management team, Diners Club Japan has prospered as a prestigious and well respected card in Japan, serving about 700,000 card members.

Diners Club Japan was founded in 1960 with Fuji Bank and JTB. Citicorp acquired a 25 percent interest in 1981.

Citicorp noted that the sale of its interest to its partners will not affect its franchise relationship with Diners Club Japan. Citicorp and its Japanese partners will ensure the continuing commitment to build a travel and entertainment card business whose members will be well served worldwide. The Fuji Bank Group and JTB will continue to focus on strengthening and growing the Diners Club franchise in Japan, while Citicorp will redirect its resources towards increased programs and support services that enhance the global acceptance of the card.

#90274p9936 10/01/1990 ~PR Newswire
BLUE BELL, Pa. (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Unisys Corp. (NYSE: UIS) today announced a formal, comprehensive software architecture that will enable integration of both Unisys systems and those of other vendors - from PCs and workstations to mainframes - into the transparent information networks that are expected to dominate enterprise computing by the mid-1990s.

The company also introduced a series of architecture-compliant hardware and software products and several strategic product partnerships. They expand a base of more than 150 products currently in use that form the basis for the architecture. Unisys said it will introduce a steady stream of products this year and next as part of the architecture initiative that will allow users to build what Unisys calls an Integrated Information Environment.

James A. Unruh, Unisys president and chief executive officer, said at a New York City press conference today that the architecture and Integrated Information Environment program "is not a new strategy but rather the most important milestone in a strategy put in place following the 1986 merger of Sperry and Burroughs. It uses open standards to bring together a range of diverse products. Elements of this architectural blueprint have already been proven in day-to-day operation at customer sites worldwide. The formal release of architecture specifications means we can significantly accelerate creation of the Unisys way of computing for the 1990s."

Unruh said the Unisys software architecture strategy to make useful information readily available to the user, no matter where it is or on what equipment, is "significantly differentiated" from directions announced by other vendors. An important benefit to Unisys of the architecture, Unruh said is that "it provides a common superstructure that sits on top of our hardware platforms, bringing greater commonality to our open and proprietary product lines. It also puts us in the marketplace mainstream in that we are better positioned to offer non- Unisys users a total solutions package that they know will be fully interoperable with their existing computing environment."

Unisys said there are several key characteristics of the architecture: - It defines the specific roles of all product platforms - mainframes, UNIX systems and PCs and other workstations - in a distributed information environment.

- It uses open standards as the glue between proprietary systems and UNIX systems and workstations.

- It emphasizes value-added capabilities built on top of standards, putting emphasis on such areas as greater security and on-line transaction processing.

- It is a set of rules for guiding product development to meet market needs while getting the most effective results from R&D investment.

- It is a planning tool for both Unisys and customers that puts a premium on safeguarding current equipment investment while permitting the greatest user choice among future technologies.

Differentiators from competitive initiatives, Unisys said, include the unique combination of:

- A clearly defined role for the mainframe. - A firm commitment to open standards as the core of the strategy. - A strong, existing set of CASE/4GL tools for applications development that are being extended to other vendors' platforms.

- An information network rather than product orientation that permits maximum vendor-independent choice and flexibility for users.

The company said it believed it was the first full-line vendor to provide desktop to mainframe products supporting interoperability in an open environment.

Products and partnerships announced today include: - A new generation of Open Systems Interconnect (OSI) compliant mainframe operating software for the 1100/2200 Series and A Series product families which supports the role that mainframes will play as information hubs in an Integrated Information Environment.

- Availability of Unisys fourth generation language software products, MAPPER and ALLY, on a range of non-Unisys platforms - including the AT&T 3B2 family, NCR Tower Systems and Sun Microsystems SPARC platforms. MAPPER is also now available for Unisys Personal Workstation2 (PW2) systems and other IBM-compatible PCs running under the OS/2 operating system.

- Strategic software partnerships with PROCASE Corporation to develop a COBOL version of PROCASE's SMART systems software maintenance and reverse engineering tools; and with Applied Information Sciences (AIS) Incorporated to integrate the Unisys Open/OLTP offerings with the AIS UniAccess software which allows access to multivendor mainframes and servers.

Unisys also unveiled the Unisys Business Network, a working enterprise information network which provides cost-effective voice, video, data, messaging and image service for Unisys operations as well as for Unisys customers and business partners worldwide. The Unisys Business Network, which widely implements Ethernet LAN, TCP/IP and OSI technologies and protocols, enables any one of 100,000 workstations in 50 countries to obtain access to any of more than 700 mainframe hosts from a variety of vendors.

SANTA ANA, CA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Ingram Micro D and Western Digital Corp. (AMEX: WDC) announced the signing of an exclusive, worldwide distribution agreement for Western Digital Imaging's complete line of Paradise video board products for the VGA and 8514/A markets. The agreement is effective Oct. 1, 1990, through Sept. 30, 1991.

Paradise is the industry's leading IBM-compatible video board product line. The Paradise product line supports all popular video standards, including 8514/A, VGA, EGA and pre-EGA.

"This agreement between our two companies represents a powerful channel partnership," said David R. Dukes, Ingram Micro D president. "It gives us a boost in our efforts to promote and advance those video standards that represent the best, long-term market opportunities for resellers. The explosive growth in windowing environments is contributing significantly to the steadily rising demand for workstation-quality graphics. And the trend toward more sophisticated graphics interfaces in mainstream applications goes hand-in-hand with the demand for video cards and monitors."

Roger W. Johnson, Western Digital chief executive officer, said, "This agreement provides what we believe to be the most effective way to market the popular Paradise video boards. Partnerships with strong players like Ingram Micro D are one of several different ways in which we can deliver value to the channel. Although this agreement could have been reached with a number of our loyal distributors, the selection of IMD was logical after an exhaustive review of distributors' ability to add value to these products in the worldwide video enhancement aftermarket."

Western Digital Corp., headquartered in Irvine, Calif., is a multi-national company that designs, develops, manufactures and markets semi-conductors, subsystems and intelligent disk drives for original equipment manufacturers and resellers which serve the microcomputer industry.

Ingram Micro D Inc. is the world's largest distributor of microcomputer products, marketing and distributing more than 7,000 products from over 500 of the world's top hardware manufacturers and software developers. It serves as a wholesale distributor to over 40,000 reseller customers in the United States Canada and Europe. Ingram Micro D Inc. operates two international subsidiaries, Ingram Micro D Ltd. of Canada and Ingram Softeurop of Belgium. The company is headquartered in Santa Ana and achieved sales in excess of $1 billion in 1989.

DETROIT (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - UAW members have ratified their new three-year agreement by a margin of 80 percent in voting which concluded on Sunday (Sept. 30).

"This impressive ratification vote affirms our belief that the agreement we negotiated at General Motors measured up to the goals and expectations of the membership," said UAW President Owen Bieber and Vice President Stephen P. Yokich, who directs the union's General Motors Department.

The agreement assures UAW-GM workers job and income security, even in the event of volume-related layoffs; wage improvements totaling more than $14,000 for a typical production worker; substantial income gains for all retirees; continuation of excellent health insurance coverages; and significantly expanded union input into decisions affecting quality and sourcing.

The vote totals among production and maintenance workers were:

For:	63,963
Against:	15,787

The vote totals among the skilled trades workers were:

For:	22,069
Against:	5,674

"We could not have accomplished this fine agreement without the steadfast determination and hard work of the GM National Bargaining Committee, the local union leadership and especially the discipline of our well-informed and sophisticated membership in GM plants across the country," Bieber and Yokich stated. The UAW leaders also paid tribute to the "constructive attitude" displayed throughout the negotiations by key General Motors officials including Chairman Robert Stempel and Vice President Al Warren.

"This agreement will serve as an excellent pattern for new contracts at Ford and Chrysler," they said.

"Once again, the UAW has overcome very tough challenges to pioneer gains in workplace rights and dignity which will set a benchmark for working people everywhere," Bieber and Yokich concluded.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Country Lake Foods Inc. (NASDAQ: CLFI) today announced plans to discontinue operations at its two ice cream manufacturing plants, effective early in 1991. The company will continue to supply ice cream to its customers through an agreement with an outside supplier.

Country Lake Foods said the plants to be closed are in Grand Forks, N.D., where there are 28 employees, and Mora, Minn., with 37 employees. The company said it is taking a one-time, pre-tax charge of $750,000 associated with the plant closings in the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Thomas N. Packard, president of Country Lake Foods, said the company will continue to sell ice cream, including the LAND O LAKES(R) and Bridgeman(R) brands, under an agreement with Wells Dairy in Le Mars, Iowa. Country Lake Foods will become the broker for Wells Dairy in Minnesota, and Wells will produce Country Lake's brands of ice cream for sale in North and South Dakota under a co-pack agreement.

Packard said the company plans to work with the state job services and its unions to help the affected employees find jobs and will also be working with the unions and the employees on other effects of the plant closures.

"We explored a number of alternatives before reluctantly reaching the conclusion that it was no longer economically feasible to continue operating these relatively small plants," Packard said. "At the same time, we are very pleased to have this association with Wells. Wells' Blue Bunny label is well established in Minnesota, and Wells is recognized for its high quality and state-of-the-art production facility."

Headquartered in Minneapolis, Country Lake produces and distributes fresh packaged milk, ice cream, other dairy products and fruit juices in a six-state

Midwest region.

TORONTO (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Campeau Corporation today reported its unaudited financial results for the six-month period ended July 31, 1990. To assist investors in gaining a better understanding of the financial performance and position of the corporation and its subsidiaries, the financial statements continue to show both consolidated and parent-company only results. All figures are stated in U.S. dollars.

Consolidated revenue for Campeau Corporation amounted to $4.45 billion in the six-month 1990 period compared with $4.49 billion in the first half of 1989. This includes revenue from department stores of $3.11 billion in first-half 1990, down from $3.2 billion a year earlier.

Ralphs Grocery Company's revenue rose 7.1 percent to $1.24 billion from the supermarket company's first-half 1989 revenue of $1.16 billion.

Real estate revenue declined to $96 million in the first half of 1990 from $119 million in 1989 reflecting the disposition of rental properties in Canada and the United States net of rent increases principally in Canada and a decline in land sales. Subsequent to the end of the second quarter, the corporation has completed the sale of additional land and properties in Canada for a total of about $40 million. Since the beginning of the 1990 year, total asset dispositions in Canada have amounted to more than $135 million.

Consolidated operating profit amounted to $234 million in the 1990 period compared with $425 million for the same six months of 1989. Operating profit from department stores declined to $142 million in the 1990 period compared with $265 million in 1989.

The consolidated net loss from continuing operations for the first half of 1990 was $298 million compared with a loss in the 1989 period of $191 million. The 1990 loss includes gains on sale of assets of $47 million while the 1989 loss is after gains on sale of assets of $122 million. The 1990 net loss also includes $35 million in reorganization costs principally related to U.S. subsidiaries in reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. These include Allied Stores Corporation, Federated Department Stores, Inc., and Federated Stores, Inc. Ralphs Grocery Company did not file for relief under Chapter 11.

Revenue for the parent company amounted to $81 million in the six- month 1990 period compared with $89 million a year earlier with the decline reflecting the sale of properties.

SIOUX FALLS, SD (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Raven Industries, Inc. (AMEX: RAV) announced today that it has been awarded a contract totaling $22 million by the Defense Personnel Support Center in Philadelphia. The contract is for the manufacture of chemical-protective military clothing.

The company said that approximately $10 million of the total contact will be subcontracted to Tennessee Apparel Corp., a private company that is teamed with Raven on the manufacturing project.

Deliveries are scheduled to begin in calendar year 1991 and extend into 1992, Raven said.

Raven Industries last month reported second-quarter net earnings of $1.3 million, or 42 cents a share, against $1.2 million, or 38 cents, in the comparable quarter a year earlier, and sales of $21.4 million, down approximately 2 percent from the year-ago's $21.8 million. It also reported in August that it increased its quarterly cash dividend 20 percent to 9 cents a share from 7.5 cents.

ATLANTA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Beginning today, C&S and Sovran bank customers will be able to use any of the 864 Automated Teller Machines (ATMs) at either bank at no additional charge.

Linking the two networks effectively doubles the number of ATMs available to customers of each bank.

The ATM network will stretch from Baltimore to Key West, Fla., and will be one of the largest in the United States operated by a single bank holding company. The C&S and Sovran Banks are part of C&S/Sovran Corp. (NYSE: CVN), a financial services company created by the recent combination of The Citizens and Southern Corp. and Sovran Financial Corp.

C&S/Sovran has more than 1,000 bank offices in Georgia, Florida, Maryland, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Washington, D.C. All ATMs in those states will be connected and available for use by C&S and Sovran customers. The company serves more than 5 million customers, including more than 2 million who have ATM cards. The C&S/Sovran banks process approximately 71 million ATM transactions annually.

Customers will be able to withdraw cash from checking and savings accounts, transfer funds between those accounts, check account balances and receive cash from C&S and Sovran bank card accounts. Customers will not be required to make any changes.

The company operates banks in some of the nation's major urban centers, including Atlanta, Norfolk, Va., Baltimore, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Nashville, Tampa/St. Petersburg, Fla., and Washington. It also operates banks in many resort and vacation destinations, such as Orlando, Fla., Hilton Head, S.C., Virginia Beach, Va., and other locations along the East Coast, as well as the west coast of Florida.

To connect the banks' ATM networks, computer systems development groups in Atlanta and Norfolk developed software enabling the data centers in those two cities to work together. Before the merger, all of C&S's electronic funds transfer processing took place in Atlanta, and Sovran's in Norfolk.

C&S/Sovran Corp., with dual headquarters in Atlanta and Norfolk, is the nation's 13th-largest bank holding company with $50.3 billion in assets at June 30. The C&S/Sovran factoring company is the third-largest in the nation and its mortgage servicing, credit card, leasing and corporate trust activities rank in the top 15.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Flight attendants employed by WestAir (United Express), represented by the Association of Flight Attendants (AFA), reached a tentative agreement on a first-time contract with the company Friday Sept. 28. The agreement was reached after almost 21 months of negotiations, the AFA said.

Negotiations between the WestAir flight attendants and management began on Jan. 9, 1989. The flight attendants voted to be represented by AFA on May 23, 1988.

WestAir employs 200 flight attendants and has its headquarters in Fresno, Calif., with additional flight attendant bases located in Bakersfield and Sacramento, Calif., and at Washington-Dulles (currently operated at Atlantic Coast). The agreement will cover an additional 14 flight attendants from NPA, Inc. when the merger of that airline and WestAir is completed by WestAir Holding, Inc. Atlantic Coast and NPA are also United Express carriers."

The tentative agreement includes substantial pay and work rule improvements over the life of the three-year contract. Details of the agreement are being withheld pending ratification by the membership. The flight attendants will vote on the agreement by confidential mail ballots which will be counted in early November.

"This agreement on a first-time contract is a career milestone for the WestAir flight attendants," said Susan Bianchi-Sand, AFA national president. "These are front-line workers, responsible for passenger safety, and the work rule and pay improvements in this contract are well-deserved and long overdue."

The Association of Flight Attendants, AFL-CIO, represents 30,000 flight attendants on 18 airlines and is the largest flight attendant union in the world.

LAFAYETTE HILL, PA (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Home Unity Savings Bank PaSA (NASDAQ: HUSB) reported today that it has received permission from the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) to continue its current operations pending completion of the OTS' review of the revised capital restoration plan Home Unity submitted recently to the OTS.

Home Unity's original capital restoration plan, submitted to the OTS on Jan. 8 1990, and approved, subject to the terms of an operating agreement between Home Unity and the OTS, on March 19, 1990, was predicated upon Home Unity's obtaining a capital infusion of $26 million by Sept. 30, 1990. Although Home Unity continues to diligently seek such an infusion, as of today no agreement for that infusion has been consummated. The revised capital restoration plan which Home Unity recently submitted to the OTS contemplates Home Unity's obtaining commitments for a capital infusion of $12 million by Dec. 31, 1990, and consummating a capital infusion for a total of $33 million by Dec. 31, 1991.

Michael C. Rush, Home Unity's president and chief executive officer, stated, "We continue our diligent efforts to obtain our required capital infusion, and look forward to the OTS' response to our revised capital restoration plan. In the meantime, we will continue our focus on our core, retail banking operations. This has provided the basis for the significant continued improvements in Home Unity's profitability, net interest spread and operating expenses over the last several quarters."

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Financial News Network Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FNNI) today filed for an extension of time to file its Form 10-K Annual Report with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

FNN is not able to complete its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, at this time because its independent auditors have not yet completed their examination.

FNN and its auditors are discussing, and have not yet resolved, several accounting issues, most significantly the treatment of approximately $28 million invested in development of the new FNN:PRO product introduced in July 1990. Also under review are valuation of data receivers furnished to customers of FNN:Data Broadcasting, accounting for sale and leasebacks of such receivers, related party transactions and FNN's property accounts.

FNN has obtained independent advice on the major issues under discussion with its auditors and believes that it has properly accounted for both the FNN:PRO development costs and the data receivers. However, should these accounting issues ultimately be resolved contrary to FNN's position, FNN would report a very substantial non-cash loss for at least the fourth quarter of FY 1990 and for the year.

As a result of the foregoing issues, FNN may be placed in defaults under its bank credit agreements pursuant to which approximately $48.5 million is outstanding. FNN is commencing discussions with its principal bank to seek appropriate waivers to prevent default. In addition to the bank loans, as of June 30, 1990, the company was obligated under approximately $73 million of lease agreements. Bank and lease payments are current.

"FNN basic business operations are stronger than ever," stated Dr. Earl Brian, FNN chairman. "FNN now reaches more than 35 million homes and has earned the position of leader of televised business news. We intend to retain and to strengthen FNN's position in the marketplace," he added.

Financial News Network provides three services to more than 35 million homes on 3,500 cable systems throughout the United States and Canada. The services are: FNN:Business (business news and personal financial management); FNN:Sports (sports information and news); and FNN:Data Broadcasting (stock quotes and market information). FNN also operates a business radio service and owns a majority position in The Learning Channel, which provides 24 hours daily of adult educational programming to up to 18 million households.

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (OCTOBER 1) TASS - SAUDI ARABIA HAS REINFORCED ITS NORTHERN BORDERS, DISTRIBUTING DEFENSIVE DISPOSITIONS IN DEPTH FOR SEVERAL DOZENS OF KILOMETERS.

EGYPTIAN AND SYRIAN TROOPS ARE PARTICIPATING IN ENSURING THE SECURITY OF SAUDI ARABIAN BORDERS WITH IRAQ. UNITS OF THE KUWAITI ARMY HAVE BEEN DEPLOYED ON THE SECOND LINE OF DEFENCE. THE MAIN COMMAND OF THE MULTILATERAL ARMED FORCES IS COORDINATING THE BUILD-UP.

ON SUNDAY THE SAUDI LEADERSHIP ARRANGED A TRIP FOR FOREIGN JOURNALISTS INTO THE AREA OF TROOP DEPLOYMENT ON THE DIBDIBA PLAIN.

COMMANDERS OF UNITS REPORT THAT ONLY 20 KILOMETERS SEPARATE THE TWO SIDES.

FORWARD-BASED SYRIAN UNITS WERE PULLED BACK FROM THE BORDER DEEPER INTO SAUDI ARABIA.

DIBDIBA PLAIN WHICH IS BARREN OF VEGETATION, HAS BEEN PEPPERED WITH TRENCHES OVER AN AREA OF HUNDREDS OF SQUARE KILOMETERS. ARMOURED TROOPS, ARTILLERY DIVISIONS EQUIPPED WITH "GROUND-TO-GROUND" MISSILES AND OTHER ARMS AS WELL AS MECHANISED INFANTRY BRIGADES AND COMMANDOS UNITS HAVE BEEN ALERTED.

GENERAL TURKI HODEIJANI, COMMANDER OF THE 20TH SAUDI MECHANISED INFANTRY BRIGADE, TOLD REPORTERS THAT THE ROYAL FORCES HAVE HIGH MORALE. THE BRIGADE IS READY TO PROTECT THE COUNTRY'S BORDERS AGAINST ANY AGGRESSION.

THE NORTHERN BORDER IS SITUATED AT A DISTANCE OF OVER 1,500 KILOMETERS FROM MECCA, SO THE IRAQI ARMY DOES NOT THREATEN HOLY ISLAMIC SHRINES, THE GENERAL SAID. THERE ARE NO U.S. FORCES IN THE NORTHERN DISTRICT.

THE MULTINATIONAL ARMED FORCES TOOK MEASURES TO PROTECT THEMSELVES IN CASE

IRAQ USES CHEMICAL WEAPONS, HODEIJANI SAID. AT THE SAME TIME HE NOTED THAT HE BELIEVES THAT THE DANGER OF IRAQI CHEMICAL ATTACK HAD BEEN "EXAGGERATED."

HE SAID DATA ABOUT THE NUMERICAL STRENGTH OF AN IRAQI ARMY ON SAUDI BORDERS WAS ALSO EXAGGERATED. ACCORDING TO INFORMATION, THE SAUDI GENERAL DESCRIBED AS "IMPLAUSIBLE", IRAQ KEEPS SOME 400,000 SOLDIERS IN THE AREA.

ABDEL RAHIM MOHAMMED SAID, COLONEL OF THE GENERAL STAFF OF THE EGYPTIAN ARMY, SAID THAT EGYPTIAN COMMANDOS ARE READY TO FULFIL ANY OPERATIONS WITHIN THE MULTINATIONAL ARMED FORCES. THEY HAVE AT THEIR DISPOSAL SOVIET ARMS.

"WE HAVE NO SOVIET ARMS, BUT WE ARE DEEPLY SATISFIED BY THE FACT THAT THE SOVIET UNION HAS CONDEMNED THE TREACHEROUS SEIZURE OF KUWAIT BY THE IRAQI REGIMEN," LIEUTENANT-COLONEL ABDUL AZIZ ABUL ALYA, DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE SAUDI TANK REGIMENT, TOLD TASS.

ABUL ALYA ABDEL AZIZ SAID THAT THE PEOPLE OF SAUDI ARABIA, IN WHICH THE ROYAL ARMED FORCES ARE INCLUDED, IS PLEASED ABOUT THE RESTORATION OF THE SAUDI-SOVIET DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS.

THE SOVIET UNION'S READINESS TO SEND ITS UNITS TO OPERATE UNDER THE UNITED NATIONS FLAG IS WELCOMED BY SAUDI ARABIA, HE SAID.

MOSCOW (OCT. 1) TASS -

RUSSIAN LAWMAKERS, SCRAMBLING TO PROVIDE A LEGAL GROUNDWORK FOR AN AMBITIOUS PROGRAMME TO INTRODUCE A MARKET ECONOMY IN THE LARGEST SOVIET REPUBLIC, ARE SOON EXPECTED TO PASS A BILL ON PROPERTY OWNERSHIP, ACCORDING TO RUSSIAN FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT RUSLAN KHASBULATOV.

THE BILL WILL BE THE FIRST IN A SERIES OF LAWS UNDER CONSIDERATION IN PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS, KHASBULATOV TOLD TASS.

INITIALLY, RUSSIAN AUTHORITIES PLANNED TO EMBARK ON FREE- MARKET REFORMS ON OCTOBER 1. HOWEVER, THE ABSENCE OF A LEGAL MECHANISM HAMSTRUNG THE PLANNED REFORM.

RUSSIAN PRIME MINISTER WILL ADDRESS PARLIAMENT ON OCTOBER 6 ON MEASURES TO STABILISE THE ECONOMY AND PREPARE IT FOR THE TRANSITION TO MARKET RELATIONS, KHASBULATOV SAID.

PARLIAMENT IS PREPARING A BILL ON ENTREPRENEURSHIP IN RUSSIA, WHICH WILL GIVE EQUAL RIGHTS TO SOVIET AND FOREIGN ENTREPRENEURS IN ORDER TO ATTRACT FOREIGN INVESTORS.

PARLIAMENT HAS ALREADY PASSED A RESOLUTION ON THE SETTING UP OF FREE ECONOMIC ZONES IN RUSSIA, KHASBULATOV SAID.

BESIDES ECONOMIC LAWS, THE SUPREME SOVIET WILL ALSO PASS SEVERAL OTHER BILLS, INCLUDING A BILL ON REFERENDA AND LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

VILNIUS (OCTOBER 1) TASS - THE GOVERNMENT OF LITHUANIAN PRIME MINISTER KAZIMIERA PRUNSKIENE IS COMING UNDER FIRE AS THE REPUBLIC'S ECONOMIC POSITION CONTINUES TO DETERIORATE.

PRUNSKIENE'S MAIN DEFENCE THUS FAR HAS BEEN THAT "THE GOVERNMENT'S ACTIVITIES ARE AIMED AT ASSERTING LITHUANIA'S INDEPENDENCE".

EXPLAINING HER IDEA IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THE EKHO LITVY NEWSPAPER, PRUNSKIENE STRESSED THAT THE GOVERNMENT IS DRAFTING A "PROGRAMME FOR ECONOMIC REFORM AND REORGANISATION OF THE LITHUANIAN ECONOMY AND FOREIGN POLICY".

AS FOR SWITCHING TO NEW ECONOMIC RELATIONS, "PRIVATISATION WILL BEGIN AFTER PARLIAMENT ADOPTS REMAINING LAWS," SHE NOTED.

PRUNSKIENE PINS GREAT HOPES ON A MEETING BETWEEN REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BALTIC REPUBLICS, MOLDAVIA, BYELORUSSIA AND THE RUSSIAN FEDERATION WHICH WAS HELD IN TALLINN LAST FRIDAY.

COMMENTING ON ITS RESULTS, SHE EMPHASISED THAT "THIS WAS THE SNATCHING OF THE INITIATIVE FROM THE CENTRE AND THE FORMATION OF NEW RELATIONS, INCLUDING MULTILATERAL".

SHE PREDICTED THAT EAST AND CENTRAL EUROPEAN COUNTRIES MAY PARTICIPATE IN THE NEXT TALLINN MEETING. "THE CECHY REPUBLIC HAS EXPRESSED A DESIRE TO PARTICIPATE IN SUCH A MEETING," SHE SAID.

PRUNSKIENE BELIEVES THE DISCUSSION AT THE MEETING OF MAINTAINING ECONOMIC RELATIONS AT THE 1990 LEVEL THE LITHUANIAN ECONOMY FROM COLLAPSE.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 30) UPI - President Bush urged leaders attending the World Children's Summit on Sunday to join in a partnership to save millions of children dying of disease and malnutrition.

Bush delivered the eight-minute speech and returned to Washington for a few hours to hail the compromise budget deficit package. He flew back to New York to prepare for his speech Monday to the U.N. General Assembly.

In the brief address to the United Nations-sponsored conference, Bush declared the world's children ''can be saved when we live up to our responsibilities, not just as an assembly of governments but as a world community of adults, of parents.''

He cited steps the United States is taking to reduce infant mortality and to improve the health of both mothers and children, and he announced that he is sending Health Secretary Louis Sullivan to Africa, where acquired immune deficiency syndrome is killing many children.

Bush said Sullivan will ''see what else America and the world can do to advance child survival across the continent and across the world.''

''There is still another child-killer loose in the world that knows no cure: AIDS,'' Bush said. ''And nowhere is this killer taking more lives than in Africa.''

Speaking of the fate of the world's children, mainly in the poverty- stricken areas, Bush said: ''The facts are as stark as they are oppressive. They are almost 3 billion young people on Earth today, and more than 14 million of them will die this year.

''In the next hour alone, 1,000 babies will perish,'' Bush said. ''But we are here to defy cold statistics. We have seen children with swollen bellies. We have seen the pleading eyes of starvation. We have heard the cries of children dying of disease.

''So let us affirm, in this historic world summit, that these children can be saved.''

The summit, which brought together more than 70 world leaders, was called to set goals to improve the lives of deprived children throughout the world.

The leaders also were urging nations to ratify the Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted last year by the U.N. General Assembly after a decade of debate.

Some 100 countries have signed the convention and more than 40 have put ratification on their legislative agendas, but the United States has balked so far at putting the convention up for ratification so far.

The U.S. opposition centers on the failure of the convention to condemn abortion and its opposition to capital punishment for persons under 18 years of age. The capital punishment provision conflicts with some state laws.

But Sullivan and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos dismissed as ''technicalities'' the U.S. failure to ratify the convention and said it agrees with the substance of the convention.

The president Sunday interrupted his three-day diplomatic whirl at the United Nations to fly back to Washington for a few hours to hail the historic compromise budget deficit package.

On his return to New York, Bush resumed his one-on-one sessions with a series of world leaders, including Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel. He also had a dinner meeting with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

In a preview of the president's speech Monday to the General Assembly, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said his remarks will focus on the U.N.'s history and ''effectiveness in light of the new relationship to Iraq.''

Fitzwater said the president will discuss how the world organization has adapted to the political changes around the globe and ''and is pulling together to deal with the Persian Gulf problem.''

Bush also was prepared to say that when the Iraqi invasion occurred ''the world was ready.'' But at the same time, Fitzwater told reporters the United States was not ready to present any new resolutions regarding Iraq.

(OCT. 1) UPI - Now the New England Patriots may not want to talk about football, either.

After controversy over the sexual harassment of a female sports writer by five players became national news and prompted an NFL legal investigation last week the Patriots wanted only to get on the field.

The 37-13 trouncing by the New York Jets Sunday should have had the Patriots longing to hide in their locker room - no matter who was in it.

''It wasn't a normal week,'' said New England quarterback Marc Wilson, who completed only 19 of 41 passes and was intercepted three times.

''I don't think anyone would say it was a normal week but I don't think any of us could use that as an excuse.''

While the Patriots endured a long week, the Jets contended with a short one following a Monday night drubbing by the Buffalo Bills.

New York responded with 499 yards in total offense. The team that allowed Buffalo 292 yards six days earlier to rank last in the league against the run surrendered 89 rushing to the Patriots. New England fell to 1-3 and suffered its second straight blowout since the Sept. 17 dressing room incident involving Boston Herald sports writer Lisa Olson. The Patriots lost to Cincinnati 41-7 the previous week.

Jets rookies Rob Moore, the top supplemental pick, and Blair Thomas, the second overall choice in the draft, finally shone after shaking off injuries. Moore caught nine passes for 175 yards and one touchdown and Thomas ran for 100 yards on 20 carries.

Brad Baxter, the bulldog of a fullback who has come through since training camp after spending last season on the developmental squad, scored two touchdowns. Ken O'Brien completed 19 of 28 passes for 282 yards and one touchdown to help the Jets move to 2-2.

''They gritted their teeth, accepted the criticism last week and kicked (butt) '' Jets Coach Bruce Coslet said.

The Patriots may have far more to accept. Team owner Victor Kiam, who initially blamed Boston Herald reporter Lisa Olson's presence in the locker room for abusive behavior by the players involved, Sunday vowed there would be shakeups in management but was told by league commisioner Paul Tagliabue to hold off until the investigation is over.

''I think we really have to look at ourselves,'' Patriots defensive end Brent Williams said.

The game was played before 36,724 spectators at the 60,794-seat Foxboro Stadium, with 647 no-shows in the wake of a boycott call.

In other games Sunday, the New York Giants dumped Dallas 31-17, Denver nipped Buffalo 29-28, Tampa Bay topped Minnesota 23-20 in overtime, Indiana nipped Philadelphia 24-23, Miami pounded Pittsburgh 28-6, Green Bay downed Detroit 24-21, Kansas City clobbered Cleveland 34-0, Houston defeated San Diego 17-7 and Washington beat Phoenix 38-10.

Monday night, Cincinnati visits Seattle.

-- AROUND THE NFL --

Giants 31, Cowboys 17

At East Rutherford, N.J., Phil Simms threw three touchdown passes to help New York, 4-0, defeat Dallas, 1-3, for the second time in three weeks. Simms threw scoring passes of 12 yards to Mark Ingram, 7 to Bob Mrosko, and 27 to rookie Rodney Hampton. Dallas scored on rookie Emmitt Smith's 4-yard run, a 7-yard pass from Troy Aikman and a 22-yard field goal by Ken Willis.

Bills 29, Broncos 28

At Orchard Park, N.Y., linebacker Cornelius Bennett ran 80 yards with a blocked field goal attempt and recovered a fumble to set up another score and Buffalo rallied for three touchdowns within 1:17 of the final quarter. The comeback overshadowed Denver running back Bobby Humphrey's 177 yards on 34 carries, including 100 yards and a TD in the first half.

Buccaneers 23, Vikings 20 OT

At Minneapolis, Steve Christie kicked a 36-yard field goal at 9:11 of OT to end Minnesota's home winning streak at 14 games dating back to October, 1988. The kick came after Tampa Bay's Wayne Haddix intercepted a pass from Rich Gannon, making his first NFL start. At 5:19 of OT, former Tampa Bay kicker Don Igwebuike missed a 48-yard field goal. Tampa Bay, 3-1, dropped the Vikings to 1-3, their worst start since 1972.

Colts 24, Eagles 23

At Philadelphia, Jack Trudeau threw a 6-yard touchdown pass to Bill Brooks as time expired and Dean Biasucci made the game-winning extra point to lead Indianapolis to its first victory. Trudeau, who started in place of the injured Jeff George, completed 19 of 40 passes for 329 yards and two scores and led the Colts on the final drive in the last 1:51. The Eagles fell to 1-3.

Dolphins 28, Steelers 6

At Pittsburgh, Sammie Smith ran for two touchdowns to lead Miami, 3- 1, over the Steelers, who have failed to score an offensive touchdown this season. After the Dolphins went ahead 21-0, the Three Rivers Stadium crowd booed the Steelers and chanted ''Let's Go Bucs'' in honor of baseball's Pittsburgh Pirates, who clinched the National League East title.

Packers 24, Lions 21

At Pontiac, Mich., Don Majkowski threw his third touchdown pass of the game 26 yards to Jeff Query with 55 seconds left, rallying Green Bay. The Packers, 2-2 came back from a 21-10 fourth-quarter deficit to down their NFC Central rivals. The Lions dropped to 1-3. Majkowski, in his second straight start after a contract holdout, completed 28 of 46 passes for 269 yards and three TDs.

Chiefs 34, Browns 0

At Kansas City, Mo., Steve DeBerg threw two touchdown passes and the Chiefs blocked punts for two more TDs to hand Cleveland its third straight loss. Cornerback Albert Lewis blocked a punt for the third time in as many games and defensive back Charles Washington blocked another for the Chiefs, 3-1. Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar, off to his worst start in seven seasons, was sacked twice and pressured throughout.

Oilers 17, Chargers 7

At San Diego, Warren Moon threw for 355 yards and two touchdowns to carry Houston. Tony Zendejas kicked a 34-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to help Houston even its record at 2-2 and drop San Diego to 1- 3. Moon finished 27 of 46 and passed for 238 yards in the first half when he threw both TDs.

Raiders 24, Bears 10

At Los Angeles, Marcus Allen ran for two touchdowns and Greg Townsend returned a fumble 1 yard for another score, lifting the undefeated Raiders over previously unbeaten Chicago. In going to 4-0 for the first time in six years, Los Angeles improved its record in the Coliseum under Coach Art Shell to 9-0. The Bears, 3-1, scored on Jim Harbaugh's 80-yard pass to Dennis Gentry in the opening period and Kevin Butler's 22-yard field goal.

Redskins 38, Cardinals 10

At Phoenix, Stan Humphries passed for 2 TDs and ran for another in his first NFL start to lead Washington to its second victory over the Cardinals in four weeks. Humphries, thrust into the starting role by a knee injury to Mark Rypien, completed 20 of 25 passes for 257 yards. Wide receiver Gary Clark caught eight of Humphries' passes for 162 yards, including a pair of touchdown strikes of 42 yards each. Washington previously ruined former Redskins assistant Joe Bugel's debut as a head coach with a 31-0 rout.

(OCT. 1) UPI - The first 874 of some four-thousand French troops arrived in the Persian Gulf region Sunday. After nine days at sea, the first arrivals disembarked at the Red Sea port of Yanbu, on their way to a point near the Iraqi border with Kuwait. They're joining the multi-national force blocking further Iraqi aggression. Earlier Sunday, Iraq's president said he's willing to consider a French-sponsored peace plan.

Congressional leaders on both sides of the aisle say it's NOT going to be easy to get Sunday's budget agreement approved in Congress. House Speaker Thomas Foley says it WON'T be simple, and Senate G-O-P leader Robert Dole says ''some people are already saying they will vote against it.'' The pact agreed upon by President Bush and congressional negotiators would cut the federal deficit by 500-BILLION dollars in five years.

U-N Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar says poverty ''is the main enemy of children,'' and world leaders Sunday pledged to try to solve the problem. A statement issued by more than 70 leaders at the summit promised to launch a ''global attack on poverty.'' They also pledged to reduce child and infant mortality. 40-thousand children die each day from causes that could be prevented.

A bomb exploded at a U-S paint company warehouse in the Philippines, where it's now Monday, ripping away the ceiling and shattering glass panels. Police say there were NO injuries in the blast in a Manila suburb. NO one claimed responsibility. It's the sixth bombing against an American company in the past week. Most of the more than 30 bombings since August 13th have been blamed on rebel soldiers.

(OCT. 1) UPI - The Boston Herald says New England Patriots owner Victor Kiam personally apologized to Herald reporter Lisa Olson on Sunday. Olson earlier complained that she was sexually harassed on September 17th by Patriots players in the team locker room. Kiam at first dismissed the incident, but later criticized team officials for giving him wrong information. He said Sunday that it ''is a grievous injury to a lovely young lady.''

Nobel Prize-winning novelist Patrick White died Sunday at his home in Sydney, Australia. He was 78. White was Australia's most celebrated author, and in 1973 became the first Australian to win the Nobel Prize for Literature. His first novel, ''Happy Valley,'' was published in 1939 and won the Australian Literature Society'S Gold Medal. Other works included ''Tree of Man'' and ''Eye of the Storm.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - President Bush and Capitol Hill leaders now must sell Congress on a radical five-year, $500 billion cut in the federal deficit that averted massive layoffs and shutdowns in the federal government.

After four months of intense negotiations, the administration and the top congressional leaders announced Sunday that agreement had been reached on the largest cut in the deficit in the nation's history.

Under terms of the agreement, Congress has to approve the budget with no changes by Friday.

Bush said he will sign no extension if Congress fails to act by the end of the week, keeping the threat of a government shutdown in effect for next Monday.

''Now comes the hard part,'' Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said. ''This agreement is a compromise. Both sides can accurately say the agreement includes provisions they don't like.''

And House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington added, ''It's not going to be easy or simple to obtain the votes necessary ..., the majority of both parties ... that will have to be found to enact this package.''

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole said, ''some people are already saying they will vote against it. ... The easiest course is to find something and vote against it all.''

The agreement, which cuts the deficit by $40 billion in the first year, will hit virtually every American.

Federal taxes on gasoline, beer, wine and alcohol will go up; medicare costs for the elderly will increase; farm programs will be slashed; civil servants will not be able to take retirement pay in lump sums; luxury taxes on cars, boats, jewelry and furs will climb; student loans will be reduced; veterans programs will be cut. Even the jobless will have to wait a second week before they can get unemployment insurance.

Bush, who flew back from New York City to put his seal on the agreement, said, ''It is balanced; it is fair; and in my view it is what the United States of America needs at this point.''

The pact would cut $119 billion in entitlement and mandatory spending and $182 billion in discretionary government spending, with defense accounting to the largest share, $67 billion in the first three years.

The agreement also would raise $134 billion in new tax revenues, mostly from a phased-in 10 cent-a-gallon increase in the tax on gasoline. Another $64 billion is the elimination of interest that would have been paid if the reductions were not made.

White House budget director Richard Darman said Medicare would account for the largest single cut in discretionary spending, a total of $60 billion coming from increases in deductibles for beneficiaries and premium levels.

At the same time, Darman noted that some $2 billion had been set aside to help elderly people living at about the poverty level pay the premiums.

Otherwise, agriculture programs were slated for $13 billion in cuts; repeal of the civil service retirement fund lump sum payment would account for $8.1 billion; the Postal Service would cut $4.2 billion; implementing reforms in the student loans programs would save $2 billion, and delaying unemployment payments an additional $4.6 billion, Darman said.

Darman also revealed that the government had raised its estimate of the budget deficit for fiscal 1991, boosting it to $293.7 billion, including the costs of the savings and loan bailout, from the $231.4 billion projected on July 15.

The revision, made because of a ''softer economy'' and to large extent because of the enormously expensive thrift bailout, greatly complicated the negotiators' efforts, Darman said.

Had no agreement been reached, widespread cuts would have gone into effect at midnight, designed to force the government's deficit down to the Gramm-Rudman target of $64 billion.

On the contentious revenue front, Darman said the new package included a 10 percent excise tax on luxury items such as cars, boats, jewelry and furs; a 4 cent-a-pack jump on cigarette taxes, followed by another 4 percent in 1993, a $1.20 per gallon increase in the price of hard liquor, a doubling to 32 cents for a six-pack of beerrand increase for wine up to 24 cents.

It also would limit itemized deductions for taxpayers earning more than $100,000, with a minimum floor of 3 percent on any amount earned over that.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 1) UPI - The global landscape President Bush surveys Monday before the U.N. General Assembly is far different from the political order he and other world leaders faced just a year ago.

On the eve of German unification, which in less than a year has done more than any single event to change the face of Europe, Bush had ample evidence to support his recent declarations of ''a new world order.''

And even against a background of war drums in the Persian Gulf, he was expected to hail a resurgent United Nations in his speech to the General Assembly, living up at last to the expectations of its founders 45 years ago.

''We've seen a century sundered by barbed threats and barbed wire give way to a new era of peace nd freedom,'' Bush said in an excerpt released by the White House.

When Iraq attacked Kuwait, he said, ''the world was ready'' to respond through the United Nations.

His appearance, after weeks of unprecedented U.N. pressure on Iraq, coincides with growing concern that force ultimately may be the only way to force Saddam out of Kuwait and capped three days of whirlwind diplomacy that ended with a final flurry of meetings with foreign leaders.

One of them, a session with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, was expected to produce signs of progress toward an East- West accord on dramatic military force cuts in Europe.

Years in the making and sped by the collapse of the Warsaw Pact, agreement between Washington and Moscow on force levels and verification procedures would set the stage for an all-European summit in Paris in November.

In a succession of meetings with foreign leaders, no fewer than 13 of whom paraded through his 35th-floor Waldorf-Astoria suite over the weekend, each staying for no more than 45 minutes, Bush he has underscored the breadth of opposition arrayed against Iraq.

Bush, for example, congratulated Brazilian President Fernando Collor de Mello for complying with the sanctions against Iraq, even though Brazil will suffer from a loss of trade. Thirty minutes later, Collor's place was taken by Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, whom he thanked for leading a push for other oil-producing countries to pick up the production slack created by the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports from the world oil market.

Criticized for years as a bloated bureaucracy where political and economic rivalries too often thwarted attempts at concerted action, the United Nations has played an unusually forceful hand - at U.S. direction - in opposing the invasion of Kuwait.

Bush, a former ambassador to the United Nations and devout multilateralist, consensus-builder at home as well abroad, has always had respect for the world body's stature and intent, if not total admiration for its performance.

''Politically, the U.N. is and always will be a reflection of, rather than a solution to, the tensions that exist in the world,'' he wrote in his 1988 autobiography. ''Clearly, the United Nations has much to be said for it, ''but it still has a long way to go before it can ever ''

More recently, the passage of eight U.N. Security Council resolutions seeking to ensure Iraq pays a high price for aggression have caused Bush to proclaim ''a new partnership of nations'' and a United Nations that ''can at last begin to function in the way envisioned by its founders.''

Established in 1945 ''to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war '' the United Nations has burnished its record of late with successful mediation in the Afghan and Cambodian civil wars and with its incremental steps against Saddam.

Though Bush has welcomed this rare near-unaniminity of opinion as ''heartening '' his advisers agree the United Nations soon may face a far more serious test of its power and resolve in the event he feels compelled to seek a U.N.-sanctioned use of force against Iraq.

Article 42 of the U.N. Charter provides for military action when other measures prove ''to be inadequate.'' Shevardnadze said in a weekend interview with NBC News that the Soviet Union would, for the first time, join such a force if called upon by the United Nations to do so.

For the moment, Bush and his advisers are holding back from any formal request for military operations under the U.N. flag. One concern is that the prospect of war in the Persian Gulf could endanger the formidable if still fragile body of world opinion Bush has brought to bear against Saddam.

The official U.S. position, stated from the earliest days of the crisis, continues to be that it will take time - months, perhaps, rather than weeks - before the prospect of economic strangulation will cause Saddam to relent. In recent days, however, patience has begun to wear thin, eroded in part by reports of what national security adviser Brent Scowcroft ominously described last week as ''the pillaging and systematic destruction'' of Kuwait by Iraq.

That, he acknowledged, could well accelerate Bush's timetable for deciding when sanctions have had their chance.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - An abortion pill developed in France was ''well-liked'' and produced virtually no excessive side effects in women taking part in a small U.S. study, a researcher reported.

The results of tests on 16 American women at the University of Southern California Medical School in Los Angeles are consistent with larger studies conducted in France and elsewhere on the drug, known as RU 486.

''These results, from yet another continent, clearly support the existing evidence that RU 486 is safe, effective and well-liked,'' said Dr. David Grimes, the only U.S. researcher to test the drug.

RU 486 has been shown to be safe and highly effective for aborting early pregnancies and has been made available in France and China and is expected to become available in Britain in 1991.

The drug has not been made available to American women or U.S. researchers outside Grime's team, and is not expected to be available anytime soon, due in part to opposition from anti-abortionists.

The drug, also known as Mifepristone and Mifgyne, works by blocking a hormone known as progesterone, which is needed to maintain a fertilized egg in the womb, essentially triggering a miscarriage.

In the new study, to be presented Monday at an American Public Health Association meeting in New York, Grimes used the last of a supply of the drug obtained by the Population Council in New York from the maker, Roussel UCLAF of Paris.

The study, aimed primarily at examining the drug's side effects and acceptability to women, involved women who suspected they might be pregnant because they had missed their periods.

Within 10 days of missing their periods, half the women took RU 486 while the other half were given Tylenol without knowing what they were receiving. The study is the first to compare the drug to a dummy pill.

Four women in each group turned out to be pregnant. RU 486 successfully aborted the pregnancy of three out of four of the pregnant women who took it - an effectiveness comparable to previous studies.

Three of the four pregnant women who took Tylenol and the fourth pregnant woman who took RU 486 underwent standard abortions. The fourth pregnant woman who took Tylenol had a miscarriage. The rest turned out not to be pregnant.

There were no medical complications and most of the women returned immediately to their usual activities, Grimes said.

Surprisingly, the women who took RU 486 were no more likely to experience cramps, heavy bleeding, nausea, vomiting or any other side effects than those who took Tylenol, Grimes said.

''RU 486 is really innocuous,'' Grimes said. ''It turns out the drug is about as noxious as a couple of Tylenol.''

All the women who took the drug said they liked it and would take it again under similar circumstances, he said.

Those women who previously had a standard abortion said they preferred RU 486 because the drug was ''more convenient and less traumatic'' or ''less painful and easier on my body,'' he said.

The women also said they liked the drug's effectiveness, ease, the fact that they avoided the use of surgical instruments and gave them privacy, he said.

In addition, most women said they would recommend the drug to a friend who asked them, he said.

''Overall, they were very enthusiastic about it,'' said Grimes, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology and preventive medicine.

SAN DIEGO (OCT. 1) UPI - With the decommissioning of the USS Blueback, the United States would have the world's first submarine fleet completely powered by nuclear energy.

The Blueback (SS-581), the last remaining U.S. Navy sub to run on conventional power, was to be decommissioned Monday with great ceremony and much affection at the San Diego Naval Station.

With the departure of the Blueback, a venerable boat that impersonated a Soviet sub in the film ''The Hunt for Red October,'' the Navy will realize the cherished dream of Admiral Hyman G. Rickover: an all-nuclear-powered submarine fleet.

The Blueback's demise will close the age of conventional U.S. underwater warfare, an era that started in the Revolutionary War when a small colonial U-boat sank a British ship.

Monday's decommissioning of the Blueback, however, will not end the debate over America's decision to switch to nuclear propulsion.

Submarines powered by diesel engines on the surface and electric motors underwater, like the Blueback, still rule the oceans. The rest of the world's 44 navies - including the Soviet and British - use some or all diesel-electric-powered subs, 400 in all, and continue to build them.

The newest diesel-electric submarines are considered superior to nuclear submarines in some important respects - notably, cost and silence. While they are slower than nuclear subs and cannot stay submerged as long, diesel subs sometimes are preferred in close-range situations.

''The irony is that a non-nuclear submarine, when it's operating on its batteries, is quieter than a nuclear submarine,'' said Norman Polmar, one of the world's leading experts on submarines.

''Diesel subs are smaller, much cheaper and require many fewer people. They are considered very cost-effective for a large number of missions, such as operating in restricted areas like the Mediterranean and the Far East,'' said Polmar, an editor of ''Jane's Fighting Ships'' and author of ''The American Submarine.''

But Rickover, the father of the nuclear Navy, doggedly steered the nation toward the exclusive use of nuclear subs, starting in the early 1950s.

''He destroyed anyone or any effort to build non-nuclear submarines,'' Polmar said.

Obvious safety concerns over nuclear power led Rickover to institute a strict safety program aboard the nuclear subs. That effort has paid off with what seems to be an unblemished record, with one possible slip- up: an alleged 1973 leak of reactor coolant from the USS Guardfish, reported by Greenpeace and the Institute for Policy Studies in 1988, but subsequently denied by the Pentagon.

Still, a nuclear sub's ability to travel at speeds up to 40 knots and remain submerged for more than 10,000 miles has won over most of the U.S. military community.

''Nuclear technology is the proven wave of the future,'' said Mike McDaniel, executive director of the American Defense Institute in Washington, D.C. ''To Rickover's credit, the Navy's nuclear submarine program is one of the most effective and one of the safest in the world today.''

Still, the end of the diesel era has put a lump in the throat of many a sailor in Rickover's Navy.

''A lot of people on active duty in the Navy today started their careers on diesel submarines, so there's a feeling of nostalgia about this decommissioning,'' retired Capt. Robert Gautier said.

Gautier was the Blueback's first skipper. He picked up the brand-new submarine in 1959 from a shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss. On Monday, he was to join the boat's present skipper, Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Grassi, and 10 other former commanding officers to bid the Blueback farewell.

''The diesel submarines have done a very fine job,'' Gautier said, ''but the time has come to move from one era to another.''

Grassi said the current crew has prepared for this leave-taking for years.

''A lot of people got transferred to the Blueback just to be on the last diesel sub. And a lot of the personnel already on board extended their service to be here. That's a very gratifying thing for a commanding officer,'' Grassi said.

Some of the crew will retire, others will transfer to surface ships and still others will enter the nuclear age aboard one of the Navy's 96 attack submarines.

The larger crews on nuclear subs are not likely to have the same esprit de corps as the Blueback's men, but Grassi says there will be offsetting advantages.

''Nuclear subs are nicer inside. You get more space in your bunk and some of the nukes have music piped in through earphones,'' he said.

Grassi will be one of only two Navy officials still involved in diesel submarine operations as instructors at an international training facility in Norfolk, Va.

The Blueback will be mothballed in Bremerton, Wash. The Navy has decided the last of the diesel subs will never be sold, but the Blueback's future is otherwise up in the air.

''I've heard rumors that some cities are trying to get the Blueback as a monument or a tour ship,'' Grassi said.

(OCT. 1) UPI - The American League East race now depends on what happens on the first weekend of the season.

Toronto beat Boston 10-5 Sunday, pulling within one game of the lead on what would have been the season's last day. Instead, the lockout left each club facing three games - games originally scheduled for the first full weekend in April.

''There's no relief,'' Boston outfielder Tom Brunansky said. ''Now there's three more emotionally packed games. We're not going to guess that we'll get help from Baltimore.''

Toronto faces the Orioles in Baltimore on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Boston plays in Fenway against the White Sox the same days.

Those three games might have meant nothing if Toronto had handled the Red Sox head to head in 13 regular-season games. But Boston won 10 of their meetings.

''If we lose, maybe we can say we lost because we didn't beat them,'' said winning pitcher Jimmy Key, 13-7.

Boston even took the weekend series, two games to one, which accounts for its one-game lead.

''They won the big games and deserve to win,'' Toronto's Kelly Gruber said. ''For us to win at this point would almost take a fluke.''

If the clubs are tied at the end of the regular season, they would meet Thursday in Toronto for a one-game playoff. Boston team physician Dr. Arthur Pappas said ace right-hander Roger Clemens would be available to pitch that game.

''Now it's ours to win,'' Brunansky said. ''If we can take care of the White Sox, it's ours. If we don't they (the Blue Jays) are still going to have to win (games).''

Two weeks ago, the White Sox swept Boston in a four-game series while Toronto was winning three of four against the Orioles.

The Blue Jays had lost all six previous games at Fenway Park this season. This time they battered five Boston pitchers, hitting 17 singles. But they struggled to capitalize, stranding 13 runners, including 11 in the first five innings.

''The guys came in pretty loose today,'' said Toronto Manager Cito Gaston. ''I don't think they got down,'' about losing the series' first two games. ''I don't think you can get down and play like we did today.''

Fred McGriff collected four hits and three RBI to help the Blue Jays end a four-game losing streak.

''It was a win and they don't have to be pretty,'' McGriff said, saying that his team shouldn't blame a division loss on the weekend's results. ''We gave away a lot of games this season. We can't say this series cost us the season.''

In other American League games, Chicago nipped Seattle 2-1, New York rapped Milwaukee 7-2, Detroit shaded Minnesota 1-0, Oakland defeated Texas 4-3 and Kansas City downed California 2-1. Baltimore and Cleveland split a double-header, the Orioles winning 6-3 and the Indians answering 7-3.

In the National League, it was: Chicago 6, New York 5; Philadelphia 2, Montreal 1; Pittsburgh 2, St. Louis 0; San Diego 3, Cincinnati 0; Houston 6, Atlanta 2; and San Francisco 8, Los Angeles 2.

-- AROUND THE AL --

White Sox 2, Mariners 1

At Chicago, Dan Pasqua capped a two-run sixth with a bad-hop RBI triple and Bobby Thigpen earned his 57th save to help the White Sox win the final game in Comiskey Park. Thigpen entered in the ninth and retired Harold Reynolds on a grounder to second for the final out in Comiskey Park history.

Yankees 7, Brewers 2

At Milwaukee, Don Mattingly and Jesse Barfield drove in three runs apiece to pace New York. Dave Eiland, 2-1, allowed two runs on six hits over five innings. Greg Cadaret pitched four perfect innings for his third save. Reliever Tom Edens, 4-5, took the loss.

Tigers 1, Twins 0

At Detroit, Walt Terrell and Jerry Don Gleaton combined on a five- hitter, leading the Tigers. Detroit first baseman Cecil Fielder, needing one homer to become the first major leaguer to hit 50 homers in a season since Cincinnati's George Foster hit 52 in 1977, had a single in four trips to the plate.

A's 4, Rangers 3

At Arlington, Texas, Terry Steinbach's ground-rule double keyed a three-run eighth, boosting Oakland. The Athletics broke the majors' single-season record for road attendance. In his final appearance of the season, Nolan Ryan, 13-9, struck out 11 to raise his career record total to 5,308.

Royals 2, Angels 1

At Anaheim, Calif., Bo Jackson delivered a pinch-hit home run to open the ninth, lifting Kansas City. Jackson stroked a 3-1 pitch over the right-field wall for just the third hit off loser Scott Lewis, 1-1. Kevin Appier, 12-8, scattered nine hits over the first eight innings to snap his four-game slide.

Orioles 6, Indians 3
Indians 7, Orioles 3

At Cleveland, Candy Maldonado drove in three runs with a homer and pair of singles to help the Indians end a four-game slide. In the first game, Bob Milacki pitched seven shutout innings, notching his first victory since June 30. Rookie Charles Nagy, 2-4, won the second game, with Doug Jones getting four outs for his 42nd save.

(OCT. 1) UPI - There was little interest in Hungary's municipal elections yesterday. So few voters showed up that the election results in some areas may NOT stand. A 40 percent turnout is required for an election to be valid in Hungary and the average turnout was 37 percent. One politician says Hungarians are fed up with politics.

Thousands of Filipino workers are staging a general strike at U-S military bases in the Philippines today. They barricaded gates at the bases saying U-S officials failed to implement a promised 18 percent wage hike. American officials say a U-S law requires a lower pay increase.

Keeping a pledge to crack down on rowdy fans, Los Angeles police arrested nearly three dozen people at yesterday's Raiders' football game. 12 of the 34 arrests were for battery and 11 were for public drunkenness. The police promised to get tough after last week's game when a fan cheering for the visiting Pittsburgh Steelers was beaten unconscious.

The U-S-S Blueback, the last conventional submarine in the U-S Navy, is to be decommissioned tonight at San Diego. Its retirement will give the United States the world's first all-nuclear power submarine fleet. The Blueback was used as a Soviet sub in the film ''The Hunt for Red October.''

A Goodyear blimp made an emergency landing in Carson, California, yesterday after a model airplane ripped a hole in its side. NONE of the seven people on board was hurt. Police said two men flying model planes in a hotel parking lot were heard joking they were buzzing the blimp. One suspect was arrested.

(OCT. 1) UPI - The first fall storm of the season barreled into the Northwest bringing high winds, heavy rains and snow in the mountains Monday while cold damp weather chilled the Northeast.

Thick fog blanketed West Virginia, Kentucky and southeasthern Ohio cutting visibility to less than 200 yards in some areas. Cool temperatures combined with lingering moisture from earlier showers led to the fog.

Washington state was hit by a fall storm that moved in off the Vancouver Island coast during the night carrying winds reaching 35 mph as it chugged eastward across the state.

Wind picked up in eastern Washington as the day progressed, blowing dust and sand. Cold air that followed the front dropped the snow level down to 5,000 feet in the Cascade Mountains, the National Weather Service said.

To the south, dense fog hung on the Southern California coast Monday but the rest of the region had clear skies while thunderstorms eased in the eastern desert areas.

Cool temperatures covered the Northeast and Midwest as the thermometer dropped to 45 degrees under clear skies in Buffalo, N.Y. and 43 degrees in Cleveland where it was partly cloudy.

Mostly clear skies covered the South but some scattered showers were reported in Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia. Nearly half an inch of rain fell on Augusta Ga. and Columbus, Ga. received a little less for the most rainfall in the region Sunday. The hottest recorded spot was McComb, Miss. with 92.

MANILA (OCT. 1) UPI - A pre-dawn explosion ripped through a U.S. paint company Monday, tearing off ceilings and shattering glass panels but causing no injuries, police said.

In response to continued bombings and the situation in the Persian Gulf, the Manila stock exchange fell to a 3 1/2-year low Monday, dropping more than 2 percent in value.

The blast at the Fuller O'Brien Paint Co., Inc. in suburban Mandaluyong town was the sixth bomb attack on an American company. Earlier hit were U.S. soft drink firms, drug laboratories and a bank.

No one had claimed immediate responsibility for the incident, but police blamed rebel soldiers for similar bombings over the past two months in the capital and nearby towns.

The composite price index for 25 selected stocks on the Manila exchange fell to a record 3 1/2-year low Monday at 535.5, down 11.05 or 2.05 percent from the previous close.

The index was lowest since it registered 507.7 on April 8, 1987.

Analysts said the slump reflected investor concern over continued bombings in Manila and fears of an outbreak of war in the gulf.

A security guard at the paint company said the bomb apparently was thrown from the outside. The blast damaged the ceiling and roof of a warehouse and smashed glass panels. No injury was reported.

Florencio Gaudines, the company's marketing manager, said American and multinational firms in the capital had been warned about bomb attacks.

''This is part of the destabilization campaign,'' said Gaudines. ''Those who are doing this don't want investors and foreigners.''

Also on Monday, President Corazon Aquino said her government was pursuing peace initiatives with the communist New Peoples Army, despite the rebel's announcement last week they will resume hostilities in areas where she had declared a limited cease-fire on Sept. 12.

However, Aquino said in a statement the process ''must be taken step by cautious step if specific and concrete gains are to be accomplished.''

Aquino's directive for the cessation of hostilities covered Manila and several provinces hit by the July 16 earthquake.

Defense and security officials have proposed holding peace dialogues on the village level in a bid to isolate leaders of the 19,000-member NPA, which has been battlng the government for 21 years.

However, Aquino has refused to hold talks with rebel soldiers who have tried six times to oust her.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 1) UPI - Two miners were killed and four injured in a collapse at the Harmony gold mine in South Africa's central goldfields region, Harmony said in a statement Monday.

The accident occurred Sunday in the No. 1 shaft of the mine, near the town of Virginia, some 185 miles southwest of Johannesburg, Harmony said.

The six casualties were members of a maintenance crew which was servicing air and water service columns, it said. No details on the nature of the ''fall of ground'' were disclosed.

South Africa's last mining deaths were on Sept. 27, when an earthquake jolted the President Brand mine, also in the central goldfields, and killed two miners.

In the most serious mining disaster of the year, an explosion in a gold shaft of the Vaal Reefs mine, about 125 miles southwest of Johannesburg, killed 19 miners and injured 22.

BANGKOK, Thailand (OCT. 1) UPI - The deputy foreign ministers of the three communist Indochinese countries concluded talks in Phnom Penh with a call to reconvene the international conference on Cambodia, the official SPK news agency reported Monday.

The agency said the three deputy foreign ministers - Sok An of Cambodia, Tran Quang Co of Vietnam and Soulivong Prasideth of Laos - ended two days of talks Saturday.

''The three sides exchanged views and agreed upon ways to accelerate the process of a political solution to the Cambodian problem on the basis of guaranteeing independence, sovereignty and peace for Cambodia,'' the agency said.

It said the three officials called for the reconvening of the 19- nation Paris international conference on Cambodia as proposed by the U.N. Security Council.

The Cambodian resistance earlier made a similar plea for the reconvening of the meeting that adjourned last August without agreement.

Since then, however, both sides have accepted in principle a U.N. Security Council framework for a political settlement.

Vietnam and China, the main backers of the opposing sides in Cambodia, have held high-level meetings to narrow their differences over Cambodia.

Distrust among the four Cambodian groups, however, has stalled operation of the ''Supreme National Council'' that is supposed to serve as a joint symbol of national sovereignty while a U.N. interim authority arranges a ceasefire and national elections.

Diplomats in Bangkok, where three days of talks on the council failed last month, said the international conference may be needed to get the peace process back on track.

Earlier Phnom Penh radio quoted Defense Minister Gen. Tie Banh as saying the resistance has intensified its attacks since the collapse of the council meeting.

He said the main forcus of the attacks was in Battambang and Banteay Meanchey provinces near the border with Thailand and in Kompong Thom province north of Phnom Penh.

But he said the resistance was making little progress because Phnom Penh government forces were getting stronger.

Tie Banh said refugees who had fled insecure areas ''are now gradually returning to their original localities because security has now been ensured.''

Western aid agencies had estimated that more than 100,000 people had been moved to the camps.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in 1978, unseating the China-backed Khmer Rouge government. In 1982 two non-communist groups joined the Khmer Rouge in a coalition to fight the government installed by the Vietnamese.

CARSON, CA (OCT. 1) UPI - The pilot of the Goodyear blimp Columbia never saw the attacker that ripped a hole in his aircraft's skin - a radio- controlled model airplane.

Nick Nicolary was at the controls of the 192-foot blimp Sunday when the big airship started losing helium.

''I was making a normal approach and I felt a shudder on the rudder pedals,'' Nicolary said. ''The first hint we had a problem was when the ship began to get heavy, with the nose high and tail low. I knew I was losing helium but didn't know why.''

The reason was that a couple of pranksters were buzzing the blimp with their 4-foot-long radio-controlled model planes from a nearby parking lot. One of the planes hit the blimp, ripping a hole in its side and forcing the pilot to make an emergency landing with six passengers on board.

Late Sunday night, deputies said John William Moyer, 28, Redondo Beach, was booked on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm and held on $5,000 bail. His 4-foot-wingspan Thunder Tiger remote- controlled plane was confiscated.

The deflating blimp landed safely and there were no injuries.

Witnesses told deputies two men were flying model planes from a Holiday Inn parking lot about a half-mile from the blimp's home airfield south of Los Angeles, and joking that they were buzzing the airship, sheriff's Lt. Paul Harman said.

Crew members at the Goodyear Airship Operations Center patched the 1-by-1-foot hole in the right side of the silvery blimp to prevent it from further deflating and causing structural damage, Harman said.

Nicolary said the blimp would be out of service for several days while a special machine sucked the gas out of the craft and replaced it with pure helium.

The blimp's skin is a dacron fabric impregnated with the rubber-like substance neoprene to seal in the helium that makes the ship lighter than air.

The National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration were investigating the incident, Harman said.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. said it lost a few thousand dollars worth of helium from the blimp, which is operated as a public relations vehicle.

The Columbia, which began service in July 1986, is one of three blimps flying for Goodyear and was returning from Redondo Beach on its seventh passenger run of the day, Nicolary said.

Goodyear has flown blimps since 1925, and they and other lighter- than-air craft have become fixtures at such events as football games.

Nicolary, who has been flying blimps for 23 years, said he had never heard of one being brought down by such an incident. A deputy said he recalled someone firing a shot at a Goodyear blimp about 12 years ago, but it did not pierce the skin.

''The reason we have to patch it is unsettling,'' Nicolary said. ''Usually mother nature is the only person that gives us fits.''

(OCT. 1) UPI - An intense debate is expected on Capitol Hill as Congress considers a five-year, 500-BILLION-dollar cut in the federal deficit. Lawmakers must approve the budget by Friday or face government shutdowns and massive layoffs the following Monday. The Bush administration and congressional leaders spent four months negotiating the package of tax increases and spending cuts.

Iraq is either backing down from its hard-line stance or trying to buy some time. Saddam Hussein says he'd like to meet immediately with French officials to discuss their peace plan, which calls for the complete withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait. The French-sponsored proposal also calls for free elections in the tiny oil emirate, arms reduction throughout the region and a solution to the Palestinian problem.

President Bush will talk about Iraq in a speech to the U-N General Assembly today in New York City. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says Bush will discuss how the U-N is- quoting now- ''pulling together to deal with the Persian Gulf problem.'' However, Fitzwater says the president will NOT be offering any new resolutions regarding Iraq and its invasion of Kuwait.

The U-N Summit for Children did more than announce lofty goals- it will also make the the Guinness Book of World Records. At least 37 presidents, 28 prime ministers and about one dozen ministers representing various governments attended the meeting on the plight of children. The numbers make the gathering the largest-ever assembly of world leaders in one place.

(OCT. 1) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed sharply lower for the fifth consecutive session Monday as panic-stricken individual investors continued to sell holdings.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selective issues, which plunged 788.41 points Friday, lost another 761.64 points - or 3.6 percent - to 20,221.86 - its lowest close since Feb. 25, 1987.

At one point late in the session, the closely watched Nikkei dropped nearly 1,200 points.

Only a promise from the Ministry of Finance to ease margin requirements saved the Nikkei from closing below the 20,000 line, analysts said.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index, which dropped 49.31 points Friday, lost another 47.52 points to 1,523.43.

Volume amounted to a light 400 million shares, compared with 507 million shares changing hands Friday.

Declines overpowered advances 676 to 72, while 52 issues remained unchanged.

Analysts said the panic that gripped individual investors last week carried over into Monday's session.

Many investors were selling stocks at a loss to cover margin requirements, market watchers added.

''They liquidated high-priced, high-quality stocks like Nintendo to cover their margins,'' said one local broker.

In the afternoon, word reached the market the Ministry of Finance intended to ease margin requirements and take other steps to prevent large institutions from engaging in massive selloffs.

At that time, the market sentiment reversed and investment trusts bought blue-chips and high-tech stocks.

In addition, arbitrage buying kicked in, helping the Nikkei to recover to its closing level.

But some brokers said the Finance Ministry's measures did not address the market's fundamental woes. Consequently, brokers predicted the upturn would be short-lived.

On the trading floor, among some of the stocks that benefited from the announcement were Matsushita Electric and Sony.

Elsewhere in Asia, stocks closed higher in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as stocks rallied despite significant drop in Tokyo.

The Hang Seng Index, which eased 7.13 points Friday, climbed 30.44 points to 2,791.26.

Among the narrower indexes, industrials rose 13.45 points, financials climbed 22.37, utilities gained 49.87 and properties jumped 65.20 points.

Volume amounted to an estimated 463 million shares, compared with 609 million shares Friday.

Stocks moved higher from the opening bell amid some bargin hunting.

''I think the selling dried up on Friday,'' said Herman Lam of First Pacific Securities.

''Even though the Tokyo market was down sharply, it didn't seem to affect us '' Lam said.

In Bangkok, stocks closed higher in moderate trading on the Thailand Stock Exchange.

The Stock Exchange of Thailand Index, which gained 11.41 points Friday, gained another 12.83 points to 654.39.

Volume amounted to 1.4 billion shares, compared with 1.5 billion shares Friday.

Analysts said prices eased early amid the selloff in Japan, but rebounded as investors saw the drop as an incentive to buy local shares.

In Singapore, stocks closed higher in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange as bargain hunters reacted to higher regional bourses.

The Straits Times Industrial Index, which fell 8.37 points Friday, gained 4.76 points to 1,103.44. The broader-based All Singapore Index rose 1.04 points to 308.40.

An estimated 31.3 million shares changed hands, compared with 41.9 million shares Friday.

Analysts said investors were reacting to news of the possibility of solving the Gulf situation without going to war.

Market watchers said speculation that Iraq's may attempt to seek French help to solve the Middle East crisis helped to boost confidence among investors.

On the trading floor, Keppel Corp. paced the advacing issues followed by Singapore Marine and Overseas Chinese Banking Corp. foreign shares.

ASEAN Fund (U.S.) led the declining issues followed by Singapore Fodder and Singapore Airlines.

In Manila, stocks fell to their lowest level in 3 1/2 years on the Manila Stock Exchange.

The Philippine Composite Price Index for 25 selected stocks on the Manila Exchange fell 11.05 points or 2 percent to 535.5 - its lowest close since April 8, 1987.

Analysts said the slump reflected investor concern over continued terrorist bombings in the capital and fears of an outbreak of war in the Persian Gulf.

In Australia, the Sydney Sharemarket was closed for the Labor Day holiday. Trading will resume Tuesday.

(OCT. 1) UPI - President Bush addresses the U-N General Assembly today. Bush will focus on U-N history, especially the recent response to tensions in the Persian Gulf. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says there will be NO new resolutions on the crisis.

U-S officials say Americans should be cautious when they are overseas because of the possibility of pro-Iraqi terrorism. They say the danger is particularly high near U-S businesses and military bases in foreign countries. .

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has asked French officials for a meeting to discuss a French peace plan. It calls for Iraq to pull out of Kuwait and for elections to be scheduled in the emirate. France denies it has started any special contacts with Iraq.

Four months of negotiations by White House and congressional budget experts paid off. They agreed yesterday on a 500-BILLION-dollar package of spending cuts and tax increases. Now, they have to sell it to Congress which must act by Friday.

(OCT. 1) UPI - France, as reports circulated that nine of its citizens held in Iraq would be freed, insisted Monday that Saddam Hussein's professed willingness to discuss a French Persian Gulf peace intitiative had not led to any special contacts with Baghdad.

A statement from the presidential Elysee Palace said the only exchanges taking place between Paris and Baghdad concerned ''purely routine'' matters that cannot ''appear to be a negotiation.''

Presidential spokesman Hubert Vedrine said the Iraqi statement Sunday ''was nothing new, even if it does testify to a change in tone.''

French radio, quoting the Iraqi News Agency, said Monday nine French citizens among the Western hostages being used as human shields around key installations in Iraq will be released.

The report said the nine would return to France with the president of the France-Iraq Friendship Association, now on a visit to Baghdad, but gave no other details.

The Iraqi government began holding citizens of Western countries near key military and other installations as a response to the U.S.-led military deployment that began in Saudi Arabia after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Sunday, Saddam said in a statement read on Iraqi television that he was interested in discussing a French proposal calling for the opening of a dialogue in return for Iraq's statement of ''intention'' to withdraw from Kuwait and free Western hostages.

The French proposal, discussed by President Francois Mitterrand in a speech to the United Nations last week, left open the possibility for free elections in the gulf emirate after the withdrawal.

The proposal differs markedly from the Bush administration's insistence that Kuwaiti Emir Jaber al Ahmad al Sabah be returned to power without condition and that Iraq actually withdraw from Kuwait before discussions with Baghdad begin.

In other developments:

-U.S. officials said Sunday they have been consulting with the Soviet Union about options involving the drafting of a U.N. resolution to authorize the use of military force against Iraq. The Soviet Union, declaring it is part of the U.N. Security Council, recently indicated its troops would participate in any U.N.-sponsored military action.

-An Air Force F-15-E jetfighter on a routine training mission crashed in the southern Arabian Peninsula in an accident that killed both crewmembers, a U.S. military spokesman said. The crewmembers' names were withheld pending notification of next of kin. A board of Air Force officers will investigate the crash of the plane assigned to the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing, deployed in support of Operation Desert Shield, said Sgt. Michael Baker, a spokesman for the U.S. Central Command in Saudi Arabia.

-President Bush was to address the U.N. General Assembly Monday. White House Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the president was to discuss how the world organization has adapted to the political changes around the globe and ''and is pulling together to deal with the Persian Gulf problem.''

Bush was expected to hail a resurgent United Nations in his speech, living up at last to the expectations of its founders 45 years ago.

''We've seen a century sundered by barbed threats and barbed wire give way to a new era of peace and freedom,'' Bush said in an excerpt released by the White House. When Iraq attacked Kuwait, he said, ''the world was ready'' to respond through the United Nations.

The State Department warned Americans abroad they might become targets of terrorist attacks by pro-Iraqi elements.

In a statement read by Voice of America, Washington advised U.S. citizens overseas to be cautious, particularly when they are near U.S.- owned buildings or businesses and U.S. military installations.

''The statement said there were growing indications that terrorist attacks are likely to take place in the near future under the sponsorship of Iraq in Europe and the Middle East,'' VOA reported.

Newsweek reported in its Oct. 1 edition that U.S. officials were drafting a U.N. Security Council resolution that would authorize military action against Iraq. The draft, which sources said was still in rough form, may not be acted upon for another month or more, the magazine said.

Bush administration officials, however, said the drafting stage had not been reached.

''We have been consulting with allies and the Soviet Union about options, but there's been no drafting of a resolution at this stage,'' an official said.

The official said the allies with whom U.S. officials have discussed the possible use of U.N.-sponsored force against Iraq include Britain, France, West Germany, Japan, Canada and Italy.

Such a resolution would call for the use of military force in the event economic sanctions imposed against Saddam Hussein do not force him out of Kuwait.

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft indicated last week that the systematic destruction of Kuwait by Iraq and the atrocities committed by Iraqi forces were bringing the United States closer to military action.

Scowcroft said the United States was considering seeking the implementation of Article 42 of the U.N. Charter, which authorizes ''action by air, sea or land forces as necessary to retain or restore international peace or security.''

Scowcroft gave no time frame for a U.S. decision on whether economic sanctions were working.

MIAMI (OCT. 1) UPI - Aeroflot, the Soviet Union's national airline, will end daily flights from Cuba to Latin America and establish Miami as its gateway to South and Central America, a published report said Monday.

Aeroflot, the world's largest airline, hopes to begin using Miami as a refueling and crew-change stop within 90 days, according to a report in the International Business Chronicle, a semimonthly business journal published in Miami.

''The situation in Cuba is very bad. Fuel is very scarce and expensive,'' the newspaper quoted George V. Terentiev, vice president and commercial director for Aeroflot USA in New York, as saying. ''So we are telling our old friends thank you very much and goodbye.''

Aeroflot-Soviet Airline's U.S. reservations office said the airline currently has daily flights from Moscow via Havana en route to Mexico, Nicaragua and Peru.

Terentiev said, ''Aeroflot is negotiating to start flights to Miami in January or possibly before that.''

''The impact on Cuba may be disastrous,'' said Antonio Jorge, a professor of economics and international relations at Florida International University in Miami, told the business publication.

''This is compatible with the decrease in the Soviet Union of levels of foreign aid to Cuba at a rate of 15 percent, which includes a decline of the basic raw materials, in the last few months. This may indicate the Soviet Union has made a decision to cut back gradually on aid and commercial relations with Cuba,'' Jorge said.

''This definitely must respond to a very high-level decision in the Soviet leadership.''

Under terms of the current U.S.-Soviet bilateral agreement, Aeroflot already has received permission to schedule service from Moscow to Miami and then to Chile and Brazil in April, but that date will be postponed until winter 1991, said Peter Reavely, Miami International Airport's chief of aviation development.

Aeroflot has ordered five long-range A310-300 twin-engine aircraft from France's Airbus Industrie to use in its new routes, but those planes will not be delivered until November 1991, Reavely said.

Additional permits are required for Aeroflot's new Latin American routes.

''This is a separate issue from the bilateral air agreement,'' Reavely said.

The Soviet Union is seeking an exemption authority to use Miami instead of Havana as a technical stop for flights to Lima, Peru; Mexico City, and Managua Nicaragua, Reavely said.

Aeroflot has already begun the exemption process, which is expected to take 30 to 90 days, Reavely said.

The Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation must present a petition to the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affiars, which would forward it to the U.S. Department of State and then to the U.S. Department of Transportation for approval.

A spokesman at the U.S. Department of Transportation, however, said the agency has ''not yet received such an application.''

PARIS (OCT. 1) UPI - Air France said Monday it would eliminate its three weekly flights from Paris to San Francisco as part of a major reorganization of its schedule.

The airline previously announced a loss of $32.6 million during the first six months of 1990.

But UTA, a French airline taken over by Air France earlier this year, will increase its non-stop flights to San Francisco to four times a week from three times, Air France said.

Air France said it will continue to offer seven non-stop flights from Paris to Los Angeles each week.

Air France attributed the loss to a small 1.7 percent increase in passenger traffic in the first half from the comparable 1989 period. The company said it expects to temporarily eliminate a number of unprofitable flights.

OLONGAPO, PHILIPPINES (OCT. 1) UPI - Filipino workers on strike against the largest U.S. military bases outside the United States vowed Monday to remain on the picket lines until Congress follows through on U.S. commitments to raise their salaries.

Spokesmen at the Subic Bay naval complex and Clark Air Base said it was ''business as usual'' at the facilities despite ''minor inconvenience'' caused by the strike, started Sunday night by the 22, 000-member Federation of Filipino Civilian Employees Associations.

Police said the strike was generally peaceful.

The federation called the strike to protest a 3.5 percent ceiling set by the U.S. Congress on pay raises at overseas installations. The ceiling nullifies the agreement of U.S. base officials in the Philippines to raise wages by 18 percent.

Federation President Roberto Flores said a meeting with U.S. officials was scheduled Tuesday.

''We will not lift the pickets unless we see a clear signal of compliance from Congress,'' he said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager expressed regret at the strike and urged the strikers to return to work.

''We continue to assure union members that we are doing everything possible to assure that they receive the full pay increase that is due them,'' Schrager said.

Philippine Labor Minister Ruben Torres said he expected the strike to be resolved soon. He said there were efforts being made in Congress to remedy what was regarded as an ''oversight.''

Several hundred workers manned picket lines Monday at the main gate of Subic, a repair and logistics center for the 7th Fleet, and Clark, home of the 13th Air Force.

Some 15,400 U.S. servicemen are assigned in the bases, the largest and oldest U.S. military facilities outside the United states. Strike leaders said pickets also were established at four smaller facilities.

Philippine and U.S. officials last week held a second round of talks on the future of the bases, whose lease expires in September 1991. Both sides advocated a phased U.S. pullout from the bases.

The six U.S. bases employ some 68,000 Filipinos, but most are contract workers. The federation members are full-time employees.

The strike was the second at the facilities in less than five years. A strike in March 1986 lasted 13 days.

Lt. Cmdr. Kevin Mukri, spokesman for the commander of U.S. forces in the Philippines, said some of the services ordinarily performed by Filipino employees were being handled by volunteer service members and dependents.

''Because of the outstanding cooperation of the community ... we are able to carry out our missions,'' Mukri told U.S. military television's Far East Network.

''Basically, we're up and operating,'' Clark spokesman Maj. Wayne Crist said. ''In those areas where we need additional help, we have volunteers: dependents the GIs.''

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 1) UPI - Police have arrested 11 blacks in the mutilation and killing of four whites in a township near the central South African city of Welkom during the weekend, officers said Monday.

A police spokesman said the 11 had been arrested ''in batches'' since a patrol found the partially dismembered and burned bodies of the four - three men and a woman - in Khutloanong township north of of the conservative town of Welkom late Saturday.

The spokesman said police had confiscated a number of machetes, knived and clubs from the 11 arrested.

Three of the victims' bodies were found beside a gutted vehicle and the fourth that of a man, some 55 yards down the road, Welkom police officer Maj. Johan Fouche said Sunday, saying the victim had probably tried to escape the attackers.

Fouche said the four had visited a bar in the township Saturday afternoon, but declined to give a specific motive for the killings. ''We are working on all angles,'' he said.

A Department of Law and Order official monitoring the case said, ''Any racial or political motive is highly unlikely,'' noting that evidence shows ''it looks like a criminal attack.''

The official also ruled out any connection with a wave of factional black violence which in more than six weeks killed up to 800 people until being quelled in the middle of this month by the imposition of tough military-style measures.

(OCT. 1) UPI - The late Admiral Hyman Rickover had a dream- that all the submarines in the U-S Navy would one day be powered by nuclear reactors. That dream comes true today. The U-S-S Blueback will be mothballed in a ceremony in San Diego. It is the last conventional sub in the navy. One big advantage of nuclear subs is that they can travel 10-thousand miles without surfacing.

The weather brought hints that autumn is here today. A storm barrelled into the Northwest. Winds of 35 miles an hour hit Washington state and blew up dust and sand as it reached eastern Washington. Cold air brought snow above the five-thousand-foot level in the Cascade Mountains. Cool temperatures covered the Northeast and Midwest. Some morning temperatures- 45 degrees in Buffalo, New York... and 43 in Cleveland.

HOUSTON (OCT. 1) UPI - Domestic and offshore drilling both slipped last week industry monitors reported.

U.S. drilling fell from 1,055 rotary rigs to 1,047, compared with 978 the same week a year ago, Baker Hughes Inc. reported Sunday.

Offshore drilling activity declined last week, and most of the drop was attributable to the Gulf of Mexico. Three more gulf rigs were without contracts, leaving 140 working out of a fleet of 212, for a 66 percent utilization rate, Offshore Data Services reported.

Worldwide, 549 mobile offshore rigs of the world's fleet of 670 were working, five fewer than the week before. The utilization rate was 81.9 percent.

In European waters, including the Mediterranean Sea, the rate dropped to 93.5 percent, as one fewer rig was working and another joined the fleet. Of the total of 138 in those waters, 129 were under contract.

Other relevant rig counts included Texas, 356 last week, 354 the week before and 299 the same week a year ago; Louisiana, 130, 141 and 136; Oklahoma, 124, 124 and 146; New Mexico, 58, 65 and 34; and Canada, 102, 112 and 137.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - New construction spending, battered by hard times after years of dramatic growth, was unchanged in August following a revised gain of 0.3 percent in July, the Commerce Department said Monday.

In June, construction spending was off 0.6 percent.

Total new construction put in place in August stood at $442.5 billion at an annual rate and adjusted for seasonal factors, according to the data collected by the department's Census Bureau.

Compared with August 1989, new construction spending increased nearly 2 percent across the United States, the government said.

Private economists were expecting a sharp decline for the month.

''During the first eight months of this year, $289.2 billion of new construction was put in place, three percent above the $280.8 billion for the same period in 1989,'' the Commerce Department said.

A 2 percent decline in private construction spending in August, led by a drop in new single-family home and apartment construction, was offset by a 6 percent increase in construction in the public sector, the department said.

Non-residential private construction was also off in August, on declines in the building of factories, offices, hotels, motels and hospitals. But church and private school construction were on the increase.

August data was not available for telecommunictaions projects.

In the public sector in August, construction spending increased on housing, industry, public schools, hospitals, streets and highways, sewers and water supply facilities, the government said.

But spending held steady on military bases and conservation projects.

In July, private construction was up 1.3 percent and public construction tumbled nearly 2.7 percent, the Commerce Department said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether Oklahoma may collect state taxes on cigarettes sold at an Indian tribe's convenience store.

The justices will hear arguments this term in the appeal from the state of Oklahoma, which contends the Citizen Band Potawatomi Indian Tribe of Oklahoma is not immune from taxation.

At trial, a federal court found cigarette sales to tribe members were exempt from taxes but that sales to non-tribe members should be taxed.

On appeal, the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals found the state was barred from enforcing any tax law against the tribe and its business because it has immunity from such state actions.

The state, in seeking high court review, said the appeals court decision destroys the integrity of the Oklahoma tax system and that the tribe's immunity is limited.

The state argued the Potawatomi tribe's convenience store is located on land held in trust by the federal government, not an official Indian reservation, and therefore is subject to the same laws as other businesses in the state.

The tribe, arguing against high court review, dismissed the state's arguments, saying it ''whines about the difficulties state governments encounter when Indian tribes exercise their rights.''

The case emerged after the Oklahoma Tax Commission assessed the tribe nearly $2.7 million in penalties and interest for selling cigarettes, minus the state tax of $2.30 for each carton, between 1982 and 1986.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) UPI - The manufacturing economy declined in September to its lowest level since the nation's current economic expansion began in December 1982, the National Association of Purchasing Management reported Monday.

The Purchasing Managers' Index fell to 44.4 percent, down from 47.0 percent in August.

A reading below 50 generally indicates the manufacturing segment of the economy is experiencing a decline in growth. A reading above 50 usually indicates that the manufacturing portion of the economy is expanding.

''The manufacturing economy ended the third quarter on a sour note,'' said Robert J. Bretz, chairman of the association's business survey committee.

The outlook is equally as gloomy as the September survey of some 300 purchasing executives, Bretz said.

If the Purchasing Managers' Index remained unchanged at the September level for the remainder of the year, it would be consistent with real GNP growth of about 1 percent for 1990, he said.

The PMI would have to fall below 44 percent before indicating a decline in real GNP - a point which has suddenly drawn very near, Bretz said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court, stepping into the savings and loan fray, agreed Monday to decide whether the financial institutions can deduct millions of dollars as losses by essentially swapping mortgage loans of near identical value.

The decision could affect at least five cases currently before the court and dozens of other savings and loans nationwide.

The nation's savings and loans have millions of dollars riding on the court's interpretation of a 1980 memorandum by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which appeared to legalize the mortgage loan exchanges as a cost-cutting step for financially ailing thrifts.

The dispute grew out of problems in the industry as far back as the late 1970s when the mortgage loan portfolios of many financial institutions were composed primarily of fixed-rate long-term home mortgage loans that had been issued in the 1960s at relatively low interest rates.

As the interest rates rose, the fair market value of the older loans fell far below their face amount.

Centennial Savings Bank FSB of Greenville, Texas, and other institutions realized they could declare a tax deduction were they to sell the loans.

But there was a catch. Many of the thrifts were in such poor financial shape that selling the loans and recognizing the losses - even though it would be beneficial for tax purposes - would have caused them to fall below minimum financial reserve requirements and face possible closure by the Bank Board.

The solution, apparently, was the Bank Board's Memorandum R-49 issued on June 27, 1980, declaring that savings institutions could make ''reciprocal sales'' of depreciated ''substantially identical mortgage loans'' without being required to record a loss for regulatory accounting purposes.

Centennial, like other thrifts, took advantage of the regulation. In April 1981, it entered into a ''reciprocal sale'' of loans with the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Centennial paid the Federal National Mortgage Association more than $5.6 million for participation interest in loans with a face amount of about $8.5 million, while the mortgage association simultaneously paid Centennial a nearly identical amount - $2 less - for loans with a face amount $3 less than the loans exchanged.

From the deal, Centennial claimed a deduction for loss on the transaction of $2.8 million - the difference between the face amount and the value of participation interests it transferred. Under R-49, Centennial did not report any loss for financial and regulatory accounting purposes.

The IRS challenged the legality of the exchange and won in U.S. District Court in Texas.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the ruling. It held that for tax purposes the mortgages exchanged are ''materially different'' because they have different borrowers and collateral, even though in financial terms the loans are ''substantially identical.''

However, the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in a similar case involving Cottage Savings Association of Cincinnati, held that no loss is ''sustained'' under the Internal Revenue Code, and thus no deduction is legal.

The high court agreed to hear appeals of both cases jointly.

The IRS claims there are at least 96 such cases now pending administratively or in the courts involving more than $400 million in taxes that could be affected by the court's decision.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) UPI - Teachers in the country's largest school system Monday reached a tentative agreement on a new contract less than two hours after the old pact expired.

No details of the pact between the 65,000 teachers and the city were immediately available. Mayor David Dinkins and United Federation of Teachers President Sandra Feldman were to formally announce the agreement at a news conference at 11 a.m. at City Hall.

The agreement came after a marathon Sunday session at Gracie Mansion in which Mayor Dinkins took at hand at ending a stalemate that began Wednesday when the teachers rejected an offer of a 4 percent pay raise.

The teachers' old contract expired at midnight Sunday, but teachers reported to classes Monday morning. The new pact must be presented to the teachers for a vote.

The teachers old contract had salary levels ranging from $25,000 to $50,000. But union leaders said the majority of teachers' pay hovers at the lower end of the range because an employee must have 20 years experience and a master's degree, plus an additional 30 credits, to qualify for the maximum pay.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide if civil rights laws cover U.S. companies and their employees operating overseas.

The court will hear arguments this term in two cases brought by the government and a man claiming discrimination, seeking review of a ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The case involves Ali Boureslan, a naturalized American citizen who was born in Lebanon. He brought the discrimination claims against Arabian American Oil Co. and its subsidiary, Aramco Service Co. Aramco explores, produces and refines oil and gas in Saudi Arabia. The companies are incorporated in Delaware.

Boureslan went to work for Aramco in 1979 in Houston and a year later asked for, and was given, a transfer to Saudi Arabia. In that country, he alleges his supervisor subjected him to a ''campaign of harassment,'' including racial religious and ethnic slurs culminating in his firing June 16, 1984.

He brought suit under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

However, federal courts dismissed the suit, stating the Civil Rights Act does not ''extend its reach beyond our borders.''

Both Boureslan and the federal government appealed the ruling to the Supreme Court.

The government said the lower court rulings would ''withdraw the act's protection from the many Americans who spend a portion of their careers abroad.''

Attorneys for Boureslan called the lower court decisions ''astonishing.''

Arguing against review, lawyers for the companies contended Boureslan was fired as part of a ''general reduction in force'' and there was no ''clear expression'' by Congress that the law was to apply to American companies operating overseas.

MIAMI (OCT. 1) UPI - The Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season started with a flurry but slowed to a whimper in September, traditionally the peak month for tropical cyclone activity, forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said Monday.

Going into September, the 1990 season had spawned eight tropical storms and hurricanes in the Atlantic. That was the highest number of storms and hurricanes in a single year before Sept. 1 since 1936, forecasters said in their monthly report.

However, only one hurricane and one tropical storm developed during September, bringing the 1990 total to 10 named storms, or just about average for the year.

Not a single storm has made landfall in the United States this year.

If that holds through the end of the hurricane season Nov. 30, it would represent the first time since 1890 - 100 years - that no tropical storm or hurricane has made landfall in the United States.

Isidore, the ninth tropical storm of the season and the fourth to reach hurricane intensity, formed from a strong tropical wave that moved off Africa Sept. 1.

It was upgraded Sept. 5 to a tropical depression about 1,000 miles east of Barbados and became a hurricane three days later when it was about 400 miles east of Dominica.

Isidore peaked at 100 mph, then turned north to eventually curve and die over the open waters of the north Atlantic.

Josephine, the 10th tropical storm of 1990, also formed from a tropical wave that emerged off the African coast Sept. 16. Josephine attained status as a weak tropical storm in a shearing environment east of the Antilles.

It was a tropical storm on only three days in the middle of its 10- day life to date. On Monday, it remained a tropical depression with 35 mph winds.

At 6 a.m. EDT Monday, the depression was located near latitude 29.8 north, longitude 43.3 west, or about 1,095 miles southwest of Terceira in the Azores.

It was moving northeast near 12 mph and was expected to gradually turn to the east-northeast or east Tuesday, slowing its forward speed.

The Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) UPI - The manufacturing economy declined in September to its lowest level since the nation's current economic expansion began in December 1982, the National Association of Purchasing Management reported Monday.

The Purchasing Managers' Index fell to 44.4 percent, down from 47.0 percent in August.

A reading below 50 generally indicates the manufacturing segment of the economy is experiencing a decline in growth. A reading above 50 usually indicates that the manufacturing portion of the economy is expanding.

''The manufacturing economy ended the third quarter on a sour note,'' said Robert J. Bretz, chairman of the association's business survey committee.

The outlook is equally as gloomy as the September survey of some 300 purchasing executives, Bretz said.

If the Purchasing Managers' Index remained unchanged at the September level for the remainder of the year, it would be consistent with real GNP growth of about 1 percent for 1990, he said.

The PMI would have to fall below 44 percent before indicating a decline in real GNP - a point which has suddenly drawn very near, Bretz said.

The September survey, the group's Production Index fell to its lowest level, at 45.1 percent from 48.5 percent in August, since the nation began an economic recovery from recession in December 1982.

The New Order Index hit its lowest point - 44.5 percent from 46.4 percent a month earlier - since the trough of the previous recession in November 1982.

''The sharp decline in new orders in July and August has led to a marked decline in production,'' said Bretz.

A weakness in new orders signals no relief in the near future, he added.

''Coupled with sharply rising prices for petroleum-related products spawned by the Middle East crisis, the immediate outlook appears to be the worst of all combinations, a declining economy with rising inflation,'' said Bretz.

Supplier deliveries were faster in September, reflecting the declining economy. The Supplier Deliveries Index dropped to 49.4 percent, down from 51.1 percent in August, the survey showed.

Inventories decreased for for the 22nd consecutive month in September and at a greater rate than in August. The Inventories Index fell to 40.8 percent from 44.1 percent in August.

The Employment Index fell in September for the 19th consecutive month - to 41.5 percent from 44.1 percent a month earlier - and September's rate of decline was the greatest in five years.

The survey showed the Price Index took its largest one-month jump in 15 years to 73.4 percent up from 58.2 percent in August as a result of the crisis in the Middle East.

Purchasers expressed concern that suppliers will raise prices even further in light of uncertainties surrounding the current Persian Gulf crisis.

But most, 88 percent, cited the Middle East crisis in saying they were changing their capital spending plans for the next six to 12 months.

The New Export Orders Index rose in September to 54 percent, up from 53 percent in August, for the 33rd consecutive monthly increase.

The Imports Index, however, declined for the fifth consecutive month to 45.5 percent from 47.5 percent in August. The September reading was the lowest since December 1989.

VATICAN CITY (OCT. 1) UPI - Pope John Paul II warned Monday that war never fully resolves international disputes and called for international dialogue and collaboration aimed at achieving stability in the Middle East.

''We all know from experience that the wars that break out and the conflicts that last a long time never settle problems definitively,'' he said. ''Only dialogue, respect for the rights of persons and peoples and collaboration among political leaders are capable of creating confidence and, therefore security.''

The pope was addressing Latin rite bishops from the Middle East, including Iraq, at a special audience marking the conclusion of their regional meeting in the Vatican.

It was the latest in a series of warnings against war the pope has made in recent weeks, with particular reference to the Persian Gulf crisis.

In an address that ranged over the whole spectrum of Middle East issues, John Paul spoke of ''the drama of Palestine'', the ''tragedy of Lebanon'' and ''the tensions loaded with danger regarding the gulf.''

He urged Christians in the region to become the ''leaven of reconciliation'' and to make themselves ''promoters of initiatives aimed at breaking the infernal cycle of violence, destruction and vendetta.''

He said Christians must play a leading role in a region ''tragically threatened with disintegration.'' He said the bishops should tell each Christian in the region ''that the pope is counting on him, has confidence in him and blesses him paternally.''

John Paul also told the bishops their communities must become the ''vanguard of dialogue'' with Moslem, Jewish and non-Catholic Christians in the region in order to collaborate in achieving stability.

The bishops attending the audience were led by Michel Sabbah, the Palestinian patriarch of Jerusalem, and included Archbishop Paul Daddah of Baghdad. There were also Latin rite bishops from Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Syria, Djibouti and Somalia.

The pope expressed regret that Bishop Francis Micallef, apostolic vicar of Kuwait, was not able to attend the meeting and that he and his flock were living ''particularly difficult moments''.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court let stand Monday a ruling that allows banks to sell insurance in yet another case dealing with the banking industry's move into non-traditional financial services.

The court refused to hear the case brought by a number of insurance trade groups and companies challenging a decision by the Federal Reserve Board to permit banks to expand into new areas.

The case is the latest in a series of cases dealing with non-banking services. Previous cases have dealt with banks entering into the stock brokerage business, a move bitterly opposed by Wall Street brokerage houses.

Monday's case stems from a March 1989 ruling by the Federal Reserve Board, which permitted two Indiana banks acquired by the Merchants National Corp., to begin specified insurance activities.

The action was challenged in federal court but eventually upheld by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in November 1989.

Seeking high court review, the insurance industry said the banking industry has been separated from other commercial activities ''in order to preserve the stability of banking institutions and to protect non- banking buinesses from the unfair effects of bank competition.''

They warned that allowing bank holding companies to conduct an insurance business directly within a subsidiary bank ''exposes the commercial banking industry to the same morass that has befallen the savings and loan industry, whose excesses will cost American taxpayers millions of dollars.''

The bank argued against review.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to become involved in a case involving the owner of a truck repair business in Morrisville, Pa., who was sentenced to five years in prison for filling wetlands on his property.

The court refused to hear the case brought by John Pozsgai, whose case has been championed by the conservative Washington Legal Foundation, seeking review of a ruling by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

According to the government, Pozsgai bought 14 acres next to his truck repair business in 1987 to expand his operations. During negotiations to buy the land he learned it was considered a wetland under federal enviromental laws and government approval must be given before any development.

Wetlands are environmentally sensitive areas preserved for wildlife.

Despite that, Pozsgai began dumping fill material on the tract without approval and continued to do so after being warned to stop. The government eventually obtained a court order to force him to stop, which Pozsgai ignored.

He was charged with unlawful filling in a 41-court indictment and convicted and sentenced to five years in prison and a $200,000 fine.

Seeking high court review, attorneys for Pozsgai, 57, portrayed him as a hard working Hungarian immigrant seeking the American dream who actually improved the site by cleaning it up. They said he is a victim of overzealous government officials and argued that the penalty is way out of line with the offense.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 1) UPI - Eight historic sites closed to the public Monday, victims of a federal budget crunch, amid expressions of ''disappointment, shock and outrage'' from tourists.

The eight sites out of a total of 19 historic buildings open to the public at Independence National Historical Park will remain locked until Congress decides how much money to allocate to the National Park Service, which operates the landmarks.

While the Liberty Bell and Independence Hall, the city's most popular tourist attractions, will remain open, the Second Bank of the United States, which hosted 140,036 visitors last year, was among those shuttered until further notice.

''The out-of-town tourist probably is going to find out the hard way, unfortuately,'' said Bernie Goodman, assistant park superintendent. ''We're receiving feedback of disappointment, shock, outrage, nothing in any formal ways but as comments to the staff.''

Goodman expected the sites to remain closed from one to three months ''until we at least know what finances are there'' to work with.

Congressional leaders have agreed to complete the federal budget by Oct. 19.

The park service needs $8.4 million to staff and maintain the buildings. Anticipating a $483,000 budget shortfall, park officials decided to close the buildings that are the least popular after the busy summer tourist season.

Other buildings, including Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence and the U.S. Constitution were signed, are badly in need of repair. Rep. Thomas Foglietta, D-Philadelphia, has been lobbying in Congress for $400,000 to repair the hall's roof.

Besides the Second Bank of the United States, the buildings that are closed as of Monday and their 1989 attendance figures are: Old City Hall, 77,271; Graff House, 36,931; Pemberton House (Army/Navy Museum), 102,286; New Hall (Marine Corps Memorial Museum), 83,255; Todd House, 15,941; Bishop White House, 12,869 and an architectural exhibit at 318 Market St. 93,658.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to become involved in the notorious Howard Beach incident in New York that led to the death of a black man at the hands of a white gang.

The court refused to hear the case brought by defendants Scott Kern, Jon Lester and Jason Ladone, who sought review of rulings by New York courts. They contended jury selection during the trial was unconstitutional.

The three were convicted of manslaughter for their roles in an attack in which a gang of bat-wielding white youths chased a black man, Michael Griffith, 23, to his death Dec. 20, 1986, in Howard Beach, Queens.

Griffith, fleeing, was struck by a car and killed when he ran onto a busy highway. Another black man, Cedric Sandiford, 37, was severely beaten.

Lester, the alleged instigator of the attack, is serving a sentence of up to 30 years in prison.

Kern and Ladone, convicted of second-degree manslaughter and first- degree assault, were sentenced to a maximum of 15 and 19 years in prison respectively.

They began serving their sentences after appealing the convictions all the way to the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals.

Three others, William Bolander, Thomas Farino and James Povinelli, were convicted in September 1988 of second-degree riot, but their convictions were overturned last December and they never served any time in prison.

Robert Riley was convicted of second-degree assault as part of a plea bargain agreement and served four months of a six-month sentence.

Another defendant, John Saggese, was cleared of all charges.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to become involved in the question of whether New York violated the constitutional rights of some 10,000 city corrections officers by ordering random drug testing.

The case stemmed from a 1987 directive by New York City's corrections chief that all uniformed members of the corrections department submit to random urinalysis drug testing.

A trial court ruled the directive violated the constitutional protection against unreasonable search and seizure. But an appeals court and the state's highest court upheld the tests.

The corrections department contends the rulings of the appeals courts were in ''complete harmony'' with a Supreme Court decision last year, upholding the U.S. Custom Service's program of administering drug tests to employees seeking promotion or transfer to jobs involving drug interdiction, the use of firearms or access to classified information.

The Correction Officers' Benevolent Association of the City of New York, Inc.

- which represents the officers - claims that where random drug testing of this type has been declared legal, it involves workers in ''almost constant contact'' with drug users and abusers.

The union argues that is not the case in the city's corrections facilities.

But Corrections Commissioner Richard Koehler contends there is a drug problem among some of the city's 10,000 corrections officers. He blames uniformed officers for a ''vast increase'' in the quantity of drugs successfully smuggled to inmates in recent years.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court Monday agreed to determine what constitutes a violation of privacy when a law enforcement officer uses physical restraint against an individual to seize suspected illegal property.

The court will hear arguments this term on the matter brought by the state of California. Lawyers for the state argued a lower court erred in reversing the drug conviction of a juvenile by finding that police illegally detained the youth.

At issue is whether physical control by police officers, as an element of seizure, violates a person's Fourth Amendment protection against unreasonable searches and seizures.

The California Court of Appeal, which reversed the juvenile's conviction, found there was police misconduct when two officers ''without justification'' chased a group of youths who fled from a street corner when they saw an approaching unmarked police car.

Further, the court held that police attempted to conduct an unlawful seizure when one of the juveniles discarded a rock of crack cocaine. The appellate court said the trial court erred in failing to suppress the evidence because the officers had no reasonable cause to detain the youth.

The state challenged the appeal court's findings, saying seizure does not occur until the fleeing suspect has been physically restrained. The state also argued evidence discarded by a fleeing person is not a seizure.

The appellate court's view of seizure has ''given street criminals an unjustified ... form of protection and has taken from police a necessary means to investigate suspicious behavior,'' the state argued.

CHICAGO (OCT. 1) UPI - An increase in both harvest activity and country movement pressured grains futures early Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Oat futures were fractionally higher, but other grain and soybean futures were lower at midmorning.

Commercials and professionals were featured sellers across the floor.

Farmers made good progress with the corn and soybean harvest during the weekend. Weather conditions were favorable around the Midwest, and the 30-day outlook calls for normal temperatures and rainfall during October in the major production areas.

The prospect of lower prices prompted scattered protection of 3 to 5 cents per bushel on soybeans. There was no protection reported on corn.

Wheat was lower on spillover from the rest of the floor and the continued lack of export business.

There were rumors the Soviet Union may have bought up to 1 million tons of wheat flour, otherwise the export markets were quiet.

The midmorning prices:

OTTAWA (OCT. 1) UPI - The Soviet Union has gained resources to combat illegal drug problems and the theft of valuable cultural property by becoming a member of Interpol, a spokesman for the international criminal police organization said Monday.

Interpol spokesman Miguel Chamorro said the organization voted at a closed meeting late last week to accept the Soviet Union, along with Czechoslovakia, Poland and the Marshall Islands in the South West Pacific Ocean.

''We are certain they need this type of cooperation,'' Chamorro said in an interview.

The Soviet Union has never been a member of Interpol, but the other east bloc countries belonged to the organization before the Second World War.

Chamorro said Interpol could provide the Soviet Union with additional help in combatting illegal drugs and tracking down stolen works of art. The extent of the drug problem is unclear, he added, but Interpol assumes it is growing worse because of the fewer restrictions placed on people entering the country.

''They are allowing people en masse to enter, so there is a need to compensate for the lack of information,'' Chamorro said.

Interpol, which concludes a week-long meeting in Ottawa Wednesday, fights international crime such as murder and kidnapping, but tends to concentrate on illegal drug trafficking, money laundering and insurance fraud and the theft of art and cultural property.

It is up to each country to decide which of its law enforcement agencies will work directly with Interpol. But, Chamorro said it was unlikely that Russia's KGB would be involved because Interpol solves criminal cases and has little to do with intelligence agencies.

On the other hand, he admitted, most of the law enforcement agencies in eastern Europe have military rather than criminal training. Membership in Interpol, Chamorrow said, will help these countries overhaul their systems of crime prevention and law enforcement.

''They realize their old systems are not as effective in criminal investigations,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to step into a dispute to decide whether state agencies may consider race as a factor in making adoption placement decisions without violating equal protection laws.

The court rejected arguments by Lisa and Ronald Wilson, who contended Kentucky's Cabinet for Human Resources excluded them from adopting a child because they are white and the child is of mixed race.

The Wilsons argued state officials violated their constitutional right under the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment by rejecting their request to adopt a child - whom Lisa Wilson had cared for from 1984 to 1986 - on the basis of race.

Mrs. Wilson maintained that she kept the child at her home with the consent of the state four to five days a week from August 1984, shortly after the infant was born, until March 1986.

One month later, an adoption worker who met with Lisa Wilson acknowledged Wilson's attachment to the child but said ''that factor did not outweigh racial considerations,'' her attorneys alleged. The worker told Wilson the agency preferred to place the child with an interracial family, and the second choice would be a black family.

Lisa Wilson was then ordered to have no further contact with the child, and several months later, the child was placed with an interracial couple.

The state, arguing against high court review, said there was no basis for the claim that equal protection laws were violated because the courts have ''recognized that the difficulties in interracial adoption justify the consideration of race as a relevant factor in adoption.''

The state cited the state agency's adoption policies, which maintain ''it is preferable to place a child in a family of his own racial background,'' but that no child should be deprived of the opportunity to have a family due to age, religion, race or handicap.

The Wilsons filed suit, charging that interracial couples and blacks were given preferrential consideration on the basis of race. A jury, however, found in favor of the state and an appeals court affirmed the decision.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - An accused Honduran drug dealer snatched in Central America and returned to the United States failed Monday to win a Supreme Court hearing and will face trial.

The court refused to hear the case brought by Juan Ramon Matta- Ballesteros, who sought review of a ruling by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The case stemmed from charges by Matta, a fugitive from the United States, who was arrested in Honduras in 1988 by local authorities, turned over to U.S. Marshals and flown to the United States.

In his appeal to the high court, Matta, a 1971 fugitive from a federal prison in Florida and a suspected drug trafficker, contends he was illegally kidnapped from his Honduran home with the help of U.S. agents and tortured by the marshals before being brought to the United States for trial.

A federal court in Illinois ruled Matta's injuries, mostly bruises, ''did not rise to the level of torture,'' but that even if the court accepted all of Matta's allegations it would not be legally bound to order him freed.

Matta contended he was being held illegally under U.S. and international law and must be released.

The appeals court refused to order Matta freed, ruling it is ''well established'' that individuals have no standing to challenge violations of international law in the absence of protest by another nation. Honduras has not protested Matta's arrest.

The government denied the allegations and urged the justices to reject the appeal.

Justice Byron White voted to hear the case, but a case needs four votes to win high court review.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (OCT. 1) UPI - Minority Serbs declared self-government Monday in the Republic of Croatia and blocked roads and train lines, fueling fears the rising confrontation could lead to ethnic strife, news reports and witnesses said.

The Serbian National Council, based in the town of Knin, called on Croatia's 600,000 Serbs ''to resist with all means the terror of the fascist Croatian authorities and to protect their human dignity, human and national rights.''

The 14-member council asserted it was assuming political control of Croatia's Serbian enclaves: ''We declare autonomy for Serbs in Croatia and the ethnic and historic territory on which Serbian people live.''

The nationalist government of Croatian President Franjo Tudjman had no immediate reaction.

Serbs accuse the government of depriving them of civil and human rights. Tudjman contends the ruling communists of the rival Serbian Republic are encouraging the Serbs to destabilize his government.

Armed Serbian vigilantes erected blockades around Knin, expecting Tudjman to retaliate for the autonomy declaration by sending police to reassert control, news reports and residents said.

''People are not afraid. They are fierce,'' Lazar Macura, the deputy mayor of Knin, said in a telephone interview. ''We are ready for war.''

The Serbs based their declaration on a referendum organized in August around Knin, the center of the largest Serbian-dominated area of Croatia. The referendum asked whether Serbs wanted independence from Tudjman's Croatian Democratic Society government.

Disclosing the referendum results for the first time, the council said 567,127 Serbs voted for self-government and only 144 voted against it.

The developments Monday in Knin followed weekend clashes between Serbs and police in other Serbian-dominated towns in Croatia. The fights began when officers tried to transfer police weapons to central armories.

Hundreds of militant Serbs broke into at least four police stations over the weekend and stole weapons. Unknown numbers were arrested by Croatian police, who raided homes for stolen weapons.

Yugoslavia's 4.6 million Roman Catholic Croats and 8.5 million Orthodox Serbs harbor deep hatreds for each other, and politicians of both communities have stoked tensions as they maneuver to fill the power vacuum left by the demise of 45 years of communist rule in Yugoslavia.

Serbian-Croatian frictions, which worsened in April after Tudjman's party won Croatia's first assembly free elections since 1945, are regarded as the most serious of several ethnic disputes threatening civil war in the multi-ethnic nation of 23 million.

Serbia opposes calls by Croatia and the Slovene Republic for converting the loose Yugoslav federation into a confederation of independent states. With Yugoslavia moving toward democracy, many Croats, Slovenes and other minorities fear domination by the Serbian majority.

Serbia's communist government has been exploiting rising Serbian nationalism in a bid to survive Dec. 9 assembly elections. The situation in Croatia has provided valuable ammunition for the Serbian press, with Monday's state-owned Politika newspaper alleging that drunken Croatian police had been mistreating Serbian children and women.

Serbia called Monday on Yugoslavia's collective eight-man presidency ''to protect from repraisals'' Serbs in Croatia and asked the federal Parliament hold an emergency session to discuss the situation.

Belgrade Radio said Yugoslav President Borisav Jovic, cutting short a visit to New York for a U.N. General Assembly session, called a meeting of the presidency for Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court let stand Monday a ruling that members of the military who test positive for the AIDS virus can be ordered to tell prospective sex partners about their condition.

The case stems from the 1988 court-martial of an Air Force enlisted man, Marc A. Dumford, for disobeying a ''safe sex'' order from a military doctor. Dumford had sex with a female civilian without telling her he had tested positive for the HIV virus and without using a condom.

Dumford was diagnosed with the AIDS virus in December 1987 while stationed at Fort Carson, Colo.

On Feb. 1, 1988, he was sent to Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, for further tests and a ''safe sex'' briefing at which he agreed to inform sexual partners he had tested HIV-positive and to use a condom or other methods to prevent the transfer of body fluids during sex.

While on a pass from the hospital, Dumford, a senior airman, met a woman at the non-commissioned officers club at Lackland and the two later had sexual intercourse at an off-base hotel. Dumford did not use a condom or inform the woman he was HIV positive.

Dumford later pleaded guilty at court-martial to aggravated assault and ''willful disobedience'' of the doctor's order. He was sentenced to two years in a military prison, given a dishonorable discharge and ordered to forfeit his pay.

Dumford claimed the ''safe sex'' order was overbroad and exceeded military necessity. He also contended the charge of aggravated assault against him is illegal.

TILLAMOOK, OR (OCT. 1) UPI - U.S. and Canadian naval ships aided by the Coast Guard searched Monday for three missing crew members of a U.S. Navy helicopter that crashed into the Pacific Ocean off the Oregon coast.

The SH-60B Lamps Mark III helicopter plummeted into the ocean about 30 miles west of Tillamook at about 7:35 p.m. Sunday. It vanished from radar screens as it was returning to its ship, the guided missile frigate USS Crommelin, said Coast Guard Cmdr. Ron Larsen in Tillamook.

The Crommelin, based in Long Beach, Calif., was taking part in a U.S.-Canadian joint anti-submarine warfare exercise, Navy officials said. The names of the missing were withheld pending notification of relatives. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

Low clouds hampered visibility as the search for the crew continued through the night, involving several ships of both countries' navies as well as Coast Guard and Navy helicopters, Coast Guard Falcon jets and a Navy P-3 plane.

Some debris was found Sunday night but no trace of the crew, Larsen said. Visibility was reported at just 200 feet in places and a mile in others, he said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to become involved in the case of a public school teacher denied unemployment benefits after being fired for wearing head-wraps she claims are part of her cultural and religious heritage.

A county circuit court and the Mississippi Supreme Court had reversed a finding of the state Employment Security Commission denying unemployment compensation to assistant teacher Deborah McGlothin, fired for insubordination from her job with the Jackson Public Schools March 17, 1987.

McGlothin, a member of the original African Hebrew Israelities out of Ethiopia occasionally wore a head-wrap during her four years with the Jackson school system. She said it was part of her cultural and religious heritage.

During the beginning of the 1986-87 school year, Whitfield Elementary School, where she worked, adopted a rule prohibiting teachers from wearing head-wraps or blue jeans.

McGlothin complied for a time, but when she resumed wearing the head covering, she was fired.

The Mississippi Employment Security Commission rejected McGlothin's request for unemployment benefits on the grounds that she was fired for ''misconduct.''

''The custom is not dictated by the Ethiopian Culture, but is (McGlothin's) preference in expressing her ancestry,'' the commission's review board found. ''(McGlothin) admits she does not wear her head-wrap at all times, but is selective in choosing when to put it on.''

However, a county circuit court overruled the commission, finding that whether

McGlothin wore the head-wrap every day or not ''detracts not at all from the conclusion that such practices are protected by the First Amendment ... and cannot be 'misconduct' ... as to deny unemployment benefits.''

A divided state supreme court upheld the circuit court's finding.

The Mississippi Employment Security Commission, in asking the high court to hear the case, wrote the ''constitutionally protected right of religious expression is a right of the highest order.''

But the commission charged that the ''unwarranted expansion'' of that right by the state courts in the McGlothin case ''has the effect of detracting from the proper dignity commanded by the right, and dilutes its authenticity.''

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 1) UPI - The beginning of a possible deal to end the Persian Gulf crisis emerged Monday in President Bush's speech to the United Nations General Assembly.

Taken together with speeches in the past week by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and French President Francois Mitterrand, the deal involves an old diplomatic ploy: taking an intractable dispute and raising the possibility of a solution by linking it with a larger series of issues.

The diplomatic ''pathway'' - to use the latest State Department buzz word - emerged first on Aug. 12 in a speech by Saddam in which he said he would pull his forces out of Kuwait if Israeli occupation in the West Bank and Gaza and the Syrian occupation of the Bekaa Valley of Lebanon would end.

Within hours, the proposal was rejected by the White House and the State Department as something that was designed as a diversion and trick to cover a totally different kind of situation involving brutal, naked aggression.

But the spark of that idea emerged again last week on Sept. 24 when Mitterrand talked to the General Assembly and, among other things, suggested that Saddam could emerge from this crisis as a heroic, historic figure if the settlement of the gulf crisis could be used as a key to solve larger problems in the Middle East, including the Arab- Israeli dispute.

The State Department expressed its annoyance with Mitterrand with an expression of contempt. Five days after the Mitterrand speech, a senior administration official who is a key in Middle East policy, said he had been too busy attending other meetings to even read the French president's speech.

But Saddam was not apparently so busy, because on Sunday he made another one of his televised addresses, and suggested ''a debate'' or diplomatic contact with the French about the Mitterrand plan.

The next development came Monday, again before the U.N. General Assembly, when Bush signalled a shift in U.S. policy and also appeared to accept the idea of linking the Gulf crisis with Mitterrand's suggestion of linking it to the Arab-Israeli dspite.

While insisting on Iraq's unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait, Bush suggested - for the first time for an American official - that the ''peoples of the region'' take this as an opportunity ''to settle the conflict that divides the Arabs from Israel.''

The next step will probably be the sound of a muffled diplomatic explosion coming from Israel, which has adamantly refused to link its continued occupation of the West Bank and Gaza with anything else. The Israeli's worst nightmare is a scenario in which the Arab world finally unites against Israel. An even scarier possibility, for the Israelis, is that the Arabs would be backed and supported by the United States, joined by its new talking partner, the Soviet Union.

Many things tend to go wrong in Middle East diplomacy, and this is especially true when involved with an unpredictable element like Saddam.

But the shift of emphasis in the U.S. policy, which follows Saddam's offer to talk to the French, offers the embryonic shadow of a hope that the gulf crisis could end - to use Winston Churchill's phrase - with talk-talk, rather than war-war.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to get involved in a conflict over efforts to stop the broadcast of a TV documentary on the notorious child-custody battle involving Hilary Foretich.

The court refused to hear the case brought by Hilary's father, Dr. Eric Foretich, who sought a court order last April to stop the broadcast of the British Broadcasting Corp.'s documentary ''Hilary in Hiding'' out of concern for the child's emotional health.

Hilary Foretich, now 8, is the central figure in a continuing international custody battle between Eric Foretich and her mother, plastic surgeon Elizabeth Morgan.

The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia issued a temporary order April 6 that barred the airing of a 3 1/2-minute segment of the documentary in which a 4-year-old Hilary discussed alleged sexual abuse by her father. The court, after viewing the documentary, said it could cause ''irreparable harm'' to Hilary.

Despite objections from Hilary's father and her court-appointed guardian, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia three hours later cleared the way for the broadcast of the program.

The appeals court said halting part of the documentary, which was presented on Lifetime Cable, would have violated the First Amendment ban on ''prior restraint.''

Although the documentary aired a number of times on national television, the Supreme Court was being asked to bar further broadcast of the 3 1/2-minute segment.

Lawyers for Eric Foretich and the child's court-appointed lawyer, Linda Holman claimed the segment was taped at a psychologist's office without Hilary's knowledge.

In the segment, the child is shown describing to her mother ''in graphic terms and with animated gestures'' the alleged sexual abuse, the appeal to the high court stated.

The BBC, in a brief to the court, said the young girl was aware she was being videotaped at the psychologist's session and claimed censoring the documentary would violate free speech guarantees.

Morgan, who claims Foretich sexually abused Hilary for years, spent 25 months in jail for contempt of court for sending Hilary into hiding in 1987 rather than obey a court order to allow Foretich to visit the girl. She was freed only by an act of Congress.

Hilary was discovered this year living in New Zealand with her maternal grandparents. Her mother has now joined her and the courts there are reviewing the custody question.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev, chief of the Soviet armed forces, was welcomed by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney at the Pentagon Monday at the beginning of an official U.S. visit.

Moiseyev, who is also the first deputy minister of defense in the Soviet Union was scheduled to meet with President Bush Tuesday. It is his first trip to the United States.

The Soviet general is to tour U.S. military facilities across the nation this week and then return to Washington Friday to hold a joint news conference at the Pentagon with his American counterpart, Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, before leaving Friday night for Moscow.

''General Powell has put together a very, very useful program,'' Moiseyev said upon his arrival at the Pentagon.

The Soviet general was given the normal honorary welcome afforded foreign dignitaries at the Pentagon, with a 21-gun cannon salute and military bands and colors, and then met with Powell, Cheney and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

''We look foward to the opportunity to continue military exchanges,'' Cheney told Moiseyev.

Cheney plans to visit the Soviet Union later this month for the first time in his role as defense secretary.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court refused Monday to review a ruling involving a Southern Baptist seminary forced to award a divinity degree in marital counseling to a minister who allegedly beat his wife.

The high court rejected arguments in a case brought by officials of a New Orleans seminary, whose decision to withhold a degree from a student was overturned by a state court.

At issue is whether state courts have jurisdiction in matters involving religious organizations and their doctrines, and whether such organizations are protected under the First Amendment's guarantee of religious freedom.

In this case, the faculty at the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary voted in 1989 that student Rudolph Babcock was unfit for Christian ministry and ineligible to receive a master of divinity degree even though he had completed course work in family and marital counseling. He was already a licensed minister by another church.

The seminary found he was unfit because in 1987, Babcock - who was put on probation for beating his wife - violated the probation by ''continued physical and verbal abuse of his wife.'' The seminary then sought to expel him for separating from his wife, which is against the seminary's doctrines.

Babcock appealed, saying the church breached its contract with him, and the state court overruled the seminary's decision. Babcock successfully sought an injunction, forcing the seminary to readmit and train him.

In 1989 when Babcock completed his course work, the faculty deemed him ''unfit'' and voted to withhold his degree.

Babcock filed suit and a Louisiana civil court, finding that it did have jurisdiction over the matter, ruled in his favor. The court said the seminary, while ''perhaps having characteristics of a church,'' functioned primarily as a school and was therefore not covered under the First Amendment.

Moreover, the court found that the issue was a contract dispute, not a religious controversy. An appeals court affirmed.

Lawyers for the seminary, in seeking high court review, called the state court's decision ''an intolerable violation'' of the First ''sion ''an

''It represents a serious threat to the right of every religious body to be free from government intervention in certifying ministers, priests, rabbis, or others who would teach its religious faith,'' it argued in a brief.

''This potential entanglement of the state in the spiritual realm of the church is an intolerable violation of the First Amendment rights of the seminary, of the Southern Baptist Convention and of every one of the 14 million Southern Baptists in this country.''

Justice Harry Blackmun voted to hear the case, but a case needs acceptance by four justices before it will be heard by the court.

(OCT. 1) UPI - American and Canadian naval ships aided by the Coast Guard are searching for three missing crew members of a U-S Navy helicopter that crashed into the Pacific Ocean. The helicopter plummeted into the ocean about 30 miles west of Tillamook, Oregon, last night after it vanished from radar screens. The chopper disappeared while returning to its ship, the guided missile frigate U-S-S Crommelin, which is based at Long Beach, California. Some debris was found last night, but there was NO sign of the crew.

Teachers in the country's largest school system reached a tentative agreement on a new contract today, less than two hours after the old pact expired. NO details of the pact between 65-thousand teachers and New York City were immediately available. The old contract expired at midnight, but teachers reported to classes this morning. The new pact must be presented to the teachers for a vote.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and his Christian Democrats absorbed their smaller East German sister party today to form the most powerful political grouping in Germany. The merger party congress in Hamburg brought together 750 West German and 250 East German delegates two days before German unification. (OCT. 1) UPI - Restrained reflection, rather than hoopla and hallelujahs, is the rule from Boston to Brussels for German expatriates marking the unification of East and West Germany.

Elegant diplomatic receptions are being hosted by the West German ambassadors in Geneva, Washington and other international meccas, and many simple church services are slated, but kick-up-the-heels partying is hard to find.

''Ours will be a rather sober party, just to talk a little about what is happening,'' said Johannes Trommer, the German consul general in Boston, who is hosting a ''small reception'' at Wednesday noon.

Just as the euphoria of the Berlin Wall's fall has faded into a reality hangover for German citizens, expatriates are hardly hauling out the red dresses and dancing shoes for unification, which occurs at a moment after midnight on Wednesday morning.

''No fireworks and the like have been organized,'' said an official at the West German mission in Geneva.

Indeed, the unification events on tap in European capitals are not exactly the types seen for World Cup soccer success in Brazil or a baseball World Series victory in Chicago.

About 1,800 people were invited to a reception at the Goethe Institute in Brussels by West Germany's delegate to the 12-nation European Community.

''It would be nice to be in Berlin or Bonn for unification day, but we're just all moved by the historic dimensions of the moment and are happy to celebrate from Brussels,'' said West German diplomat Georg Birgelin.

In Switzerland, about 1,000 people were invited to a reception in Bern given by the West German ambassador, and another 1,000 were asked to a similar soiree in Geneva by West Germany's ambassador to United Nations agencies.

There are about 81,000 Germans in Switzerland, the third-largest foreign contingent of foreigners after Italians and Spaniards.

In Austria, unification activities are focused on a simple service of thanksgiving at the palatial 18th-century St. Charles Church in Vienna.

The event was kept deliberately low-key in a country where many vividly remember Austria's 1938 annexation by the Nazis. ''The Austrians have been careful to make clear they have nothing to do with unification,'' said a Viennese diplomat.

The attitude among the 25,000 Germans in Namibia, in southwestern Africa, is very much ''so what,'' according to Hans Feddersen, the editor of the rightwing German newspaper, Allgemeine Zeitung.

Expected higher taxes in West Germany to support its neighbor is ''hardly cause for champagne in the streets,'' Feddersen said.

President Bush has declared Oct. 3 ''German-American Day'' in honor of the 50 million Americans of German descent, and ecumenical services are set for Washington, San Francisco and other U.S. cities.

In Berlin, New Jersey, a circa 1936 Lufthansa Junkers aircraft will do a flyover and the mayor will receive a chunk of the Berlin Wall, but festivities are scarce in America's other aptly named towns - which include numerous Germantowns and Hamburgs, and even a Munich on the North Dakota prairie.

Geography still has its day in the United States, however: the National Geographic Society begins selling for $7.95 a new map showing Germany as one country.

MIAMI (OCT. 1) UPI - An escalator accident that killed one woman and injured five other elderly Cubans at Miami International Airport was not the result of a mechanical problem, police said Monday.

''They pretty much have decided that nothing was wrong with the escalator. It has been classified as an accidental death,'' said Metro- Dade Police Detective George Reyes.

The accident occurred Sunday as senior citizens arriving from Cuba rushed up the crowded escalator to meet relatives. Police said someone fell, starting a chain reaction.

''It basically caused them to go down like dominoes,'' said Metro Police Lt.

Bernardo Bestard.

Several people were trampled as they attempted to escape.

Bartola Agrispina Acosta-Pereda, 75, was crushed to death and died at the scene. A medical examiner's report by Dr. Arthur Copeland listed the cause of death Monday as ''multiple injuries.''

Most of her injuries appeared to be caused when other passengers fell on her. It was unclear which passenger started the chain reaction or what caused the fall, said Metro-Dade Detective Ralph Fernandez said.

The five injured passengers were treated at Jackson Memorial Hospital. They included Acosta-Pereda's husband, Juan Romero, 87, who suffered a broken ankle.

The passengers had just arrived from Havana aboard an Eastern Airlines plane chartered by ABC Tours. About 400 relatives, many of whom had not seen their family members in decades, were waiting with cameras and video recorders.

''The passengers were so excited about seeing their families that there was a lot of pushing and shoving,'' said passenger Niels Frenzen. ''They were a real tough crowd to control. You were seeing little old ladies jostling each other.''

Some of the passengers who had been waiting to go upstairs appeared confused by the escalator and unfamiliar with the machinery, witnesses said.

Said Carlos Mayor, who was waiting for an aunt, ''These elderly haven't seen an escalator in years, if ever.''

LONDON (OCT. 1) UPI - Stocks prices closed sharply higher in moderate trading Monday on the London International Stock Exchange, boosted largely by institutions purchasing blue-chip stocks and by expectations of lower interest rates.

The Frankfurt Stock Exchange rebounded strongly, advancing 6.43 percent.

In London, the blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 18.9 points Friday, surged 40.6 points to 2,030.8. The narrower top 30 industrial average climbed 37.3 points to 1,573.0.

Volume amounted to about 328 million shares, down from the 403 million thatchanged hands Friday.

News from Washington of a budget agreement reached over the weekend between President Bush and congressional leaders sparked hopes of lower U.S. interest rates in the near term - and lower British rates as well.

Analysts also said share prices moved higher as crude oil eased on spot markets.

Also Monday, the Central Statistical Office reported Britain's retail sales volume fell a revised 2 percent in August from July and were up 0.1 percent from August 1989.

Double-digit improvements in blue-chip stocks were largely due to purchasing by institutional investors shifting their portfolios, analysts said.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Boots, the retail pharmacy group, gained 14 cents to $5.34 on news it has applied to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for approval to market a heart drug, Manoplax, there.

Other advancing issues included: Glaxo, up 32 cents to $13.28; Imperial Chemical Industries, up 25 cents to $14.81; and British Aerospace, up 9 cents to $10.13.

In Frankfurt, the closely watched German Stock Index, which tumbled 19.19 points Friday, closed up 85.84 points, or 6.43 percent, to 1, 420.73.

Traders said prices surged amid speculation that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein may be looking for a peaceful way out of the Persian Gulf crisis prompting enthusiasm for buying stocks.

HUNTINGTON, IN (OCT. 1) UPI - Physical beauty - even with some help - is no sin, according to Sister Beatrice Lorenz, whose new calling after 50 years visiting the sick and teaching religion is cosmetology.

The Roman Catholic nun finished two years of training at the Trend School of Beauty in Riverton, Wyo., last month and now plans to cut, wash and style hair at the Our Lady of Victory Missionary Sisters convent in Huntington. Her clientele will include retired nuns, the convent's administrators and visitors.

Born in Minneapolis, Sister Bea entered the Indiana mission in 1940 and served in many states.

She said she would continue ''primarily in a life of prayer,'' but believes her new skills fit her life's dedication, because, ''if people look good, they feel good.''

NAIROBI, KENYA (OCT. 1) UPI - Airplanes began daily emergency relief flights Monday for western Sudan to aid an estimated 50,000 refugees, but agencies warned that famine now threatens all of Sudan's 23 million people.

''The whole country is in trouble. They have nothing. They already are in trouble in the north. It's really bleak,'' said Bob Koepp of the Lutheran World Federation.

The church federation has been flying relief aid to war-torn Sudan since 1988 in conjunction with international donor nations. The latest direct flights to the city of Wau, 650 miles south of Sudan's capital of Khartoum, will send about 1,800 metric tons of food, seeds, agriculture tools and fuel to support 50,000 displaced people living there for two months.

''We included seeds and tools rather than just aid so the people can plant, then they should be all right. They just don't get anything in,'' Koepp said.

Civilians in Wau, as in Juda, Sudan's other southern town surrounded by rebels are the victims of a civil war that has devastated the East African nation since 1983.

The black African insurgent Sudanese People's Liberation Army, which is predominantly Christian, currently controls large areas of southern Sudan. Attempts at peace talks between the rebels and the hardline Islamic government have failed.

But Sudanese leader Gen. Omar al Bashir, in New York for an U.N.- sponsored world summit on children, announced a three-month ceasefire to allow children to be vaccinated.

''A ceasefire is excellent. I hope and think this will lead to serious peace talks,'' Koepp said.

One Western aid official recently in Khartoum said he felt the government seemed tired of war and ready to talk.

''Bashir was looking for a way out, and this is a golden opportunity, '' the official said, asking to remain unidentified.

Years of war and drought have all but destroyed the Sudanese economy, threatening other regions with famine. The situation is compounded by an impending fuel shortage with Saudi Arabia, which cut off Sudan's oil supplies after Sudan sided with Iraq in the Persian Gulf crisis.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (OCT. 1) UPI - India's Supreme Court ordered Prime Minister V.P. Singh's government Monday to temporarily halt its plan to reserve 27 percent of federal jobs for the so-called backward classes.

The decision came amid protests against the quota system in several northern states. A young man in New Delhi doused his body in fuel and set himself ablaze, triggering a confrontation between police and about 500 demonstrators.

The nation's highest court made its decision just one day after Singh received a vote of confidence from political backers in Parliament, who urged him to proceed with the job quota proposal.

The Supreme Court directed the government to stop implementation of the program until Oct. 25, when the court will consider the constitutionality of the system.

''Until the matter is heard, and we expect it to be finished before the end of the year, no further steps should be taken,'' the court said.

The Supreme Court ruled on a petition filed by K.K. Venugopal, president of the Supreme Court Bar Association, who argued the quota system was unconstitutional and maintained that it must be stopped to help quell violence that has swept across northern India for the past two months.

At least 75 people have been killed while protesting the government's program since Singh announced the decision Aug. 7.

''We make it clear that we expect that the law and order situation will improve,'' the Supreme Court said.

Protests continued Monday. In one instance in New Delhi, a 27-year- old man identified as Praveen Jain poured gasoline over his body and set himself on fire, the Press Trust of India news agency said.

It said the victim was admitted to a hospital with burns on about 40 percent of his body and was listed in critical condition.

The immolation attempt prompted about 500 protesters to gather in the area and force numerous shops to close. They also threw stones at cars and buses and set at least one truck on fire, the Press Trust said.

In a separate incident, authorities in the western state of Rajasthan placed police on alert after a student died Sunday from burn injuries after setting himself on fire.

Police feared that the death of the student, identified as Laxmi Narayan Sharma, would prompt further violence.

Reaction to the quota program has created the worst crisis since Singh formed his National Front government in December.

With 22.5 percent of all central government positions already reserved for the untouchables - India's lowest caste who are still shunned by society in some areas - Singh's decision meant that nearly half of all government jobs, from railroads to foreign service, would be locked up in a quota system.

High-caste Hindus hold the prime minister responsible for the unrest that has erupted since he announced the decision.

High-caste youths oppose the job reservation scheme because it would restrict their ability to enter India's government service. They also charge that the move will enshrine the caste system in law and increase government inefficiency by eliminating merit.

Proponents of job reservation say it will give lower-caste citizens, who represent about 54 percent of India's 830 million people, a better opportunity to obtain government employment, which traditionally has been the domain of the upper castes.

Under the ancient caste system, Hindus are born into four basic levels of society, with the priestly Brahmins at the top and the untouchable Harijans, who are restricted to menial tasks, at the bottom. Traders, farmers and others belong to the two intermediate castes.

(OCT. 1) UPI - Here is a roundup of the latest major events in the Persian Gulf crisis stemming from the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of the oil-rich emirate of Kuwait:

UNITED NATIONS - President Bush held out the prospect of a peaceful outcome to the Persian Gulf crisis Monday in a subtle offer of political and economic incentives for Saddam Hussein to get out of Kuwait. In a speech to the U.N. General Assembly, Bush said the world is united behind the U.S. position that ''the annexation of Kuwait will not be permitted to stand.''

But in language that embraced elements of a French overture to Saddam last week, Bush said ''there may be opportunities'' for Iraq in leaving Kuwait, including a permanent resolution of their longtime disputes over territory, money and oil, as well as settlement of ''the conflict that divides the Arabs from Israel.''

JERUSALEM - The Israeli military said Monday it will distribute gas masks to the nation's more than 4.7 million citizens. But it denied the decision is a response to any increased threat of chemical attack from Iraq's Saddam Hussein.Israel said it also is buying gas masks for the estimated 1.7 million Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

IN SAUDI ARABIA - An Air Force F-15-E jetfighter on a routine training mission crashed Sunday in the southern Arabian Peninsula, killing both crewmembers, a U.S. military spokesman said. The accident was under investigation.

PARIS - The French government denied Monday Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's assertion that Baghdad and Paris had established special contacts to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis. A statement from the presidential Elysee Palace said the only exchanges between the two governments concerned ''purely routine'' matters that cannot ''appear to be a negotiation.''

Meanwhile, the official Iraqi News Agency reported Saddam ordered nine Frenchmen released and said they could leave Iraq with a delegation from the France-Iraq Friendship Association now in Baghdad. INA did not say when the released Frenchmen, part of a larger group of Western nationals described by Iraq as ''foreign guests'' and held in the country as a human shield against attack, would leave Baghdad.

PARIS - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said in an interview published Monday if the U.N. embargo against Iraq fails, ''war will be inevitable.'' Mubarak, in his interview with the French daily Le Figaro, also rejected the notion of free elections in Kuwait once the Iraqis have withdrawn. ''To accept that postulate is to grant in advance that any country in the gulf can invade its neighbor to change the head of state,'' the Egyptian president was quoted as saying.

NEW YORK - Newsweek reported Monday that U.S. officials are drafting a U.N. Security Council resolution that would authorize military action against Iraq. The draft, which sources said is in rough form, may not be acted on for ar month or more, the magazine said.

BAGHDAD, Iraq - Analysts say an economic embargo imposed by the United Nations against Iraq has caused severe shortages of food and other goods in the country. Iraq starts a tough rationing program Monday. Iraq's trade minister said reports foreigners would be denied food were false.

BEIJING - Chinese officials dismissed as ''totally groundless'' a Western news report that a Chinese firm sold Iraq large quantities of a chemical used to make nuclear weapons in defiance of the U.N.-led embargo.

HOUSTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The 10-year ordeal of a freed Texas death row inmate ended Monday with the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to review a ruling that he was the victim of racial injustice.

But the prosecutor who hoped to put Brandley back behind bars said the court ruling meant a ''killer'' remained on the streets.

The nation's high court refused to hear arguments on whether the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals acted properly last December in overturning the conviction and death sentence of Brandley, who later was freed from prison on $75,000 bond.

Montgomery County District Attorney Peter Speers said in Conroe he already had filed a court motion to dismiss the still-existing murder indictment against Brandley.

''I'm extremely disappointed ... From a legal standpoint, I was on extremely solid ground on my arguments,'' Speers said. ''The case is over with and, in my view, a killer has escaped the consequences of his actions and I regret that.''

Speers said the former inmate could not be successfully prosecuted again because of lost evidence and the recanted testimony of some trial witnesses.

''It was great news,'' Mike DeGeurin, Brandley's attorney, said of the court's action. ''It wasn't unexpected, but you're always nervous when the other thing could happen, so we're real happy ... It's time to let this innocent man go.''

Brandley, who has maintained his innocence, spent more than nine years on death row and once came within five hours of execution.

He was sentenced to die for killing Cheryl Dee Fergeson, a 16-year-old volleyball team manager from Bellville killed while taking part in a volleyball tournament at Conroe High School. Brandley was head janitor at the school.

He was freed from prison in January, after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned his conviction and death sentence and ordered a new trial. The court acted on the recommendation of a judge who presided over a 1987 evidentiary hearing in the case and found Brandley was singled out as a suspect in the case because he was black.

Fergeson was white, and Brandley was convicted by an all-white jury.

Brandley's family and a handful of supporters began a grass-roots movement to prove he was the victim of prejudice, and their cause attracted national attention and the endorsements of groups such as the NAACP and Amnesty International.

Brandley, 38, has returned to school to become an electrician since his release from prison and has been preaching at Houston-area churches.

(OCT. 1) UPI - President Bush held the olive branch a little further away from the sword today in a speech to the U-N General Assembly. The results could be a slight glimmer of hope that a peaceful solution may yet be found to the Persian Gulf crisis. Bush told the world body that an Iraqi move from Kuwait could bring the opportunity to permanently resolve ancient disputes over territory, money and oil. And he made a reference to- quoting now- ''the conflict that divides the Arabs from Israel.''

Iraq pledged today to release nine French hostages... but didn't say when they'd be able to leave or how they would do so. A spokesman for French President Mitterrand confirmed the release would take place, but insisted there had been NO negotiations between Paris and Baghdad. The official Iraqi News Agency said President Saddam Hussein ordered the release.

The U-S Supreme Court refused today to become involved in the question of whether New York City violated the constitutional rights of some 10-thousand corrections officers by ordering random drug testing. A trial court ruled that the directive violated the constitutional protection against unreasonable search and seizure. But an appeals court and the state's highest court upheld the tests. .

The Supreme Court has decided NOT to get involved in a First Amendment dispute over parts of a British television documentary shown in the United States. The dispute involves the international child- custody battle over Hilary Foretich, discovered earlier this year living in New Zealand. The contested program segment included the child discussing alleged sexual abuse by her father, a charge the father denies. The child's mother spent 25 months in jail in 1987 rather than allow the father his court-approved visitation rights.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) UPI - A young Brooklyn man who passed out baseball bats to a group of white youths turned them into an armed mob that attacked and killed a black teenager in Bensonhurst the summer of l989, the prosecutor in the case charged Monday.

In his opening statements in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn, Assistant District Attorney Douglas Nadjari described how Charles Stressler, 22, brought the bats to the neighborhood ''to be used against an army of bad guys that never was.''

Stressler, an iron worker, is charged with second-degree murder and first- and second-degree manslaughter in the fatal shooting of 16-year- old Yusuf Hawkins Aug. 23, 1989.

Hawkins and three friends had come into the predominantly white neighborhood to look at a used car and were mistaken for a group of whites and Hispanics rumored to be looking for trouble.

The mob of youths attacked the four and Hawkins was shot dead in the melee. Stressler's trial is the third stemming from Hawkins's murder.

The first two defendants in the case, Keith Mondello and Joseph Fama, both 19, stood trial before different juries last spring.

Fama was convicted May 17 of second-degree murder for shooting Hawkins. Mondello, who prosecutors portrayed as the ringleader in the attack, was cleared May 18 of manslaughter charges but convicted of riot, unlawful imprisonment, menacing, discrimination and weapons possession.

A fourth man, John Vento, 22, was acquitted of an intentional murder charge June 3, but the jury failed to reach a verdict on a second murder charge, and a mistrial was declared.

Monday, Justice Thaddeus Owens ruled Vento's trial would begin Oct. 9.

In his opening arguments, Nadjari told the jury of six men and six women that part of the evidence would include a videotaped statement from Stressler, as well as testimony from another youth who helped him carrying the bats to a nearby playground.

Nadjari said Stressler knew that Fama had a gun.

''He continued to participate in this foul enterprise knowing that Fama had a gun and that he would shoot someone,'' he said.

In his opening statement, Stressler's attorney, Jack Evseroff, told the jury that ''the scenario is quite different,'' explaining he ''was merely a witness to the tragic shooting.''

Evseroff said Stressler and his friends ''were responding to what we used to call in Brooklyn a 'territorial imperative,''' and merely feared their neighborhood would be attacked by strangers looking for trouble.

He admitted that Stressler brought a box of baseball bats to the playing field near the shooting, but said Stressler only intented their use ''in case anyone was attacked,'' and also to play baseball later that night.

NEW YORK (OCT. 1) UPI - The San Diego Padres, looking to fill the void left by the dismissal of Jack McKeon, are set to name Joe McIlvaine of the New York Mets their general manager.

The Padres said no announcement would be forthcoming Monday, but the move is expected by the Mets, who were eliminated from pennant contention Sunday.

''I don't think we're going to really (announce) anything because everybody really knows,'' a Mets spokeswoman said.

Last week, after McKeon's firing as general manager, The New York Times reported McIlvaine would take the San Diego job.

McIlvaine, 42, is the Mets' vice president of basebal operations. He has spent 10 years with club and helped form the management troika with General Manager Frank Cashen and business manager Al Harazin.

''He's the only one of the three who knows the game,'' one Mets player said. ''And the way they make decisions around here, it'll probably take a year before they decide on a replacement. It's scary.''

The move comes at a time with the Mets facing the possible loss of star outfielder Darryl Strawberry to free agency. The task of finding a replacement would have fallen to McIlvaine. Now the assumption is McIlvaine could be bidding against the Mets for the slugging right fielder.

The Padres, predicted to win the National League West, struggled all season despite the addition of RBI producer Joe Carter. McKeon stepped down as manager in July and was replaced by Greg Riddoch.

San Diego entered Monday night's game tied for fourth in the NL West, 15 games behind division champion Cincinnati.

McIlvaine, who previously scouted for the Brewers, Angels and Orioles, is credited for supplying the Mets with much of the talent that has produced the major leagues' winningest team since 1984 and a World Series title in 1986.

His strength is judging young talent and making good trades. During his tenure the Mets obtained pitchers Ron Darling, Sid Fernandez, David Cone, Frank Viola, Bob Ojeda, John Franco and outfielder Kevin McReynolds. Dwight Gooden was drafted in 1982 while McIlvaine was scouting director.

His biggest blunder was the disastrous 1989 trade of center fielder Lenny Dykstra and relief pitcher Roger McDowell to Philadelphia for Juan Samuel.

This season, he made an excellent waiver pickup in center fielder Daryl Boston which helped ease the sting of the Dykstra trade. For the stretch drive, the Mets made three solid acquisitions - catcher Charlie O'Brien, second baseman Tommy Herr and outfielder Pat Tabler.

MOSCOW (OCT. 1) UPI - Soviet churches won the right Monday to establish their own schools and engage in charity work in the final passage of a broad-based religious bill ending seven decades of state atheism.

But members of the Supreme Soviet, in two separate votes, rejected proposals to allow religious services in the military and to permit state classrooms to be used for religious instruction after normal school hours.

Deputies, tackling fundamental political issues after weeks of debate on economic reform, also began final consideration of a measure to end the Communist Party's monopoly rule, which both the party and the legislature have already endorsed in principle.

Despite not getting everything he wanted, Patriarch Aleksii II, head of the Russian Orthodox Church, praised the new law ''On Freedom of Conscience and Religious Organziations'' as a major step in the church's rebirth.

''Until now, we have lived according to the law on religious organizations of 1929,'' Aleksii said. ''It was a long and difficult road to arrive at this (new) law. It is a great event in the spiritual renovation of society and church.''

''For the first time, the (national) law gives the church the possibility of engaging in extensive charity work and bringing up children of all ages in the spirit of morality and faith,'' the prelate said.

The law for the first time officially separates church and state. It also definitively ends the Soviet Union's promotion of atheism as state policy in a turn as momentous as the Communist Party's surrendering of its constitutional guarantee to one-party rule in February and the planned transition to a market economy.

Known as Holy Russia when it was ruled by the czars because of of its support for the Russian Orthodox Church, the country became an officially godless state after the Communists took over in November 1917. The church was subordinated to rigid Communist control.

But the new law specifically prohibits the state from financing religious organizations and atheistic propaganda. Such funding gave birth over the years to museums of atheism across the country, and their future is now in doubt.

Under Vladimir Lenin, founder of the Soviet state, churches and monasteries were converted into warehouses and garages. Lenin's successor, Josef Stalin closed thousands of churches in the countryside and melted down the church bells to break the will of peasants as part of the collectivization of agriculture.

Religious zealots and priests who did not submit to official tutelage from the secular organizations filled the Gulag labor camps well into the 1970s.

Under President Mikhail Gorbachev, all churches and religions have enjoyed a resurgence. The Russian Orthodox Church, the dominant religion, has reopened hundreds of churches, and, even without the just- passed legislation, churchmen resumed charity work while officials looked aside.

Although the deputies adopted the law on religion in principle last Wednesday by a vote of 344-1, they did not hammer out the details that explain what the legislation specifically guarantees and forbids.

On Monday, the deputies, voting clause by clause, dropped from the bill a provision allowing religious services in the army. The vote was 303-33 with 46 abstentions. They also struck away, by a 279-27 vote, an article permitting classrooms to be used for after-school religious teaching if parents or religious bodies requested it.

Roy Medvedev, one of the former triad of great dissidents along with Andrei Saharov and Alexander Solzhenitsyn and now a respected legislator, told the Parliament that, as a former school director, he opposed the removal of the classroom provision.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 1) UPI - The Supreme Court opened its 1990-91 term Monday by agreeing to decide if civil rights laws cover U.S. firms and workers overseas and if the ailing savings and loan industry can take certain tax deductions worth millions of dollars.

The court, which was still awaiting confirmation of its ninth justice, also accepted cases concerning taxing cigarettes sold on Indian reservations and police officers' use of physical restraint on criminal suspects.

But the court refused to become involved in significant cases involving drug testing, interracial adoption rights, AIDS in the military and the separation of church and state.

The term began on the traditional first Monday of October with New Hampshire federal appeals court Judge David Souter waiting in the wings as the Senate prepares for a confirmation vote. Souter would replace Justice William Brennan the leader of the court's liberal faction who retired this summer after 33 years.

At 10 a.m., the court announced it had agreed the hear 25 cases out of nearly 1,300 requests for review.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist, who often differed sharply with Brennan, read a proclamation praising Brennan for his service and ''profound influence upon American constitutional law.''

The eight justices then began hearing oral arguments in the court's first cases of the term, those carried over from last term.

Arguments are scheduled this week in major cases involving school desegregation and punitive damages, making the timing of the ninth justice's confirmation and seating on the bench critical. Only justices eligible to hear oral arguments normally participate in deciding the outcome of a case.

Souter is expected to be confirmed by the full Senate this week but likely would not be seated on the bench before week's end at the earliest.

In major action Monday, the court agreed to decide if civil rights laws cover U.S. companies and their employees operating overseas.

The case involves Ali Boureslan, a naturalized American citizen born in Lebanon, who claims he was discriminated against by Aramco Service Co. while working in Saudi Arabia.

Boureslan claims his supervisor subjected him to a ''campaign of harassment,'' including racial, religious and ethnic slurs culminating in his firing June 16 1984. He brought suit under Title 7 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Federal courts dismissed the suit, stating the Civil Rights Act does not ''extend its reach beyond our borders.''

The high court also agreed to decide a technical but potentially crucial issue for many financially ailing thrifts - whether they can deduct millions of dollars as losses by essentially swapping mortgage loans of near identical value.

The decision could affect at least five cases currently before the court and dozens of other savings and loans nationwide.

At issue is a 1980 memorandum by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which appeared to legalize the mortgage loan exchanges as a cost-cutting step.

The IRS challenged the legality of the directive, but federal appeals courts split on the question, bringing it to the high court.

The court also agreed to determine what constitutes a violation of privacy when a law enforcement officer uses physical restraint against a person to seize suspected illegal property.

The court will hear arguments on the case brought by the state of California. Lawyers for the state argued a lower court erred in reversing the drug conviction of a juvenile by finding that police illegally detained the youth.

In cases involving Indians, the court agreed to decide whether Oklahoma may collect state taxes on cigarettes sold at an Indian tribe's convenience store. The state contends an appeals court erred when it ruled the Citizen Potawatomi Indian Tribe is immune from taxation, even for products sold to non-Indians.

And in a case that originated in Alaska, the court agreed to decide if Indian tribes have the legal right to sue states in federal court, a right normally confined to the U.S. government.

In other action, the court:

-Let stand a ruling that members of the military who test positive for the AIDS virus can be court-martialed for not telling prospective sex partners about their condition.

-Refused to step into a dispute to decide whether state agencies may consider race as a factor in making adoption placement decisions. A Kentucky couple claimed the state excluded them from adopting a child because they are white and the child is of mixed race.

-Declined to review a ruling involving a Southern Baptist seminary forced to award a divinity degree in marital counseling to a minister who allegedly beat his wife.

-Refused to review the constitutionality of a New York City directive requiring random drug testing of 10,000 city corrections officers.

BALTIMORE (OCT. 1) UPI - The first leukemia patient to undergo an experimental umbilical cord blood transplant is doing well, indicating the therapy may someday prove useful for cancer, AIDS and other diseases, doctors said Monday.

Seven weeks ago, Michael Sancilio, 4, of Virginia Beach, Va., who suffered from a rare, deadly form of leukemia, received about 6 tablespoons of umbilical cord blood collected from his baby sister at birth.

The procedure was similar to the bone marrow transplants often used to give leukemia patients new, cancer-free bone marrow, but spared Michael's infant sister the risks of anesthesia used when bone marrow is harvested.

Michael is believed to be the first leukemia patient in the world to be treated by an umbilical blood cord transplant, said Dr. John Wagner, who directed the procedure at The Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Four other children - three in France and one in the United States - have undergone similar transplants for a blood disorder called Fanconi's anemia since 1988. The transplants began after researchers discovered umbilical cord blood was rich in stem cells, young cells that multiply and make up bone marrow.

Wearing a Washington Redskins cap, bib overalls and a surgical mask to guard against infection, Michael quietly sat between his parents Monday at a news conference to outline his progress.

''He's done very well,'' Wagner said. ''There were no significant complications whatsoever.''

However, the doctor cautioned that, as in bone marrow transplant patients, it will be at least two years before it is known if the leukemia has been eliminated from the child.

''We certainly hope he's been cured of the disease, but we can't tell you for sure,'' Wagner said.

The child's father, Tony Sancilio, said the only difficulty has been persuading the 4-year-old to take his medications, which include drugs to prevent tissue rejection and antibiotics to ward off infection.

''We know Michael has a long way to go. But at this point, we are very confident,'' Sancilio said.

The boy, who was diagnosed with juvenile chronic myelogenous leukemia in April probably would have died within a year unless he received a new supply of bone marrow.

His parents and older brother were not compatible bone marrow donors, so doctors collected blood from the umbilical cord and placenta of his baby sister, Christina, when she was born in June. The baby proved to be a good donor match for Michael, and so her blood was infused into the sick boy, whose cancer-infested marrow was deliberately destroyed with high doses of drugs.

Doctors expected stem cells from the cord blood to travel into Michael's bones and begin forming cancer-free marrow. The boy's white blood cell count - an indicator of marrow growth - currently is about the same level as children who have undergone successful bone marrow transplants, Wagner said.

''This is a breakthrough because of the potential for umbilical cord blood as a another source of bone marrow stem cells,'' Wagner said. ''Perhaps cord blood may become a widely available source of stem cells for people who otherwise might not have them.''

Currently, patients who need bone marrow transplants must either locate a relative who has a close match, go to a donor bank in hopes of finding a close match or take a chance at a mismatched transplant.

In addition to leukemia, bone marrow transplants are being used experimentally to reconstitute the immune systems of cancer and adult AIDS patients who have received massive doses of chemotherapy in hopes of wiping out their disease.
